Lindsay Spends $25,000 On Town Streets

LINDSAY (ENS) — Board of works projects valued at more than $25,000 will be undertaken during the next few weeks, as the spring construction season begins for Lindsay town engineer, A. L. Strachan and his department. The projects do not include those provided for in a special $9,000 appropriation from this year's council, earmarked for construction work on existing streets and sidewalks.

Among the most important projects on tap for the coming weeks, are 1,600 feet of sidewalk to be built in the new Central Mortgage and Housing rental subdivision in the east ward on Short St. This will cost an estimated $4,000 to $5,000. The completion of the widening of the west side of Lindsay St. South, started last year, and finished except for the curbing, placing of catch basins and paving. The removal of the boulevard on the east side of the street. This contract is for $12,000 to $15,000, but part of the cost will be borne by the government, since the street is part of Highways 7 and 35.

Oiling of dirt roads in town. This will cost $9,000, and well begin as soon as the ground becomes warm enough to absorb the oil. Grading work is being done to prepare the roads for this step.

General work on local improvements is awaiting Municipal Board aproval. This includes sewers on St. Lawrence St. and other streets.

Work on the strong retaining fence at McDonald Park has been started. This is a minor repair job to replace stones which worked lose during the winter. Engineer Strachan noted that of the $15,000 set aside for construction work, some $9,000 was noted for work on roads including grading, resurfacing and paving. None of the disbursements for these purposes have been made by the works committee of town council, as yet.

Work is expected to begin in the near future on the Mary Knoll housing project, and the town will be working on the services for that area as well.

INSTALLING complex switching apparatus and other dial equipment in the new telephone exchange in Bridgenorth was started recently and will require several weeks to complete. Bill Gibson and Bill Hibberd are shown installing the equipment for the Bell Telephone Company—(Parks Studio Photo.)

Exchange Being Installed For Bridgenorth Telephones

Installation of the complex dial equipment is now under way in Bridgenorth's new telephone building as part of the extensive work to provide that area with its own exchange.

William Lettau, Bell Telephone manager, said it is expected that the new exchange will be ready for service this June. The exact date will be announced later.

The building itself is almost finished. However, the complicated work of installing and testing the switching apparatus and other dial equipment will require several weeks.

To start with, the new exchange will serve about 225 persons in Bridgenorth as well as in the Chemong Park section and nearby rural areas. Most of these persons are at present served on rural lines from the Peterborough exchange. Telephones will also be provided for a number of persons waiting for service.

The construction of telephone lines to link subscribers with the new exchange is well under way.

The telephone numbers of all persons who will be served by the new exchange will be changed at the time it is opened. They will be advised of their new numbers well in advance.

Rev. W. H. Tonge Resigns Charge

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—The resignation of Rev. Walton H. Tonge, BA, as minister of the Lakefield United Church was received and accepted with regret by the Official Board of the church at a meeting held Monday evening.

Mr. Tonge will leave in June for Western Ontario where he has been appointed district secretary of the Western Ontario Auxiliary of the British and Foreign Bible Society in Canada, effective June 1.

His appointment was announced Tuesday night by Dr. A. H. O'Neil, general secretary of the society. Mr. Tonge will succeed Rev. W. F. MacNiven at London. He has been minister at Lakefield for 3½ years.

Mr. Tonge graduated in Arts from Victoria College, University of Toronto in 1943 and in Theology from Emmanuel College in 1946. He served in the West China mission of the United Church from 1946. After spending one year in language study in Chentu, he moved to Chungking to become assistant principal of a mission boys' school. He returned from China in 1949 and became minister of Lakefield United Church.

During Mr. Tonge's ministry here an extensive renovation program of the church was carried out at a cost of $160,000. This year the final payments were made on this debt. Interested in missions, he also had the satisfaction of seeing the church's givings to the missionary and maintenance fund double itself since he took charge.

He was a director of Camp Quin-Mo-Lac, and secretary of the missionary and maintenance department of the Bay of Quinte Conference, and chairman of the Peterborough Presbytery, Missionary and Maintenance department.

Mr. Tonge is married and has three children. His wife is a missionary's daughter and lived the first 16 years of her life in China. Her father, the Rev. John Kitchen, was with the Canadian Mission Press in China and is now minister of Orono United Church.

Bogart Leaves Command, Goes To Japan

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—Brig. M. P. Bogert turned over command of the 25th brigade to Brig. Jean Allard Tuesday and motored to Seoul from where he will shortly fly to Japan, en route home to a new appointment. He had commanded the brigade for a year.

A brief order informed the Canadian troops of the command change.

As Brig. Bogert left his headquarters an honor guard drawn from all fighting units and commanded by Capt. Douglas Caldwell of Ottawa and Shilo, Man., gave the general salute while bugles and drums from the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery under Sgt. E. Wells of Montreal played.

SURPRISE FAREWELL

Soldiers from headquarters, to Bogert's touched surprise, lined the road leading from the parade ground and gave him a final cheer as he drove between them.

The 45-year-old Vancouver soldier earlier had said farewell to the RCHA and been presented with the casing of the 300,000th shell the unit fired in Korea. At the same ceremony Maj.-Gen. Michael West, Commonwealth division commander, invested recently-honored gunners with their decorations

Brig. Bogert also said farewell to the Royal 22nd Regiment, addressing them in French. The Van Doos will get their decorations from Gen. West Thursday.

35 Trucks Help Collect Paper

The paper drive put on by the Boy Scout Assocation of Peterborough Tuesday night netted between 75 and 80 tons of waste paper which filled six freight cars.

There were 35 trucks collecting the paper throughout the city, assisted by 350 boy scouts and men. Tuesday night as far as weather conditions were concerned was ideal for collecting paper.

The last paper drive was in January and it netted 114 tons and the proceeds were divided, half going to the head office of the assocaiton and the rest divided among the various boy scout troops in the city.

The entire proceeds of Tuesday's drive are going to the scouts, which will be used to promote summer camping.

Wallace Sproule

Funeral service for Wallace Sproule, 1308 Monaghan Rd, who died Saturday was held Tuesday at the Comstock funeral home.

The Rev. H. G. Douglas of Knox United Church officiated. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Mr. Sproule is survived by his wife, the former Effie Armstrong, a daughter, Cordie M. and Donald D.

Pallbearers were Clem Galvin, C. E. Whatley, H. Andrews, C. Murduff, T. K. Bleakley, and R. W. McIntyre.

FOUR FLATTENERS—His car adapted with special rollers, gardener W. J. Lester goes to work on a lawn in Rockford, Ill. After driving to his work on conventional wheels, Lester jacks up the auto and replaces the tires with four rollers. When the job's finished he puts on the tires and drives home.

News Of Housing Situation Suppressed—Legion Officer

"A deliberate policy is being pursued of suppression of news which would open the eyes of the public to the sum total of misery which is being added to daily by evictions and the breaking up of family life with a consequent pyramiding of wardships of children."

This was the charge levelled at a meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion Monday night by Ray Mann, Brantford, Commander of District B of the Canadian Legion, and chairman of the housing committee of the Ontario Command, Canadian Legion.

Terming the lack of housing a national scandal, Mr. Mann said that a conference of interested national groups was being called and urged the Peterborough Legion to make the best effort possible to get all the facts about the local shortage "and then determine how you can give publicity to those facts so that your citizens in Peterborough will know how dangerous the effects of the housing shortage are to them."

CHANGE IN LAW

While the provincial committee on housing had been of the opinion that municipalities could not afford to participate in housing programs at present costs, Mr. Mann said, a recent change in the National Housing Act permitted independent organizations to build homes with co-operation of municipalities.

"This is only one of the many items which show that the official mind is made up that we have changed from an economy in which anyone could afford to rent or build a house on their own resources to one in which people must be assisted to rent or buy or build a home," Mr. Mann charged.

"Most of the housing built in Canada from now on is going to be welfare housing in some form or other and instead of the homes remaining the independent castle of the family which occupies it, it will be under the duress of the welfare measures which created it.

"So we go on spending in Ontario alone more than $4,000,000 annually to provide for children from homes wrecked by the housing shortage and high costs, among other causes, and we still refuse to go to the root of the trouble and do something about housing costs."

If the cost of homes were brought down to an economic level, there would be such a demand for homes in Canada that the builders supply organizations and the builders would not be able to satisfy demand for probably two decades and the need for state participation in home building would disappear, the speaker said.

AROUSE OPINION

"The essential thing to do in this problem is to employ all legal means possible to arouse public opinion to the grave danger which it presents to Canada and to the price which the taxpayer is already paying to deal with those problems caused by housing.

Appeals to various legion branches for help in finding homes are increasing daily, the speaker said. While there is general agreement that Canada was short 500,000 homes, the speaker thought that 700,000 was closer to the truth, affecting 2,000,000 people a seventh of Canada's population.

The worst effect of the housing situation is found in the challenge it offers to the stability of the family, the speaker said, and the greatest thing that could be done to help was to bring about a changed and proper concept of the home.

"It is not just a collection of mud and brick and lumber put together for someone to live in," he said. "It is the abiding place of the family and the family is that unit of our society from which our civilization draws its living quality and strength.

"There must be an end to this ungodly 'Children not wanted' sign which hangs out across Canada now. The heathen process of breaking families up because they cannot afford present-day prices for homes must cease if we are to preserve the dignity and strength of the family in our nation."

Miss T. G. Allen

The funeral for Miss Thurza Grace Allen, 344 Parkhill Rd., who died Sunday, was held Tuesday from the Kaye funeral home.

The Rev. A. A. Mathews of George St. United Church conducted the service.

Pallbearers were Whitfield and Max Northey, Hilbert Allen, Chester McCracken, John Hunter, Howard Allison. Burial was in Ray's cemetery, Lakefield.

Wheat Stockpile Reported At Near-Record

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's stockpile of wheat stood at a near-record 604,307,000 bushels on March 31, with more than half of it still on Western farms, the bureau of statistics reports.

The Canadian stockpile, developing out of peak production, was about 14,000,000 bushels higher than the 460,764,000 bushels held at the same time last year. It compared with the peak of 760,000,000 bushels in 1943.

In addition to the stocks in Canada, 2,038,000 bushels were held in the United States, bringing the total Canadian stockpile in North America to 606,345,000 bushels, compared with 465,863,000 last year.

MARCH FIGURES

Of the total in Canada on March 31, 329,050,000 bushels were still on farms with another 144,638,000 in country elevators.

The oats stockpile on March 31 totalled 309,954,000 bushels, down from 318,351,000 bushels last year. About 266,700,000 bushels were on farms.

Canada's barley supplies, at 217,395,000 bushels, were higher than last year's 196,292,000, while rye stocks also were up at 22,815,000 bushels compared with 13,29,000.

Flaxseed stocks rose to 7,604,000 bushels from 5,963,000 a year ago.

91 Families Helped By CAS

Ninety-one families were given service by the Peterborough Children's Aid Society during March.

Miss Rachael Young, superintendent, in her report to the CAS Board of Directors Tuesday reported that 393 children were involved in these families. She also reported service to 154 children in foster homes and the Children's Home and to 34 unmarried parents.

Twelve new families came to the society during the month. They were referred by landlord, nurses, police, lawyer, doctor, other agencies and by personal application. The problems presented included excessive drinking, marital discord, physical abuse and plans for children during illness.

Five children came into the care of the society during the month and nine unmarried parents came to the society referred by doctor, lawyer, hospital and personal application.

Members of the CAS staff made 403 visits and held 140 office interviews in April.

Mrs. F J. Lynch and the Rev. G. V. Gaughan were appointed voting delegates to attend the convention of the Ontario Children's Aid Societies to be held in Toronto May 21 and 22.

The board of directors accepted with regret the resignation from the board of John McKerchar, who has served as board treasurer for many years.

Jailed For Life

LEWISTON, Idaho (AP)—Donald Keeler, 16-year-old high school junior, Tuesday was sentenced to life in prison for the murder of his uncle during a $140 robbery. Keeler had pleaded guilty.

Two Wounded On Army List

OTTAWA (CP)—An army casualty list today included two men wounded in action. The last list was issued April 17.

Today's list also mentioned L. Cpl. Paul Dugal of Quebec City as "returned from prisoner of war."

However, it did not officially recognize a change in status of 15 men listed two days ago by Dugal as prisoners of war. All 15 have been listed as missing, and headquarters has not yet received any official word from the Communists to confirm Dugal's information.

The army list brought to 1,308 total casualties so far suffered by Canadian troops in Korea, including 248 dead, 947 wounded, 25 missing, 87 injured and one captured.

In addition, the navy has reported three dead and three injured in action and the air force has reported one missing.

WOUNDED IN ACTION:

Johnston, Norris Hyde, Pte., PPCLI; Glen Avon, Sask.

Martin, John Francis, Spr., RCE; Vancouver.

Milner Denies Plan Negotiate Settlement

VANCOUVER (CP)—Transport controller R. W. Milner said Tuesday that he is not here to negotiate a settlement of the 65-day walkout of 250 Vancouver and New Westminster grain handlers.

He was referring to a statement earlier Tuesday in the House of Commons by Labor Minister Gregg that the transport controller had joined labor department officers here in an attempt to bring about a settlement.

Mr. Milner said he had talked with operators of the five strike-bound elevators and representatives of the CIO Grain Workers' Union to find out for himself what their differences are.

Ore Carrier Rams Submerged Object

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—The ore carrier Scott Misener rammed a submerged object off Iroquois Point Tuesday night and continued to the lower lakes with a small hole below the waterline.

The Misener locked through here today. The captain said the ship's pumps could handle the flooding water.

United States Coast Guard vessels searched the area but found nothing. Officials said the Scott Misener may have hit an ice floe or a submerged hull.

PoWs Cheered Stalin's Death

KURE, Japan (Reuters)—Allied prisoners cheered the news of Stalin's death when it came over the loudspeakers at the Korean prisoner-of-war camp, a released soldier told correspondents today.

L. Cpl. Bill Swancott of the British Gloucester Regiment said the Chinese wanted the prisoners to go into mourning and observe a 10-minute silence for Stalin.

"Of course we refused. The Chinese did not enforce their request but ran around a lot and were annoyed—especially when we cheered as the death was announced over the loudspeakers," he added.

Swancott was one of 12 British prisoners released by the Communists at Panmunjom Tuesday and brought to this British Commonwealth base in Japan today.

He was captured during the last ditch stand of April, 1951, which won the "Glorious Gloucesters" fame in Korea.

British Magazine Lauds New Plane

LONDON (CP)—A British magazine says today the saucer-shaped aircraft now reported under construction near Toronto is a project of "major significance and may be destined to bring an aircraft designer's pipe dreams a step nearer to reality."

The flying review, Journal of the RAF, quotes published reports in Toronto as saying that an aircraft company at Malton, Ont., is building a 40-foot "flying saucer" which will fly at 1,500 miles an hour.

The publication says that since the Canadian project is essentially a military development, there is a tight security curtain. "None of the facts or opinions expressed in this article should be read as having been confirmed by the air ministry," it adds.

Nevertheless, says the Journal, the circular-disk or saucer-shaped aircraft "is undoubtedly a practical proposition; aircraft of such unorthodox shapes may well hold the key to the next stage in supersonic flight."

Moscow Conference

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — Red China's Premier Mao Tse-Tung has completed plans for a Moscow conference with Soviet Leader Georgi Malenkov to discuss cold war strategy, the Chinese Nationalist interior ministry's Ta Tac news agency said today.

Brain Swelling Kills Boxer

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) Dick Miller, 22, of Warren, Mass., undefeated welterweight professional boxer, died of a swelling of the brain shortly after he collapsed in his corner during a boxing match Tuesday night.

The cause of death was given today by Dr. Frank H. Carr, boxing commission physician, and Dr. Arthur O'Dea, a pathologist with the department of legal medicine at Harvard University.

They performed an autopsy and examined the boxer's vital organs and said later the brain swelling (cerebral edema) could have been caused by one or several blows in the stomach or the head.

Miller was struck a smashing blow in the stomach near the close of the fourth round of the scheduled six-rounder.

Dr. R. U. Leader Dies Popular Physician

WHEATLEY (CP)—Dr. R. W. Leader, one of this town's most highly respected citizens, died Tuesday night at his home. He was 82 years of age.

Dr. Leader practised medicine in Wheatley for the past 42 years, and was active in the development of the community.

Born in Plattsville, Ont., he attended St. Catharines' Collegiate, and went from their to the University of Toronto. He graduated in 1901.

Dr. Leader first practised in Simcoe county. He came to Wheatley in 1911.

He is survived by his widow, the former Jenette Fisher and one sister, Mrs. Emma Hillier, who is 92 and lives at Moncton, Ont.

Two Men Shot In Sudbury Home

SUDBURY (CP)—Two men were shot in their home here early today and police said it was an apparent case of murder and suicide.

Steve Sportan, 30, died in hospital shortly after he was shot in the head. Peter Sadoway, Sportan's stepfather, was found dead in his bedroom with a bullet hole through his mouth.

Police had little to work on but said Sadoway is believed to have shot Sportan and then ended his own life. The shooting happened at about 10 a. m.

Officers said Sadoway's wife was in the house but was in such a state of shock that she was unable to explain the shooting.

Leaves Divorce Issue Till Trip Finished

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Singing star Jane Powell heads east today for a night club engagement in Toronto, leaving Hollywood wondering when and if she will divorce Geary Steffen.

The actress said through her studio that during the six weeks she will be gone she and Geary may be able to resolve their differences, "but if they are not resolved I will file for divorce." Steffen, ice skating star who now has an insurance business, did not comment.

Miss Powell has been seen often in the company of Gene Nelson, actor and dancer.

Reds Emphasize Peace Issues

MOSCOW (AP)—The central committee of the Soviet Union's Communist party emphasized today the thesis that the controversial issues now troubling the world can be settled by peaceful means.

This was brought out in slogans for May Day which occupied the entire front pages of Pravda and other Moscow morning papers.

In the list of 47 slogans, the pronouncement on settling troublesome issues by peaceful means came second. It said: "Long live peace with the people. There is no dispute or unresolved issue which cannot be solved peacefully on a basis of mutual understanding by the countries concerned."

Prime Minister Malenkov expressed the same sentiment in his inaugural speech March 15.

The slogans, serious party pronouncements that go down to every party organization in the country, are the first party calls issued since the Malenkov government took office.

Foreign diplomats here regard the annual May Day slogans as the most up-to-date statements of the party line in the Soviet Union.

Four-Year Sentence For German Priest

BERLIN (AP)—A Roman Catholic priest was sentenced to four years and two months in prison by a Russian zone court for violating the law for protection of trade and boxing a boy's ears during religious instruction, the Roman Catholic Church announced today.

Father Friedrich Hildebrandt of Kirchmoeser, Saxony-Anhalt, was convicted last Monday by a Communist district court at Potsdam in spite of the fact that his alleged trade crime was committed two years before the law went into effect.

A Church spokesman said Hildebrandt was charged with "illegal import" of prayer books from West Germany.

Veterinarians urge...variety for your dog

Feeding your dog for good health and normal growth is easy, veterinary authorities agree, when you remember two important facts: (1) Like humans, dogs are individuals too, and have their likes and dislikes where food is concerned. (2) A balanced diet is just as vital as nutritive food. Both are reasons why "vets" advise you to feed a variety of nourishing food to keep your dog happy, healthy and eating well. The complete "family" of famous Master Dog Foods makes variety easy and economical. For instance here's a daily diet one leading expert recommends:

The Main Meal
—should be composed of either a 50-50 mixture of Master Canned Dog Food and K-9 Meal, or a mixture comprising 25% Master Horse Meat and Gravy and 75% K-9 Meal or Master Kibble.

The Secondary Meal
—give your dog Master Kennel Kibble mixed with a lesser amount of Master Canned Dog Food. This meal is fed at bed time.

The "treat"
—for those little tidbits all dogs enjoy so much, keep Master Shapes or Mixed O-B's handy.

Court Hears Mind-Chilling Story

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP)—A quiet-spoken government prosecutor today unfurled the mind-chilling story of four months horror in the drab London flat where 55-year-old John Christie is accused of murdering four women.

Christie, mild-mannered little trucking clerk, sat blinking through his horn-rimmed glasses in the Clerkenwell courtroom as prosecutor John F. Claxton patiently built up a picture of a sex-crazed killer who half-gassed his victims and half-strangled them.

Christie was arrested 22 days ago after a country-wide manhunt touched off by the discovery of three bodies walled up in the Notting Hill flat he long tenanted.

Later the body of his wife, Ethel, was found under the floor-boards and the remains of two other bodies—still unidentified—were unearthed in the garden.

Claxton said Christie wept bitterly as he told police of the death of the four women.

According to Claxton, Christie said he killed his wife as they lay in bed together Dec. 14 "to put her to sleep" after she had had a convulsive fit.

The other three walled-up women died in struggles in the flat after they had picked quarrels with him. Christie's statement, the prosecutor said, did not admit the actual killings of the three.

Brightly-dressed housewives packing the tiny courtroom's 20 public seats sat round-eyed and gasping as Claxton told how three more women visited the flat during January and February and wound up together abused and mutilated in a walled-up kitchen alcove.

Those three women were Hectorina MacLennan, Kathleen Maloney and Rita Nelson. All were in their mid-20s. All were well known in the half-world night spots of the Notting Hill area where Christie lived. All three had been half gassed and half strangled. And all three bodies showed evidence of sexual intercourse.

Christie sat listening intently as Claxton's story droned on. His small well-kept hands occasionally fluttered nervously on his knees.

He looked fit and dapper with a clean white handkerchief peeking from the top pocket of his new blue suit. Sometimes he looked around at the 50 newspapermen who sat on packed benches behind him, some within touching distance. He looked a small slight figure with a tiny head—almost a man in miniature.

The prosecutor read a statement Christie was said to have made to the police shortly after he had been arrested March 31.

Claxton said Christie in his reported statement chronicled the deaths:

Ethel, his wife: "She was very frightened by black people living in the house and got very depressed. When I woke up on Dec. 14 she appeared to be convulsive, her face was blue and she was choking. . . .I got a stocking and tied it round her neck to put her to sleep. . . .I left her in bed for two or three days. But then I remembered some loose floor boards in the front room. I had to sort of half carry and drag her and put her in the depression and cover her up with earth."

Miss Maloney: "One evening I met a drunken woman on the way home who stood in front of me and demanded one pound to take her round the corner. I said "I am not interested." She followed me to the house and in the kitchen she picked up a frying pan and hit me. There was a struggle and she fell back against a chair. Next thing I remember she was lying in the chair with a rope around her neck. Next morning I must have put her in a small alcove. I don't remember doing it."

Miss Nelson: "Some time in February I mentioned about leaving my flat to two girls in a cafe in Notting Hill. They suggested they should come round to see it. Only one came and she made suggestions she should visit me for a few days. I said I was not interested. She started fighting. I am very quiet and avoid fighting. I must have put her in the alcove."

Miss McLennan: "She refused to leave the house. I got hold of her arm and tried to lead her out. I pushed her out of the kitchen. She started struggling like anything and some of her clothing got torn. She then sort of fell limp as I got hold of her. She sank to the ground and I think some of her clothing must have got caught round her neck in the struggle. I must have put her in the cupboard."

CONTINUE STORY

Police investigators told the court today what happened next.

Detectives first found the body of Miss McLennan, a young Scots girl.

"Her back was facing into the kitchen," Claxton said.

"She was in a sitting position, leaning forward and secured from falling back against the door by having a piece of blanket attached to her brassiere."

The rest of the blanket was wrapped around the body of another girl, Miss Maloney. The third corpse was found deeper in the cupboard, also wrapped in a blanket.

Miss Maloney's face and head were covered with a pillow case tied round the neck with a stocking.

Miss Nelson as six months pregnant and there was a piece of material knotted round her neck.

Later on that day—March 24—the floorboards were removed and the body of Christie's wife was found hidden under earth. There was no indication of recent sexual intercourse.

Fonda and his wife were separated at the time. The residuary estate was left in trust to their two children and Mrs. Fonda's mother.

Professional Ballet Comes To Lindsay

LINDSAY (ENS). — Professional ballet will have its premiere in Lindsay next Monday night when the Boris Volkoff Canadian Ballet Company will make an appearance at the Academy Theatre sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's Club of Lindsay.

The program will consist of three presentations by the members of the company, two by the guest, Shivaram, world-famous Hindu temple dancer.

Threatened Famine Caused By Drought

KARACHI, Pakistan (Reuters)—The threatened famine which sparked the ousting of Premier was caused chiefly by a two-year drought in West Pakistan. "the granary of Asia."

Many observers here say the government's policy had been improving lately.

The shortage is serious only in West Pakistan. The eastern sections, which have often had food shortages, had a better harvest last year than the year before.

The over-all deficit for the country in last spring's harvest was 800,000 tons of wheat, with an even greater gap in the crop now under harvest.

Pakistan must import 1,500,000 tons of wheat this year to avert widespread famine.

Son Of Former Pastor Visits Coldsprings

COLDSPRINGS (ENS)—Guests at the weekend with Miss Edith Hoskin and Dr. Alex Hoskin were Dr. Bert Skene and Mrs. Skene of Vancouver, B.C. Dr. Skene is a son of the late Rev. James Skene, a former pastor of Coldsprings Presbyterian Church.

Dr. and Mrs. Skene were on their way to Montreal where they will sail this week on the Empress of Scotland to attend a ministerial convention in Great Britain where Dr. Skene is to be one of the speakers.

Dr. Skene has been preaching in Vancouver for 13 years and retired in February of this year. During that time he was elected Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church.

Dr. and Mrs. Skene will attend the coronation and spend the summer touring England and Scotland, returning home in October.

PINCH HITTERS OFF PAR

NEW YORK (AP)—Pinch hitters and batting champions are finding the pitching—and weather—a bit rugged this spring with sub-par averages for the early games.

Managers sent 83 pinch hitters to the plate in games through Monday. Only 13 delivered with hits although eight walked. The batting average for the lot was 171.

Ferris Fain, the two-time American League batting leader in 1951 and 1952 is way down with the utility infielders and ground keepers at .077. That should not cause undue alarm because Fain, then with the Philadelphia A's, went 21 for 0 last spring before he got started. So far he has had only one hit for Chicago White Sox, who obtained him last winter.

Stan Musial also got off slowly in his bid for a seventh National League title. It took two hits Monday night for the St. Louis Cardinal ace to get as high as .267. But he's on the move.

The managers having the most luck with pinch hitters are Marty Marion of St. Louis Browns, Paul Richards of Chicago White Sox, Steve O'Neill of the Phillies and Eddie Stanky of the Cardinals.

Poor Fred Haney at Pittsburgh, trying anything to escape disaster, hasn't found a base hit in nine pinch hitters. Two walked but the rest left him high and dry.

Freddie Hutchinson at Detroit is having almost as bad luck. He has used 11 so far and got one base hit, a single. However, three did manage to walk.

No Trusteeship

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Karl Rankin, United States ambassador to the Chinese Nationalist government, said here today there was no possibility of anything like United Nations trusteeship for Formosa. He said Chinese Nationalists had "no serious fears" of the United States abandoning them.

Name John Bell President Of Cheese Co.

MARMORA (ENS)—A highly successful 1952 season was reviewed by patrons of the Marmora Cheese Co at the annual meeting in the factory Monday evening.

The factory boast 36 patrons and the attendance of over 40 indicates the interest of local milk producers in the cheese industry.

Presiding over the gathering was ex-reeve John A. Bell of Marmora and Lake township who has filled the presidential chair for the past 31 years and was given a further term of office.

On behalf of himself and John W. Richardson, Laughlin P. Hughes presented the auditors' report.

Among other figures given were the following: Milk received 1,165,540 lbs.; butterfat 37,823 lbs.; total cheese manufactured 102,610 lbs.; lbs. milk to 1 lb. cheese 11.3 lbs; lbs. cheese to 1 lb. butterfat 2.7 lbs; lbs. butterfat sold to creamery 2,720 lbs.; value butterfat sold to creamery $1,420.77; net average price per 100 lbs. milk (including bonus) $2.16; net average price per lb. butterfat (including bonus) 67.1 cents.

CHEESE GRADING

The cheese grading statement showed 1,073 boxes to have been graded with the following result: 1st 99.6%, 2nd 0.4%. In the scoring of 93 points and over, 95.5 was obtained. The overall average was 93.708 against the provincial average of 92.6.

Charles Blair, cheesemaker for the past season who established the record, was rehired for the 1953 season at a meeting last fall.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, John A. Bell, secretary, William Flynn, directors Laughlin P. Hughes, Everett Derry, Ray Bonter and Arthur Tompkins, auditors L. P. Hughes, J. W. Richardson.

Milk routes were sold to the following: No. 1 Clayton Tompkins, No 2 Gilbert Horton, No. 3 Earl Wilkes.

Making a brief appearance at the meeting was Alex F. Fraser, manager of the local Dominion Bank who spoke a few words of congratulation on the 1952 record.

$400,000 Sawmill Brings New Life To Northern Town

LONGLAC, Ont. (CP)—The Indians hardly know this booming Northern Ontario community nowadays when they bring their furs in to trade.

Electric lights blaze in scores of homes in the valley that until last year glowed dully with coal-oil and gasoline lamps. Last year a huge $400,000 sawmill sprang up. A new post office, a modern service station, and a church extension were built.

For a century before 1914 Longlac was one of hundreds of the Hudson's Bay Company posts that dotted Canada's northland. Since 1914 the settlement 150 miles north of Port Arthur has become an important rail junction with direct connections to Western Canada, Port Arthur and Toronto.

ON MAIN HIGHWAY

Ontario's No. 11 Highway passes through it. At present it is the only road through Northern Ontario that joins Western Canada to the East.

The railroad came first, in 1914. Later came logging companies, mining promoters, the hydro and the highway.

The settlement boomed in 1928 when prospectors found gold. But by 1936 most of the mining interests had gone, and the gold flurry died. Today the only operating mine in the area is at Theresa, seven miles east of Longlac on the Suicide river.

As Longlac's gold veins ran out, more permanent assets were exploited. The logging companies and the hydro came to stay. Now the settlement has 800 persons, and $105,000 school.

IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT

Last year the railway modernized its shops to handle and store diesel locomotives. At the beginning of the year, the Ontario government made the settlement an Improvement District and appointed three trustees to develop it.

Longlac is at the north end of Long Lake, a wind-swept body of water that stretches 54 miles to the south. Though seldom more than five miles wide, it is the largest of many lakes by that name in Canada. Its waters flow into James bay 400 miles to the north and into Lake Superior to the south and provide the power for hydro generating stations that serve a large part of Northern Ontario.

The Indian-named Kenogami river flows from Long Lake toward James bay. At the south end of the lake the Aquasabon river carries logs 30 miles south to Lake Superior.

In 1914 Longlac became a point on the old Canadian Northern Railway, linking the Lakehead with the East. And in 1924 a spur was pushed 40 miles north to meet the main Canadian National Railways trans-Canada line. The spur became part of a direct route between Southern Ontario and Western Canada.

COMING OF HYDRO

Hydro engineers moved in from Southern Ontario in the early '30s. In 1937 they began to dam the Kenogami river to hold back much of the water flowing north from Long Lake into James bay.

Later they concentrated on the Aquasabon. Near its mouth in Lake Superior they built a hydro generating plant.

The Kenogami dam, 14 miles north of Longlac, boosted the flow of the Aquasabon from 300 to 1,750 cubic feet a second. In 1952 hydro lines carrying power from the Aquasabon and other Northern Ontario stations were pushed into Longlac.

In 1937 the pulpwood supply company was set up. Now called the Longlac Pulp and Paper Company, it is owned by the Kimberly-Clark Corporation of Neenah, Wis. The company flourished, and with the growing railway activities provides one of the town's basic industries.

Lumbermen dump logs into Long lake, then float them down the lake and south in the Aquasabon river to the company's mill at Terrace Bay on the Lake Superior shore.

PROGRESSIVE COMPANY

The company is operating on the basis of "sustained yield." Under this plan recutting of any given area is not allowed for about 100 years, the time needed for northern pulpwood species to grow to maturity. A 75-acre tree nursery for reforestation purposes is also being established.

The logging company has built a modern townsite for its workers, with shops, office buildings, sewers running water and a fire-fighting system.

Last year the settlement's property was valued at $444,670, to permit a general tax rate of 19 mills, the lowest in the Thunder Bay district. This year the assessable property has increased by $42,000.

LITTLE SCOOTER — A boy of 11, Phil Rizzuto swung a bat in the Ridgewood section of Brooklyn. In 1939, with Kansas City, young Rizzuto won the American Association's most valuable player award. The great shortstop continued batting .300 or better when he joined the Yankees in 1941. At 34, and convalescing from an ulcer, he remains the key man in the New York Americans' bid for an unparalleled fifth consecutive pennant and world championship.

Lindsay Labor Being Organized

LINDSAY (ENS)—The Ontario Labor Relations Board Tuesday reserved its decision on the applications for certification of unions in a third Lindsay plant. The United Steel Workers of America has already been heard in its application for two firms, Dominion Brake Shoe and McCrae Machine and Foundry. Yesterday's hearing produced the most controversy of the three, when the two groups appeared for certification as the bargaining agents for the employees of the Chatco Steel. An employee union opposed the Steel Workers' application and a counter-application before the board. Both groups were represented by counsel. The board reserved decision, but a vote of the employees will likely be conducted to determine which union they favor. Certification of the CIO union in other plants is expected following the strong application made to the board last week.

Crash Survivor Slightly Improved

KENTVILLE, N. S. (CP)—Hospital authorities said oday the condition of FO. Kenneth Benson of Brantford, Ont., is "slightly improved," but he is not yet out of danger.

Benson was the sole survivor of an RCAF bomber crash near this Annapolis valley town Monday which took six lives. He suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries.

96 Canadian Soldiers To Attend Coronation

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will be represented at the Coronation by eight officers and 88 men from the 27th Canadian infantry brigade stationed in Germany, army headquarters announces.

They will join the active army detachment from Canada which sails from Quebec late this month.

The group from Germany consists of a platoon from the 1st Canadian rifle battalion, 1st Canadian infantry battalion, 1st Canadian Highland battalion and a composite platoon from the other services of the brigade. Senior officer will be Maj. M. F. MacLachlin of Kingston, from the Highland battalion.

Double Army Budget

VIENNA (AP) — Czechoslovakia will spend almost twice as much money this year as last for army and security forces. Finance Minister Jaroslav Kabes submitted a budget to Parliament in Prague Tuesday. It provides 41,800,000,000 crowns ($836,000,000) for military and security forces this year, compared with 22,400,000,000 crowns last year.

To Resume Trade

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japan will resume direct trade with the Chinese Communist mainland this month when the 10,000-ton Japanese freighter Yamagumi Maru sails with a cargo of textiles and machinery. Japanese officials said that no attempt would be made to stop the freighter because textiles and machinery are not considered "strategic" materials.

Residence Rule Adopted In Lindsay League

LINDSAY (ENS). — Bob Henry was elected president of the Lindsay Men's Softball League last night. He succeeds Andy Wassington as head of the flourishing organization which plans a four, or possibly five, team league this year.

The executive committee will be made up of Bill Ferguson, John Hunter, Murray Ward, Bill Folwell, Wallace Jones, Edgar Johnson, Ab Greer and Mike Stephens. Secretary is Frank Powers, and treasurer Percy Wilson.

The meeting adopted a residence rule, to be forwarded to the executive for approval. It states players in the league must reside within 10 miles of Lindsay, or work in town, to be eligible for membership in the association. This rule will also apply to Omemee, should a team from there enter again this year. All games will be played at the Lindsay Softball Park. The rule is aimed primarily at stopping the importation of outside players, especially from Peterborough.

June 30 was set as the final date for signing players, unless special cases merit the attention of the executive. Teams will be limited to 15 signed players at one time. The league will play under OASA rules, but will not affiliate with that body, although any team wishing to enter that league, either for scheduled or playoff play, may do so with permission of the executive.

A new move, offering membership in the association to all players at $1 for working players and 25 cents for student, was approved by the meeting for consideration by the executive. The membership will also be open to anyone desiring to join as a donation to the association.

Needed More Land So Moved To Canada

NEW YORK (CP)—Reporters wondered why the prosperous-looking Dutch family of 12 had left the Netherlands and were waiting Tuesday in Grand Central station for a train to Windsor, Ont.

Lambertus de Brouwer, 46, said the answer was simple—there is not enough land in his country. He said he never would have been able to get each of his six sons a farm.

The women in the family were dressed in furs and the men in sturdy tweeds and shoes of fine leather. They left a prosperous dairy farm in St. Dedenrode for their new life in Canada.

At first the boys in the family will work on a dairy farm owned by their uncle near Merlin, Ont.

DOROTHY DIX:

Wrong To Try To Hide Facts Of Marriage

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a mother of 39, the proud parent of two teen-age children. Our home life has been very happy My husband is a fine and loving man, the children are splendid and we have no domestic problems. Our difficulty goes back to our marriage. We married young, against the wishes of our parents, whose only objection was on the ground of our youth, and the ceremony was performed by the Justice of the Peace. My mother, who is very religious, was heartbroken, but we later had the marriage blessed in the church with everything straightened out satisfactorily. Now, the children are at an age where they ask questions about our courtship and wedding. They want to know why we didn't have a big church wedding, why I have no bridal dress, etc.

TROUBLED PARENTS

FRANKNESS ADVISED

ANSWER: Trying to keep the circumstances of a marriage a secret from the children is foolish and futile. The minute they sense a mystery about something, they'll uncover it by hook or by crook. Frankness is the best policy. Tell them you were secretly married, and why. Admit that it was a grave mistake, that you've regretted it ever since, and hope that they profit from your error. Let them know how sorry you are that there are no pictures of you as a glamorous bride, no wedding veil to pass on to your daughter, and no sweet memories of a flower- filled church as a background to your nuptials. The children will be as sorry as you are that you missed all these things, and your frankness may go a long way in convincing them that they won't miss the things you failed to have. Teen-agers appreciate the confidence of their parents and it's too bad that so many mothers and fathers fail to realize this.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My problem is most unusual, and I'd appreciate your advice. I am 19 and engaged to a boy 18; we plan to be married in May or June. I have just learned that I need a thyroid operation. I would hate to go into marriage and have my husband immediately faced with such a big expense. My mother and father can't afford to finance the operation, either. I'd get a job and pay for it myself, but Daddy doesn't want me to go to work, even though I've finished high school. Should I tell my fiance before we're married, or wait?

P. R.

ANSWER: Your brief note is so full of problems, I don't know which to tackle first. Perhaps I'll just skip lightly over the obvious folly of marrying an 18-year-old boy, and get down to the presented facts of your illness. It doesn't seem reasonable that you could be confronted with so serious an operation without your parents' knowledge. This is the problem to be solved at once. Your mother and father should be told of your illness, and in fact, they should talk to your doctor about it. You say your dad can't afford to pay for an operation, yet he is able to keep a 19-year-old girl in idleness. Unless there's serious need for your presence at home you should take a job. Be frank with your parents, and equally frank with your doctor and your fiance. Brooding, as you do will only add to your physical difficulties.

DEAR MISS DIX: After going with me for several months, the boy I like in school suddenly dropped me. Although he is pleasant when we meet in school, he hasn't asked for another date. Should I drop him or try to win him back?

G. T.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since you seem to be the one who was dropped, your first question is purely academic. Trying to win him back won't work, either, since he would certainly ask you out if he were the least bit interested in you. So forget this youth, and be nice to the other lads at school.

SACRED HEART SCHOOL

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Sacred Heart School met Tuesday evening. Mrs. D. Flynn presided. Monsignor P. P. Butler opened with prayer. Sister Beatrice Marie, Mrs. B. Rogers and Mr. Neil Collins gave accounts of the provincial convention in Toronto.

Attendance prize was won by Grade 8 and the door prize by Mrs. Catherine Harrington.

A High Mass will be celebrated some time in May at the request of the P-TA, in observance of Mary's Day. A banquet will be given the rugby and hockey champions of the school on April 28th at which time the P-TA will present gifts to the boys. It was also announced that the Diocesan Council is presenting Father Lord, world famours author, with a lecture at St. Peter's auditorium on May 19th. His topic will be "I just can't love my neighbor". Tickets are available through the executive and the individual units.

Mr. D. Hatton introduced the speaker, Dr. J. R. Epping, who gave a timely lecture on health of the teen-ager. Dr. Epping advised parents to try to understand the adolescent better. "There should be complete harmony and understanding between parent and teen-ager" he said. He was thanked by Mrs. P. Coursey.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Rogers and committee.

Pageant of Indian Costumes Brought By Missionary

Presbyterian children's girls and women's groups of the Peterborough Presbytery took part in a pageant entitled "A light on the path" presented in St. Paul's Church Tuesday evening. The pageant was prepared and directed by Miss Bessie MacMurchy, Reg. N., on furlough from the Bhil Field, Central India.

An audience of nearly 300 from the Presbyterial congregations was on hand to view the pageantry and hear Miss MacMurchy tell of her work in India. The pageant was given in four parts and included 27 costumed persons who were selected from the Explorers, Cubs, Scouts, Young Adult Group, and WMS and others of the various churches under the convenership of Mrs. H. G. McKenzie of Peterborough.

"A Light on The Path" shows a missionary mingling among the people in a village in Central India. She meets a Mohammedan widow who makes her living by grinding grain and doing various tyes of work; a Hindu family, whose father works in the Municipal office, a Bohras (sect of Mohammedans) storekeeper. In the village market, she meets a low caste Hindu woman, the wife of a seller of spices, a Meghwal (gypsy) family—farmers in to market—a Christian family.

A colourful scene greets the eye of the onlooker for the people are in the traditional dress of the land—each group dressed according to their status in life or according to their religious beliefs. The costumes belong to Miss MacMurchy. They represent a hobby she has had for the past twenty years for while she has served in India she has tried to collect as many types of costumes as she could.

Miss MacMurchy is the missionary who moves through the village. The people she meets represent actual people she knows in India. She pauses to make a business deal with the Mohammed, she is invited to tea at the Hindu home, she enquires about the health of the Bohras lady; she makes a pastoral visit in the Christian home. Through all the contacts, the pageant shows that the Christian Mission has an influence — in business dealings, in a concern for the health of the villages—in the invitation to attend schools and special classes.

The pageant is presented with the aim that those who see may be interested in the people of India, in the problems they face, and in the part that Christian Missions have played and are playing in a country which is becoming most influential in the community of nations. Discussion groups following the pageant lead people to see the part Canada has in life of India today.

Miss MacMurchy took time to explain the significance of some of the costumes and she also demonstrated the pattern of the turbans and saris. One turban was made from a strip of fairly wide, thin material 16 yards long. She said that men's turbans can be used by the women as saris.

Mrs. Earl Toombs of Campbellford, president of the Presbyterial Society, opened the program with a call to worship and hymn.

Lakefield Has 16 Quilts For Red Cross

The Lakefield branch, Canadian Red Cross Society met in Memorial Hall on Tuesday evening with the president, Mrs. Albert O'Donnell in the chair.

The secretary's report was given by Miss Irene Madill, in the absence of Mrs. S. A. Grylls, Miss Ella Down, treasurer, reported receipts of $496.63, expenditures $464.91 and a balance on hand of $31.72.

Miss M. Hampton, wool convener, presented her report and the secretary was instructed to write a letter of thanks to Mrs. S. Hunter for a donation of knitted goods. Mrs. Clarence Foster reported that the layettes, now being made would be shipped May 10, and that 16 quilts had already gone to Toronto.

School nurse, Mrs. Wallace Hendren, said 28 regular innoculations had been given and 78 step-ups of the combined serum at the public school. The dental inspection was not yet completed.

Unable to be present, campaign chairman A. G. Buchanan submitted a report showing total receipts from the recent drive to be $1,539.93. This is the largest sum ever realized in the village from the campaign for Red Cross funds.

Mrs. Robert McCracken's report of the Well Babies Clinic of which she is in charge, showed that 11 clinics were held at which 114 babies were examined. There were 14 new babies registered and 16 vaccinations given. Ten step-up doses of serum were given; 14 received 1st doses; 21 their second and 18 their third. There were step-up doses given to 21 public school children from Burleigh Falls.

The president announced that the recreational committee of the council had voted $500 for the Swimming and Water Safety program, and it will be used to pay the instructor.

Mrs. O'Donnell and Mrs. W. W. Leonard were appointed to represent the Society at the Children's Aid annual dinner to be held May 7 at the Empress Hotel in Peterborough.

A request from the Chamber re the payment for a flower box for the beautification of the village was refused and the Chamber will be notified that the Red Cross feels that its work is in connection with the bathing beach.

The Rev. J. A. Steed, as representative from the recreational committee suggested having the embankment from the boom to the rip rap repaired and asked the Society to give this their consideration and to try to interest other organizations. After considerable discussion, Mr. Steer, Mr. S. Burger and Mr. K. Jakins were appointed a committee to look into the matter, and report to the Red Cross.

Mrs. Russell Curry and Mr. Burger gave splendid reports of the annual meeting held in Toronto at which Col. Limb, permanent Korean representative to the United Nations was guest speaker.

UN Picture Still Hazy On Women In Public Life

The United Nations, collating facts on the participation of women in political and public life from constituent countries for use by the Commission on the Status of Women, has met with difficulties similar to those faced by less important organisers of questionnaires.

Thirty-three countries contributed facts but the answers given frequently failed to correspond to the questions put and many questions were left unanswered. The results, covering a period of eight years, therefore remain incomplete as a picture of any one nation and for comparison between different countries.

Where women have held spectacularly high positions the facts are given: it is when it comes to the chances of entrants to Government departments becoming senior officials that the picture becomes hazy.

Women of Cabinet rank are known in a number of countries. India has had a notable woman as head of her Ministry of Health, the United States a Treasurer, the United Kingdom a woman Minister of Education; (Honduras has also appointed a woman as Chief of Education). Both Israel and Panama have appointed women as Ministers of Labour, in the latter country combining Social Welfare and Health with Labour under one office.

Two countries, Sweden and Cuba, have had women as Ministers without Portfolio in the Cabinet, Chile a Minister of Justice and also a Minister of Education. New Zealand appointed a woman Minister of the Crown with functions unspecified. And in Russia a woman has held the post of Deputy President of the Supreme Soviet, USSR.

The United Nations report on this enquiry shows that in the diplomatic services women's position improves slowly. The United States has appointed three women to the highest diplomatic posts, Chile has two women Ambassadors (to the United Nations and to the Netherlands), Mexico one. And in El Salvador two women have held the rank of Minister Plenipotentiary and Ambassador Extraordinary.

As Cultural Attaches countries are prepared to appoint a number of women. Venezuela, Paraguay and Honduras all follow this policy. Cuba reports that ninety per cent. of posts in its cultural missions are held by women, though whether the remaining ten per cent. cover the highest posts is not specified. Canada reports four women serving as vice-consuls in the Canadian foreign service.

In the higher ranks of the law, Chile again figures prominently with twenty-seven women listed as holding important positions. Already in 1949, Cuba had appointed seventeen women judges under the judicial system. Poland reports one woman as judge of the Supreme Court, while France has ninety out of three thousand judges, including also one judge of the Supreme Court. And in the United States, five out of 307 Federal judges are listed as women.

Countries reporting women elected to the upper legislature include Argentina, with six women in the Senate, Australia with four women Senators, Canada with two.

It is in the paid ranks of Government departmental service that few senior positions are shown to be held by women. Israel can report seven in such a position, Brazil eight, out of a total of 14,690 senior employees. Chile reports that a third of its Government employees are women but makes no mention of women in the higher positions. In the Federal Republic of Germany there is a decline in the number of women employed in other than lower ranks: the vast majority are temporary workers without permanent status.

The smallest amount of information contributed to the report came from the Netherlands, a country which has been ruled by two popular Queens in succession.

Suggests IODE Increase Aid To Students

HAMILTON (CP)—Canada's future leaders are in public and high schools today and many do not have the means to get a higher education, Miss H. Jeanne Knapman of Hamilton, Ontario president of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, said today as the provincial chapter began a three-day annual meeting.

"Let us increase our number of students assisted and offer help where possible to those entering the less crowded professions," Miss Knapman said.

Lieutenant-Governor Breithaupt of Ontario and Mrs. Breithaupt read messages of greeting.

Miss Knapman referred to the "stupendous response" IODE members had made to the appeal for relief for families caught in the February floods in Britain and Holland.

Mrs. J. L. Cameron of Hamilton, secretary, said that information on hospitalization plans in Canada is being distributed to immigrants in several languages, as a result of an IODE resolution sent to immigration Minister Harris earlier this year.

She said the Ontario department of Highways had been commended by the IODE for returning the crown to 1953 motor vehicle licence plates.

Mrs. J. Murray Campbell, organizing secretary, reported five new primary chapters organized this year at Blythe, Lindsay, Toronto, Aldershot, and Minnow Lake. Ontario now had 381 primary chapters and eight junior chapters with a total membership of 16,458.

Mrs. R. C. Bennett, education secretary, said the organization last year spent $73,137 to help gifted and struggling students and to improve school facilities. The figure represented an increase of nearly $8,000 for educational projects over that spent in 1951, "an achievement of which the chapters may be justly proud."

Some 135 students were helped financially, and 167 bursaries and 93 scholarships valued at more than $32,000 were distributed.

Famous Boarding School To Mark 50th Anniversary

TORONTO (CP) — Branksome Hall, whose schoolgirls wear uniforms of Stuart hunting tartan skirts, khaki blouses and ties, is celebrating its 50th anniversary.

The day and boarding school, which has 500 pupils, is well-known among Canadian educational institutions. In spite of its sentimental link with Scotland in name and tartan skirt, and its tie with English boarding school system, Branksome Hall is essentially Canadian.

The girls get out to enjoy the corner drugstore or a movie. For those who don't make the grade academically, there are courses in fine arts or domestic science.

Principal Edith Read believes that girls should be taught to be ladies as well as educated. She says she is more concerned with developing aptitudes than moulding a type, but "ladylikeness" is not rammed down anyone's throat. The school is set in 10 acres of buildings and playing fields.

During the war, Branksome put up girls and teachers from England's private schools and their support was a private project of Miss Read and a group of other interested persons. The late Queen Mary heard of the effort and when Miss Read was in London last year she sent her an autographed picture of herself as a mark of esteem.

Gross value of Canada's clothing industries amounted to $734,214,334 in 1950.

The Statue of Liberty in New York harbor rises 305 feet above the water line.

A special Easter thankoffering service will be held in the United Church Sunday, April 26, at 3 p.m. The Rev. Mrs Margaret Butler will be guest speaker. The Sunday school will meet at 2 p.m. and slides [illegible] of Joseph will be shown.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Douglas, who have spent the winter months in Peterborough, returned home on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Rae Stewart and family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moffat, Orono, on Sunday.

ical contributions by Mrs. C. Telford and Mrs. Ralph Scott were much appreciated.

Mrs. Harvey Sanderson welcomed the guests and presided for the business items which included the appointment of Mrs. Ralph Scott as a delegate to the Women's Missionary convention in Kingston in May.

The social conveners, Mrs. F. Rowland and Mrs. R. Kidd arranged the hour of fellowship at close of the meeting.

McCarthy-Knight

KEENE—A pretty wedding took place in the chapel of the Church of the Holy Rosary, Toronto, on Saturday morning last, when Dorothy Louise, youngest daughter of Mrs. D. Knight of Leaside was united in marriage with Mr. Joseph E. (Ted) McCarthy, son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. McCarthy of Keene by the Rev. Father Lacey.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. John Sills, Toronto, wore a gown of white nylon and lace over white taffeta. The full angle-length skirt billowed in alternate bands of lace and nylon. Her finger-tip veil of illusion tulle fell from a coronet of pearls and she carried a bouquet of red roses and white sweet peas surrounded by a halo of white hyacinths.

Miss Mary McCarthy, Kingston, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. She wore a gown of pink organza and lace over pink taffeta with lace bolero and mitts and flowered headdress. She carried a nosegay of red roses and white sweet peas surrounded by a halo of blue hyacinths. Mr. Jim Millmine, Toronto, was groomsman.

The reception was held at the bride's home with Mrs. Knight receiving in grey taffeta with pink accessories and corsage. The groom's mother wore blue with navy accessories and corsage of pink carnation petals.

The couple will reside in Toronto after a short motor trip.

Baptist Circles Hear Mrs. Roblin

Baptist Mission Circle members were privileged to hear an inspirational and instructional address on the Baptist churches and missions of Northern Ontario by Mrs. A. S. Roblin, when the Park St. Young Women's Circle and the Mary Haddow Circle of Murray St. were guests of the Eunice Blewett Circle at Gilmour Memorial Church.

The travelogue was interspersed with word pictures of the buildings and their locations, and with personal experiences illustrating the fidelity of ministers, missionaries, and church members, their difficulties and rewards.

Mrs. Jack Miller thanked Mrs. Roblin and paid tribute to the comprehensiveness of her address and to the charming manner in which it had been given.

An appropriate devotional message was presented by Mrs. A. Hardwicke in which she spoke of the coming of spring as a challenge to waken from apathy and indifference to the full realization of what Circle members can do individually and collectivey. Mus-

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Shrimp Newburg Offered On Special-Purpose Menu

Sometimes I am so knee-deep in ork and unanswered letters that get an introverted notion that I'm ie only one who always has to do t least two things at once for a xteen-hour day every day.

But it ain't so!

I bow and cringe when I read tters from some of you girls who re workking wives and mothers managing big hungry families early in the morning before going to work, and late at night after coming ome from workk, and seeming to naintain your good cheer in spite of all of the endless work and fatgue.

There are letters here from two girls who hold down important and lemanding jobs, that keep up their own morale and that of their husbands by their keen household-organizing ability and optimism They like to entertain and they do entertain. This means they have to do heir beforehand preparing during he evening of the day before the linner. It's lucky that they both ove to cook.

This meal is beamed at Lucille and Jeanette. The Shrimp Newberg may be made the evening before and reheated while the asparagus cooks. The dessert of course, must b made ahead of time, if it is to chill for 20 or so hours and be at its best.

SHRIMP NEWBURG

Two cups of cooked or drained, canned shrimp, 2 tablespoons butter of margarine, 1½ tablespoons flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, shake of cayenne, ½ cup cream ¼ cup milk, 2 egg yolks, 1 tablespoon sherry-flavoring is optional. Melt the butter, stir in the flour, salt and cayenne and mix. Add cream and milk gradually while stirring and bring just to boiling point. Add shrimps and keep hot over boiling water. Just before serving beat the 2 egg yolks and pour the shrimp mixture over them and return to double boiler for about 1 minute. Add sherry-flavoring if used. Serve on toast points or puff paste cases. You may garnish this with parsley sprigs and thin strips of pimiento or you may put 1 or 2 tablespoons of parsley and pimiento chopped into the mixture.

Last week I went into my annual song and dance about quick- cooking of asparagus. Don't murder the lovely little tender shoots by overcooking them. AND cook them in as little water as possible. Melt some butter and pour into a hot pitcher to pass at table to pour over the asparagus.

ORANGE MARSHMALLOW CREAM

Cut up ¼ lb. marshmallows and add to 1 cup of orange juice that is unstrained and heat over very low heat to simmering point. Do not boil. Stir until marshmallows are melted. Remove from heat and cool to room temperature When this begins to congeal fold in ½ cup whipping cream which has been whipped until stiff. Turn into stemmed glasses and chill—preferrably overnight. If you have 1 or 2 egg whites leftover they may be whipped and folded into this too, but it dilutes the flavor. However it is a good idea if you want to stretch this to serve 5 or 6.

CHOCOLATE BROWNIES

One cup sugar, 2 whole eggs, ½ cup butter or margarine or good quality shortening, 2 oz. bitter cooking chocolate, ½ cup unsifted flour, ½ teaspoon each baking powder and vanilla, shade of salt, ½ cup chopped walnuts or pecans. Beat eggs until light and beat the sugar into them. Melt the chocolate and butter together in top of double boiler, then stir them into the egg-sugar mixture. Sift together the unsifted flour, baking powder and salt and stir them in, then add the nuts and vanilla. Spread into buttered pan. Pan may be any size for these are good thick or thin. Bake about 35 to 45 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. Time depends on thickness of batter. Let cool in pan, then with sharp knife cut into squares or bars or diamonds.

6—[illegible]

DERRETT—In loving memory of my dear father, Alfred Derrett, who passed away one year ago today, April 22, 1952.

God knew that he was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed his weary eyelids
And whispered, "Peace be thine."
Away in the beautiful hill of God,
By the valley of rest so fair.
Some time, some day, we know not when,
We will meet our loved one there.

—Always remembered by daughter, Pansy, son-in-law Arthur and grandson Keith Hamilton

DERRETT—In loving memory of my dear father, Alfred James, who passed away one year ago today, April 22, 1952

What would I give to clasp his hands,
His happy face to see,
To hear his voice and see his smile,
That meant so much to me.

—Ever remembered by his daughter Thelma.

KENT—In loving memory of Mrs. George Kent, who passed away six years ago, April 22, 1947.

While you, dear mother, rest and sleep
Your loving memory we'll always keep.

—Always remembered by husband and family.

TERRY—In loving memory of my dear brother Raymond, who passed away April 22, 1949.

Four years have passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away,
God took him home, it was His will,
Within our hearts he liveth still.

—Remembered by his sister Vera (Mrs. John Edgerton) and brother John.

WADDELL — Lovingly remembering mother who passed away April 22, 1931; also dad, Sept. 28, 1946, Mr. and Mrs. M. Waddell.

When earthly voices, once so dear,
Have died in silence, one by one,
Yet have we peace and can rejoice
If we but hear the Master's voice
A little while, wait patiently
A little while and thou shalt be
With thy beloved and with Me.

—The family.

7—Card of Thanks

I wish to express my sincere thanks to attending doctors, nurses and sisters of St. Joseph's Hospital, Rev. Herrington and all those who sent flowers, fruit, cards etc., during my recent stay in Hospital.—Mrs. Jack Gall, Keene.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to the Sisters, nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital for their kindness and attention, also attending doctor, friends and neighbours for gifts, flowers, fruit and cards; also enquiries during my recent stay in hospital.—Mrs. Lewis Pudsey.

I would like to thank the doctors, also nurses and staff, Rev. H. E. Peasgood, also my many kind friends and relatives for gifts of flowers, letters, cards and visits while I was a patient in Peterborough Civic Hospital.—Marge Patterson, Havelock.

May we extend our heartfelt thanks for many kindnesses extended to us after we were left homeless due to fire, April 4, The Peterborough Fire Dept., Mr. and Mrs. Wm. T. Jones, Red Cross, Major Roberts and the Salvation Army, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Northrop, Comstocks, attending doctor, Beaver Lumber, Board of Works, all ministers who called, friends and neighbours and all who gave assistance in any way.—The Majeste family.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sanderson, Annie Wanamaker and brother of Lakefield wish to express their heartfelt thanks to the men who formed a bucket brigade and saved their homes from burning April 14, 1953.

The sisters of the late Miss Catherine Sharp wish to extend our sincere thanks to all our friends and neighbours who sent flowers, cards and other tokens of sympathy during the lengthy illness and passing of our sister.

Plan To Build Elevator Near London

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Plans for a 50,000-bushel elevator at Port Stanley for export of Western Ontario grain, white beans and other products direct to Europe by a fleet of five Scottish-registered ships, were announced Tuesday by R. A. Heath, vice-president of McClean Grain Limited, Chatham.

He is president of a newly-formed private company, Port Stanley Grain and Transit Ltd., which plans to build a concrete-and-steel elevator on land controlled by the London and Port Stanley Railway in Port Stanley starting about June 1.

Associated with Mr. Heath in the new company are W. G. Thompson of Ridgetown, a prominent Western Ontario grain merchant, and R. B. McClean of Chatham, president of McClean Grain.

WANT WAREHOUSE

Charles Tregenza of New York, owner of Newfoundland - Great Lakes Steamships Limited, is negotiating for use of the government warehouse for the package-freight export and imports he would handle in addition to grain.

Mr. Heath said the plan to ship from Port Stanley will mean a freight-rate saving to Western Ontario farmers, whose wheat, beans and other products now move east by rail.

Car Kills Boy, 5

HAMILTON (CP)—Gary Campagnolo, 5, was killed at nearby Fruitland Tuesday night when he broke away from his mother, after they alighted from a bus, and ran in front of an automobile. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Campagnolo, moved to the suburb a year ago to get away from city traffic.

FOUR SMILING BRITISH TOMMIES, snapped at a Red prison camp, may have more to smile about soon. Could be the three remaining behind (the boy at the top left was released after this photo was taken) will follow their buddy along Freedom Road before long.

Springville News

Mr. Bruce Elliott is convalescing in Civic Hospital after his recent operation.

Mr. A. M. Laing is in Civic Hospital owing to a fall at his home on the Peterborough-Port Hope highway.

Mrs. Vincent Whittington of Peterborough has undergone an operation at Kingston Hospital. Her father, Mr. John F. Clarke, recently visited her there.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Whittington and family spent Sunday at Kingston visiting Mrs. Vincent Whittington.

Mr. Owen Murray spent the weekend at her home here but is returning to Leaside to be with her daughter, Mrs. Sam Carew, who is recovering from a recent operation.

Mrs. Joyce Wood of Toronto spent the weekend with Miss Eleanor Bowles. Miss Bowles and Miss Wood attended the Kawartha CGIT camp reunion at the YWCA and at Murray St. Baptist Church on Saturday. They were counsellors at the camp last summer. On Saturday they conducted a craft class at the YWCA. Mary Laing and Donna Northy also attended the CGIT camp reunion on Saturday.

The Mission Band and their leaders, Mrs. Clifford Johnston and Mrs. G. Darling served refreshments at the Jersey Breeders' meeting on the Bamfort-Kelly farm on Saturday afternoon.

Albert E. Worswick

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)—Albert E. Worswick, a public utilities man in the United States and Britain, died Sunday night of a heart attack.

A native of Guelph, Ont., he was educated in Canada and lived for many years in London.

He and his wife wintered in Palm Beach for a number of years and their home was leased in 1948 by the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

Farewell Lyric To 2 Senators

LONDON (Reuters)—A farewell lyric to Roy Cohn and David Schine, Senator Joseph McCarthy's roving investigators, appeared Tuesday night in the London evening news.

Based on an old-time song by the vaudeville team of Gallagher and Sheehan, the words by London contributor Harry Ingham were:

"Oh Mr. Cohn?"
"Yes Mr. Schine?"
"Do you think these true-blue English are really Red,
"They are definitely rude.
"I heard Lady Ermyntrude
"Quite clearly and distinctly
"Shout 'drop dead.'"
"Oh, Mr. Schine?"
"Yes, Mr. Cohn?"
"Did the senator say get the BBC?
"Or shall we pass their island by,
"There's a strange light in their eye."
"Iron Curtains, Mr. Cohn?"
"Tar and feathers, Mr. Schine!"

Cultural Link

VIENNA (CP)—Under an agreement signed here recently Britain and Austria each will encourage establishment of university chairs for the study of the other's language, literature and history. Exchanges of teachers and students and of literary and art works are also contemplated.

Mildest Winter

MONTREAL (CP)—McGill University's weatherman, Prof. Kenneth Hare, won't concede the past winter was the mildest in history until the April records are in. At the end of March, total snowfall was about 58 inches, or roughly half the normal fall.

Lower Tariffs In U.S. Would Spur Goods Exchange

HARTFORD, Conn. (CP)—New vast markets for Canadian goods in the United States and for American goods in Canada were envisaged today by F. J. Lyle, chairman of the provincial governments of Canada Trade and Industry Council.

Adressing the annual conference of the Association of State Planning and Development Agencies, Lyle said development of Canadian-American trade as suggested would extend its benefits overseas and help Europe earn more dollars.

Fulfillment of these things would require easing of American tariffs which, he predicted, "will eventually have to come." Canada, for instance, could not indefinitely trade raw materials for manufactured goods.

"If," said Lyle, "the United States would apply to Canadian goods the same level of tariff protection that Canada now applies to American goods—in other words, if you would give us an even break—and if those 65,000,000 Americans living adjacent to our border bought per capita as much as we now buy from you, a brand new market would be opened to our Canadian manufacturers of more than $10,000,000,000.

TWO-WAY PROPOSITION

"This would be a two-way proposition, for every new Canadian plant buys a substantial share of its equipment from you. Your sales to us and our sales to you would steadily build on each other."

Further, new industry from the United Kingdom, Germany and other European countries in Canada to earn a continuing supply of dollars for their own countries, would be doubled and trebled."

Unfair competition did not enter into this particular tariff picture, "because our standard of living is about on a par with yours."

Lyle, director of the trade and industry branch of the Ontario government, said he was speaking as chairman of the provincial governments Trade and Industry Council.

"The council's members are committed to the proposition that a uniformly high standard of living from Newfoundland to British Columbia is dependent upon an equitable distribution of industry across the country," Lyle said.

The tendency, however, was towards centralization of manufacturing in Ontario and Quebec, because of concentration of population there.

NEED TO EASE TARIFF

If, however, the American tariff were eased to "competitive levels" other provinces "would rapidly build up secondary manufacturing within their boundaries and the much-needed population to expand their own consumer markets.

Mr. Lyle said that in 1952 each Canadian bought $206 worth of goods from the United States; the average American bought only $15 worth of Canadian goods.

To Attend Coronation

TILLSONBURG (CP)—A Tillsonburg sailor, 23-year-old Francis Watts, will be part of the Canadian contingent to attend the Coronation June 2. Francis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Watts.

For the last three years, as a leading seaman, he has been stationed at Churchill, Man., as a wireless operator.

Aviation Pioneer Remembers Bell

VICTORIA (CP)—Alexander Graham Bell was remembered Tuesday by the British Empire's first flier as a pioneer of aviation as well as the man who invented the telephone.

J. A. D. McCurdy, who made his historic flight in 1909, said money Mr. Bell made from his invention was of great aid to the progress of aviation in Canada.

He told the semi-annual meeting of the Air Industries and Transport Association the famous inventor came to Baddeck, N.S., shortly after he invented the telephone, forming the Aerial Experiments Association.

Suffocating "Hot Flashes" stopped or strikingly relieved—in doctors' tests!

• Are you going through "change of life"—suffering the "hot flashes," nervous tension, irritability, weakness and other types of functionally-caused distress of this difficult time?

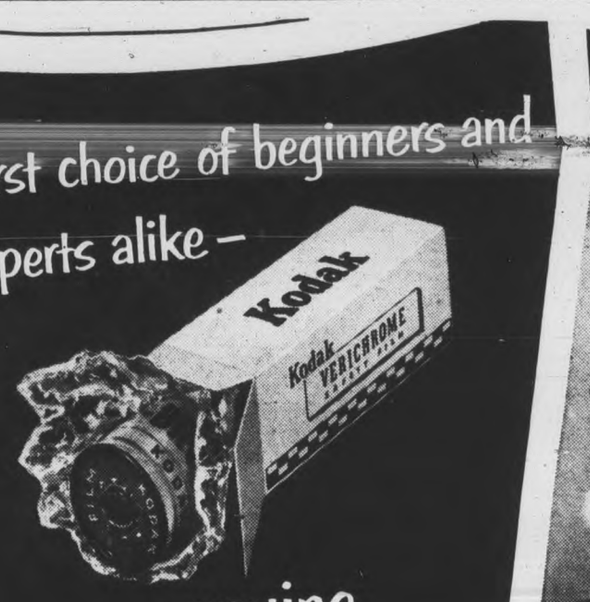
Then... here's hope for you. In tests by doctors—on their own patients—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound gave relief from such distress. Complete or striking relief! In case after case!

Scientifically modern action!

Surely you know that Lydia Pinkham's is scientifically modern in action! Surely you know what it has done for others!

But do you know what it will do for you? Not if you haven't experienced the relief of tension, "flashes" and irritability it so often brings at such times!

Before another day has passed—try Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound ... or the new, improved Tablets (with added iron)... and discover how much easier your "change of life" may be!



NOTE: Lydia Pinkham's is grand, too, for functional cramps and "weak" feelings of menstruation! Millions of younger women, and girls, take it regularly—throughout the month—for this purpose!

Lydia Pinkham's action through sympathetic nervous system—relieves distress of the "heatwaves"!

First choice of beginners and experts alike—
genuine Kodak Film
—in the familiar yellow box

For just a few pennies you can make an endearing snapshot, and have it to treasure for years. Pennies, for priceless memories.

And there is something more. A feeling of confidence—of certainty—when the film in your camera comes from Kodak's familiar yellow box.

You are confident because you know that Kodak made snapshots the friendly hobby of millions—by day or night, indoors and out. Because you know that superb Kodak Films are first choice with the great photographic experts. And because the Kodak Film you use is planned with you in mind—so that snapshot-taking is simple, easy, sure, at the click of a shutter.

And now the Kodak DUO-PAK gives you one roll for your camera ... one for a spare

The new, thrifty Duo-Pak holds 2 rolls of Kodak Verichrome Film for black-and-white snapshots. One roll for your camera . . . one for a spare. You'll like Duo-Pak's handy "tuck-away" size—just right for your pocket or handbag. In the popular 620, 120, and 127 sizes.

Canadian Kodak Co., Limited, Toronto 9, Ontario

SERVE YOURSELF from this convenient Duo-Pak dispenser whenever you're at your Kodak dealer's. You can't have too much film in the Spring!

Police Inquire Maloney Death

CARLETON PLACE (CP)—Police are investigating the death of Norman Maloney, 48, of Carleton Place, who was found covered with blood outside a home early Tuesday on the outskirts of this town 33 miles southwest of Ottawa.

Maloney, his left arm slashed between the wrist and elbow, was found by a passer-by and taken to hospital in Ottawa where he died several hours later.

He was found outside the home of Ossie Saunders where police said he spent most of the day Monday and attended a party in the evening. Police said a post-mortem examination will be conducted.

Town police chief C. R. Irvine said Saunders and Isabel Porteous, who also attended the party, were questioned about the incident, but neither is being held.

Police said Maloney, who worked as a laborer hauling iron for a local junk yard, may have been locked out of the home and then tried to get back in by smashing his fist through the window of the door, thereby slashing his arm.

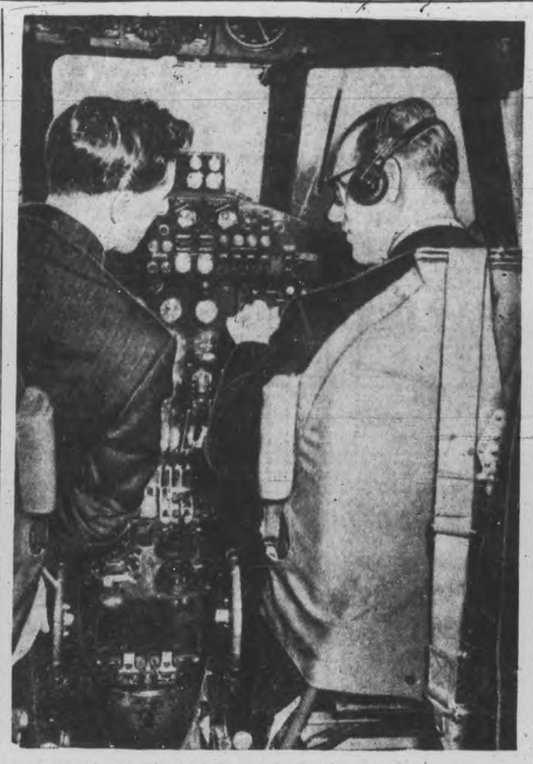
Printing Error In Bylaw

OTTAWA (CP)—Board of control discovered Tuesday that new outside television aerials on Ottawa homes will not be banned after all. A printing error in a city bylaw apparently caused a misunderstanding.

Previously officials said no new outside TV aerials would be allowed after the CBC starts local TV broadcasting this summer. It all stemmed from the dropping of two words—"other than"—at the printers, controller Paul Tardif said.

It is expected the bylaw now will be amended, the pertinent part (with the dropped words bracketed) will then make it necessary for persons seeking to erect aerials to establish "to the satisfaction of the building inspector that the proposed installation is necessary in order to enable reception within the city of Ottawa of adequate signals (other than) for local transmitters."



As it read before, the bylaw virtually prohibited new television owners from listening to other than CBC broadcasts.

Infant Girl Beaten

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Susan Currie, one-year-old daughter of a London policeman was found late Tuesday lying in her buggy in front of her home with her face badly beaten. City detectives said they did not know who administered the beating but were not discounting some person with a possible grudge against Constable Frank A. Currie, the child's father. Susan was taken to hospital for treatment.

Federal-Provincial Parley Asked By PC's On Housing Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservatives today called for a federal provincial conference on housing.

Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton), his party's chief spokesman on housing, said in the Commons such a conference is "imperative" to assure municipalities revenues to meet their housing obligations.

Mr. Fleming spoke after Resources Minister Winters had launched a housing debate by moving a resolution preliminary to legislation boosting by $300,000,000 the amount available under the National Housing Act for loans on rental and owner-occupied homes.

The legislation, forecast in the speech from the throne at opening of Parliament, touched off the first major housing debate of the session, now nearing its end.

Mr. Fleming said the most serious of all problems contributing to the "retardation" of home construction is the shortage of serviced land in the municipalities. The quickening pace of defence production had contributed to this.

"If we are to make an effective contribution towards meeting the housing problem," Mr. Feming said "We have to do something to help the municipalities."

Mr. Winters said his legislation will boost to $750,000,000 from $450,000,000 the amount available from the federal treasury for National Housing Act home loans.

The total for home-ownership loans will be increased to $500,000,000 from $300,000,000. For Rental housing, the total will go to $150,000,000.

Mr. Winters said that since 1945 more than $10,000,000,000 in loans had been approved by the National Housing Act for residential building. Of this amount, the federal government's share was $379,000,000.

Without an increase in the appropriation, Mr. Winters said, the balances remaining would not be enough to finance NHA loans through 1953.

Another provision of his legislation, Mr. Winters said, will broaden provisions for federal aid in slum clearance in municipalities

A further amendment to the housing act will provide that Central and Mortgage Housing Corporation—the government's housing agency—may make supplementary advances on existing loans to home-builders. At present, CMHC may do this jointly with lending institutions on joint loans but may not do it independently on a straight CMHC loan.

Another change modifies rental controls on projects financed under CMHC's rental insurance plan At present, there is a three-year controt on such projects.

The three-year period now will run from the completion of each unit or group of units.

Unions Divided On Suggestions

TORONTO (CP)—Recommendations of a conciliation board on renewed contract demands of employees of 36 Ontario transport firms have been accepted by the Toronto local of the General Truck Drivers Union (AFL-TLC) and rejected by the Hamilton affiliate.

The board under the chairmanship of Judge W. D. Roach made the following recommendations: For dockmen who receive $1.18 an hour and drivers not on a mileage rate and receiving $1.23, a seven-cent boost retroactive to Jan. 1, an additional three cents effective next October and another three-cents effective next Jan. 1; for semi-skilled mechanics getting $1.22 eight cents as of last January, three cents more in October and three more Jan. 1; skilled mechanics who get $1.53, 11 cents backdated to January with subsequent increases identical to the other groups; mileage drivers who get five cents a mile receive a two-cent increase retroactive to Jan. 1 and an additional 1-5 of a cent starting in October and a further 1-10 of a cent Jan. 1.

Way To Avoid Tax Interests Senators

OTTAWA (CP)—A few senatorial eyebrows were raised in amazement Tuesday night when a provision of a bill was described as a method for Trans-Canada Air Lines to avoid income taxes.

Senator G. P. Burchill (L—New Brunswick) described one provision of the bill in that way. He said one object of a bill revising the capital structure of the company is that the airline can "evade" income tax on corporations.

Senator W. Rupert Davies (L—Ontario) asked:

"Does this mean that we have to have special legislation so this Crown company can evade the income tax?"

"Yes," replied Senator Burchill.

Faces Bigamy Trial

TORONTO (CP)—A 73-year-old man, John Lockbridge, alias Lockwood, charged with bigamy, was committed Tuesday for trial by higher court. Constable William Cornell said the accused was married in 1914 in Kingston and married an 18-year-old Toronto girl in 1950. Lockbridge told police he thought he could re-marry as he hadn't heard from his wife for more than seven years.

Prisoners Overstay Terms To Finish Study Courses

CHATHAM (CP) — Vocational training courses are so popular in federal penitentiaries that some prisoners over-stay their sentences to complete a course, Justice Minister Garson said Tuesday night.

In a speech prepared for Chatham Kiwanis Club, the minister said that in the last five years more than 85 per cent of convicts who have taken such training and been released have not reverted to crime.

Mr. Garson reviewed reforms in federal prisons since the 1938 Archambault report. He said a continuing problem is reacceptance of the former prisoner into normal community life.

The minister said the "veritable revolution" in Canadian penology in recent years stemmed from the report of the Archambault commission.

HIGHER SALARIES

One of the first reforms was higher salaries to obtain better prison personnel. "The additional costs involved have paid handsome dividends already in the reduction of recidivism (repeaters) and in the absence of prison riots which have been so prevalent during the last few years, not only in the United States' prisons, but in several Canadian provincial jails."

Other steps were training courses for penitentiary officers, classification of prisoners, more education and sports facilities, higher sales of remuneration and uncensored newspapers.

Communists Shift Tactics Decide To Free More PoWs

Eisenhower Ready Confer Anywhere On Korean Peace

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he is ready to do anything and confer anywhere to bring about peace in Korea. The President told a press conference he is simply waiting now to see how developments go in Korea. His statements were in response to a question as to whether he felt the chances are good for a prompt truce in Korea. In reply to another question, the president said he has had no reaction from the Kremlin to the world peace and disarmament plan he set forth a week ago.

He said the government is studying and analyzing the prisoner-exchange situation, and that obviously, from news stories of atrocities, something is wrong.

He added that he as yet has no full and complete report on the matter and so can't determine what the actual facts are.

On other matters, the president:

1. Said he is confident defence spending will be cut for the fiscal year starting July 1, but that he is not ready to estimate how much the saving will be.

2. Announced that the national security council has advised him it would be advantageous to national security for the United States to participate in construction of the St. Lawrence seaway. He said the council has made no recommendation yet as to the extent of American participation.

3. Declared emphatically that plans for defence of Europe against possible Communist aggression cannot be based either on the idea that an attack might be imminent, or that it might come several years from now. Defence plans, he added, must be flexible enough to meet all emergencies. Anyone who tells you he can predict the day or hour of an attack is crazy, the president said.

4. Described the matter of opening up the atomic energy field of private industry as one which is challenging both the atomic energy commission and other government agencies. Some changes in the law may be necessary to permit it, but certainly it is the hope of everyone that something can be done in that direction, the president added.

Place Embargo On Imports Of Cuban Sugar

CHATHAM (CP)—Roy O'Neil, secretary of the Canadian Sugar Beet Producers' Association, said today that an embargo has been placed on imports of Cuban refined sugar.

He said in a statement that Production Minister Howe told growers' representatives from Alberta, Manitoba, Quebec and Ontario early this week that the embargo came into effect several weeks ago.

Mr. O'Neil's statement was the first indication to growers that restrictions had been placed on refined Cuban sugar. Beet growers have been pressing for the curbing of imports since early 1952.

While Mr. Howe did not indicate whether the ban had been ordered by the federal government or imposed by Cuba, he said the only Cuban sugar entering Canada from now on will be to fulfil previous contacts.

Many Ontario sugar growers turned to other crops after sugar companies failed to meet their contract demands. Kent county, where more than half of Ontario's beets are grown, reports the smallest acreage contract on record.

Mr. O'Neil said Mr. Howe told the growers they could expect a marked improvement in sugar prices this autumn as a result of the embargo. Any price improvement would in turn be reflected in prices paid to growers.

Mr. Howe said regulations governing the import and export of sugar will be considered at a meeting of the International Sugar Institute, scheduled for July in London.

Double Salary Schedule Out

TORONTO (CP)—Board of education Wednesday turned down a request from the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation to restore the double salary schedule.

The present single salary schedule lumps all teachers together and they are paid in accordance with their length of training, experience and responsibility, rather than the grade level they teach. Secondary school teachers say they have lost their traditional bargaining rights and can no longer speak for themselves in negotiations with the board.

Eisenhower Favors Seaway Participation

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he is in favor of some U. S. participation in St. Lawrence seaway development.

He told a press conference he has received a report from the national security council which expresses the opinion it would be advantageous to national security for the United States to take part in some way in construction of the project along the St. Lawrence river.

Eisenhower said he goes along with the recommendations, although the extent to which the U. S. should participate still is under study.

Congress thus far has refused to go along with plans for a U. S. share in the project. Canada has announced it will go ahead with the work on its side of the river, regardless of what the United States may do.

4,000 Demonstrators Protest Truce Talks

PUSAN, Korea (Reuters)—United States military police today fired over the heads of about 4,000 demonstrators outside the American embassy here in protest against the resumption of cease-fire talks at Panmunjom.

About 100 members of South Korea's National Assembly led the shouting demonstrators.

The military policemen fired when the crowd appeared likely to break into the embassy building.

Thousands of South Koreans also demonstrated in Seoul against any armistice which would leave Korea divided.

Thousands of marchers, mostly uniformed school children and members of youth organizations, paraded through Seoul.

Listed Missing Now Prisoner

OTTAWA (CP)—The army today reported another Canadian, Pte. T. J. P. Allan of Montreal, is a prisoner of war in Korea. Pte. Allan previously was listed as missing.

Pte. Allan, a member of the Royal Canadian Regiment, was the 16th person previously reported missing but now reported a prisoner of war.

Army headquarters said Pte. Allan, 22, was named by L. Cpl. Paul Dugal of Quebec City, who was released by the Communists.

Smallest Triplet Dies

MIDLAND (CP)—The smallest of girl triplets born here Tuesday to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Livingstone of nearby Wyebridge died Tuesday night. The other two girls are being kept in incubators supplied with oxygen.

Fed Up With Weather

SAULT STE. MARIE (CP)—Canada geese are a bit fed up with the weather in these parts. Until a week ago, thousands of the birds were seen heading north over the city with the balmy spring breezes. However, it turned cold last week and 28 inches of snow fell in some areas. Residents of Wawa—that's Indian for blue goose—150 miles north of here say the geese are flying southward again.

Believe Move To Forestall Any Protests

Some of Men Freed Were Captured In Recent Battles

PANMUNJOM (CP) — The Communists said today they would free more disabled Allied prisoners—a startling reversal of their earlier insistence on releasing only 605.

They did not say how many more, nor their nationalities. But they did pledge to return all sick and wounded Allied troops in North Korean stockades as well as those captured recently.

The unexpected move apparently stalled off a possible UN protest that the Reds were holding back some disabled captives.

Allied prisoners exchanged in four days have said many more seriously sick and wounded were left behind in North Korea.

BROUGHT NOTEBOOK

L. Cpl. Paul Dugal of Quebec City, the first Canadian prisoner repatriate, brought with him a notebook containing messages from 15 other Canadian PoWs. He said 14 of them were "okay." One was in hospital. They were among 29 Canadians the defence department in Ottawa listed as missing, believed killed in action.

Dugal reached freedom in the first prisoner exchange Monday.

Gen. Mark Clark, UN commander, said he was gratified that the Communists, "in response to repeated requests from the UN command, have agreed to return . . . all UNC personnel in this category."

Some of the recently-wounded prisoners came back today, pale and unbelieving. The day's total was 14 Americans, five Australians, six Colombians and 75 South Koreans.

One Canadian, 40 Americans, four Britons, four Turks, one Netherlander and 50 South Koreans are due Friday.

Four Canadians May Be Freed

By BILL BOSS

MUNSAN, Korea (CP) — The Communists said today that one of the first 50 prisoners they will hand over to the Allies Friday will be a Canadian.

However, an Australian private, John Davis, who was exchanged today, told 2nd Lieut. J. Y. Gauthier of Quebec City, Canadian liaison officer at Munsan, that he saw three Canadians at Kaesong before he was taken to Panmunjom for transfer to Allied hands.

As a result, Canadian officers still hope that there will be more Canadians, in addition to the one expected Friday, before the exchange operation ends.

Gauthier was to head for Panmunjom today to greet the Canadian while it was expected that Brig. Jean Allard, new commander of the Canadian 25th brigade, again would be at Munsan. He was there when L. Cpl. Paul Dugal of Quebec City, first Canadian prisoner to be turned over, arrived Monday.

Churchill In Good Form

Charges Of Filthy Conduct Thundered At Socialists

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill, roaring like a wounded lion, thundered accusations of "false and filthy" conduct by the Socialists early today in the most spirited display the House of Commons has seen in years.

Dressed in a tuxedo, Churchill arrived just after midnight during a debate on the controversial bill to return the nationalized trucking industry to private enterprise.

The 78-year-old Prime Minister directed his onslaught against Herbert Morrison, leading the Labor opposition.

"They have lashed up their pretended fury with false, sham and filthy charges. In my opinion we have been subjected to an altogether dishonest and even disgraceful trick of obstruction," he said, glaring at the Labor members. He blurted out the word "filthy" four times before satisfied he had got it across.

"As far as the government is concerned, we have every intention of carrying this bill into law before the week is out," he said. When this brought howls from Socialists, he rose above the tumult with: "Go on, yell. Your case has been founded on humbug, I don't mind being shouted down."

His activity had no permanent result, but the debate was adjourned and will be resumed tonight.

Morrison had roused his ire on a procedural point. Accusing the government of trying to do a "strong-man act" by forcing the bill through, he said the Socialists would not observe their agreed "pairing arrangements."

Under this arrangement, a member of Parliament who cannot be present at an important vote makes a private agreement with a member of the opposite party, who also promises not to vote.

Churchill considered Morrison's move as "repudiating honorable agreements."

CANADA'S YOUNGEST GRANDMOTHER?—Although she is a little reluctant to give her age, Mrs. Muriel Bertrand, 2 Wallace St., admits she is 32. What's more important, she is a grandmother. Torture PoW, Cut Off Fingers

FREEDOM VILLAGE (AP)—A South Korean sergeant who lost all 10 fingers told a shocking story today of torture in Korean Communist prison camps. Master Sgt. Kim Ka Sung, 25, was among the sick and wounded Allied prisoners exchanged this week at Panmunjom. He was captured by the North Koreans in 1950. He said he was taken by three Reds to a lonely village, handed a shovel and ordered to dig his own grave. But he said he clubbed his captors while they were lighting cigarettes, seized a burp gun and killed them. He was recaptured while wandering on a mountain because "I was very tired and fell asleep."

Kim said he was taken to the Communist prison at Hoenyung in December, 1950, and tortured for two weeks.

He said the Communists forced him to drink water in excessive amounts and poured hot pepper powder into his nose and mouth.

He was suspended from the prison ceiling with his hands and legs tied behind him.

The Reds also beat him with wire, rope and other things.

Kim refused to give his captors his rank and unit.

"I was the only prisoner to be tortured among the 58 South Korean prisoners held in the camp at Hoenyung," he said.

Kim remarked that after his arms had been bound for a long time, the circulation was bad and doctors told him his fingers would have to be amputated.

"I doubted that," Kim said, "but there wasn't much else I could do."

He said the fingers on his right hand were amputated by a saw. He was not given anything to dull the pain.

Three days later, they cut off the fingers of his left hand with a knife. He was given no treatment and the only cure was putting his butchered hands out of the window so the sun would heal them.

Lt.-Gen. Maxwell Taylor, the 8th army commander, called it "a scandalous case."

Some U. S. marines freed today lived through the tremendous mortar and artillery barrages and the hand-to-hand combat on Vegas and Reno outposts March 26.

Super-Priority On Jets To Bolster Allied Defence

PARIS (CP)—The council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization today launched a $550,000,000 super-priority jet fighter production program to bolster Allied air defences. The United States will pay half the cost. Members of the Canadian delegation said Canada is not participating in the program announced today. Canada already has contracted to supply 400 Sabre jet airframes to Britain under the mutual aid program. The U.S. will pay half the cost of the $550,000,000 program.

Ministers of the 14 NATO countries signed contracts to build the latest jets—mainly British Hawker-Hunter fighters—in Europe

The contracts called for building planes in Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Italy. Contracts for all but those to be built in Italy were signed, and the Italian contracts are nearing completion.

CAN'T RELAX

Announcement of the signing came after President Eisenhower warned its NATO partners not to relax their rearming because of the Russian peace campaign — that "until the conditions for genuine peace have been firmly established, it would be foolhardy for us to delude ourselves about the dangers confronting us."

State Secretary John Foster Dulles read the President's message to the opening session here of a three-day meeting of the NATO council of ministers.

Eisenhower's warning did not specifically mention the recent change in the Russian line, but his implication was apparent in the light of the ministers' avowed intention to discuss fully, and assay, the conciliatory line Moscow has taken since the death of Stalin.

Of the total contracts signed today, the U.S. will put up $281,540,000, and other countries will buy the balance of the construction called for.

GO TO 14 MEMBERS

All the planes will be distributed to the 14 NATO members.

"Practically all these aircraft will be delivered between now and June 1956," Lord Ismay, secretary-general of NATO, announced at a press conference after the signing.

The largest single order placed by the United States was for $140,000,000 of Hawker-Hunter jets to be built in the United Kingdom.

France got an American order for $86,540,000 for the Dassault "Mystere" Mark IV, a jet interceptor fighter which has broken the sound barrier in tests.

As the 50 or so ministers gathered, it was apparent they for the most part shared Eisenhower's caution. As Lord Ismay expressed it Wednesday night:

"Until we can see genuine evidence of change in long-range (Russian) intentions, there can be no justification for relaxing our buildup."

Airliner Missing With 4 Aboard

SEATTLE (AP)—A C-46 airliner with a crew of four aboard vanished over the Cascade mountains early today on the last leg of a flight here from Miami.

The civil aeronautics administration, reporting the two-engined plane missing, said it made its last report about 1 a. m., PST over Easton, Wash., in the Cascades about 80 airline miles southeast of Seattle.

The plane, a non-scheduled airliner, left Cheyenne, Wyo., about 8 p. m. Wednesday.

Fire Breaks Out At Woodbine Track

TORONTO (CP)—Fire broke out at Woodbine race track in Toronto's east end today and was extinguished quickly.

The blaze, believed to have been started by a cigarette butt, began in a refuse dump and spread to two horse barns before firemen arrived. The fire was not serious enough to force evacuation of the animals.

Many horses in training for the June 2 running of the Queen's Plate are housed at the track.

Prince Charles, 4 Now Cattle Showman

LONDON (AP)—Four-year-old Prince Charles now is a cattle showman.

The Bath and West Cattle Society announced today the young Prince has entered three animals in classes from Devon cattle at the society's show opening June 3.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman was a little uncertain as to how the Prince got into the cattle business.

"Probably animals from one of the royal herds which a manager entered in his name," he said.

St. Laurent Asks Public Keep Open Mind On M.P.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said today Parliament and the public should "keep an open mind" about a report that a Liberal member of Parliament received some $71,000 from the Lunam Construction Company in Saskatchewan until the member had a chance to state his case. In a statement in the Commons Mr. St. Laurent said "if there is any case for embarrassment" he was sure that the member, A. E. Dewar, member for Qu'Appelle, would want to be sure that it was not shared by anyone else.

Mr. St. Laurent referred to what he described as a "sensational" story appearing in the Toronto Telegram of Wednesday saying that Mr. Dewar received $71,800 from the Harvey Lunam Construction Company. The company has gone into insolvency.

It was unfortunate, Mr. St. Laurent said, that the story appeared at a time when Mr. Dewar had to return to Saskatchewan to the bedside of his sick mother.

PARLIAMENTARY MATTER

He was sure, he said, that Mr. Dewar would want to deal with the matter in Parliament.

"If there is any cause for embarrassment, I am sure the member would want to be sure that it is not shared by anyone else," said the Prime Minister.

"Until the member has had an opportunity to deal with the matter his fellow members and the public generally should keep an open mind."

The Lunam company received a number of government contracts to erect buildings in Saskatchewan but because of financial difficulty was unable to complete them.

Earlier this session John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) charged that building material suppliers had been defrauded of more than $150,000 by the company and now could not collect either from the company or the government.

Works Minister Fournier has said that there will be no loss to the public in completing the buildings left uncompleted by the Lunam company.

At Regina Wednesday night Mr. Dewar said he and Harvey Lunam exchanged or traded cheques in November 1950. Mr. Lunam said the exchange of cheques was in connection with financing his business.

Ottawa TV Broadcasts Will Begin June 2

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC today announced that scheduled network broadcasts over its $900,000 Ottawa television station will begin June 2.

Test broadcasts will be made during the two previous weeks.

The announcement said the first scheduled program is expected to be the Coronation ceremonies at Ottawa June 2. The ceremonies will be broadcast at 3:30 p. m., EST, direct from Parliament Hill using a mobile television unit. The broadcast will be seen in Toronto and Montreal by means of the micro-wave network relay.

Details of the regular program scheduled for the Ottawa station will be announced within the next few weeks. The station will be called CBOT and will operate on channel four.

During the first weeks of service, station CBOT will broadcast network television programs only, originating in Montreal and Toronto. Later, film facilities will be added to be followed by productions originating in Ottawa.

Officer Reports Life Threatened On Return Home

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA (CP)—Maj. Guy d'Artois of Quebec City has reported to headquarters of 25th Canadian infantry brigade that a Canadian has threatened to shoot him to death on his return to Canada.

D'Artois is slated to return with the 1st battalion, the Royal 22nd Regiment, when relieved here by the regiment's 3rd battalion.

He reported to brigade headquarters that Van Doo officers and soldiers have written him accounts of meeting a man who said he intended to take d'Artois' life in revenge for d'Artois' action in killing a soldier who went berserk last July 1.

DANGEROUS MAN

The soldier, who had drunk too much during Dominion Day festivities which coincided with the battalion's first day in reserve, had discharged several rifle bullets among comrades and in d'Artois' direction.

The major, then battle adjutant, drew his revolver intending to wound and disarm the soldier. Instead he killed him.

A board of inquiry exonerated d'Artois and Brig. M. P. Bogert, the force commander, ordered him to return to the battalion where he since has commanded a rifle company.

D'Artois, an enthusiastic paratrooper during the autumn of 1947 made a parachute jump into the Arctic to rescue the late Canon J. H. Turner.

Red Spearhead Nears Capital

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—A Communist spearhead pushing down from the north reached within 60 miles of the royal Laotian capital of Luangprabang today. It ran into stiff French-Laotian resistance at Muongngoi in the Laos kingdom's mountain territory.

A French communique said the Communist-led Vietminh was maintaining pressure at Muongngoi but after repeated attacks had failed to smash the defending forces. The invading column had pushed south from Dienbienphu in the Thai mountain country, 180 miles from Hanoi.

French and Laotian defenders clashed with a patrol of the enemy on the Plaine des Jarres in the heart of Laos, killing seven of the invaders and capturing one.

Vietminh mortars, meanwhile, kept up a heavy barrage on the French airstrip and defence posts in the plain, 72 miles southwest of the Laotian royal capital of Luangprabang. French fighter planes and bombers steadily plastered the Red positions in the hills around the French encampment.

So far, however, the Reds had not attempted to attack in force.

His World Tiny Island

Refused By 17 Lands, Alien Stranded

NEW YORK (AP) — For Ignatz Mezei, the whole wide world today was but a tiny, lonely island in New York harbor. There he must stay, perhaps until he dies. And no one will tell him why.

"I believe," he said in broken English, "I am a victim of a terrible mistake." Tears were in his eyes.

The 56-year-old Mezei was taken to Ellis Island Wednesday for no other place would have him.

"I doubted that," Kim said, "but there wasn't much else I could do."

He said the fingers on his right hand were amputated by a saw. He was not given anything to dull the pain.

Three days later, they cut off the fingers of his left hand with a knife. He was given no treatment and the only cure was putting his butchered hands out of the window so the sun would heal them.

Lt.-Gen. Maxwell Taylor, the 8th army commander, called it "a scandalous case."

Some U. S. marines freed today lived through the tremendous mortar and artillery barrages and the hand-to-hand combat on Vegas and Reno outposts March 26.

security risk, without saying why. Since he is an alien, it wants to deport him. But where?

Already, Mezei has spent more than two years on Ellis Island, and last month the U.S. Supreme Court ruled he could be held there indefinitely as a security risk, or, at least until a place could be found to send him.

Before his troubles began, Mezei lived for 25 years in Buffalo, N.Y., working as an expert cabinetmaker.

His story:

A Hungarian, he was born in Gibraltar and entered the U.S. as an alien in 1923. A year later, he joined a Hungarian organization, the Worker's Sickness Benefit and Educational Society.

Later, the group was taken over by the International Worker's Order, a group ruled subversive by the justice department. Mezei served as president of his Hungarian branch, but insists his interest was non-political.

In 1948, he went to Europe to try to visit his dying mother in Romania. When he returned here in 1950, he was detained at Ellis Island. He said he was questioned again and again about his past IWO memberships.

The government has refused to say why he is deemed a security risk, contending that the evidence is confidential.

Detained for two years, Mezei was released last year on $3,000 bond after a federal judge ruled he had been held too long without a hearing.

But on the basis of the new Supreme Court ruling that an alien can be held indefinitely as a security risk, he was ordered back to the island Wednesday.

Believe Trade With U.S. Now Top-Heavy

OTTAWA (CP). — Spokesmen for two opposition parties Wednesday night warned the government not to "place all our eggs in one basket" in doing business with the United States.

Pointing to Canada's heavy two-way trade with the U.S., they suggested a more stable situation would be reached by diversifying buying and selling, particularly by expanding in the United Kingdom and other sterling areas.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF Leader, and Donald Fleming (PC Toronto-Eglinton) were the lead-off spokesmen for their parties in a general trade debate preliminary to consideration of departmental estimates.

Mr. Coldwell said trading relationships with the U.S. are uncertain. Many were disturbed at the way its government did not live up to international trade agreements.

DANGEROUS POLICY

"As a government," he said, "they are unreliable... I think it is dangerous to place all our eggs in that one basket."

Mr. Coldwell said Canadian trade should be diversified as quickly as possible, even if it meant some short-term trading disadvantages. At present, Canada was susceptible to economic changes in the U.S. and a depression there would be disastrous for this country.

Fleming said the heavy amount of Canada's trade with the U.S. placed its external business in a state of unbalance.

"No matter how we may expand our markets in the ... he said, "that is no substitute for the loss of our markets to the ..."

Claxton Visits RCAF In France

METZ, France (CP) — Defence Minister Claxton Wednesday visited RCAF groups at Gros Tenquin and Metz and told personnel of increased subsistence allowances and plans for financing passage of dependents under certain conditions.

Accompanied by other senior Canadian officials, Claxton visited No. 2 Fighter Wing at Gros-Tenquin Wednesday morning, commenting favorably on the construction progress made on the NATO air base since his visit last December.

After lunch, he flew to Metz, headquarters of the RCAF's No. 1 Air Division, attached to the Allied Air Forces Central Europe (AAFCE) NATO air arm.

In his talks to personnel at the bases, Claxton said subsistence allowance will be increased for airmen, airwomen, and junior officers. He also said that, subject to certain conditions, the RCAF will foot the bill for transporting dependents of personnel coming overseas for two years or more.

Commanding officers must be satisfied that adequate accommodation is available, he said, and that personnel can support their families.

Claxton and his party, in France for Paris NATO meetings were met at Gros Tenquin by Group Capt. E. Pollard, No. 2 Fighter Wing CO. French Army officers greeted them at Mets.

RIDDLED BY GUNFIRE

A U. S. hospital corpsman, Thomas Waddill, 20, of Fort Worth, Tex., said marines who had lost consciousness from lack of oxygen in a small cave on outpost Reno were riddled with burp gun fire.

"I was in the cave when the outpost was hit," he said. "There were just three of us walking around. Lots of the guys were asphyxiated and snoring. The Chinese started spraying us with burp guns and grenades. They came in the cave. I got powder burns from a pistol. Then I got shot in the neck and I thought I was going to die. I just kept moving around and finally they captured me."

STILL PRISONERS

Pte. Samuel J. Armstrong, 18, of San Antonio, Tex., captured on Vegas, said he knew of 10 other Americans captured in the bitter fight who still are prisoners. He said he was well treated.

Armstrong said he reached a Communist hospital seven days after he was captured. He had a broken right arm and hand grenade wounds.

The medical treatment, he said, "was more than I expected. It included penicillin and sulpha drugs."

Marine Cpl. Jimmy E. Lacy of Texarkana, Tex., said he knew of only four survivors among 41 marines hit by Chinese on outpost Reno. He was wounded twice in the leg.

Marine Pte. Richard Oven of Buffalo, N. Y., was captured on Vegas after he was wounded by shrapnel in the leg and left hand.

Oven said he was taken to a hospital about 75 miles behind the front.

"I believe it was the best medical treatment they had but they didn't have the equipment that we have," he said.

But with Western Europe chafing under the load of rearmament spending and leaders of the new U. S. administration already forecasting cuts in foreign aid, it was apparent the council would not plan any big expansion.

The emphasis, instead, will be on (1) holding what already has been achieved; (2) planning for several more ground divisions, several thousand more aircraft and more ground installations in the next several years, and (3) setting up a long-range program of slow buildup aimed at continuing to keep the Soviet military might in check.

To do that, NATO's planners figure it will take more than $12,000,000,000 next year.

Women Join Picket Lines At Quaker Plant

Women joined the picket lines today at the Quaker Oats Co. plant, where more than 400 production workers walked out on strike at 10 a.m. Wednesday to enforce demands for higher wages and shorter hours.

William Triggs, president of Local 293 of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), said that women members of the union had practically mobbed him in their demand to be allowed to march on the picket lines. They will be on duty every day from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. for the duration of the strike. Mr. Triggs said.

PAY FRIDAY

Company officials announced today that all workers would be paid at the company's employment office on Hunter St. at 10 a.m. Friday. Management is awaiting word from insurance companies concerned as to the effect of the strike on the workers' hospital, sickness and group insurance plans.

Meanwhile, the task of organizing pickets and otherwise carrying on the strike was getting under way with smooth efficiency.

"The union has co-operated so wonderfully and so many people have come forward to offer their help that I find myself with very little to do," Mr. Triggs said.

Members of the union have been busy at strike headquarters at the Peterborough Labor Centre on Water St putting the kitchen in shape and preparing the small meeting hall as a recreational centre and dining hall for off-duty pickets. Cards and a radio are available and it is hoped to obtain a ping-pong table. They expect to install a refrigerator in the kitchen today.

A committee of women members of the union has been formed to provide coffee and sandwiches to the pickets 24 hours a day. Miss Helen White is head of the committee and the other members are Mrs. Dorothy Murphy, Mrs. Marjorie Chalmers, Mrs. Edna Smart and Mrs. Audrey Fallis.

All the women members of the union have pitched in and prepare 200 double sandwiches every 24 hours. Three pounds of coffee are used in the same period. Food is taken to the midnight shift, the coffee in thermos jugs donated by union members, while members of the day shift are fed at strike headquarters.

Wednesday's rain saw the executive busy making efforts to keep pickets as dry as possible. Two house trailers were placed near the picket lines and 20 raincoats were purchased.

Concert Series Sold Out

At 2:30 this afternoon the Sold Out sign was put up in the office of the Peterborough Community Concerts association. The subscription campaign which began Monday would ordinarily have continued the entire week. But all available memberships were so eagerly taken up that the campaign has already ended.

The office will be kept open Friday to deal with accumulated returns and cards which have crowded in on campaign secretary Mrs. Ross Williamson and her assistants. Mrs. Benita Shields, New York representative of Community Concerts who is in Peterborough for campaign week, expressed great satisfaction at the quick success of the campaign.

Col. Danby, now attending the college as a student, will be promoted to full colonel.

Col. Rothschild will become deputy co-ordinator of the joint staff at national defence headquarters in Ottawa. A graduate of Royal Military College and McGill University, he was born in Cochrane, Ont., and commissioned in the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery in ...

Wins Gilt Cross For Life Saving

TORONTO (CP)—Marion Crabbe, 16, of Deseronto, has been awarded the gilt cross for life saving, the Canadian council of the Girl Guides Association said here today.

Marion pulled a friend, Jessie Cochrane, to safety after the girl fell through thin ice while skating near her home last winter.

Deseronto is 25 miles east of Belleville.

TORONTO FRUIT

TORONTO (CP)—Wholesale fruit and vegetable prices were unchanged here today.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Trade was dull today at the Ontario stockyards and sales were too few to establish a market trend. Receipts: Cattle 60; calves 10; hogs 280; no sheep or lambs; holdover from Wednesday, 1,100 cattle.

Common to medium steers and heifers 15-18; good steers 20; common to medium stockers 16-18.50.

Choice veal calves 25-27.

Grade A hogs 27.50; dressed sows 20.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged here today.

The egg market was firmer and top grade prices improved. Grade A large packed in wood sold at 54 cents. Quotations for graded eggs in fibre cases: A large 52½-53; A medium 51½-52; A small 48-48½; grade B 47; grade C 42. Wholesale to retail: A large 57-57½; A medium 56-56½; A small 53-53½; grade B 52; grade C 47.

Butter solids: First grade, tenderable 58 nominal; non-tenderable 57¼-57½; western 58.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—May and July wheat opened steady in an otherwise somewhat easier market on the board of trade today.

Export houses bought May and July wheat following overnight sale of about 3,750,000 bushels of wheat to west Germany.

Dealings were rather slow in all pits. Further early weakness in securities at New York tended to discourage buying in grains.

Wheat started ⅜ cent lower to ⅜ higher, May $2.18⅝; corn was ⅜ lower to ⅛ higher, May $1.58¼, and oats were ⅛-⅜ lower, May 75-75⅛. Soybeans were ⅛-¾ cent lower.

BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Cattle 650; demand moderately active for dairy-type slaughter cows and bulls, market fully steady; heavy cutters and medium fat cows 14-14.50; fat cows 13.00-14; light cutters 13-13.50; canners 10-12.50; fat yellow cows 12-13; good dairy-type slaughter heifers 15-18.00; mediums 16-17; heavy sausage bulls 17-17.50; top eligible to 18.50; mediums 16-17; lightweight cutter bulls 14-16.

Calves 100; market steady; demand good, bulk of choice handyweight calves 27-29; good calves 22-26; mediums 18-22; common 13-18.

Hogs 450; no rail hogs here; market stronger and fully 1 higher; good to choice N. Y. state hogs 24-24.50 a new high for 1953; heavier weights and sows not established early.

Sheep and lambs 300; receipts too few to establish a market.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Oats and barley continued to show strength in early trade today on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Aggressive export buying in barley again was the main interest, with substantial quantities worked for overseas destinations.

Oats moved up under routine shipper orders. Rye was slightly lower in dull trade, while flax slipped sharply under liberal hedging sales. The odd export order appeared in flax on the declines.

11 a.m. prices:

Oats: May ⅛ lower 74¾B; Jly ⅛ higher 72⅛; Oct. ⅛ higher 72½A.

Barley: May ¾ higher 1.21½-A; Jly ½ higher 1.18⅜A; Oct. ¼ higher 1.18B.

Rye: May ¾ lower 1.48B; Jly ⅝ lower 1.50⅝A; Oct. ½ lower 1.53⅞B.

Flax: May 2¾ lower 3.02¾A; Jly 2¾ lower 3.05¾B; Oct. 2½ lower 3.09½.

Prices Up Slightly On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO (CP) — Prices improved slightly in early afternoon stock market trading today but were slightly below Wednesday's close.

Industrials led the losses. Golds were mixed and base metals and western oils traded lower. Volume for the first three hours totalled 1,819,000 shares.

Uraniums gained from a weak opening. New Brunswick base metals also traded higher. Northern Ontario rare metals were mixed.

Refining oils improved in industrials to provide the only firm spot. Papers, utilities, constructions, foods, banks, manufacturing companies and miscellaneous issues weakened.

Higher-priced base metals held firm but other issues slipped.

A few good gains in leading issues boosted western oils. Federated gained $1 and United, Britalta and Scurry rose.

Senior golds were mixed but juniors and holding companies gained.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP)—The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 1½ per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Wednesday's noon rate was 98½ cents. Pound sterling $2.77 9-16, against $2.77½.

2 Families Left Homeless In Bancroft Fire

BANCROFT (ENS)—Two families were left homeless and damage estimated at about $12,000 was done Tuesday afternoon when fire destroyed the second floor of a store and apartment building on Hastings St.

Homeless are: Mrs. R. J. Maxwell and her two sons, Jimmy, 4, and Rockey, 2½, and Mr. and Mrs. John Moxam.

Owner of the building is Miss L. Haase. Most of the stock in the store below the apartments was ruined by water.

Mrs. Maxwell, whose husband is a sergeant instructor at Valcartier, Que., had left her children sleeping while she went to the post office a short distance away. On her return she found the building on fire, but managed, with the aid of a soldier named McKee, to carry the children to safety.

The alarm was sounded at 1.25 p.m. and the Bancroft volunteer brigade, under its chief, Cecil McAlpine, was at the scene within three minutes. The interior of the wooden structure was by this time a mass of flames and the firemen were hampered in their operations by metal siding on the building and by high wind.

When the tar-covered roof collapsed it appeared that the fire would get out of hand and spread to adjoining buildings. With the Bancroft equipment taxed to the utmost the assistance of the local detachment of the Department of Lands and Forests was requested. The department immediately sent an additional pump and 1,000 feet of hose.

The occupants of the second apartment, Mr. and Mrs. Moxam, were not at home at the time of the fire, and with the Maxwell family, lost their entire belongings.

Mrs. Maxwell is at present staying with her father-in-law, Jim Maxwell, while Mr. and Mrs. Moxam and family are staying with his mother.

After two and a half hours of hard fighting the fire was brought under control.

As today's group returned, the guns of war thundered just outside this neutral centre where full-scale armistice negotiations resume Saturday.

Some wounds were fresh and still unhealed—U.S. marines from the battle of the Panmunjom outposts earlier this month and Colombians caught in the Red onslaught over Old Baldy a few days before.

The first eight patients were chalky-faced, some obviously in pain.

One uncertain marine tugged at the arm of a lieutenant as his litter was passed from a Red ambulance.

"No foolin', lieutenant, is this really changee-changee?"

"No foolin'," answered the officer.

MAY RAISE FIGURES

The 14 Americans brought the total of U.S. troops returned to 79. The 40 promised for Friday would make a total of 119, just one short of the 120 promised originally by the Reds. However, the new Red move could raise that figure.

In four days of exchange, the Communists have returned 400 Allied troops—mostly South Koreans—and the UN has returned 2,000 Communists, including all 70 Chinese scheduled to go home.

The Red offer to return more UN troops came at a special liaison officers meeting called by the UN amid speculation the Allies would demand more prisoners after hearing reports about those still in camps.

It came against a background of mushrooming charges that 1,500 Allied prisoners died of hunger and lack of medical attention, of clubbings and bayonettings and death marches along icy roads.

When the Communists first announced they would return about 600 disabled Allied prisoners, the UNC called the figure "incredibly small" and asked for a recount.

North Korean Maj.-Gen. Lee San Cho said several times that the figures had been rechecked and that 600 was all.

But at this liaison meeting Lee told the allied truce delegate, Rear-Admiral John Daniel:

"I would like to inform your side that the sick and injured captured personnel whom our side is repatriating at this time include not only all the sick and injured captured personnel held in prisoner-of-war camps of our side but also those captured recently by our side at the front.

"Therefore the number of personnel to be repatriated by our side is more than estimated figure which your side has been previously informed. As to the exact figure . . . your side will be informed daily according to the agreement of both sides."

The meeting lasted only four minutes.

Reports 96 Died On 9-Day March

LONDON (Reuters)—The Rt. Rev. Alfred Cecil Cooper, Anglican bishop of Korea, said here today 96 American troops and captured civilians died during a nine-day forced march in Korea.

Bishop Cooper, 71, was returned home from internment in Korea Wednesday. He told a press conference that he was among 700 American soldiers and 68 civilians made to march between 100 and 500 miles.

"The longest distance we marched in a day on this terrible journey was 15 miles.

"A North Korean major of police, whom we called 'The Tiger'—we did not find out his real name—was in command.

"The column was guarded by armed men on either side.

"In the party were French priests, two over 80 and several over 70, and old women and some children."

Deplore Implications Of Story On Council

MONTREAL (CP)—The Anglican synod of the diocese of Montreal Wednesday night unanimously passed a resolution "deploring the implications" of a news story that the Anglican social service council "has been following the Communist party line."

The news story, published by the Montreal Star and carried by The Canadian Press, quoted the Rev. Lionel Temple-Hill of St. Johns, Que., as calling on the synod earlier in the day to vote down parts of the council's report dealing with civil liberties. Mr. Temple-Hill said the council four times had advocated Communist causes in its annual circulars.

'Saucer' Planes Take Ribbing

LONDON (CP)—Canada's "flying saucer" aircraft—or the version portrayed by some newspapers—took a gentle ribbing today from the Manchester Guardian.

If it's true what they say about the saucer, the paper said in effect, orthodox engineers would indeed be startled.

Reports published recently in Toronto and London suggest that a plant at Malton, Ont., is building a saucer-shaped aircraft capable of flying at 1,500 miles an hour.

This, The Guardian says, "seems at present a little too good to be true."

Two other British newspapers, The News Chronicle and The Daily Herald, today devoted their main feature column to reports of the Canadian saucer plblished this week in Flying Review, the journal of the RAF.

Ritchie Calder, science editor of The News Chronicle, says speed and acceleration seem to be the main problems of the new aircraft.

Bear Cubs For Sale

TORONTO (CP)—Peter Wilson has twin bear cubs for sale at at between $30 and $40. A trapper gave them to him, but he says he hasn't enough room in his house to keep them. They're playful and are fed twice a day on a formula of milk, water, egg and syrup from a baby's bottle.

Abandon Air Service

DUBLIN (AP)—The Republic of Ireland has abandoned plans to start transatlantic air service this year but the possibility of opening a service in 1954 with hired aircraft is being considered, Sean Lemass, minister for industry and commerce, said Wednesday.

Women Die After 40 Days On Storm-Tossed Launch

KUWAIT, Persian Gulf (AP)—"It was 40 days before the women died.

"After that, one by one, the men died, and their bodies were pushed overboard.

"The last man to die was the skipper. We were too weak to push his body overboard, and it remained in the launch."

This was the harrowing story told here today by two youths picked up after drifting in a disabled motor launch for 73 days in the Indian ocean.

The eight others who perished, one by one, of hunger and thirst included two women and the father of one of the boys.

The Italian tanker Montallegro picked up the two survivors, Selby Corgat, 15, and Antoine Vidot, 20, April 14, 2½ months after their launch, the Marie Jeanne, broke down Feb. 1 only a few miles from its home port in the Seychelles Islands. They had drifted more than 600 miles.

PAIR LAUDED

The tanker landed Selby and antoine, terribly weakened by hunger, thirst and exposure, here Wednesday night.

The two youths, of mixed French and African blood, come from the Island of Mahe in the British-governed Seychelles, an Indian ocean island group 700 miles northeast of Madagascar.

Although close to home when their boat broke down, contrary currents carried them away from the islands. The Marie Jeanne, a tiny speck on the vastness of the Indian ocean, drifted farther and farther from land, and from shipping lanes.

At the beginning of their ordeal, the youths said, there were about 66 pounds of fruit and three gallons of water aboard the Marie Jeanne.

"It lasted about a week," they recounted. "Perhaps the women had more than their share, but when it was gone, there was nothing but a little rain to help our thirst.

"We caught six sea birds by hand, but they only teased our empty stomachs."

First to die were the women—Mrs. Ange Finesse, 52, and a Miss Gorgi, who was 49.

Young Corgat's father, Theodore Corgat, owner of the Marie Jeanne, was next to the last to die

"He held out a long time—nearly 60 days, as far as we can remember," they said.

Reserve Lack Big Danger To NATO Forces

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress was told today that Western military forces in Europe "probably" could cope with any surprise Russian attack but lack the reserves to meet long-range requirements.

This testimony came from Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, chief of staff to Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway at supreme Allied headquarters in Europe. Given at a closed session of the Senate foreign relations committee April 1, it was made public today coincident with the opening of the North Atlantic council meeting in Paris.

Gruenther asserted NATO's situation was "vastly improved" over what it was at the start two years ago when its leaders worried "we might wake up some morning and find the whole (Soviet and satellite) force just pouring through, with warning that was no more than a matter of minutes."

He cautioned against cutting foreign aid so drastically that the French and other allies might fear "we are getting ready to pull out" of European defence.

High officials said Tuesday the Eisenhower administration is talking in terms of about a $2,000,000,000 cut in former President Truman's $7,600,000,000 foreign aid request for the year starting July 1.

Gruenther told the committee there are still 4,000,000 men under arms in the Soviet forces of 175 land divisions, 20,000 operational aircraft and upwards of 300 submarines.

Of the 175 divisions, 30 are stationed in Europe, the large part in forward areas, with others on the western borders of the Soviet Union where they "can be quickly brought up for reinforcement."

Lindsay Ball Club To Study Attendance

LINDSAY (ENS)—The Lindsay Baseball Association will hold another meeting tonight, with several important items on the agenda. President-elect Bill Cummins said today that among the things to be discussed will be the awarding of the Tri-County League franchise which may this year go to a new group headed by players from the Lindsay hockey Muskies. Past president Lou Walker, who sponsored the team for the past three years, is understood to be ready to step aside for the new organization. Finances will also be an issue in the meeting.

The problem of bringing more Lindsay baseball fans to the games held at the local field will be accentuated this year by the need for larger gates at the Lakeshore League games. This need will be occasioned by the importation of outside players by Manager Andy Widdis. During 1952 only 4,000-odd paid admissions were registered at the local box office. This was a great decline from the 11,000 that saw games in 1951. The executive promise action to bring crowds up to their former level, in order to have the game in Lindsay.

Official forecasts issued by the Dominion public weather office in Toronto at 9:30 a.m.:

Synopsis:

A complex low pressure area which swept down from the northwest into Ontario Wednesday spread a band of showers and occasional thundershowers ahead of it. Following the passage of this storm, brisk northwesterly winds brought slightly cooler air to the province over night and clearing skies to southern regions. As a result today will be mainly sunny in the south, although considerable cloud and occasional showers will persist in central and northern regions. Friday will be a little cooler throughout the province, otherwise little change is anticipated in the weather picture.

Regional forecasts valid until midnight Friday:

Eastern Lake Ontario, Georgian Bay Haliburton, Kirkland Lake regions North Bay, Sudbury cities: Cloudy with a few sunny intervals and occasional light showers today and Friday. A little cooler. Winds northwest 20 today, northwest 15 tonight and Friday. Low tonight and high Friday at Trenton 32 and 50, Muskoka 30 and 55, Killaloe, North Bay and Sudbury 25 and 50, Earlton 20 and 45. Summary for Friday: Cooler.

Premature Action

Senators Drop Plan For Atrocity Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP)—A proposal to inquire into Red atrocities against prisoners of war in Korea has been put temporarily on a Senate shelf.

After being assured that the army and state department will step up collection of evidence with a view to later war crimes prosecutions of the Communists for any atrocities against United States or United Nations prisoners, the Senate appropriations committee dropped plans to investigate.

Some members of the committee said they regarded Friday's two-hour inquiry, ordered by chairman Styles Bridges (Rep. N.H.) as "premature."

Representative Walter Judd (Rep. Minn.) said, meanwhile, the change of sick and wounded prisoners to divert U.S. attention from "The main campaign"—a thrust toward rich Southeast Asia.

"We are getting back a few boys in exchange for a continent," he said. "Certainly we want to get all of the American prisoners we can, but we shouldn't allow ourselves to be blinded to Communist strategy."

Judd, a former China missionary, said a Red-sparked drive into Laos kingdom of northern French Indo-China is a great threat to all of Southeast Asia. The drive started just after Peiping announced acceptance of UN proposals to exchange sick and wounded prisoners.

Laos has petitioned for UN help but no action has been taken.

Judd said Southeast Asia "always has been the main target" of the Communists and that Indo-China, its gateway, must be held.

Hundreds Attend Funeral Of Col. Craig

COBOURG (ENS)—Col. Stuart Craig of Cobourg, veteran of two world wars and known all over Canada as an outstanding military man, was buried Wednesday afternoon with military honors in St. Peter's Anglican cemetery, following a service conducted at the church by the Rev. H. Bedford-Jones. Colonel Craig died at Port Au Prince, Island of Haiti, in February while on a holiday. His remains were shipped to Cobourg and placed in the chapel vault at St. Peter's cemetery.

Military staff officers from Kingston, Halifax, Toronto, Ottawa, Peterborough and Picton attended the funeral as well as war comrades who had served with him in two wars. Friends from Halifax were here who knew him when he was in command of the garrison there during the Second World War.

WAIT IN RAIN

In spite of a downpour of rain, the church was filled for the funeral service and hundreds waited outside in the rain to watch the casket borne on the shoulders of NCO's from the 33 medium field regiment, Cobourg, of which the deceased was honorary colonel.

Draped with the Union Jack, the casket was placed on a 25-pounder gun carriage drawn by a field artillery tractor of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, Kingston. In front of the motorized field equipment marched the firing party composed of men from the artillery school at Picton. Heading the procession was the band of the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps, Ottawa. Legion members from many centres in the province also were in the funeral procession.

Honorary pallbearers were Col. L. Wilson, Cobourg. Col. H. T. Goodeve, Port Hope, Brigadier T. H. Storms, Toronto, Lt. Col. Gordon King, Cobourg, Wing Commander W. I. Riddell, Cobourg, Colonel F. McEachren, Cobourg, Lt. Col. Robert Lucas, CO of the 33rd Regiment and P. G. Thompson, Cobourg.

Active pallbearers were WO 2 Jack Erskine, WO 2 Walter Grieves, WO 2 Harold Coates, Staff Sergeant Stuart Houstan, Sergeant Ray Baker, Sgt. A. Perfect, Sgt. H. Baxter and RSM George Seymour-Taylor.

Expects Record Tourist Year

COBOURG (ENS) — "We are expecting the biggest tourist season ever this summer," H. O. Taylor, secretary-manager of the Cobourg Chamber of Commerce, told the Examiner yesterday.

Already the increase in tourist trade is evident and the staff of the Chamber of Commerce, which maintains a year-round office on Division St. and a temporary one in front of the town hall during the season, are getting ready for an early and very busy tourist year.

Last summer, the tourist office at the town hall handled 8,920 enquiries, an increase of more than 1,000 over the year before. The Chamber of Commerce will not be surprised if 10,000 enquiries are handled this year. Last year the number registered at the tourist office, who stayed in various local tourist establishments, amounted to 26,662.

Legion Auxiliary Holds Initiation

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — The Ladies' Auxiliary, Branch 103 of the Canadian Legion, had as guests Zone Commander Gwen Baker, Provincial Secretary Macmillan and President Ewart of the Cobourg Ladies' Auxiliary.

Arrangements were made for the zone rally in Campbellford Tuesday May 26, at 7 p.m. Provincial President Richardson will be present.

Two new members were initiated, Jessie Robertson and Winnifred Sheridan. Tickets are now available for the birthday banquet May 20 at Kay's dining room.

Diane Ferrill addressed the meeting, stating she would be visiting Holland in June and would visit the graves of any local boys. A social hour was enjoyed.

Close 24 Shops

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The Argentine government closed 24 more shops Wednesday and jailed the owners in President Juan Peron's drive to keep inflation at bay. The owners were accused of having overcharged for foodstuffs. Nearly 900 shops have been closed since April 10, when new price ceilings were decreed.

Taking Treatments

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Earl Teed took no chances when a fox bit him. Teed, 54, shot the fox, loaded the carcass into his car and drove about 110 miles from his home to the state health department's laboratory here. Tests showed the animal was rabid. Teed is taking serum treatments.

Banks On Strike

ROME (AP)—Italian bank workers went on a 48-hour strike for higher pay today but banks remained open with skeleton staffs. About 80,000 workers through the country were involved.

Recommendation

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters)—The New Zealand Labor party today approved a recommendation that immigration preference should in the future be given to Britons.

Reports On The Prisoner Exchange

Comparative reading of Red and U.S. reports on how the prisoners of war in Korea fared would be provocative. U.S. despatches from Korea now tell, as from the mouths of returned wounded prisoners, tales of fearful forced marches, hunger in the prison camps, and the deaths of many American and other U.N. men in captivity. Red reports on their returned men describe them as "mutilated, emaciated wrecks". No doubt the Red press is publishing other stories—as told by some of the returned Red soldiers—of brutal treatment of their prisoners by U.S. guards, of indiscriminate shooting of unarmed prisoners in the compounds, of starvation diets, and so on.

* * *

Stories of hardship and atrocities, on both sides of the Korean line, will continue to be heard. There is undoubtedly an element of truth in both versions, but we naturally give little credence to what the Reds say, and trust the veracity of the American reports. These are of course one-sided, since the U.S.-U.N. command in Korea has banned interviews with certain types of returned prisoners whose "personality" has been affected by their incarceration; that is, those on whom the North Koreans and Chinese have succeeded in making a favourable impression or conversion to Communism. This is undoubtedly a necessary protection for the changed men. They would have a hard time indeed back home if they arrived as known pinks. They must first be allowed to adjust themselves again to the prevailing temper in the States.

* * *

The lot of a prisoner of war is indeed a strained and unhappy one, no matter how good the prison camp and food are. There is great relief over the few who have already been released, and sympathy for them in their months and years of imprisonment. Their stories of many thousands of others still in prison camps, some in hospitals, stir the heart.

An Outsider's View Of Main Street

Peterborough's main street has been allowed to deteriorate. It needs a face-lifting. It needs a change in character. These are the opinions of a New York visitor, speaking to a local club: a super-salesman named Frank W. Lovejoy. Mr. Lovejoy was not speaking from first impressions. He has been here before—seven years ago, and was comparing our business section now with what it was then. He believes Peterborough has grown since he was here before—it has—"but you wouldn't know it".

We take Mr. Lovejoy's criticisms kindly. Last month we made some remarks in these columns about the appearance of the place, and presented some suggestions as to how the business section particularly could be improved. We might even go farther than Mr. Lovejoy and say that George and Charlotte streets look tawdry at certain angles. At eye level there are some good, bright windows, and no lack of paint, chromium and shiny facing. But even in this there is a rather fearsome hodge-podge of colours, textures, signs, stickers, awnings and the omnipresent parking meters. The total impression is not good. A stranger from even a lesser city than New York might think George or Charlotte streets the main drag of an overgrown village which had just discovered neon and chromium.

Below eye-level the sight is more depressing. Cracked sidewalks, uneven curbs, undulating pavement and, towards the day's end a mess of litter. Despite the praiseworthy efforts of the Department of Works to cope with new subdivisions, one cannot commend it for the quality of its maintenance program.

Above eye-level are the mazes of wires, poles, traffic signs, shop signs, and a rather mean sky-line of buildings. If one compares George Street now with photographs of it fifty years ago, the walled fabric of the street was better then than now.

Then the street looked like a city street—above eye-level. Row succeeded row of three and four-storey buildings—three blocks of them, and the eye was carried high and satisfactorily, too, along Simcoe and Hunter streets. Compared with the present sky-line, the commercial centre of Peterborough half a century ago—even seventy years ago—had a stately air. What if some of the three and four-storey buildings were shells at their topmost storeys, just pretences of a fourth storey? They looked imposing, and not like a squat village thoroughfare. In the last twenty-five years, owners of commercial premises have been lowering their buildings, cutting off a storey or two to save taxes and steps. Fires and wrecking to clear sites have reduced other tall buildings. These have been replaced by two-storey structures. The single happy exception to this prevailing trend has been the Toronto Savings and Loan building on the west side of George Street at Brock. Its mansard roof was raised It is now our most imposing business block.

We do not suggest that all down-town property owners immediately begin to raise the roof and put up false fronts. Last month a few suggestions were made here. The criticisms above, and those of the New York visitor, may beget other suggestions for the improvement of our municipal face—the one every tourist and shopper sees without fail. No matter how many trees, parks, municipal buildings and good schools we have scattered throughout the city, the biggest, first and most lasting impression on most people is made by the appearance of the shopping centre. The Sales and Ad clubmen who heard the New Yorker speaker Tuesday evening may themselves be moved to do something to make the "inherited, valuable historical and natural assets live, real", and "to build up, bring out, Peterborough's character". The kind of character which is brought out now by our commercial section is not very complimentary.

As a footnote, we add that we appreciated the speaker's question: "Are you unwilling to ask the railroads to run trains here so visitors can get in and out at decent times?" We are not unwilling. We have asked. But there is a world of vacuity between asking and getting.

Stratford In Canada

As today is, traditionally, the birthday of William Shakespeare, it is fitting that we should think about him for a few minutes. And in 1953 we must be very dense indeed if we can think about Shakespeare, as Canadians, without thinking also about the Shakespeare Festival which has been launched in this country by the city of Stratford, Ontario. Stratford is not a particularly lively place and has not been widely known; among the bustling and competitive cities of Western Ontario it has not, until the present, made any special mark. But by its adventurousness in organizing a Shakespeare Festival, with Canadian actors of the first rank supporting British stars of international reputation; with one of the ablest directors in the world in Tyrone Guthrie; with a novel, specially designed theatre which will combine the best elements of the Elizabethan theatre and the theatre-in-the-round; by this stroke of daring it has made itself a city of national importance. Already the reservations for its five-week season are so heavy that it has been necessary to offer a sixth week. And what is Stratford offering in this festival? The old, tired plays which have been pawed to death by schools? No: it offers Richard III and the comparatively unfamiliar All's Well That Ends Well.

Stratford has nothing to mark it as the site for a festival of national importance, and a first-rate tourist attraction; its only link with Shakespeare is the purely fortuitous one of its name. But Stratford has foresight; Stratford can see through a brick wall rather more quickly than the other Ontario cities; Stratford realizes that by no means all tourists want to come to Canada to fish and look at the tall trees, and that entertainment of the finest quality will draw them as well if not better. Stratford will have imitators, but it has put itself first in the field in a very important realm of tourist business, and the imitators will have to take the crumbs which fall from its table.

We wish Stratford well. Its daring deserves reward.

Barge On The Rideau

Canadian communities are making plans to celebrate the Coronation. Some of the municipalities, like Ottawa and Peterborough, will celebrate without their Chief Magistrates who will be in absentia but in the actual Presence; they are representing their cities at the Coronation itself, in the Abbey. Ottawa had a special committee—still has we believe, although its chairman has resigned—to draft the big day's doings. Apparently the draft was too big for other officials; they squirmed at the estimated cosis and ordered large holes to be cut. We felt for a while that therefore civic Ottawa was merely going to assist at the Dominion fireworks, on a non-paying basis. But no, civic Ottawa is doing something, and we bring this item from the Ottawa Journal into evidence:

"Not being able to go to the Coronation has its compensations. Those of us who stay at home will be able to see members of Ottawa city council, in their new robes of office and headed by the imposing figure of Controller McCann as acting mayor, sailing down the canal in the civic barge to the plaudits of admiring multitudes."

A home-made spectacle, but verily Ottawa's own. We are relieved to see from this report that the Journal has changed its attitude towards the new official robes. Billowing over the rolling waves of the Rideau, they will apparently be too winsome for even the Journal's Mrs. Grundy to ignore. We see her already giving another hitch to her black stockings and sallying out to join the admiring multitudes.

THE U.S. SCENE

Americans 'Coronation Crazy'

By KENNETH HARRIS

EVERYBODY over here to whom I have mentioned that I am coming to Britain this month greets the information with the same remark: "Gosh, isn't that wonderful—you'll be home in time for the coronation."

It really is quite remarkable—the amount of live, affectionate interest which Americans of all kinds and ages are taking in the crowning of Queen Elizabeth. One gets the feeling that, just as last year the American people seemed ready to hold the whole world up in order to have their elections, this year they are every bit as ready to hold everything up so that they can sit back and enjoy the coronation. As one American said to me last week, "I guess we Americans are getting Coronation-crazy."

THE NEWSPAPERS, the magazines, the travel agents and the radio, of course, have been "featuring" the Coronation extensively from, I would say, the day after President Eisenhower was inaugurated. The advertisers and manufacturers are now swelling the chorus —cheap jewellery modelled on some of the jewels in the crown, souvenir brooches, scarves and shawls with regal symbols, imitation State coaches and Life Guards for the children. Last Sunday at lunch-time I saw an apparently endless queue lining up in biting, cold rain waiting to get into a cinema showing a film called "Queen Elizabeth's Destiny."

Part of this interest is whipped up by advertisers and publicists, part of it is ordinary American enjoyment of one of the most rare and colourful spectacles of the Old World, but part of it, and you strike it immediately when you talk to people on the street and in the buses, is due to a special interest in Britain's young Queen. It is hard to find out why and how exactly her image has become so strongly implanted on the mind of the ordinary American man and woman. But planted it is, and rooted deeply in an affection and admiration which is as much a credit to those who accord it as to her who inspires it.

THE MOSCOW radio station which addresses itself to those Americans who care to listen on the short wave every evening is going full out on the current Soviet peace offensive. It comes over pretty well, in English, from about 6.30 p.m. to midnight, the programme consisting of a series of somewhat dull talks on such varied subjects as the standard of living in Moscow and developments of flood control in China, with bulletins every hour giving the latest Soviet version of what it describes as the "News."

The underlying theme, of course, is that the world can return to normal (what the dickens is "normal?") if the case of China, as presented by the Soviet Union, is given reasonable consideration. Everything is very pleasantly stated and framed in such a way that, if the peace offensive succeeds, the Voice of Russia, or whatever they call it, can take the credit, and, if it doesn't, the blame will be upon the United States.

I HAVE LISTENED in a few times this week. Though it is difficult to find a positive mis-statment of fact, it is impossible to put down any of Moscow's statements as both significant and true. For instance, this morning the Soviet "Voice" was going strongly on the "Bring the Boys Home" theme, having learned from the Republicans in last year's elections, perhaps, what a good line this one is with the American people.

One speaker said that five hundred students at the University of Michigan were "urging the end of the war in Korea." He did not mention, however, that there are about twelve thousand students at this university, nor did he say whether he was referring to a vote in a debate, to a demonstration by a bunch of young Leftists, who want to end the war at any price, or to a show by a bunch of right-wing Republicans who think that the only way to clear up the Korean situation and get the boys home is to launch a big military offensive. None of the six Michigan graduates I spoke to afterwards on the telephone was able to help me clarify the situation. "Try Minsk University," one told men.

MISS MARY K. JONES of Kentucky must be a bright girl. She has just invented a electrically operated menu. The customer sits at the restaurant table, looks at the switch-board on which the dishes are listed, and presses buttons opposite his fancy. His selections are registered on a board in the kitchen. There is a button for "Waitress" in case the diner wants some advice, a button for "Corrections" in case he wants to change his mind after flashing his order through, and another button marked "Finish" to show that he has polished off his soup, and is now lusting for his fish. I don't see why the comments button should be limited to three. Why not, Miss Mary K. Jones, have one marked "Rotten", another saying "Jolly Good," another saying "I would like to pay my cheque" and so on?

A FRIEND of mine has just written to me asking for any advice which will help him — on his first visit to this country — to avoid spending too much money. I think the biggest trap a visitor here falls into is to bring more luggage than he can handle with his own two hands. If a porter at a railway station touches one of your bags, even to carry it from one end of the waiting room to the other, he charges twenty-five cents for it. If, for instance, he carries three bags for you, you pay seventy-five cents. This fee is what the railway who employs him charges. He will also expect a personal tip of about twenty-five per cent. Taxi drivers will charge you an extra fare in most towns if your luggage is more than about three suit cases.

THE EXPERTS are forecasting an enormous American cotton crop this year— probably between fifteen and sixteen million bales. This is rather sad news, for President Eisenhower's Secretary for Agriculture spent several weeks urging cotton-growers to go easy on their planting, since cotton production was already outrunning demand very seriously. He suggested that they plant about eighteen per cent. less cotton than they did last year. Instead, they planted an extra million acres, an extra five per cent. or so.

If this huge crop does, in fact, materialise, it is going to create a difficult situation in the United States, and an even more difficult one in the world at large. What with Japan's export of cotton goods mounting rapidly, and with the demand for cotton being cut by the demand for nylon and other synthetic fabrics, the cotton market is going to be glutted.

Stratford Shakespearean Festival Of Canada Foundation Theatre

Construction of the unique, 1,500-seat tent theatre for the Stratford (Ontario) Shakespearean Festival was begun this month, and even today, Shakespeare's birthday, the beautiful park site on the Avon river in the heart of the city already is showing signs of the theatre which will rise on it.

The Canadian Shakespearean Theatre is designed in a full circle with the audience to be seated around three-fourths of its circumference. The "new Elizabethan" stage which combines the best features of the Greek, Roman and earlier Elizabethan theatrical design extends into the auditorium with the audience around it in tiered seats. At the closest point, seats will be six feet from the stage, at the furthest distance, only fifty-two feet. The structure proper will be covered with a canvas, will be smoke blue in colour. Canopied entrance contains manager's office, box office, and refreshment booths. Dressing rooms are being built in below and behind the stage which is a prefabricated structure now in preparation in Stratford workshops and being assembled within the tent early in May.

Rehearsals are to begin on the first of June when Alex Guiness and Irene Worth, noted British actors will have arrived with the director, Tyrone Guthrie, from London. The designer of stage, properties and costumes, Tanya Moiseivitsch will also reach Stratford from England at the same time.

Plans are to replace this tent theatre with a permanent building within the next three years. Architects of the tent structure are a Toronto firm, Rounthwaite and Fairfield.

Letters To The Editor

DISSATISFIED WITH PRESENT DAY MEAT

Sir: Are the housewives of Peterborough dissatisfied with the meat we are buying in the stores today as I am, or have they noticed it? This frozen beef from the cheapest to the most expensive cuts is tasteless and dried out when cooked.

The food experts tell us not to thaw out frozen food it must be kept frozen until cooked. I think there should be a law that all frozen meat should be marked "Frozen," and kept that way like all frozen fruits and vegetables. I would like to know if something can't be done about it.

We are told to serve more liver to our families. Gone are the days when a person could buy fresh liver; this undelectable leathery substance which we now buy is unpalatable.

I am told at the present time, we are buying frozen beef from New Zealand for which the New Zealand government was paid 15c lb.

I would like to find a store that has fresh meat for sale; it would most certainly be wise to advertise only fresh meat for sale.

I would like to know other people's point of view on this meaty problem and if something can be done about it.

DISSATISFIED COOK.

SAYS REPORT EXAGGERATED

Sir: I was amazed to read in the Saturday edition of the Examiner that the North Hastings High School, which I attend, has been "ruined" by a leaky roof. Of this I was unaware. True, the roof has leaked to some extent. The gymnasium does have several suspended buckets which mar its beauty. The "two gaping holes—six feet by two feet" were not caused by the water but were made when some of the ceiling was removed to further investigate the cause of the leaks. I had not been aware that the floor, too, "was rotting over a large area" and practically threatening to fall beneath our feet. I admit that some of it is in poor condition, but this is in only two comparatively small places.

I certainly agree that the roof is in poor condition for such a new school, but to allude that it has rendered the building almost unfit for attendance is absurd.

I attend N. H. H. S. and I am proud of it. When we are forced to don water-wings to get inside the door, I will let you know.

Your truly,
A PUPIL OF N. H. H. S.

Prosperous Indians In Sarnia

(Windsor Star)

Canada's development is paying fine dividends for some of Canada's true natives, the Indians. Opening up of the north country hasn't always been a complete blessing. In some instances it has interfered with the normal livelihood of the Indians, such as trapping. In others, however, it has provided employment and wages.

The Sarnia Indian Reserve is an example of Indians cashing in on industrial development. This reserve now within the city limits, has a key position in industrial growth there. The band has sold several parcels of land to industries and in its latest deal received $200,000 from the Imperial Oil Company for 320 acres. As the Indian band is relatively small, this means real prosperity. The Brantford area is another where Indians have profited by sale of land.

Most Indians didn't get too good a deal originally when granted land for reservations. These segments were given them from the entire land which historically belonged to them. They just got little bits of their own back, and often the land granted them was poor quality. If they are getting a fair deal now, it is no more than their dues.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And it cameto pass in those days, that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. And when it was day, he called unto him his disciples: and of them he chose twelve, whom also he named apostles . . .

And he came down with them, and stood in the plain, and the company of his disciples, and a great multitude of people out of all Judaea and Jerusalem, and from the sea coast of Tyre and Sidon, which came to hear him, and to be healed of their diseases; and they that were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed. (Luke 6: 12, 13, 17, 18.)

Then was brought unto him one possessed with a devil, blind, and dumb: and he healed him, insomuch that the blind and dumb both spake and saw. And all the people were amazed, and said, Is not this the son of David?

But when the Parisees heard it, they said, This fellow doth not cast out devils, but by Beelzebub the prince of the devils. And Jesus knew their thoughts, and said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand: and if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his kingdom stand? And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your children cast them out? therefore they shall be your judges. But if I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God is come unto you. Or else how can one enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man? and then he will spoil his house. (Matt. 12: 22-28.)

Play Presented Fairmount Hall

SPRINGVILLE (ENS). — The auditorium of Fairmount Church was crowded to capacity on Friday evening when the Springville Young People's Union presented their three-act comedy, "She's My Daisy."

The setting for this humorous play took place in the living room of Daisy and Donald Darling (played by Lila Seymour and Gordon Clifford).

Daisy has married without telling her Aunt Lucy who is the executrix of a will whereby Daisy is to receive a fortune if she marries according to Aunt Lucy's wishes and not before she is 25 years of age.

In the beginning of the play, Daisy has just received word that Aunt Lucy Barrett and her new but ailing husband, Peter Barrett (played by Margaret Hooten and Howard Johnston) will arrive that evening on their honeymoon. In her dilemma, Daisy persuades another young married couple, Freddie and Anne Adair (played by Neal Whitfield and Myrna Seymour) to assist them in deceiving Aunt Lucy. The two young husbands and Anne pose as roomers in Daisy's home. The need of a chaperone was filled when Queenie, a very mysterious but regal character, arrived selling baking powder. The part of Queenie was played by Catherine Earle.

Carl Preston as Dr. Apple comes to cure the supposedly young man and demands his pay when his service is not required.

Uncle Peter Barrett's rheumatism and other ailments disappear miraculously with Daisy's mustard plaster and he decides Daisy is the wife for his nephew Donald and proceeds to unravel the complex romantic situations much to the amusement of the audience.

Mrs. Snooks, played by Betty McIndoo comes with a crown to entice the regal but queer Queenie home. Curiously enough the Crown placed on Uncle Peter's head does the trick. The janitress, Lorraine Paddock, is glad to see her go.

George Bedford of Benson Ave. Peterborough, teacher at Cavan School, very ably directed this play but was unable to be present owing to the sudden death of his father. The young people expressed their deepest sympathy to him on his sad bereavement.

Music, between acts was provided by Catherine Earle's record player. Doreen Bowles received tickets at the door. Proceeds of the evenig amounted to over fifty-six dollars.

Texans Team Up On Brazil As German Stays Out In Main Pro Grapple Bout

In an uneven main pro mat bout, a tag affair, at the Brock Arena last night, Bobo Brazil was beaten by the Texan champions, Dick Raines and Lou Plummer. It was unever because Bobo's partner, huge Hans Hermann, refused to carry his load and left it all up to be lanky Negro. The latter did win one fall, but the team lost the next two to the rough southerners. Hermann put up a token display of brief grappling in the first round, but positively refused to help Brazil out from then on, despite pleadings by the Negro. After the final fall, the angry Bobo conked the German around plenty to the delight of the fans, and unpopular Hans had to be escorted by police through the sullen crowd to his room.

BIG AND USELESS

Herman at 274 pounds was the heaviest man in the team bout, Bobo going 250. Their rivals were Raines at 251 and Plummer two pounds lighter. Bobo won the opening fall in 22 minutes with his unconscious "cobra hold" as the spectators applauded. Bobo had taken quite a beating before as the Texans teamed up well, especially in their corner, and employed plenty of illegal tactics. Big Hans strutted about a few times to show his strength but, when in trouble, promptly retired in favor of the lithe, colored matman. The four stayed in the ring during the rest periods between falls.

Raines took the second fall in just eight minutes against Hans, using Texas bulldogging tactics to slam him. Bobo refused to help his mate this time because earlier in the round Hans waved him off when Brazil was in bad trouble. Raines and Plumer again teamed up perfectly—even using their horse shoe for luck in the corner—and Referee Joe Gollob had trouble keeping up with it. Bobo gave a fine account of himself in the ring again during his turns.

BEAT UP HANS

Plumer pinned Bobo for the final fall in slightly less than nine minutes with a body slam after a real softening-up process. The dazed Negro tried to get his partner to take his place but the German not only refused — instead yelling advice from outside the ropes—but he even shoved the staggering Brazil back twice into grip of Plummer. After the fall when Bobo's head had cleared, he used it first on Lou and Dick with his cocoa conks, and then he went angrily to work on his lazy partner. He banged Hermann around the ring hard for several minutes while the fans swarmed around and cheered him on.

The 231-pound Pat Flanagan downed Firpo Szybsko, going 239, in 24 minutes of the semi-final. He used a bit of sleight of hand in tricking the well-conditioned Firpo into the grip that beat him, an oldie known as "skin the cat," a backward flip. It was a wild and woolly bout with the bald Pat strong and rough, but fast and tricky to really open it up. They went in and out of the ring, and Pat even once was under it he scooted across to come up from behind on his amazed adversary. Flan and the referee nearly tangled several times, Gollob putting up his dukes just as he did when fighting professionally a few years back. The same Gollob later in the evening tried to get a fan, who was riding him, to climb into the ring, but it was no dice. Pat performed in fine style as befitting a grappler who is in the main tag team at Maple Leaf Gardens tonight. He is always popular.

Big Bill Stack, scaling 241, and the 230-pound Jan Gotch went to a prelim draw in 30 minutes. Gotch was the villain all the way. They played it fast, with some good leglocks early, and then Jan got yanking hair to break grips, Gollob missing this. Stack and the ref had words at times, and Gotch applied a punishing step-over toe-hold, using the ropes for leverage. He punched and kicked Bill before [illegible] till Stack cut him down with blows to the midriff. It was hot at the bell.

WHO'S ON FIRST? — Major league clubs look to first base for extra thump. Ted Kluszewski, left, hits home runs and knocks in runs for the Redlegs. Whitey Lockman, centre, is off with a bang for the Giants. Walt Dropo bats clean-up for the Tigers.

Penticton Captures Allan Cup Place

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Penticton V's Wednesday night won the right to represent Western Canada in the Allan Cup final.

The British Columbia representatives only managed a slim 4-3 victory over Fort William Beavers in Wednesday night's meeting but the win gave the V's the best-of-seven series 4-2 and qualified them to meeting Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen or Smiths Falls Rideaus in the Dominion final.

The Dominion final will be played in the east, the dates and venue to be announced. Should the V's win the Allan Cup, it will be the first B.C. team to do so since Trail Smoke Eaters took the trophy in 1948.

Kitchener Drops Bitter Dispute Will Play In Ottawa Arena

OTTAWA (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo's Dutchmen arrived in Ottawa Wednesday night determined to beat the jinx of the Ottawa ice surface and the Smiths Falls Rideaus tonight in the seventh and deciding game of their Eastern Canada senior hockey finals.

The Dutchmen came reluctantly, resigned to playing on Ottawa Auditorium ice with its rounded ends only after they were threatened with forfeiting the series and a chance at the Allan Cup finals if they didn't accept the ruling of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Smiths Falls, on the other hand, was happy to be back in the arena where they won the first two games of the best-of-seven series before blowing a 3-1 lead in games at Kitchener and Guelph. The series now is tied 3-3.

DISPUTE BLOWS UP

The dispute over the site for the final game lew up yesterday, when Kitchener club president Bobby Bauer criticized the Ottawa arena as "one of the worst ice surfaces I've seen hockey played on."

W. B. George of Kemptville, CAHA president, told the Dutchmen to be in Ottawa tonight or forfeit the series. George admitted, however, the Ottawa ice surface was "egg-shaped."

Kitchener coach Bob Rafferty suggested another reason for his team's reluctance to play here. He said that after losing the first two games here, his players "might have a little complex about the rink."

Rideau club president Dr. Art McCue entered the argument by criticizing Bauer for a "hog-all attitude."

"We've played four games in his area and the CAHA is only being fair in awarding us a third game here," Dr. McCue said. "We want that Allan Cup, too."

Kitchener also put in a bid for neutral National Hockey League referees for tonight's all-important game. But George Dudley, CAHA secretary-manager, said in Midland he doubted that the request would be granted. "We have enough referees of our own," he said.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Away back in 1917, Montreal Canadiens won the Stanley Cup—as they did this year. But would you believe that a Peterborough hockey team defeated the cup winners in an exhibition game shortly after for a bet of $500? Sounds hard to believe, but we have it on the word of Harry Thornton, now living in Buffalo, who played for the local 247th amateur intermediate team of that time. Amateur players went in for a lot of betting on games then, something almost unheard of today — since the powers that be in puckdom frown heavily on bets by players. Billy Taylor not so many season ago was thrown out of hockey for life just for betting on his own team.

* * * * * *

Here's how Harry Thornton describes the unusual incident in a letter he sent us: "The 247th team also played the Canadiens (1917 Stanley Cup winners) for a $500 side bet, and won 9 to 3. Goldie Prodgers, Duke Keats, George Vezina, etc., played for the Canadiens. This game was played at nine one morning with no audience. I was still eligible for junior hockey at the time, and personally recruited the Fort William boys with the assistance of Jerry Coughlin of Peterborough. The writer is a member of the Buffalo Stadium and Memorial Auditorium Board, and will be very happy to see you have the best seats to any sporting event you may want to see in Buffalo."

* * * * * *

Read It Only Lately

Big Harry had only recently read an article which we wrote a year ago on Jack Adams and the 247th Battalion hockey team of '17 in Peterborough. He said Adams was his room-mate at the time, living with other out-of-town boys at the Edwards' home opposite the Brock St. rink. Referring to the team's loss to Nobel, Thornton wrote that it was due to the dye running in the players' sweaters, causing serious infections. Said the game ended with about three men on each team, and Jack Adams was quite sick after that occasion. Harry states that his brother Pete was in France at the time and never played with the 247th team. The Fort William players here were Adams, Alf and Pat Flanagan, and Bobby Armstrong. Other players included: Hubert Legros, Grover Halpin, Banty Evans, Harry Thornton and Barney Quinn.

* * * * * *

"The Oshawa game," Harry candidly writes, "was the result of ill luck as we had fully intended winning the game, but were unable to place any money on the game. The team decided to let Oshawa lead us by a goal on to the half, which they did, and the team bet $500 on the game. We could not stop Oshawa in the second half and the writer was badly hurt in that game. However, we were sure we could win the round with Oshawa, at which time we did get our money back with good interest." Hm, the good old days of amateurism, huh? It was certainly an interesting letter from Harry Thornton, who now is employed in Buffalo by Westinghouse.

Hans Is a No-Gooder

The leopard can't change his spots, and a mat villain seldom turns over a cleaner leaf. Wrestling fants at the Brock bump emporium noticed this last e'en in the main tag team bout. Hans Hermann, the strutting German, was teamed with Bobo Brazil against the terrible Texans, Dick Raines and Lou Plummer. What happened? The big Teuton laid down on the job, refusing to help the belabored Negro who took quite a beating from Lou and Dick. He won one fall but lost the next two, the fray being too one-sided. The peeved Bobo promptly beat the bejabers out of Hans after the bout to the delight of the fans. Pat Flanagan won the semi-final over Firpo Szybsko, while Bill Stack and Jan Goth drew in the prelim.

A meeting to close entries settled the Industrial Fastball League as a six-team circuit this season. Clubs in are Raybestos, Outboard Marines, Woollens, Quakers, Norwood and Curve Lake. These two outside squads might add a lot of interest to a good loop. Games will be staged three times a week on the Quaker Park diamond, schedule opening about May 24, they expect. Bill Gunn heads the circuit again, with Don Isaac secretary. The fastballers play a pleasing, speedy style of softball and have some of the top talent in Peterborough aboard their lineups each summer. Schedule will be drawn up shortly.

Royals Wallop Rochester In 17-4 Lacing

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals, last season's International Baseball League pennant-winners, opened the current schedule on the right foot Wednesday by trouncing Rochester Red Wings, the team that knocked them out of the 1952 playoffs for the Governor's Cup.

A newcomer to the Montreal fold, Sandy Amoros, led the Royals' 24-hit attack with a perfect day at bat—six for six as Montreal won 17-4. The fleet-footed Cuban centre fielder surprised many with his booming stick, as he was not reputed to be a heavy hitter.

He walked the first time at bat, then tripled, hit four successive singles and tripled again.

More than 42,000 fans turned out—16,088 the top attendance at Rochester—to see the eight teams in action in two day games and two under the lights.

WALLOP OTTAWA

Syracuse Chiefs walloped Ottawa Athletics 16-4 before a jubilant home-town crowd.

The two night games were closely fought. Buffalo Bisons whipped the Orioles 8-5 in the opener at Baltimore, while Springfield Cubs treated their fans to a 2-1 decision over Toronto Maple Leafs.

Skipper Walter Alston of the Royals did well in picking lefty Ken Lehman as starting pitcher. The veteran went the route, giving up only six hits. The Montrealers battered three Wings pitchers, with Ellis Deal, the starter, the loser. The others were Fred Hahn and Lou Ciola.

WILD PITCHING

Syracuse capitalized early on Ottawa's wild young pitchers, hammering five Athletics hurlers for 12 hits. Their margin of victory was helped by 10 walks and four errors by the losers. Duke Markell held Ottawa scoreless until he sixth inning, when Lou Limmer hit a three-run homer.

Buffalo blasted five homers, two by Rufus Crawford, in stopping the Orioles.

Ken Chapman's homer in he ninth, coming after Baltimore had tied the game at 5-5 in the preceding inning, was the big blow of the night.

At Springfield, a double by Jack Wallaesa, scoring Walt Derucki and Gene Hooks in the eighth, gave the Cubs the victory over Toronto, who outhit them 8-6. Don Johnson went the route for the Leafs, giving up only six hits.

St. Boniface Wins Final, Enters Cup Race

WINNIPEG (CP)—St. Boniface Canadiens, showing a complete reversal of form, Wednesday night blasted Lethbridge Native Sons 12-1 to win the Western junior hockey final.

The victory gave the Canadiens the best-of-seven series 4-2, with one game tied, and the right to represent the west in the Memorial up finals against the Eastern champions, Barrie Flyers. The best-of-seven series starts here Monday night.

In a centre-ice ceremony after the game, Canadiens captain and defenceman Syd White received the Abbott Memorial Trophy, emblematic of Western junior supremacy, from Vic Johnson of Winnipeg, Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association rules committee chairman.

FIRST SINCE 1938

The win for the Canucks gave St. Boniface its first western junior title since 1938, when the Seals led by Wally Stanowski and Billy Reay went on to take the Dominion championship.

Len Thornson bagged three goals to pace the scorers. Pankhurst and Ab McDonald added two apiece. The others went to Bob Jasson, Al Johnson, Garry Blaine, Lou Marius and Leo Konyk.

Cece Hoekstra, centre for Canadiens' kid line, picked up three assists.

Roger Laplante tallied Lethbridge's marker.

Carter Plans Take Long Walk

BOSTON (AP)—Apparently confident about making the 135-pound limit, lightweight champion Jimmy Carter today planned to wind up his preparations for his 15-round title defence against Boston's Tom Collins by taking "a long walk."

Carter completed his erious work for Friday night's 15-round bout with Wednesday's brisk gymnasium workout.

Wearing 14-ounce gloves, Carter practised his powerful left hooks against the light and heavy bags.

"I always make my fighters wear heavy mitts in training," said Willie Ketchum, the titlist's manager. "Then when they go into action they find the eight-ouncers as light as a feather."

Up in rural action, challenger Collins, who expects to weigh in around 13, planned one more stiff workout. He ran five miles before putting in six rounds on the punching bags Wednesday.

New York Whips Pirates In 4-2 Tussle; Hofman Clicks For Giants

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

Leo Durocher is fast becoming a firm believer that every cloud has a silver lining. Bobby Hofman is one of the reasons. The New York Giants' manager was forced to dig deep into his infield reserves when second baseman Williams aggravated a back injury Tuesday night. Catcher Wes Westrum also was hurt and the club was in last place. Leo switched Daryl Spencer from third base to second and settled for Hofman, a utility man, at third. Sal Yvars did the catching.

Hofman batted leadoff against the Pirates at Pittsburgh Wednesday night. In the first inning he doubled and scored. In the third inning he hit a home run for the Giants' second tally. He singled in the fifth and then completed a perfect night with his second home run, this time with pitcher Jim Hearn on base, for the last two New York runs in the eighth as New York whipped the Pirates 4-2.

IN FIFTH PLACE

The victory jumped the Giants from last to fifth place.

First place in the National League changed hands as Philadelphia Phillies made it two in a row over Brooklyn, winning 5-4, and St. Louis defeated Cincinnati 8-3 in night games. The Phillies and Cardinals now share the lead with Brooklyn in third place, half a game behind. Milwaukee swamped Chicago 15-6 in the only National League day game.

New York Yankees took over sole possession of first place in the American League by whipping Boston 6-2. A five-run ninth inning rally fell short for Detroit as the Tigers bowed to Chicago 9-7 and Philadelphia beat Washington 7-4 in a night affair. Cleveland and St. Louis were not scheduled.

Billy Loes, who pitched 39 innings —38 of them scoreless—for Brooklyn against Philadelphia last year, couldn't fool the Phillies Wednesday night. They got to him for all of their five runs before he departed in the fourth. Karl Drews struck out seven in winning his first game.

BATTER CINCINNATI

The Cardinals battered Cincinnati pitching for 12 hits. Vinegar Bend Mizell walked six and committed two errors, but he struck out seven and lasted until two were out in the ninth before needing help from Al Brazle.

Appearing for the first time at Wrigley Field, Milwaukee bashed Chicago pitching for 17 hits. Third baseman Ed Mathews led the attack with two homers and a double good for six runs.

Johnny Mize hit a pinch single with the bases loaded and the score tied in the eighth inning to put the Yankees on the winning trail. Vic Raschi picked up his first victory of the season.

Harry Byrd shut out Washington until two were down in the ninth, then had to holler for help as the Senators rallied for four runs.

Vern Stephens, Sherman Lollar and Sam Mele homered for the White Sox off rookie Milt Jordan as the Tigers lost their seventh in eight games.

A Message from the President...

It is with sincere pleasure that we announce Open House at our new completely modern premises tomorrow evening.

We have been aware for some time now that our greatly expanded business could not be efficiently conducted unless facilities were available to provide a complete automotive service at one location.

We now have ready for your inspection one of the most modern and completely equipped shops in Eastern Ontario, and with all departments at one location we now are in a position to render immediate service whether your needs be General Repairs, Body and Fender Repairs, complete repainting, lubrication, gas, oil, washing, parts and accessories, tires, or the purchase of a New or Used Car, Truck or Tractor.

Everyone in our organization is vitally aware that our success both in the present and in the years to come has only been possible because of the confidence that you have placed in us, and you may be sure that the policy of honesty and fair dealings that have stood us in such good stead in the past will be our most jealously guarded possession.

It is our sincere wish that you will visit with us tomorrow night, 7 to 10.30, to inspect our facilities and get acquainted with our Staff.

Yours sincerely,

Bill Godson

SHOW ROOM AND OFFICES

We are proud of our new Air Conditioned Showroom and offices and feel that our interior decorator has done an outstanding job. Our Sales Manager Jim Philcox has been assured by the Ford Motor Co. that delivery of new Ford and Monarch Cars and the all new Ford Trucks and Tractors will increase in the very near future and with the opening of the tremendous new Ford of Canada plant at Oakville in the very near future we will be able to delivery any model, colour or style with a minimum of delay.

Ted Johnston, our Office and Credit Manager and his Staff are equipped to render courteous and efficient Credit Information and Accounting Assistance.

May we remind you, that due to record breaking sales of new Fords this year, our Used Car department under the capable management of Peter Calhoun has the largest selection of good Used Cars ever presented by us to the motoring public. Our Used Car Department is still located at our Water Street Location at Brock pending final work on our new lot.

PARTS AND ACCESSORIES DEPARTMENT

This department under the management of Bob McIlmoyle has undergone a complete re-organization and using the very latest storage and inventory methods available today, coupled with the largest stock of Genuine Parts for all Ford Products in Eastern Ontario we are in a position now to give you the finest in Parts Service.

DOOR PRIZES

MAIN SERVICE DEPARTMENT

George Moncrief heads this department and needs no introduction to the Ford owners of this community, having served Ford owners continuously for 23 years.

The entrance door is 18 ft. wide and power operated to provide immediate entrance. The shop is 70 ft. wide with no posts of any kind which provides for sixteen work stalls and still leaves a thirty foot aisle down the centre making entrance and exit extremely easy at all times. In our new shop we can handle the largest tractor trailer on the road today. A feature of the shop is the installation of Twin Post hoists of new design which enable mechanical work such as brake, clutch, rear axle, etc. to be done in much less time. The savings in time and money are passed on to you.

A complete Repair Service including Front end alignment is now available to our customers. We invite your close inspection of the latest time and money saving machines now in operation. Any one of our service staff will be glad to explain the operation of any machine you may be interested in.

BODY REPAIRS AND REFINISHING DEPARTMENT

We are particularly proud of our new Body Repair and Refinishing department under the capable supervision of Bert Barker.

The building, measuring 60' x 60' is completely separate from the main shop to isolate noise and reduce fire hazard from the paint department.

There are two separate spray booths, large enough to refinish all makes of cars and most trucks, and each with its own forced ventilation system to eliminate dust or film while repainting is in progress.

This building also houses our Undercoating department. You can be sure that any job from a small fender repair to a complete rebuild job will meet your closest inspection.

SERVICE STATION

The Service Station is designed to speed up and facilitate such minor but important customer requirements as greasing, washing, polishing, tire repairs and minor adjustments. We are proud to handle Canadian Oil Co. Ltd. Petroleum products and respectfully suggest that you try a tank full of the new White Rose Gasoline.

Your Tire Requirements will be promptly taken care of by our Service Station staff who are equipped to instal new B. F. Goodrich tires or tubes on your car while you wait.

Finest Monarch ever built

Automatic Transmission, Overdrive, white sidewall tyres and fender skirts optional at extra cost when available.

Tomorrow Evening!!

7 to 10.30 p.m.

PETERBOROUGH'S LARGEST single car-service unit will be opened Friday. It is Godson Motors, above, located at Townsend and Aylmer Sts., and it covers three-quarters of a block—more than 60,000 square feet. Shown in the above picture are the service station and showroom windows. The used car lot is at the left. Beyond the building's front are the service department and the body shop. Forty-one employees work here.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Godson Motors Opens New Car Agency, Service Station, Garage On Aylmer

Three anniversaries in 1953 make it an auspicious year, Bill Godson feels, to open the city's largest single car service unit.

On Friday, Godson Motors' new location will be declared open in a year which marks Mr. Godson's fifth anniversary in Peterborough, Ford Motor Co.'s 50th anniversary and the Canadian Oil (White Rose) Co's 50th anniversary.

With 16,000 square feet of floor space on a 60,000 square foot lot, the building, service station and used car lot occupy most of the block bounded by Townsend, Bethune, Aylmer and Wolfe Sts.

NEW PLANTS

Mr. Godson's suppliers — Ford Motor Co. and Canadian Oil — are opening new plants this year. In Sarnia, White Rose is opening a $27,000,000 refinery, and in Oakville, Ford will open the Commonwealth's largest factory.

A bright display room facing on Aylmer St. will display the cars behind windows that reach almost from floor to ceiling. To the right of the showroom is the service station, and behind both is the service department.

The display room, panelled in knotty pine wallboard, has a checkerboard ceiling of large green and white tiles, plywood and pine trim, and a deep red painted concrete floor.

At the rear of the showroom are offices, the accounting department, and the parts department, which extends to the second floor.

Beyond these is the largest part of the building which houses the service department, where major repairs are sent. High-ceilinged to prevent accumulation of exhaust and other fumes, the service department houses three car hoists of the double-pillar type, adjustable to handle vehicles from small British models to trucks.

At the right rear of the huge service department is the body shop, with three paint booths able to handle cars and small trucks. Provision is made in one to handle large vans at night. Exhaust fans in the paint booths draw clean air from the main body shop through filter-equipped doors and blow air out the back of the building.

THREE FURNACES

Three furnaces, one for the display room, offices and parts department, and two for the shops, heat the building.

To the south of the buildings is the used car lot, large enough to be one of the biggest in the city.

Department heads are: Jim Philcox, new car sales manager; Pete Calhoun, used car sales manager; George Moncrief, service department; Bob McIlmoyle, parts department; and Bert Parker, body shop.

Opening of Godson Motors on Friday will be the opening of the city's most modern and one of its best-equipped car service units.

Survey Results Indicate Cancer Trend

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Kinsey-like survey of women's sex and marriage experiences is finding hints of why some women get cancer of the cervix.

The intimate medical questionings indicate a similar biological, economic and social background among women who get this cancer.

They are likely to have married before 18; to have had all their children by age 25; to be divorced, separated or widowed, and to be low in the economic scale.

There is no proof that any of these events themselves influence development of cancer of the neck of the womb.

A pattern of events, such as early marriage or early sex experiences, or interruption of sex life by divorce or separation, may reflect differences in hormone drives among women, affecting their lives and personalities. The hormone differences may be important.

The survey is directed by Drs. Edward G. Jones and Ian Macdonald of the University of Southern California.

OTHER SURVEYS

Similar surveys elsewhere have found that cervical cancer is rare among nuns; much lower among Jewish women than Gentiles; eight times more common among women who have had children than among childless women.

The USC studies find no relation between the number of children and likelihood of cervical cancer, nor between cancer and various practices of sex hygiene. A high proportion of women who have cervical cancer have never used contraceptives, and neither have their husbands, the study finds.

Guilty Of Manslaughter In Husband's Death

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Charles Langlois, 47, was convicted Wednesday of manslaughter in the drinking party death of her husband last Dec. 5. She will be sentenced Friday.

Langlois, who had a spinal deformity, died of a broken neck.

Crown counsel H. H. Bull, in summing up, said the slaying was "unintentional but still unlawful." He said that after a "noisy, rowdy, drunken carouse," Mrs. Langlois assaulted her husband in ejecting him from his east-end home, dragged him across the verandan and down the steps to a point where she pushed him off the side in such a way that his neck was broken.

Manager Jailed

BERLIN (AP)—An East Berlin court has sentenced the manager of a state store in the city's Soviet sector to 11 years in prison for illegal sale to West Berlin customers. Red newspapers said Heinz Trapp diverted 20,000 pairs of women's hose into West Berlin markets. Two women working for Trapp each were sentenced to eight years in prison.

China, Germany Considered Vital Spots By Russians

By DON DALLAS

LONDON (Reuters)—Pointers to the pattern of Soviet policy in Europe and Asia emerge from an examination of three major diplomatic appointments announced by Premier Georgi Malenkov's regime within the last six weeks.

The new boss of the Kremlin moved first to cement relations with Communist China. To Peiping he sent as ambassador one of his ablest contemporaries, Vassili V. Kuznetsov, formerly chief of all the Soviet trade unions and well up in the Communist party hierarchy.

Last weekend Moscow announced appointment of a new ambassador in London to replace Andrei Gromyko, who has left for Russia to resume his old post as deputy foreign minister. The new envoy, Jacob Malik, is a Far Eastern expert and former ambassador to Japan, and a specialist in United Nations work.

Tuesday it was disclosed that Malenkov is sending Paval Fyodorovich Yudin as "political adviser" to the chairman of the Soviet control commission in Germany. Yudin is a leading Marxist theoretician and political strategist who has been closely connected with the Cominform (grouping of European Communist parties).

As the new men take up their key posts, so the old and experienced diplomats return to Moscow, possibly as advisers while the grand plan of world strategy is put into effect.

HIGH PRIORITY

Alexander Panyushkin, who has served as ambassador in Washington and Peiping, returned from China. Now, following Gromyko, Vladimir Semeonov, political adviser in Germany for the last seven years, returns to Moscow. Semeonov's new post has not been revealed.

The appointments both of Kuznetsov and of Yudin indicate the extreme importance attached by Malenkov to relations with China and to the future of Germany.

The Soviet government has indicated that it places a high priority on a solution to "the German question." At all costs the Kremlin wants to stop the emergence of a rearmed West Germany, which is an integral part of the European defence community system.

TLC Asks Rank Formula Be Written Into Law

OTTAWA (CP)—The Trades and Labor Congress asked today that the Rand formula be written into the law for collective wage agreements between companies and unions.

Leslie Wismer, TLC spokesman, told the Commons industrial relations committee, however, the 525,000-member organization would be satisfied "for a start" with the bill now being considered by the committee.

The private bill of Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) would provide voluntary revocable checkoff of union dues. Employers would deduct employees' union dues when authorized by the employees, who could revoke the arrangement at any time.

Under the Rand formula, so named for Mr. Justice I. C. Rand who devised it, all members of a bargaining unit pay union dues though they need not belong to the union.

The 370,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor said Mr. Knowles' bill would contribute to stable industrial relations and that it was "the least contentious form of union security."

Donald MacDonald, CCL secretary-treasurer, said the large majority of unions now have the checkoff, putting the CCL in a position of a seal of approval.

Cuthbert Scott, QC, spokesman for the Railway Association of Canada, said his group opposes making the checkoff mandatory by law. Checkoff by law would divest the railways of a bargaining point in negotiations with the unions.

Have Republic When Prepared

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP)—Prime Minister Daniel Malan said Wednesday night a South African republic will be set up whenever the country is considered ripe for it.

Malan addressed nearly 10,000 cheering supporters of his Nationalist party in their first rally since the party emerged victorious in the recent general election. Malan was returned to power on the basis of his stern white supremacy and strict racial segregation policies.

The 78-year-old former preacher, long believed to favor pulling South Africa out of the Commonwealth, said that "the day when we consider South Africa is ripe for a republic, we will set one up."

"We have full control over all our affairs," he said. "We want to be a free people."

2 Divers' Suits Auctioned Off

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Two divers' suits and 14 old oil lamps were auctioned off Wednesday.

They were among the number of items which went on the block at the annual clear-out sale of the customs and excise department.

The suits sold for $15. Another bidder snatched up the carton of oil lamps for only $4.

All items were those seized by vigilant customs men at the Detroit-Windsor tunnel or the Ambassador bridge. Most were taken from amateur or professional smugglers and some were confiscated after owners refused to pay the duty.

Also offered for sale was a case of shampoo rinse; a gas space heater; a new portable radio which sold for $13 and a rifle which went for $70.

All were clearly stamped: "Made in U.S.A."

Bagpiper Gets Trip

TRENTON, Ont. (CP)—Jimmy Clark, 84, will take an expenses-paid trip to the June 2 Coronation and his birthplace at Dundee because of his playing the bagpipes.

The bill will be footed by war veterans in this district in recognition of the years he turned in as a volunteer entertainer on the bagpipes. Clark says he seldom missed a military parade.

Hawk Downs Plane

AUBURN, Ind. (AP)—A hawk with a five-foot wing spread tangled with a light airplane about 2,000 feet above the Auburn airport Tuesday. It brought the plane down but lost its life. The pilot, George Click, 40, said the big bird hit his left wing and tore a two-foot hole in the fabric. The bird lodged in the wing.

Fisheries Council Worried Over Markets

OTTAWA (CP)—The fisheries council of Canada expressed concern Wednesday about markets for Canadian fisheries products and urged the federal government to maintain those it now has and to seek others.

By resolution at the final session of its annual meeting the council urged the government to find a solution to the sterling exchange problem and to press for relaxation of United States tariffs with the object of increasing Canadian-U.S. and Canadian-world trade generally.

Carl Kolbe, Port Dover, Ont., was elected a vice-president.

BIRTH RATE UP

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's birth rate during March increased by about 10 per cent above the same month last year. Statistics released by the provincial registrar, with last year's in brackets, are: Births 11,374 (10,185); marriages, 2,035 (2,014); deaths 4,341 (3,830).

Ancient Shrine Of England's Monarchs Transformed Into New Setting

By JOHN DUDMAN

LONDON (Reuters) — Westminster Abbey, ancient shrine of English monarchs, statesmen and poets, will be transformed into a magnificent setting of blue and gold for the Coronation.

Cost of the work now being done to build stands and install seating for 7,600 people may be as high as £150,000.

The Abbey now is closed to the public and the clang and clatter of hammers re-echoes through the building.

Tiers of stands are rising on either side of the nave, and in the transepts to accommodate the peers and peeresses, members of the cabinet, distinguished foreign visitors and other specially invited guests.

BUILDING GALLERY

Near the high altar, a special gallery is being built from which members of the Royal Family will watch the Coronation.

A specially made blue and gold fabric will be used to drape the frontals to the balconies and stands and for various curtains needed for the Abbey ceremony. Woven into a rich, vivid blue silk ground with a metal thread is a golden design embodying the national emblems of the United Kingdom—the rose of England, the thistle of Scotland, the leek of Wales and the Irish shamrock—framed in a chaplet of English oak leaves and acorns. Over each design is a Royal crown composed of fleur de lis and ivy leaves with Tudor roses, and between each group an ornate motif composed on the theme of two "E's" face to face.

YARDS OF CARPET

Some 2,250 square yards of blue and gold carpets will stretch from the high altar down through the choir and the nave to the great west doors. Before the altar, a gold-carpeted dais is being erected for the throne chair, which will be upholstered in rich crimson damask.

Between the throne chair and the high altar itself will be a homage stool where the Sovereign receives a kiss of homage from the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, and a crimson-covered kneeling stool.

The Queen will be crowned sitting on the Coronation chair of King Edward the Confessor, which will be placed between the high altar and the throne chair where afterwards she will hear her peers and peeresses shout their allegiance.

STONE OF SCONE

Enclosed within the Coronation chair will be the famous Stone of Scone, brought to England from Scotland by Edward I in 1297. It has been used for every Coronation since.

As the Queen walks slowly to the high altar, she will see the grey walls ablaze with color from the scarlet uniforms of diplomats, the crimson and ermine robes of peers and peeresses.

Above them, television cameras in specially-built galleries will record the pageant and most of the ceremony.

Congratulations Bill . . .

As a former Associate, I would like to take this opportunity to wish you the best of luck at your new location.

RONALD RUDAN, 15-year-old violinist of Toronto and Kiwanis Festival scholarship winner, who will be the guest artist at the concert being given by the junior choirs of St. Paul's church on Friday night.

Junior Choirs Plan Concert

The Junior Choral Group composed of 56 girls and the boy's choir of 18 members of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church are presenting a concert on Friday evening. They will be assisted by Ronald Rudan, young violinist of Toronto. Ronald Rudan at the recent Kiwanis Music Festival in Toronto won the violin scholarship.

Also assisting will be Christopher Gledhill and Gwen Craw who will be heard in organ and piano groups. Mr. Gledhill directs the boys' choir and Mrs. Craw the Junior Choral Group.

Dies Of Burns

OTTAWA (CP)—Milton Brown, one of five persons burned when fire swept through their two-storey country home at Kazabazua, Que., 65 miles northwest of here, died in hospital Wednesday. He was seriously burned when he ran into a bedroom to carry his four-year-old nephew, Elwood Mahoney, from the burning home.

Newlyweds Honored

STIRLING (ENS).—The home of Mrs. Eva McGee was the scene of a happy gathering when friends and neighbors gathered to honor her son Douglas and his bride.

The Rev. W. H. V. Walker of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church acted as chairman. After a short program an address was read by Mrs. Volney Richardson. The young couple were presented with a lazyboy chair on behalf of the community, and an end table, table lamp and vase by the ladies of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

$825 For Red Cross

STIRLING (ENS).—Final figures for the Red Cross canvass in Stirling and district were released by H. J. Wells and R. K. West, showing a total of $825.51.

Fast Time Causes Confusion Still Across Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada gets tangled in time again next week end as the daylight time system slips in for the summer.

In most areas the clocks will be moved ahead one hour at 2 a.m. Sunday April 26, but enough regions stay on the standard system to cause confusion.

Two provinces—Prince Edward Island and Alberta—forbid any changes, but most provinces leave the decision to individual communities.

Daylight time is province-wide in British Columbia under a government order based on a 1952 plebiscite which strongly favored putting the clock ahead.

New Brunswick jumps the gun on the rest of the country as the hands of the clock are moved ahead on April 25. Only a few major Canadian centres, including Windsor, Brandon, Man., Calgary and Edmonton, retain standard time throughout the summer.

In Quebec, the cities of Montreal, Sherbrooke, Trois-Rivieres and Granby make the switch and, like most other municipalities, set the clock back on Sept. 27.

STARTED IN ENGLAND

William Willet first startled his countrymen with the suggestion that England adopt a sun-saving plan in 1907. The system was adopted in Britain and Germany in 1916 and the United States followed suit. Farmers refused, claiming it interfered with milking times.

Canada's pioneer advocate of the plan was the late Judge E. N. Lewis of Goderich, Conservative member for West Huron, who introduced his daylight time bill in 1909. He was greeted with gales of laughter from the usually staid House and the plan was pigeonholed with a special committee.

Prior to the Second World War daylight time in Canada was a matter of local regulation. In 1942 it was made obligatory on all municipalities throughout the year. Three years later the order was revoked and Canada reverted to standard time, subject to local regulation. Subsequently many cities adopted fast time from the end of April to the end of September.

Railways and airlines hold to the old system to avoid muddled schedules while bus lines switch to daylight time in most regions.

In New York, things gets even more confusing as commuter trains adopt the daylight schedule but interstate trains remain on standard time. Station authorities "help" travellers by equipping all clocks with two hour hands.

Hogan Demand Annoys Golfers

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Golf star Ben Hogan came in for bitter criticism Wednesday from his fellow professionals.

Friction has been simmering for days over reports that Hogan had demanded and been refused $5,000 for appearing in the first annual $35,000 tournament of champions which starts here today.

Twenty of the country's leading players will tee off in the 72-hole tournament. The winner gets $10,000. Second place is worth $5,000 and every player will receive at least $1,000.

An official source with the tournament said Hogan asked for the $5,000 through a third party.

When the sponsors declined, Hogan sent a telegram saying he would be unable to play here. This came after Hogan won the masters tournament at Augusta, Ga., 10 days ago, the source said.

Fire Guts Factory

HAMILTON (CP)—Fire Wednesday night gutted the Gair Company Canada Limited paper box factory and warehouse and threatened a garage in which tanks of inflammable oil were stored. Eight companies of firemen battled the blaze for more than two hours before bringing it under control.

St. George's Day

This royal throne of kings, this sceptred isle,
This earth of majesty, this seat of Mars,
This other Eden, demi-paradise,
This fortress built by Nature for herself
Against infection and the hand of war,
This happy breed of men, this little world,
This precious stone set in the silver sea,
Which serves it in the office of a wall
Or as a moat defensive to a house,
Against the envy of less happier lands,
This blessed plot, this earth, this realm,
this England.

King Richard II.

Canadians everywhere will salute the wearers of the English rose on this, the festive day of England's patron saint.

Place Of Delights Weaves Magic Spell For Visitor

By JEAN E. STENTON

PATZCUARO— The old Tarascan "Palace of Delights" had me in its spell as it has captured many another visitor. Here at the lovely Posada de Don Vasco where I stayed, I found something scenically close to paradise.

* * * *

Patzcuaro is the Switzerland of Mexico. My room opened onto a huge terrace and since the hotel is built on a hill, it overlooked Lake Patzcuaro, the islands and the mountains.

* * * *

My reluctance to leave was something of a joke among the staff. I planned to stay three days and ended up remaining a week. The day I planned to go to Uruapan I missed the train and the boys said:

* * * *

"You really must hate to leave when you couldn't even take the train away for one day."

* * * *

My home was something a bit different from the other hotels I have been at. Built in 1938 by a Mexican Insurance company, it is about a mile from town and is on a hill surrounded by big gardens and terraces. The building though modern, has been done in Spanish style in keeping with regional architecture. There is the usual lovely fountain and patio with galleries running around it.

* * * *

KIND FRIENDS

It is not only the scenery but the people who have proven such a lure. Sr. Roberto Mercadillo Palmer and his wife are a grand couple who had been managing the hotel for only a month, but they had the knack of making everyone feel at home.

* * * *

Sr. Mercadillo studied at schools in the United States for several years and was going through for a mining engineer. For some time he worked at a mine and latterly managed the Hotel Lincoln and Hotel Prinz in Mexico City. His parents were English and Spanish and his wife's parents were English and German. As a result both speak English and since they have been here such a short time both have had as much fun exploring as I have.

* * * *

"My mother was educated in Toronto and she has talked so much of how beautiful Canada is, I am hoping that some day I can go there and see it too," Mrs. Mercadillo told me.

* * * *

The hotel which has 55 rooms is modern and well run by a staff of 38. The waitresses in the dining room wear an adaption of local costumes. They have white jackets and long full skirts in bright floral patterns. Most of them have long braids. The food is so good and there is so much of it, that the Mexican siesta becomes a habit in spite of yourself.

* * * *

OFF BEATEN TRACK

Patzcuaro is one of those spots much more off the beaten track and untouched by modernization than most of the others I have seen except Oaxaca. The Tarascan Indians on the islands and in the surrounding areas still cling to the costumes and customs of centuries ago.

* * * *

I was not the only one to be enchanted with Patzcuaro. An artist who came to spend three days has been here two weeks and is wavering on the point of staying a few days more. It is like living in a different world and it is a beautiful world.

Springville YPU Study Paul's Conversion

SPRINGVILLE (ENS): — "Paul's Conversion" was the topic of the Bible study period at Springville YPU meeting on Sunday evening at the home of Catherine Earle.

Eleanor Bowles led in prayer and led the discussion, and Joan Dunn read the scripture passage. For discussion the union divided into two groups with Jim Seymour and Graham Lowes as secretaries.

Myrna Seymour led in the service of sang and Doreen Bowles had charge of the worship service. Catherine Waterman read the scripture and Doreen read an article on Protestantism and the Bible.

The delegates to the Spring YPU convention held at Keene on April 11 and 12 gave highlights of that gathering, when the Rev. I. G. Pollock of Grace United Church, Peterborough, gave the theme talk on "Our Full Heritage" and presented pictures of Africa.

Sunday evening the union will meet at the home of Mark and Graham Lowes, Mount Pleasant.

Catherine Waterman thanked the hostess for her hospitality. Lunch was served.

Cook Arrested

TORONTO (CP)—Police Wednesday arrested Alfred Klare, 21-year-old cook, who, they said, escaped from Montreal's Bordeaux jail last November. Klare was arrested while serving his wife food in a hamburger stand. The wife screamed as detectives snapped on the handcuffs.

Peterborough Girl Wins Wings As Air Stewardess

By JEAN E. STENTON

When Madeline Elmhirst of Peterborough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Elmhirst, RR 3, Indian River, receives her wings in Chicago today, she is proudly beginning her career as a full-fledged air stewardess, a job that stands for glamor and fun to most young women.

A graduate of the Peterborough Civic Hospital in 1952, Miss Elmhirst nursed for a while in Peterborough and then in Windsor. She answered an ad for an interview early in the year and she was one of three Canadians chosen for this American Airlines class. The others were Miss Zanovia Kalynchuk, Registered Nurse of Edmonton and Miss June Mackie of Toronto. Three Canadians in a class of 70.

Miss Elmhirst has earned her wings and her job as stewardess. For 4½ weeks she has sweated out a course in the school atop the hangars at Chicago Midway airport. Girls from all over the United States and Canada check in and the competition is keen. For example out of 700 applicants interviewed in Chicago, only three were chosen. The standards of education, appearance and personality are high.

The girls must be between 21 and 28 years of age; stand between 5 ft. 2 inches and 5 ft. 7 inches; their weight is not to exceed 130 pounds in proportion to their height; they should be college graduates or have the equivalent in business experience, be wholesome in appearance and have a pleasant personality.

MAKE IMPRESSION

In the previous class of 62 which graduated March 19, the Canadians really made an impression. There were 18 of them, five from Ontario. They hailed all the way from Victoria to Montreal. During the interviews a Victoria reporter came down to get the story. She became so interested she ended up by becoming a stewardess herself.

The girls in the previous class included: Ruth Tipping of Tottenham, Ont.; Mary Tough, Toronto; Marilyn Haffey, Toronto; Jacqueline McInnis, Woodstock and Delores O'Malley, St. Catharines.

Classes which last from 9:00-5:30 p.m. include: theory of light, aircraft maintenance, airline schedules and routes, meteorology, radio, navigation, passenger relations, emergency procedure, sales, reservations, ticketing and personal grooming. The girls must try exams every Tuesday and Thursday, so they have little time left for social life while in training.

For all the cramming necessary, the course is extremely interesting and I wouldn't mind being a stewardess myself after spending a day at the largest stewardess school in the United States.

ON TOP OF HANGAR

Class rooms, dormitories, recreational facilities, etc., are all on the third floor of the airfield hangar. The lounge has been decorated in pastel colors and modernistic style. Here the girls are permitted to bring their friends. The pastel painted dormitories are equipped to sleep anywhere from eight to 12 girls and each dorm is named after a plane in American Airlines service, such as DC-2, etc. In addition to the recreation room, there is an up-to-date laundry room equipped with Bendix, ironing board, steam irons, etc. There is an instructor on duty every night, but the girls are on the honor system.

Miss Elmhirst's class used two classrooms—the DC-6 room and the Convair, the two types of planes they will be flying on. In the DC-6 room there is a mockup—a replica of one half of a DC-6 with galley attached. By pressing a button the replica simulates plane motion and each girl learns to walk and move about without difficulty.

I arrived on the second day of the new class and most of the girls were feeling a little homesick and a little puzzled about it. But the instructresses, all former stewardesses, assured them every class goes through the same stages. At the end of a week they are taking it in their stride.

The three Canadian students were brought in to be introduced and I asked for their hometowns. When the first girl answered "Peterborough," we nearly fell into each others arms. I travelled half-way across a continent and met a girl from home!

INTERESTED IN UNIFORMS

The two things that interested Miss Elmhirst's class most were their uniforms and the possible choice of bases. Every stewardess must dress the same and it takes a lot of discipline and rules to make exact replicas of 1,000 girls each with a different personality.

The company provides the stewardess with her summer uniform including cap and blouse. She purchases her own shoes and purse and her own winter uniform. The rules governing dress are rigid. Heels on shoes must be a certain height and both girls on the plane must have the same height heels at the same time; jackets may be taken off under certain conditions; they must wear conservative stockings; scarf must be plain white; there are regulation purses; no ear rings; no medals or chains around the neck; hair must be kept curled; and uniforms must not be worn off duty.

But the big upset came when it was announced that no bleaches or rinses were allowed for hair. Every student denied ever having used a rinse to bleach their tresses, but when a remedy for removing it was mentioned several made a special note and were seen after supper heading for the nearest drug store.

Time and time again, makeup was stressed, as well as dress. Complexion care was described and students were told the painted doll look is out. Red nail polish and lipstick are regulations as a contrast to the uniforms so the girls will not look washed out. Clean finger nails and the ban on chewing gum or eating candy on duty were also stressed.

BASES IMPORTANT

Bases open to these girls vary. San Francisco and Los Angeles are senior bases and hard to get; Fort Worth has 170 girls based there. Dallas is big, but not too senior and is always popular, the students were told. Memphis is well liked too.

Usually before six months are up the girls have a better choice of base, the class was told. Seniority begins to count; there are vacation changes and quite a bit of fluctuation.

The day I was there, one class was learning company organization and routes and codes covering all cities on the airline routes.

"You have to learn your manual backward and forward," the girls were told. "When you are up in the air you are all alone. You must know at least 85 per cent of the material in your book and sometimes 95 per cent. Anything below that is a flunk."

One of the highlights for the class was their observation flight. After a couple of weeks the girls are divided and some fly to New York, some to Detroit and some to Washington. For many of them it is their first flight, and so quite a thrill. When Miss Elmhirst begins her work, she will be allowed to fly only 85 hours a month.

ROOM AND BOARD

The students receive room and board while they are in training. But they are not placed on the payroll till they graduate. Excellent meals are served in the airport cafeteria, serviced by the same catering firm which provides meals for the plane passengers.

The three instructresses I met were grand examples of what the new stewardesses hope to be. Ellie Roman, present chief instructress, is a native of Cleveland. She was formerly a stewardess with an unusual ability to get along with people. She joined the company in 1946 and has been flying to New York and Los Angeles. She majored in education at Ohio State University and attended Northwestern University.

Peggy Morrison, a vivacious girl, was formerly "admiral" in the company's famous Admiral club which operates out of LaGuardia airport. Many of the girls sob their troubles out on her shoulder when their first arrive. Marianne Valely, joined up as a stewardess too. Her unusual coloring and vibrant personality have brought her to the fore.

This airline services 77 cities in the United States, so Miss Elmhirst has plenty of interesting travel ahead of her.

Rescue 9 Boys Near Waterfall

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Nine high school boys were rescued from the old Welland canal at nearby Port Dalhousie Wednesday night when their rowing shell was caught in a strong current and carried toward a 15-foot waterfall.

The youths managed to grab the lower railings of a bridge about 20 feet above the waterfall. Spectators dragged them to safety.

Members of the Linwell High School rowing club here, the youths are Bruce Erskine, Brian Lonlatz, and Bill Irwin, all 15; Harry Partidge, 14; Stan Body, Earl Lafferty and Bill Stone, all 17; Bill Bunston and Daryl McDonald, both 16.

List 68 Entries For Skating Championships

EDMONTON (CP)—For the first time in more than 20 years, Canada will play host to the North Americaa indoor speed skating championships opening at Edmonton Gardens tonight.

So far 68 entries have been received for the three-day meet, less than half the number expected. Lack of training and travelling funds have forced more than 50 possible Canadian contestants to stay home, leaving the meet an almost all-American show.

Of the Canadian entries, 17 are from Alberta and the other from New Brunswick.

Eleven events will be run off tonight. Twenty senior men are expected to start in the 80-yard event, to be followed by the two-mile race. Favored competitors include Ken Bartholomew of St. Paul, Minn., U.S. indoor champion, and Omer DeSchepper of Detroit, last year's North American winner.

Bernie Boyd of Edmonton, Alberta indoor champion, is expected to present the best Canadian opposition in the 880-yard and ¾-mile events. Favored in all intermediate runnings is Dick Hunt of Los Angeles.

With the Canadian women's outdoor champion, Doreen McLeod of Edmonton, not entering the North American this year, the senior title is expected to be taken back to the United States.

HALIFAX TO KEEP CUP

HALIFAX (CP)—Halifax Atlantics walked away from the Maritime Major Hockey League finals Wednesday night with the Alexander Trophy, ending confusion over the trophy's future which dated back to a hockey squabble early this year.

Finding themselves without another major league contender, Atlantics decided to hang onto the cup and declined an offer by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to put it at stake in a late-season playoff with the Allan Cup winners.

Normally Atlantics would have competed with the Quebec Senior League champions for the Alexander Trophy, but the QSHL was outlawed by the CAHA after a feud over player eligibility which developed into an all-out split with the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association.

President J. Elliott Hudson of the MMHL entered a personal protest with the CAHA. He claimed lack of a playoff springing from the ouster of the only other major league would have no good effect on major hockey.

The CAHA, in a telegraph vote of members, decided the MMHL champs could take on the Allan Cup winners for the Alexander Trophy—but only if both teams were willing.

Hudson said Atlantics, who won the MMHL finals Wednesday night with a 7-5 victory over Charlottetown Islanders in the last game of the best-of-nine series, were not willing to wait the week or 10 days necessary for completion of the Allan Cup playoffs.

SENATORS BUY VOLLMER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington Senators Wednesday purchased outfielder Clyde Vollmer from Boston Red Sox in a straight cash deal. The purchase price was not disclosed.

The acquisition of Vollmer, a 31-year-old right-handed power hitter, ended the Senators' search for a replacement for Gil Coan, who fractured a bone in his leg in spring training.

LAFFANGO MAY YET RACE

NEW YORK (AP)—The Trio Stable's Laffango probably will be able to run in the Kentucky Derby May 2, owner Merritt Buxton said Wednesday after examining x-rays of the colt's left ankle. At first it was feared a recurrence of calcium deposits in Laffango's foot would force him out of the Louisville, Ky., classic.

Red Hair Problem

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Beware of red hair, a dentist warns his colleagues. Dr. Phillip E Williams told a state dental association meeting Wednesday that red-haired patients are the most difficult because: Red heads, male or female, always feel pain, whether it is present or not. They have emotional complications others don't have. Neither blondes nor brunettes present the same problem."

Trouble In Soviet?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt Wednesday expressed a belief "there is real trouble within the Soviet Union." "I believe there is great confusion within the Soviet," she told a press conference. "They have no top hand at the helm, as they had before," she added.

Junior Champions

Flyers Dump Quebec 7-3

TORONTO (CP)—Barrie Flyers, one of the country's few junior teams without professional affiliation, today were set to enter their second Memorial Cup final in three years.

The club from the town 60 miles north of Toronto accomplished the feat Wednesday night when they were crowned Eastern Canada junior champions after a decisive 7-3 victory over Quebec Citadelles here. The win gave the Flyers the best-of-seven series 4-1.

The series lost its spectator appeal after the first game when the Flyers trounced Quebec 9-2 on Toronto ice. From then on the writing was on the wall for the Citadelles.

Hap Emms' crew returned to Barrie to take the second game 8-3 and made it three in a row with an 8-3 victory in Quebec that made the record books. It was the first game any Ontario junior team had won on Quebec ice. Quebec bounced back with their only victory of the series in the fourth game—a 6-3 home-ice decision.

LEAVE FOR WEST

The Eastern champions now leave for Western Canada and the Memorial Cup finals against St. Boniface Canadians, Western junior titleholders.

The Flyers had no trouble Wednesday night. The closest the Citadelles came was in the second period when they outscored the Flyers 3-1.

Barrie took a 3-0 first-period lead and held on to a 4-3 edge going into the final 20 minutes. In the last period they rapped home three unanswered goals.

Doug Mohns was best man on the ice for the champs. He scored two goals and assisted on another two. Orv Tessier also notched a pair and assisted on one. The others were scored by Skip Teal, Don McKenney and Tony Poeta.

Camille Henri was tops for Quebec, accounting for two goals. Aggie Kukulowicz scored the other.

The 3,032 fans were hardly seated when Teal sent Barrie into a 1-0 lead at 2:26. Mohns added both his goals before the period ended.

Tony Poeta made it 4-0 near the two-minute mark of the second period. Quebec bounced back with three goals. Kukulowicz at 6:21, and Henri with one at 7:11 and the other at 15:22 were the marksmen.

From then on it was Barrie's show. Tessier scored his first 27 seconds after the final period opened. McKenney added another and Tessier scored his second into the empty net. Coach Phil Watson pulled Marcel Paille with less than two minutes to go and Tessier backhanded a shot from the Quebec blue-line that caromed off Maurice Collins' skate into the net.

The Flyers also got the edge of the nine minor penalties handed out, drawing five. They scored two goals while Quebec was shorthanded. Quebec notched all three with both teams at full strength.

DOUBLY OUTSHOT

The Citadelles were almost doubly outshot by Barrie. Paille had 42 stops while Marv Edwards in the other nets only turned away 25. Ten of Edwards' stops came in the second period when the Citadelles caught fire.

Coach Emms said after the game he figured the Western champions "would be tough."

"We'll go pretty much with this club," he added.

Bill Harrington, regular Barrie netminder, injured in the Barrie-Toronto St. Michael's Ontario Hockey Association Junior A finals and replaced by Marv Edwards from St. Catharines Teepees, will make the trip. But it isn't known whether he will play.

Record Crowd See Entries In Hobby Fair At School

More than 600 entries were on exhibit at the 2nd annual Queen Alexandra Home and School Hobby Fair held in the school Wednesday night.

Sponsored by the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association, the fair drew a record crowd of parents and children. As well as exhibits the fair also included a puppet show operated by Miss Lillian Wesley, boys' and girls' librarian at the Public Library; a wishing well, an orangeade stand, and a candy booth.

The downstairs corridor of the school was decorated in the coronation theme for the fair with flags, commonwealth shields and crowns.

The exhibits were divided into five departments — candy and baking, art, creative art, scrapbooks and collections and crafts.

The host for the evening was Kenneth McKee, principal, and Mrs. Art Black, president of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association was hostess. The fair conveners were Mrs. Dion Snelgrove and Mrs. Les Welsh.

CONVENERS

The department conveners were: crafts, Mrs. Beauchamp Voucher; art, Mrs. W. C. Boate assisted by Mrs. R. F. Nott; creative art, Mrs. George Cheatle assisted by Mrs. William Steel, Mrs. A. Bacon, Mrs. R. Stewart, Mrs. T. Shaw, Mrs. P. Evans; candy and baking, Mrs. W. E. Turner assisted by Mrs. W. B. Gordon; scrap-books and collections, Mrs. Fraser Dunfield assisted by Mrs. K. W. Balam and Mrs. F. Montgomery.

Mrs. Howard Perry was convener of the wishing well assisted by Mrs. Harold Ward and Mrs. Harold Tewsley. The orangeade booth was convened by Mrs. Albert Sayers assisted by Mrs. Harry Hamilton and Mrs. William Mitchell. The candy booth was convened by Mrs. Art Clarke assisted by Mrs. George Gatfield and Mrs. Ralph Wilkinson. Mrs. Ray Delahaye was in charge of tickets assisted by Mrs. Harold Hutchison.

A checkroom was operated by the boys of Grade VI.

The judges for the fair were Ralph Standish, scrap-books and collections; Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, creative art; Mrs. J. Nornabell and Mrs. H. Rogers, candy and baking; J. E. R. Munro, art; James McClenaghan and Robert Scrutton, crafts.

Students placing first in the various classes were presented with school crests. Second and third entries were marked with blue and white ribbons.

SKIDDING on the wet planking of the canal bridge on Parkhill Road Wednesday night, this car, driven by Roy Mullen, 20, of 95 Aylmer St., snapped off a hydro pole and crashed through a guard rail breaking four posts. It plowed nose deep into the turf. A passenger, Miss Connie Hildebrand, 18, of 565 Armour Road, suffered an injured ankle. —(Examiner Staff Photo).

Ilmenite Sands Developed For Titanium

BOMBAY (Reuters) — Commercial exploitation of rich deposits of ilmenite sands, main source of titanium, a key metal in the paint, glass and ceramics and other industries, is being pushed on the Ratnagiri Coast, 100 miles south of here, to help develop India's western seaboard.

Hitherto, ilmenite exports from India, mainly to the United States, Britain and Japan, have come from Travancore in southwest India, which was considered the world's largest source of the ore until it was discovered near lake Allard in Quebec.

Geologists have estimated that a 25-mile strip of the Ratnagiri coast bears deposits second in richness to those of Travancore-Cochin in the extreme south. Ilmenite is formed into layers on the beaches by high tides.

So far, nine ilmenite-rich areas have been prospected along the coast of Ratnagiri. Measuring 10 square miles in all, these deposits are considered capable of turning out 250,000 tons a year.

By next year it is expected to achieve an annual output of 150,000 tons, netting an annual export income of 7,800,000 rupees (about $1,300,000) at the rate of 52 rupees (more than $10) a ton F.O.B.

Exports from Travencore-Cochin have worked out roughly at an annual average of 250,000 tons in the last few years, valued at 11,200,000 rupees (nearly $1,800,000) at the rate of 75 rupees (just over $15) a ton f.o.b.

The presence of ilmenite was first noticed here in 1938, but were not found to be economically significant until 1950.

18 Ballets To Be Presented At Canadian Festival

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's amateur ballet at its best moves into Ottawa next week for the fifth Canadian Ballet Festival. The program boasts a strongly national flavor.

Eight ompanies from Vancouver, Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and Halifax will perform 18 ballets in the week-long program. Nearly all the ballets will appear twice, for a total of 34 performances in the festival's six evening and two matinee shows.

The entries were chosen on a competitive basis by adjudicator Margaret Lloyd of New York. But the festival, following its past tradition, is non-competitive.

COMPANIES MERGE

Two Vancouver companies have combined to form the British Columbia Ballet Company especially for the festival, and they will providee a large share of the program—six of the 18 ballets.

Music for the seven other companies will be played by the two-piano team of Thelma Johannes and Edmund Assaly. The B.C. Ballet Company will bring its own pianists, Colin Slim 24, and John Brockington, 23. All four are well known as CBC recitalists.

The Wily Blok Hanson group from Toronto will present the only ballet offered on a French-Canadian theme, "Maria Chapdelaine," with an original score by Calvin Jackson. It will also present "Sketches of the Orient"—a series of Asiatic dances.

The Elizabeth Leese group from Montreal will also stage a ballet with an original score, "Lady from the Sea" with music by Saul Honigman.

One of the ballets by the Halifax Theatre Ballet has a setting in its own city, at the corner of Sackville and Water streets, and is called "All the Nice Girls." The Halifax group will also present "Variations Romantiques."

VERSATILE DANCER

"Theme Primeval" by the Janet Baldwin group from Toronto is unusual in that one of the dancers has a speaking role. He is Richard Easton, whose acting won him the best actor award in the central Ontario regonial drama festival this year. The company's second ballet is "Suite."

The six ballets of the B.C. Ballet Company are: "Daphnis and Chloe," "Cinderella," "Variations" "Pygmalion" "Gershwin Preludes" and "The Atom."

Besides the Elizabeth Leese group, there will be two other Montreal companies: The Francoise Sullivan group with "Le Combat" and the Montreal Ballet Company with "Wedgwood Fantasy."

The Classical Ballet Company of Ottawa has scheduled three dances —"Moonlight Sonata" with choreography by Nesta Toumine created especially for dancers Joanne Ashe and Roland Boisvenu, "Les Valses" and "Rhapsody."

Girl Injured As Car Crashes Guard Rail

An 18-year-old girl suffered an ankle injury Wednesday night when the car she was riding in crashed through the guard rail east of the canal bridge on Park Hill Rd.

Connie Hildebrand, 565 Armour Rd., was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. Driver of the car, Roy Mullen, 20, of 95 Aylmer St., was unhurt.

Mullen told police he was driving east over the bridge when he saw the lights of another car coming west. He touched his brakes, and the car skidded on the wet bridge planking.

From the bridge, it hit a hydro pole, snapped it off, and crashed through the guard rail on the north side, breaking four posts. The car came to rest 100 feet east of the bridge.

Both the provincial police car and the ambulance skidded when they braked coming across the bridge. Constable Doug Ross of the OPP investigated.

Kill 8 Guerrillas

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP) —Security forces killed eight Communist guerrillas—one a woman—in three jungle battles Wednesday. Three more rebels surrendered. It was the highest one-day guerrilla toll in several months.

Thousands of Sheep Die

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Blue tongue sickness, a virus disease, has killed more than 1,000,000 of South Africa's 34,000,000 sheep so far this summer. It is the worst outbreak of the disease in the country's history. Farmers are hoping for an early winter to kill the mosquitoes and midges which spread the ailment.

Canadians Have To Clean Up New Positions At Front

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA, (Delayed By Censor) (CP)—The Canadians are back in action here.

More than two months in reserve ended Monday April 6 when, for their second time here, the 3rd battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, climbed into familiar hills of the Korean front. The Patricias relieved the Thai infantry battalion of the 2nd United States infantry division.

They were followed April 7 by the 1st battalion, the Royal 22nd Regiment, in for their last session with the Chinese before their imminent rotation. The Van Doos took over from a United States battalion which only three days before had relieved the French.

JOINED BY GUNNERS

The 1st Regiment, the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, moved back into the Canadian brigade. While the other Canadians were in reserve, the RCHA supported a U.S. infantry regiment (brigade) which included the Netherlands infantry battalion.

"B" squadron of the Lord Strathcona's Horse drove its Sherman tanks up to the line April 9, relieving U. S. Army Shermans in the positions.

It was the most international and complicated relief in which Canadians have yet participated here.

Brig. M. P. Bogert's staff officers had to maintain liaison with three brigade headquarters and units from five countries to carry it out.

WELCOMED BACK

Lt.-Col. E. M. McNaughton, RCHA commander, welcomed the Canadians back to the front as long-lost brothers. McNaughton's gunners were lonely for company who spoke, lived and fought the way they do.

During the two months the brigade had been in reserve, mastery of no man's land along the front had gone over to the Chinese. Defences had deteriorated, sanitation had been ignored and the areas were lethal with scatterings of ammunition, including grenades from which safety pins had been pulled.

ROKS WITH CANUCKS

Such ammunition, which the slightest jarring could set off, already has killed and wounded Canadians and Republic of Korea soldiers recently attached to the Commonwealth division. There are 300 of these in the Canadian brigade.

The area has to be made defensible and clean, and then the brigade must set about regaining mastery of no man's land. It must put up barbed wire and lay minefields which had not been replaced after being chewed up and detonated by enemy artillery fire.

One minefield was so useless that an American soldier captured one night was able to charge back straight through it when he escaped custody. Chinese patrols come into the inner wire defences nightly at will—something once unheard of.

But spirits are high. Soldiers this reporter spoke to were glad to be in the line again. They had had enough of schemes, exercises and route marches and were glad to settle down in the hills again.

Home-Nursing Care Needed Martin Stresses

MONTREAL (CP)—Health Minister Martin believes "very much more" home-nursing care will have to be undertaken "if we are to avoid over-crowding our hospitals with people who could better be looked after at home."

In a recent letter to Pearl Stivers of Montreal, general secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Nurses' Association, Mr. Martin commented on recommendations in a brief submitted by the association to him and his department.

The brief urged additional federal assistance for the nursing profession. Mr. Martin said many of the recommendations touched on matters solely within provincial jurisdiction. However, the federal government had supported and would continue to support many nursing activities under the national health program.

The Canadian Nurses' Association, a federation of provincial nurses' association represents approximately 31,000 nurses.

MALE RECOMMENDATIONS

In its brief, the association recommended:

1. Development of organized home care services.
2. Establishment of licensed nursing and boarding homes under the direction of an official agency and supervised by qualified personnel.
3. More effective and economical use of personnel.
4. Stabilization of nursing staffs by improved personnel policies including provision for pension plans and group insurance.
5. Encouragement of better integration of preventative and treatment services among all agencies providing health and welfare services.

The association urged the federal government to make funds available for a sustained recruiting program to stimulate enrolment in professional and auxiliary nursing schools and to interest graduate nurses to prepare for special fields.

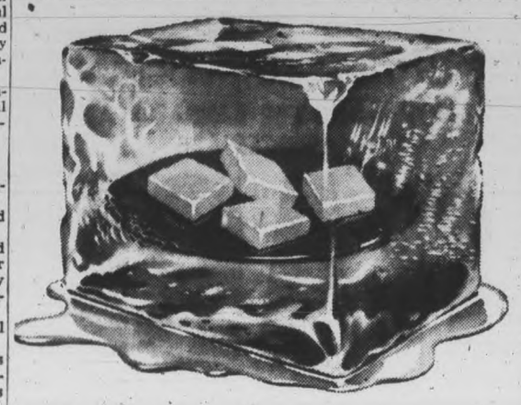
NEED MORE EQUIPMENT

Additional equipment and facilities were needed to train nurses.

It recommended that grants be continued to increase the number of prepared instructors, librarians and assisting personnel; to extend clinical experience in basic courses in nursing to include psychiatry, tuberculosis, public health and rural hospitals.

On the question of nursing education, Mr. Martin said:

"It is generally accepted in this country that education is strictly a matter for the provinces. However, in a special field such as nursing we have taken the view that it is proper to assist in meeting some of the cost of providing key personnel and equipment.



"We grant bursaries for nurses to study public health, tuberculosis and mental nursing. Also under the hospital construction grant we assist in the provision of funds for the building of nurses' accommodation."

Remand Businessman In Traffic Death

TORONTO (CP)—William Gliddon, 35, of nearby Claremont, Wednesday was remanded to May 11 on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident in which John T. Lloyd, 73-year-old night watchman at an east-end lumber yard, was killed Tuesday night.

Police in adjacent Forest Hill village said Gliddon, a Toronto business man, went to them after hearing a news broadcast about the accident.

Two Liberals Against Party In Non-Confidence Vote

OTTAWA (CP)—The solid front of Liberals on confidence votes in the government—unshaken for five years—has been broken by two first-term members of the Commons.

They took a walk from government policy Wednesday, voting with the opposition on a censure and non-confidence motion whose passage would have meant the automatic toppling of the government. The government, however, never was in any danger of falling.

The pair were J. L. MacDougall (Vancouver Burrard) and A. H. Jeffery (London), the first Liberal members to vote with the opposition on a division involving the life of the government since Prime Minister St. Laurent assumed leadership in 1948.

The Liberal majority carried the vote easily, 136 to 61, on a Progressive Conservative motion charging the government with misuse of emergency powers. But the two Liberal members got a round of desk-thumping applause from opposition groups as they rose to be counted.

GIVE NO SIGN

There was no change of expression either by Mr. St. Laurent or his right-hand man, Trade Minister Howe, as the two Liberals were counted among the opposition. The Liberal benches gave the prime minister a round of applause as he initiated the government's negative vote.

The motion, moved by Howard Green (PC — Vancouver-Quadra), criticized the cabinet for what was described as a "violation of the rights of Parliament" in passing an order under the Emergency Powers Act without consulting Parliament.

The order, passed last Friday and tabled in the Commons Monday, placed a ban on Canadian ships sailing into Red China and North Korean ports. The ban itself was approved by all groups, but the Progressive Conservative, CCF and Social Credit groups were critical of the fact that the cabinet acted while Parliament was sitting.

Liberals occasionally vote against the government on legislation. But it is a rarity for a government supporter to vote for a motion whose passage would topple the government, even though that possibility is an academic question in view of the Liberal majority.

A search of House records and members' memories indicates the last time this happened was on April 22, 1948, when George Cruickshank (L—Fraser Valley) supported a Progressive Conservative non-confidence motion arising from the first post-war general increase in freight rates.

5-YEARS AGO

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King was prime minister when that vote was taken—five years to the day before Wednesday's vote.

Mr. MacDougall, a Vancouver dentist elected in 1949, indicated he intended to buck the government when he spoke prior to the vote.

He felt, he said, that the cabinet "may have made a mistake in invoking the emergency power when Parliament is sitting." He had been led to believe by the prime minister when the Emergency Powers Act was extended last month for another year that the powers would not be used while Parliament was in session.

Mr. Jeffery, a London business man also elected in 1949, did not take part in the lengthy debate. But during last month's discussion of the emergency powers measure, he said he was supporting its extension because he understood it would be used only when Parliament was not sitting.

The bolt of the two Liberals was the highlight of a day which also included further advancement of the government's legislative program.

On the censure motion a number of members criticized Trade Minister Howe for stressing the urgency of the situation when he spoke Tuesday night. Mr. Howe had said the United States and the United Kingdom had acted in the same way by agreement.

NOT MUCH URGENCY

Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) said the United Kingdom order had been passed in March, a month before the Canadian government took action. That did not indicate much urgency on the part of the government and it had plenty of time to consult Parliament.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said the government obviously knew the proposed ban was in prospect in March. Yet it said nothing to Parliament and, in fact, during the debate on the Emergency Powers Act, had said the powers would be used only for unforeseen exigencies.

Under these circumstances, he asked if it was not "possible the government is withholding certain things of great importance that it can bring in later when its conduct cannot be examined?"

Mr. Drew noted that Mr. Howe had said "if we have overstepped our powers, I make no apology for having done so."

That kind of remark, said Mr. Drew, means that the government apologizes for nothing so long as it can get away with it.

HONOR SAINT GEORGE

The people's chimes in St. John's Anglican Church were heard in a recital this morning in honor of St. George's Day.

HIGHWAY VERY ROUGH

Motorists travelling Highway 28 from Port Hope to Peterborough are complaining of the section of road seven miles out of Port Hope to Bailieboro. They claim it is about the roughest paved highway they ever drove over.

TOURED STATION

Several students of Queen Mary School, organizers of the school's safety patrol, accompanied principal O. M. Steer to the police station today where they toured the building. As part of the tour, they sat through the first half hour's proceedings of magistrate's court.

LEAVES FOR CORONATION

WO 2 G. E. Zwicker, the 50th HAA Regiment's representative to the Coronation, left Peterborough Wednesday to begin special training. He'll be first in Kingston, then Valcartier, Que., and finally England to complete the preparations.

ST. MARK'S DAY

Saturday, April 25, is the feast of St. Mark in the Roman Catholic Church calendar. Special devotions for this occasion emphasize petition to God for blessing upon this year's agriculture, and farmers are invited to bring samples of seeds to be blessed.

HOLD ANNUAL CONCERT

The 30-piece PCVS concert band, under the direction of Albert Croasdale, will hold its annual concert Friday night at the collegiate auditorium. This is the band's sixth annual concert, proceeds going to the band fund.

IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Peterborough holds the spotlight in the April 24 edition of the Official Weekly Road Bulletin of Ontario with pictures of three well-known views of the city. On the cover is a picture of the Otonabee River with the Hunter St. bridge over it and the Quaker Oats plant in the background. Inside is a photo of the Trent Canal near the Liftlock and a shot of the T-wharf in Little Lake.

NORMAL SCHOOL WINS

Normal School boys edged Norwood and District High School 32-29 Wednesday in an exhibition basketball game at the YMCA gym. The teachers-to-be built up a four-point margin, 11-7, at the first quarter and held that lead throughout, staying up four points at the half and 28-24 at three-quarters. Eugene McDonald was the high scorer for Normals with 15 while teammate Walter Gregorick had 11; Wilson was best for Norwood High.

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — A white muskrat, believed to be the only one in captivity in Canada, has been caught here in a beaver trap. It's a year old.

ELECTED CHAIRMAN of the Peterborough United Church Presbytery of the Bay of Quinte Conference was the Rev. B. S. Morwood of Mark Street United Church.

B. S. Morwood Chairman Of Presbytery

The Rev. B. S. Morwood of Mark St. United Church was elected chairman of the Peterborough United Church Presbytery of the Bay of Quinte Conference Wednesday at the annual meeting in Trinity United Church. He succeeds the Rev. N. Cole of Hastings.

Other officers elected were the Rev. J. A. Steed of Lakefield, treasurer, and the Rev. H. B. Harrington of Keene, secretary. The Rev. H. G. Douglas of Knox United Church, in the absence of Mr. Cole was chairman of the meeting and conducted the elections.

The morning devotions were led by the Rev. Gordon Maxwell of Trinity church while the afternoon devotions were conducted by the Rev. James Hampson of Bethany.

RETIRES

The Rev. D. P. Morris of Bridgenorth asked for retirement due to age at the end of June. The presbytery concurred.

Other business included a motion for a vote of sympathy to Norwood United Church which was gutted by fire in March and the announcement that the Bay of Quinte conference will be held in Oshawa's King St. United Church on May 26 to 29.

Demolition Finishes Friday

Demolition of the four-store building at the corner of George and Charlotte Sts., the site of the new Woolworth building, will be completed Friday and construction of the new ultra-modern store will start in the next couple of weeks.

Tearing down of the old building, a landmark of days gone by, started March 17 and has taken little more than five weeks to finish the job.

According to the contractor the walls of the building were in excellent condition and could have stood up for another 50 years.

A greater part of the timber, pipes and old fixtures in the building has been sold for scrap to some of the local contractors in the city. The rest of the materials has been used to fill in the cellars.

Quiet Strike Predicted At Quaker

May Be Long Says Wm. Beggs Gets Support

A quiet strike—but possibly a long one—by production workers at the Peterborough plant of the Quaker Oats Co. has been predicted by Alderman William Beggs, local staff representative of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL).

Mr. Beggs addressed a meeting of members of Local 293 of the UPWA which crowded into the Peterborough Labor Centre hall at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when pickets were organized and the union executive was voted unanimous support for the action they had taken in calling the strike.

Cheers and applause filled the air as Mr. Beggs announced that workers in the company's Saskatoon plant had walked off their jobs at the same time as the local meeting got under way.

"We've been expecting this for at least five years," Mr. Beggs told the meeting. "Today is the culminating point and I'm glad to see the members as solid as they have been. I'm sure if we stick together we'll see it through.

SAME AS OTHERS

"Remember—all we're striking for is a five-day week and the same wages as are being paid in the Maple Leaf and Robin Hood plants at Port Colborne.

"Years ago when this was the first cereal and feed company organized we were promised that this company would keep up with its competitors or pay better wages. All we're asking for is equivalent wages—nothing more."

(Reason given for the local strike is dissatisfaction with recommendations for a contract settlement contained in the majority report of a conciliation board which included basic wages of $1.33½ an hour. Basic wage rate at the Maple Leaf and Robin Hood plants in Port Colborne is $1.39½ an hour.)

"I think it's going to be a quiet strike," Mr. Beggs said. "It may be long drawn-out but the company has promised not to start operations. If they do we'll strengthen the picket lines and try to stop it."

ACT AS NIGHT WATCHMEN

Mr. Beggs side-stepped a question from the floor as to whether office workers of the Quaker Oats Co. would be allowed to cross the picket lines by saying that at a meeting held with management Tuesday morning, a request to keep night watchmen at work had been turned down by the strike committee. He said that the committee had told management that since there were sufficient foremen walking around doing nothing, the latter could act as night watchmen.

(Lewis H. Ingram, vice-president of the company, announced Wednesday that it was agreed at the meeting that all salaried people might come and go through the picket lines without hindrance so that the office staff would continue to work as usual.)

Mr. Beggs answered another question as to why foremen were not required to take the place of the engineers who had been left in the plant by saying that this was required by the Ontario Labor Relations Act for the safety of plant property.

STRIKE FUND

William Triggs, president of Local 293, chaired the meeting which approved recommendations of the executive for conducting the strike, including transfer of $1,000 from the union's trust fund to a special strike fund.

Mr. Beggs and Mr. Triggs will be co-signers of cheques drawn on the special fund, the former as representative of the UPWA and the latter as representative of the local. Mr. Beggs explained that the local is a subsidiary to the union's central fund. If the strike goes on more than a week and a half or two weeks, an appeal for funds will go out to all locals from national headquarters in Toronto.

Bob Fettes was elected chief picket by the meeting, in charge of all picketing on all shifts. Volunteers were called for Wednesday night picketing until a regular roster could be set up. It was not known how long each shift would be but it was suggested that pickets be divided into seven groups so that no striker would be on duty more than one day a week. A token picket will be kept on Sunday.

WELFARE COMMITTEE

Jack Fenton and Herb Hennessey were appointed to the welfare committee to work in conjunction with the finance committee to handle all emergencies and cases of hardship.

Women members of the union have organized to take charge of the kitchen at strike headquarters at the labor centre on Water St. and will provide pickets with coffee and sandwiches at two-hour intervals.

All company employees will get their regular pay at 10 a.m. Friday.

NEW CITY GARBAGE DISPOSAL methods started today at the North Monaghan Township dump as the $16,500 bulldozer, lower photo, went into action for the first time. Trenching and backfilling with earth cover will be the ultimate objective which will result in a cleaner and more sanitary dumping grounds. It will also eventually eliminate the city incinerator, top photo, which will continue to operate for about a week until the burying method takes shape. Costly repair estimates to the plant against the purchase of the new machinery resulted in the change.

Conference Hears Ways To Improve Life Of Aged

KINGSTON (Special)—Six delegates from the Peterborough Local Council of Women and two representing the city went to Kingston on Wednesday to attend the conference on housing for elderly persons sponsored by the Community Welfare Council of the Ontario and Community Planning Association of Canada.

They, together with more than 60 other delegates from 12 cities in Ontario, heard seven speakers from different parts of the province deal with numerous aspects of this question of housing for elderly people.

During the discussions which followed the talks several people offered ideas which were seized by their fellow delegates to enlarge upon in their own communities.

Representing the city were A. G. Metheral, Peterborough's Welfare officer and Malcolm Bassett of the department of welfare. Members of the Local Council of Women who attended were Mrs. Frank Merrett, Mrs. A. W. Nelson, Mrs. Stan Kraus, Mrs. C. Hewitt, Mrs. W. H. Morton, and Mrs. H. Hancock.

In the morning a civic welcome was given by Kingston's mayor, George Clark Wright.

One of the most dynamic speakers was Miss Jacqueline Tyrwhitt, visiting professor at the School of Graduate Studies, Toronto University, who was the guest speaker at the luncheon meeting. Talking on "Elderly People as a Community Asset" she said that in Canada there was no social need for the rejection of elderly people.

DERIVED BENEFIT

Commenting on the great value she herself had derived from contact with her grandparents, she said that whereas the parents might not have time to deal with all the problems facing a child usually the grandparents had time to listen to childhood fancies and youthful problems.

Grandparents had tolerance, time, experience, and sympathy which they could give to children and, as Miss Trywhitt put it: "Granny is a form of psychiatrist in our youth. It is the grandmother who can take care of the baby, not just as baby-sitter, but who can listen to its little prattle when the mother has not time to cope. It's the grandmother who can listen to the romantic wanderings of the teenager and it is the grandmother who can be an enormous help to the young mother."

Referring to another way in which the older people could be of use, Miss Trywhitt said: "Canada is just starting on this period of huge immigration. Canada is the goal for innumerable people from many different countries. I think if we use the older generation and give them some responsibility of being hosts to these new immigrants we should find they would appreciate enormously their official recognition and status in society and would understand the problems of the new people more than our overworked social workers."

Speaking on the subject of "Where In The Community Should Older People Live?" Ald. Marion Earl of Kingston said that wherever possible they should live in their own homes. Where this was not possible they should live as close as possible to their own homes so that they could still be near their old friends.

CENTRAL LOCATION

Mrs. Earl maintained that homes for the aged should be in a central part of the town where they were conveniently near a shopping centre, and where they were in close proximity to the church, the bus-stop, the park, and the hospital. In fact, the homes should be placed where the old people could still be in direct contact with other persons, where they could feel they were of use, and where they were close to people to whom they could do something of good and who, in turn, could be friendly to them.

Dr. R. A. Kelly, medical officer of Health for Kingston and former Peterborough MOH, spoke on the subject "Relationship of Housing to Health of Older People."

He pointed out that where housing conditions were bad the tenants would show evidence of poor health. On the other hand good housing conditions encouraged good health.

Turning to the health of older people he said "Aging is not a disease—it is a perfectly natural process, one which we are all undergoing from birth and even before." But he pointed out that while housing may influence and affect the health of older people, housing itself was not directly responsible for disease conditions of the elderly.

PREVENTION BEST

Dr. Kelly said he believed the curing of ills was good but he thought the prevention of their occurrence was better. "Unhappily it is not possible to prevent old age, but it can and is being postponed and retarded. The degenerative conditions cannot be prevented but they can be recognized, diagnosed early, halted, or retarded before disability is complete."

He suggested certain services in respect to the well-being of the elderly which he believed were, to a great extent, the responsibility of the community. Whenever possible they should be

Deputy Assessor Appointed To Pt. Colborne

Cyril J Agnew, 498 Cambridge St., deputy Assessment Commissioner, has been appointed Assessment Commissioner at Port Colborne, and will begin his duties there on Tuesday, May 19.

Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis said today that he had received the resignation of Mr. Agnew who requested that it be effective May 15.

Mr. Agnew is the senior member of Peterborough's assessment department. He joined the staff Jan. 1, 1946, under Wm. J. Henry, continuing under Max J. Sloan who is prominently engaged today with the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs, Toronto.

Mr. Agnew has had a thorough training and broad experience here first as a builder and then in the evaluation of properties. The assessment department at Port Colborne has been directed from the town clerk's office, but the work has outgrown that casual method of administration. The council there has decided to set up the assessment department on its own base, and Mr. Agnew has been engaged to assume charge of the office and the duties of assessment.

Mr. Agnew is married and has a family of six children.

Hold Radar Practice

Planes from the RCAF station at Trenton will be making practice runs over the rifle range east of the city Sunday. On the ground the 50th HAA Regiment will be attempting to pick the planes up with their radar equipment. The scheme may last a couple of hours.

Get Permission To Start Fires Chief Warns

Before burning rubbish, old leaves and the such, Peterborough residents should first obtain permission from the fire department, Chief Ralph Leonard reminded citizens today.

He pointed out that the department answered a call to 228 Bennett St. Wednesday morning. The fire was one of the many cases of burning rubbish without permission.

Chief Leonard said that a city bylaw requires residents to obtain permission before starting the fires. Some residents in the annexation district, he said, might not be aware of the bylaw. The telephone number for obtaining permission is 5713.

Another fire call early Wednesday was to the home of C. F. Harloff, 150 Morrow St. There a radio transformer was smoking but it stopped as soon as the plug was pulled out.

Early today firemen answered calls to chimney fires in Ashburnham and the northend.

Suggests Crown Take Decision Court Of Appeal

Charges of having care and control of vehicles while intoxicated against William Robert MacFarlane of Keene and Norman Austin of 41 Lee St. were dismissed today by Magistrate W. R. Philp. Both charges were laid in March and evidence was heard in each case, prior to today.

In the case against MacFarlane, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw will consider a recommendation by Magistrate Philp to take the decision to the Ontario Court of Appeals.

MacFarlane's defence had argued his car was incapable of being operated because it was stuck in mud. The case had been adjourned until Magistrate Philp had a chance to investigate recent rulings on the charge.

In view of the varied rulings however, the charge was dismissed with the recommendation the crown appeal it "to obtain a decision for once and for all."

The charge against Austin was dismissed because medical evidence showed Austin's symptoms of intoxication could have been caused by a blow on the head.

Elderly Pair Injured As Car Rolls

Rushed To Hospital After Pulled From Wrecked Car

NORWOOD (ENS). — An elderly Dummer Township couple, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wildman, were injured when their car rolled over in a ditch on the Dummer road just north of the village.

Rounding a curve as he approached Norwood, Mr. Wildman lost control of his car. It plunged into the ditch and rolled over.

Gordon Stewart, RR 2, Norwood, who had been driving behind the Wildman car, stopped at the scene and pulled Mrs. Wildman, who was unconscious, from the car.

Dr. A. R. Atkinson of Norwood rushed to the scene to give immediate treatment. Mrs. Wildman had one arm badly cut and she was severely bruised.

Both were taken to Civic Hospital in Peterborough by the McConnell-Warner ambulance. Mr. Wildman sat in the ambulance on the way, but he was kept in hospital for observation.

City Men Attend Safety Meeting

The problems of safety brought together at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, Monday and Tuesday, approximately 4,000 people at the convention of Industrial Accidents Prevention Associations of Ontario.

Thirty were from the Peterborough plant of Canadian General Electric Co., and some 30 others were from the other manufacturing industries of the city, T. A. Lister of CGE reported today.

Experience has shown that habits of safety can be practically cultivated thereby reducing the number of work accidents and consequent loss to persons, families and industry.

Methods of training in safety attitudes were discussed by C. R. De Reamer, manager of safety with the General Electric Company, U.S.; and a highly impressive demonstration of static electricity and dust hazards were presented by G. M. Kintz and H. F. Browne of the U.S. Department of the Interior Bureau of Mines.

Among those attending from Peterborough was Clarence Corbett, chairman of the Peterborough branch of the associations who is with Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co.

Barrymore Has First Novel Published

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lionel Barrymore, who will be 75 next Tuesday, thinks it's not too late to start a new career. His first novel will soon be on the bookstands.

Crusty old Lionel is the most versatile of the Barrymores His compositions have been played by symphony orchestras, and his etchings and paintings have won acclaim. He is the only Barrymore who has won an Oscar for a starring role, in "A Free Soul" in 1931. (Sister Ethel won as a supporting player in 1944.) He also had an academy nomination as a director.

The actor blows down his achievements in peppery language, claiming "I'm half-dead anyway." But when I saw him in his car at the MGM gate, he betrayed a pride in his new novel, which is called "Mr. Cantonwine: A Moral Tale."

GLOWING REPORT

He displayed a copy of the book, which will be released May 19. Then he read the publisher's jacket blurb in his best histrionic style. It was a glowing report of the author's literary talent.

"Just print that," he suggested.

I suspected that his publisher might be prejudiced, so I asked Barrymore for more information about his writing career. He said he started out as a reporter on the old New York Telegraph. How long did he last?

"Long enough to hate all city editors," he replied. "I would go out to cover a big fire in Brooklyn and come back and write a big story. Two lines would turn up in the paper. Then I'd cover a murder in the Bronx, and I'd expect at least a column. The paper would carry two paragraphs.

"I hated that city editor's guts."

He added that he had long nurtured the idea for his book, which is a tale of adventure in the U.S. from 1835 to the civil war.

Too Many Signs

VANCOUVER (CP)—Because of objections from police, the traffic commission rejected a proposal that the number of traffic signs at bus stops be reduced. Sponsor of the proposal, traffic engineer Ken Vaughan-Birch, claimed that Vancouver streets are getting so plugged with traffic direction signs that even the men who design them are getting confused.

FIJI COP—First non-European policeman to train with British police, inspector Jioji Suguturaga of the Fiji Islands flashes a bright smile as he arrives at Southampton, England. He'll train for three months and also take part in the coronation.

Try To Delay Change In Code

OTTAWA (CP)—The Communists have launched a last-ditch effort to delay passage through Parliament of a rewording of the Criminal Code, a Commons committee was told Wednesday.

Don Brown L.—Essex West) chairman of the committee studying the consolidation of the code, said committee members are receiving a flood of telegrams and letters urging that Parliament delay for a year passage of the new code.

Justice Minister Garson said most of the requests come from Communists or Communist organizations. If the committee does not complete the study, every Communist from Halifax to Vancouver will take the credit.

Mr. Brown urged that committee members reject the Communist claims that they cannot complete their work on the code, under review for almost five years.

MONTREAL, April 23rd—Now that Spring is here, you'll be able to hang your wash outdoors again. And—mmm!—how sweet it smells when it comes in from the fresh spring air. And how white it is when you've used Blue! Yes, you'll never have trouble with yellow-looking washes when you use Blue to keep them snow-white. You know how you must rinse your wash to get the clothes clean. Then simply put a dash of Blue in the water to get them really white. Your sheets, hubby's shirts and your precious table linen will fairly sparkle. And, remember—Blue is kind to fine fabrics—won't harm them at all. Costs just a few cents a month, too! Yes, for the whitest wash, use RECKITT'S BLUE.

If There's A Baby In The House Farley's famous Rusks should go on your shopping list quickly. They're from England . . . special for baby . . . and I know Farley's are made from selected wheats and other important nutrients . . . and fortified with the calcium and phosphorus so important in building strong bones and teeth. See how baby loves the sweet flavour, crunchy goodness . . . and . . . when served in warm milk Farley's Rusks provide a feeding in a minute. For old folk, too, or those with any digestive disturbance Farley's are the perfect answer to easily digested, quickly assimilated nourishment. FARLEY'S RUSKS are like no other, and I know when you buy them in the orange box with the cellophane top you'll know you've made a great discovery. Watch baby reach for Farley's Rusks.

Feeling Good because the sun is shining and Spring is in the air? You'd like to go for a walk—but your feet are hurting you? Well, don't let that spoil your enjoyment of Spring! Try new BLUE-JAY Corn Plasters with Phenylium. That's the new medication that gets under your corn and helps push it out from underneath . . . the first really new medication for corns and calluses in over seventy years! Just As You Like It—make it "strong" or "medium" . . . this NEW INSTANT CHASE & SANBORN COFFEE has the flavour and aroma—even the very colour and texture of freshly ground coffee! You see, it's 100% real coffee, made by a brand new "Natural Flavour" process. I know, once you've tasted its glorious real-coffee flavour, you'll want to make New Instant Chase & Sanborn your regular coffee. Incidentally, it's extremely easy to prepare. It dissolves like magic in hot or cold water. And it will save you money . . . up to 40c a pound compared with regular coffee!

Are You Sensitive? No, this isn't a personality quiz, but a question of colour. Some folks, for instance, love red—others can't stand too much of it around. But I'm sure you'll find the colours you like in the wide range of LIGHTNING FASTENER shades for your spring and summer clothes. All of them fashion-right and made specially to go with the new spring and summer fabrics. Ask for Lightning Fasteners when you're buying your sewing essentials. And remember—a Lightning Fastener never lets you down. It always locks where it stops and won't slide until you move it yourself.

Want To Know A Good Way to get off to a quick start in the morning? Simply treat yourself to hot CREAM OF WHEAT at breakfast. It's extra-good, smo-o-o-th and tempting, served with maple syrup or golden nuggets of brown sugar. And so easy to prepare. You know, Quick Cream of Wheat takes only five minutes of boiling to cook to perfect smoothness. And best of all, it's so good for you. It contains iron for good red blood and calcium and phosphorus for diets deficient in these elements. So how about it? Do as I do every morning. Treat yourself to hot Cream of Wheat for breakfast and give yourself a good start—a quick start for the day.

Somebody Special, that's your baby. That's why Heins has special foods for him. CBC Planning $6,000,000 Projects For TV

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC plans a $6,000,000 program of capital spending for its television facilities in Vancouver, Winnipeg, Halifax, Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto, the Commons broadcasting committee was told Wednesday.

A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors, outlined the program at the request of Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton). He said developments in Ottawa, Vancouver, Winnipeg and Halifax have priority.

These were the sums for capital expenditure in the various centres:

1. Establishing stations in Vancouver, $1,700,000; Winnipeg, $1,300,000; and Halifax, $1,100,000. Broadcasts should begin from these stations by late fall.

2. Montreal and Toronto, $450,000 each for extra production facilities made necessary by impending network operations. In Toronto, another $350,000 for extra network facilities and in Montreal, another $125,000 for the same purpose.

3. Montreal, $550,000 for a second television transmitter to enable the publicly-owned corporation to broadcast separately in French and English.

4. Ottawa, $20,000 for temporary television transmitter to be replaced by a $950,000 station shortly after and on which about $300,000 has been spent.

LAC TED B. M. McEWEN, son of Mrs. W. A. McEwen, 591 Sherbrooke St., celebrated his 24th birthday (April 21) with the RCAF station in Gros Tenquin Moselle, France, Mrs. McEwen and daughter Catherine Beverly McEwen are residing at Mr. and Mrs. Stanburg's, 237 Prince St.

Visits Lodge

MARMORA (ENS).— The visit of Right Wor. Bro. Jerald Anderson, DDGM of Prince Edward District, to Marmora Lodge, AF and AM, No. 222, on Monday evening attracted a large attendance of brethren, including many from neighboring lodges. A banquet was served in the newly renovated St. Paul's Parish Hall by the Ladies' Guild of that church. Wor. Bro. Thomas Bateman, Master of Marmora Lodge, was toastmaster.

Masonic At Home Held At Stirling

STIRLING (ENS). — Stirling Lodge AF and AM, No. 69, entertained their ladies at an At Home in the community hall.

Nearly 200 were present and a banquet was enjoyed, followed by a program. The banquet was provided and served by the WA of Bethel United Church.

Wor. Bro. Fox welcomed the guests, and Rt. Wor. Bro. Dr. E. A. Carleton proposed a toast to "Grand Lodge," responded to by Rt. Wor. Bro. J. W. Anderson, DDGM of Prince Edward district. Wor. Bro. Good proposed a toast to the Ladies, responded to by Mrs. Volney Richardson. Frank Long of Campbellford provided a display of legerdemain.

The guest speaker, Bro. the Rev. S. E. Larmer of Holloway St. United Church, Belleville, was introduced by Wor. Bro. Gordon Bailey. He spoke on the subject "Beautiful Ideals and Brutal Facts."

Wor. Bro. Fox moved a vote of thanks to the guest speaker and the guest artists and to Bethel WA for the splendid banquet. Mrs. Bonisteel replied on behalf of the WA.

The Junior Warden's toast brought the evening to a close.

There is no "overnight cure" for irregularity

But there is a simple, natural answer to the common problem of irregularity due to lack of bulk

There are men and women (perhaps you're one of them) who won't let "nature take its course".

THEY TRY TO SUBSTITUTE UNNATURAL "FORCING ACTION" FOR THE NATURAL REGULARITY WHICH SENSIBLE DAILY HABITS AND SUFFICIENT BULK IN THE DIET COULD PROBABLY MAINTAIN.

Many fall into the habit of using laxatives in a way laxative makers never intended. They take "big doses" willy-nilly without even reading the directions on the label.

Naturally, such overdosing—with products intended only for overnight relief of a temporary stoppage—exerts upon the delicate digestive system an unnatural strain.

There's nothing wrong, of course, with taking laxatives occasionally. If you feel you have to take a laxative, just be sure you take it wisely—in an accurate, recommended dose.

BUT THERE IS A WAY TO AVOID TAKING DRUG-TYPE LAXATIVES AND TO PLACE YOUR DEPENDENCE ON NATURE, IF LACK OF BULK IN THE DIET IS YOUR TROUBLE.

• • •

In many natural foods—such as certain vegetables, fruits, and grains—nature grows abundant natural bulk which normally and naturally aids the rhythmic process of elimination.

In no other natural food is natural bulk so ideally found as in the outer layers of the whole wheat kernel, known generally as bran.

Bran is nature's "laxative food instead of a medicine". When properly processed and shredded, whole wheat bran yields smooth natural bulk that the digestive system can handle in a natural way.

• • •

The Kellogg Company has made whole wheat bran into a delicious breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN PERFORMS NATURALLY WHAT DRUG-TYPE LAXATIVES DO CHEMICALLY. IT HELPS CLEAR THE INTESTINES OF WASTE IN A NATURAL WAY. IT PROVIDES SOFT NATURAL BULK FOR EASY NATURAL ACTION.

There is no stomach upset, no churning, no after-effect except the feeling of satisfaction and fulfillment that comes with natural, normal elimination.

• • •

To obtain lasting relief, of course, Kellogg's All-Bran must be eaten regularly. You can have it for breakfast every morning secure in the knowledge that it isn't habit-forming.

More than one million servings of Kellogg's All-Bran are consumed each day. This popularity of itself is proof that this natural laxative cereal lives up to what we say about it.

But even better proof comes from thousands of satisfied All-Bran users. They write of their own free will to tell us what natural relief they receive from eating Kellogg's All-Bran daily and drinking plenty of water.

EAT KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN EVERY MORNING FOR BREAKFAST FOR 10 DAYS. THEN, IF YOU'RE NOT COMPLETELY SATISFIED, SEND THE EMPTY CARTON TO THE KELLOGG COMPANY, LONDON, ONTARIO—AND GET DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK.

Remember—Kellogg's All-Bran has helped millions. Why not you?

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

By G. E. GROOMBRIDGE

FATHER AND SON BANQUET

115 Dads and lads sat down to a grand turkey dinner provided by the Mothers' Auxiliary of Sacred Heart Group under the guidance of President Mrs. Meagher. This banquet was the largest yet held in the newly decorated basement of the Sacred Heart Church. At the head table was noted Monsignor P. P. Butler, Father Sullivan, Father Gaughan, Bert Mortlock—Commissioner of Publications Dominion Headquarters, Ottawa. Dr. G. R. Langley, District Commissioner, Dr. J. N. Perry, President Local Association, Bert Bailey, Chairman Group Committee, Peter Moore, past president local association and Mr. D. W. Hatton, secretary group committee.

Monsignor Butler said that in Scouting could be seen a way of life beneficial to the nation both in character and religion.

President Dr. Perry called upon the fathers to support the leaders by their interest in Scouting through their sons and in active participation of the work. Dr. Langley presented Akela Dave Hatton with his Gilwell certificate and Beads—the symbol of good leadership through training. The Commissioner also presented Bronze Arrow Badges to patrol leaders Bob James, Danny Twomey, Bob Marino and Gerard DeNoble. Dave Hatton acted as song leader for the evening.

Mr. Morticok, guest speaker of the evening spoke to the boys on the ideals of Scouting stating that all the badges in the world worn by Scouts do not make good Scouting but the living up to the principles of the Scout Promise did. He also pointed out that beside living up to the spirit of the Scout Law one also had to study badge advancement in order to prepare oneself for any eventuality. One of the outstanding features of his visit to Sacred Heart was in the fact that Mr. Mortlock had met Monsignor Butler many years ago in Bowmanville, having played the organ in the church at which Monsignor Butler was then in charge, and it was writing a story on one of the Church ceremonies that actually started him as cub reporter with the Oshawa paper. Mr. Mortlock has been in the newspaper work ever since in many cities and was finally invited to take over control of all Scout Publications at Dominion Headquarters in Ottawa.

Following the Talk the Cubs and Scouts put on several skits that were thoroughly enjoyed by all. The leaders in charge of Sacred Heart are Scouter Austin Morris, A.S.M. Paul Jones, Bill Gartlan, P. Dominik., Akela Dave Hatton—A.C.M'S Mrs. Hatton, Miss L. Lucano, Mrs. Crowley.

UNDER THE BIG TOP

It was circus night at St. Lukes 2nd Peterborough Pack on Friday as some 100 odd parents and boys gathered at Parents Night held by the Pack. The hall was decorated in real Circus style with a large tent top being "pitched" inside the hall giving full effect to the Cubs also dressed for the ocassion. Canon Walter Gilling acted as Chairman during the opening ceremonies and soon balloons and popcorn were floating among the crowds. One feature being the Bird Houses, a special event for every boy with the winners being 1st Roger Mesley, 2nd Don Ebbs and 3rd Kim Salonius. Agela Bill King acted as ring master with Baloo Harold Tunnicliffe the Animal Trainer and Bagherra Harry Willis as the Head Hunter.

1ST PETERBOROUGH

Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson, Mrs. S. K. Lake and G. Dunford, chairman of the Group Committee were special guests of St. John Cub Pack on Friday evening to witness the investiture of Romeyn Stevenson and Leroy Lake as Cubs. At the same time David Irwin was presented with his Second Star also the Homecraft and Toymakers badges. Steps were taken up the Cub ladder as Henry Langley, Jamie Welsh, and Gary Hamilton passed compass; Jerry Sedgwick and Don Sherk, Thrift; Ian Young, model; Fred Willison, growing things; Joe Cunningham, Ralph Cunningham, Gary Dalliday, cleaning shoes; Chris Sayers, Gary Dalliday, cleanliness; Don Sherk, fire lighting; James Welsh, David Irwin, Tom Lewis, Don Ross, Joe Cunningham, Jerry Sedgwick, observation; Bob Barber, 1st Star knots; David Fort, Leroy Lake, Ken Murduff, time. On Sunday morning four members of the Pack attended Communion breakfast to wait on table in full uniform. Akela was guest speaker at this affair.

Scouter Fred Ford has sent in his resignation as our leader. Scouter Fred has been with the Troop for many years. Guest at the meeting was Cliffe Boate a former Scouter and members of the Group comittee. During the evening Winston Burford, Les Crump and Jim Parker completed tenderfoot signs; Jim Parker, First Aid tests; Bob Dawson, camp bed; At the Camp Fire Program Andy Sherk was presented with the Bronze Arrow badge for the Patrol Leaders Course.

3RD PETERBOROUGH

Another Investiture ceremony was held in St. George's Pack as Paul Hawkin made his Cub Promise. Instruction work was carried out and before the evening ended the following tests were passed: Union Jack by Allen Field and Art Houton, Time — Terry Markwick and David Williams, Leapfrog—Terry Markwick, A. Houton, D. Hines, A. McLaren, Reg Lumbarg, Roger Smith, Knots—Jack Fallis, Don Hines, Gary King, Joe Reid, Roger Smith and Ron Stevenson; Book balancing—Roger Smith, Reg Lumbarg. Art McLaren, Art Houton, Terry Markwick, David Williams.

5TH PETERBOROUGH

The meeting opened with inspection by Kim assisted by Senior Sixer David Fletcher and the evening then devoted to games which included Volley Ball and Spiders and Flys. On Thursday evening it was Father and Son Banquet in the All Saints' Parish Hall with Mr. Wilson as general chairman. Guest Speaker for the evening was Assistant Commissioner from the RCMP who described life in the RCMP in the far north. One of his stories was based on the diary of a 17-year-old-boy. During the talk maps were passed round showing the localities of the ventures. and the speaker had many questions fired at him from his youthful audience at the close of his talk. Akela Harry Wooden presented the Yellow Six with the honor cup for the highest number of points over the year. A magician was on hand to entertain the boys with his tricks from rabbits out of the hat to cooking a meal.

7TH PETERBOROUGH

32 boys gathered around the Totem Pole at St. Paul's as Sixer Franklyn Montgomery assisted by Warren Dunfield in the opening ceremonies. Another name was added to the World Brotherhood of Scouting as Lloyd Barton was invested. Bill Oliphant was presented with his team player ball a token of good sportsmanship. The six standings at present are White 126, Green 112, Red 117, Blue 105 and Grey 102.

16TH PETERBOROUGH

Trinity Cub Pack had a very special evening on Friday to which each Cub's mother was invited. All the work for the evening was done by the Cubs themselves, they decorated their tables, composed and produced skits and earned extra money to buy sandwiches and cookies. Mr. Eric Bacon arranged to have cakes supplied free. The evening began with the mothers' watching the Cubs do the Grand Howl led by George Malby following which the Cubs and mothers marched into Trinity Hall and were seated at the tables. Bagheera (Roly Hood) welcomed the mothers. The younger children in attendance were entertained with the dance and song Farmer's in the Dell. Each skit was well done and when the time came to award the prize (A rubber monkey) it was hard to decide the final decision giving the prize to Roy Bacon and his Six Michael Westbye, Bob Jamieson, Billy Edmondson, Wayne Freeburn and Allan Fraser for their skit "The Zulu Boy". Lunch was served by Mr. Blain Till, Toby Westbye and Eric Bacon assisted by Scouts Brian Malcolm, David Dunham and Rakshae Bagheera.

Mrs. Doreen Edmundson thanked the boys for the grand evening enjoyed by the mothers.

17TH PETERBOROUGH

Once again the troop did their best to get the Out in Scouting as two of its members packed 20 pounds each on their backs and started out at 5.15 in the morning on the way to Bridgenorth. These were Art Litfle and Roy Wood. Once the otherside of Bridgenorth they made note of the various birds seen including sparrows, starlings, crows, robins, chickadees and one hawk. After 6½ hrs. they reached their destination on Pigeon Lake, setting up camp and resting. One of the surprises of the trip was the sight of a large flock of ducks included in which were mallards, pintails, bluebills and blacks. Next day when they awoke it was raining but soon breakfast was prepared and camp broken. By 11.30 the walk home started in the rain.

Offers of rides were turned down and at last they tumbled in the south-end of the city, sore footed, tired but contented that they had accomplished a mission.

MP Explains Exchanging Cheques With Contractor

REGINA (CP) — Austin E. Dewar, Liberal MP for Qu'appelle, Sask., said Wednesday night he and contractor Harvey Lunam exchanged or traded cheques in November, 1950. He displayed cancelled cheques amounting to $51,500 and said others not in his possession would bring the total to about $125,000.

Mr. Lunam said the exchange of cheques was in connection with financing his business while awaiting equipment to finish an Indian hospital at Qu'appelle that he was building under federal government contract.

Mr. Dewar and Mr. Lunam were commenting on a Regina story in the Toronto Telegram Wednesday which said that in November, 1950, Mr. Dewar received cheques from the Lunam construction company totalling $71,800.

The Lunam company went into insolvency in 1952 before completing three buildings in Saskatchewan it had contracted to build for the government. Works Minister Fournier said in the House of Commons two weeks ago that the government was completing the buildings at a cost of $174,051 out of $177,000 the government held when the company went insolvent.

SHOULD MAKE GOOD

The question was raised in the Commons by John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative MP for Lake Centre, who said the Lunam company owed $150,000 to suppliers of building materials and the government should make this amount good.

The Telegram's Regina dispatch, by staff writer Judith Robinson who has been in Saskatchewan investigating the case, said sub-contractors claim their loss on these contracts is approximately $230,000.

Mr. Dewar said in an interview Wednesday night with the Regina Leader-Post that his dealings with Mr. Lunam dated backk to 1944. In 1945 Mr. Lunam loaned him $7,000 to $8,000 to build and equip an annex to a hotel he had purchased at Tugaske, Sask.

"After my dealings with Mr. Lunam, when he helped me out—kept me from going broke — on various occasions Mr. Lunam required funds for purposes of which I was not always aware. In view of the fact I had certain funds, I felt it was only right I should help my friend.

EXCHANGED CHEQUES

'Consequently, aside from the actual cash involved on certain occasions, we exchanged cheques for a period of a few days to the extent sometimes of $40,000 to $50,000.''

Mr. Lunam said in an interview, also with the Leader-Post, that he had loaned Mr. Dewar "a few thousand" and that the rest of their dealings was mainly in "cheques traded."

He said here was "nothing fraudulent" and that Mr. Dewar, listed in the parliamentary guide as a contractor, was not a subcontractor on any of his contracts.

The Telegram story said the cheques it mentioned, cancelled after being cashed, are held by a Regina lawyer, a Lunam creditor, who seized records of the Lunam company in connection with his claims.

At Ottawa. Works Minister Fournier declined to comment on The Telegram's report.

Senators Vote Against Freeing Margarine From Sales Tax

OTTAWA (CP)—Members of the Senate crossed party lines Wednesday in a vote that defeated an attempt to place margarine on the list of foods exempt from the 10-per-cent sales tax.

After a prolonged debate that hinged on the Senate's right to alter government budget proposals, the vote rejected a Senate committee's recommendation that margarine be given the same freedom from sales tax accorded some 100-odd other foods.

Liberals and Progressive Conservatives lined up on both sides in the voice vote.

Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader in the Upper House and a member of the cabinet, led the argument against changing Finance Minister Abbott's budget, which had left the butter substitute out of the list of exempt foods.

He said the Senate should not take the initiative in altering the budget. The Upper House should hold to its policy of protesting things it doesn't like but not interfering with the manifest will of the elected Commons.

LEAD OPPOSITION

Senator W. D. Euler (L—Ontario and Senator John T. Haig, Progressive conservative leader, led the opposing group.

Senator Euler, who led the fight to have the manufacture of margarine made legal several years ago, said it was "far fetched" to picture the Senate as budget-makers.

There was no chance the Senate would seek persistently to alter the budget. "All we seek is to rectify an oversight by the government."

Senator Robertson said the federal treasury would lose $2,500,000 by the lifting of the sales tax from margarine. And there was no guarantee the tax cut, amounting to 2½ cents a pound, would be passed on to the consumer.

Senator Euler said the "charitable" explanation why margarine wasn't on the list of foods exempt from sales tax was because it was an illegal food when the list was originally composed. The real reason was that the butter industry didn't want competition.

RAPS DISCRIMINATION

The "discrimination" should be removed, he said, because margarine is a food, because removal of the tax would help the cost of living, and because margarine is used by the majority of consumers.

Several senators argued against the exemption for margarine on the grounds it would hurt dairy farmers.

Senator William Fraser (L—Ontario) argued that the step would injury a dairy industry of vital importance to Canada and aid a product made by a mechanical process and through the efforts of "controlled labor."

Senator W. Rupert Davies (L—Ontario) said he had originally voted to legalize sale of margarine but felt that was going far enough. There had been a serious decline in butter sales and he was against further blows to the dairy industry at this time. Further, he believed such questions of taxation should be left to the elected Commons.

Rebuttal came from Senators Thomas Reid (L—British Columbia) and Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario). The former said 50 per cent of farmers are using margarine themselves, that it is a food and should be treated as such for tax purposes.

Senator Roebuck saw removal of the tax as a benefit to the poor people. He objected to Senator Robertson's "appeal to fear" and said his argument would reduce the Senate to "a mere debating society."

Valiant Craft

LONDON (CP)—Warships from the world's navies won't take all the spotlight at the big Coronation naval review at Spithead on June 15. Among smaller craft there will be two lifeboats that rescued a total of 3,400 men from Dunkerque in 1940.

Bus Drivers To Take Vote On Strike

KITCHENER (CP)—Bus drivers and maintenance workers with the Kitchener public utilities commission will take a strike vote Sunday in their bid to sign a contract with the commission.

They are members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway employees and other transport workers. (CIO-CCL).

Commission officials met with some union members Wednesday and suggested they form an employees' grievance committee.

Elroy Robson of Ottawa, national vice-president of the CBRE, charged that the commission pressured the employees to attend the meeting.

4 Conservation Grants Approved

TORONTO (CP)—Planning Minister Warrender announced Wednesday approval of grants to four Ontario conservation authorities toward their 1952-53 operations.

The Humber valley conservation authority was granted more than $16,000 for purchase of land and operational expenses, the Saugeen valley authority $4,307, the Moir river authority $2,396 and the Ausable river authority $4,078.

Mr. Warrender also announced payment of $110,000 to the Ontario research council. Of this, $50,000 will go towards scholarships for research and scientific workers. Administration offices will receive $35,000 and $25,000 is to be used for contributions to group projects.

Mr. Warrender said conservation crews will be working this summer on completing watershed reports of the Saugeen river and Big creek.

Urge Higher Sentence For Falsifying Samples

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons criminal law committee Wednesday recommended increasing the penalties to 10 from five years for falsifying mining samples or mining prospectuses.

W. J. Henderson (L—Kingston) suggested that the penalty for "salting" a mining sample be increased to 10 years as an added deterrent during the period of rapid mining development.

(Salting is adding or subtracting aiything from a sample to be assayed with intent to defraud.)

The committee voted 10 to 2 in favor of the increase. Later, it voted 11 to 2 in favor of a similar increase in penalty for fraudulent publication of a false prospectus.

Give Third Reading To Vote Regulations

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons gave third and final reading Wednesday to a measure changing armed services voting regulations and providing for service tribunals to try members of the armed forces for civilian offences abroad.

The voting set-up was changed to extend the time in which servicemen can indicate their voting constituencies. Under previous legislation, the time expired last September with 20,000 men still not having indicated their ridings.

The provision for trying Canadians in other countries would go into effect when the countries agree to it by treaty or other arrangement.

$70 Holdup

CHRISTINA, Ont. (CP)—Two armed men robbed a lone woman storekeeper at gunpoint in her isolated general store four miles north of here Wednesday night. The pair escaped in a car with an estimated $70 in cash along with a quantity of cigarets, said Mrs. Ray Laughton, who was robbed. Christina is 18 miles west of London.

Anti-Discrimination Bill Approved By 17 Groups

OTTAWA (CP)—Spokesmen for 17 groups representing about 1,000,000 Canadians appeared before the Commons industrial relations committee Wednesday to voice approval of the government's new anti-discrimination bill.

The bill has received second reading—approval in principle—in the House and is being considered in detail by the committee.

The only person apparently disagreeing with the legislation was Jean Francois Pouliot (L—Temiscouata).

He argued that the bill is unnecessary. "This kind of legislation is a slur on Canada," he said, because it implied Canadians had to be protected from discrimination.

FAVOR MEASURE

All witnesses said they favor the measure which would outlaw discrimination in employment on grounds of race, religion, color or national origin but suggested various amendments. The bill would apply to government-regulated business such as the railways and communications and to Crown corporations. Main proposal of all groups was that questions dealing with race, religion, color or national origin be banned from employer application forms as in Ontario.

Third Place Tie

HAMILTON (CP)—Affahid Alexanian of St. Catharines Wednesday won in two piano solo sections at the Hamilton music festival.

She tied for third place in the under-13 years' section and placed first in the under 14 years section.

CANADIAN HONORED—Randolphe William Diamond, 62, of Trail, B.C., mining and metallurgical engineer, is the first Canadian to be presented with the Institute of Metals platinum medal. RELEASE CANADIAN—L. Cpl. Paul Dugal of Quebec city is the first Canadian prisoner of war to reach Munsan as the exchange of sick and wounded prisoners between the allies and the Communists went into operation. Cpl. Dugal, a member of the Royal 22nd regiment, officially "presumed dead," since last February, brought with him word that 15 other Canadians, also reported missing or dead, are prisoners of the Communists. Dugal was wounded by a mortar fragment at the time of his capture, Jan. 23, 1952, and his left arm and leg were paralyzed. He now is in hospital at Kure, Japan, and will be returned to Canada as soon as possible after treatment.

Chilly Weather In Ontario Delays Seeding

The Ontario farm front reports seeding delayed by chilly weather. Exceptions of brighter aspect and progress are few. Farmers this week have all been in the same boat of suspended animation.

Middlesex reflects "a somewhat unusual seeding situation in that a number of farmers have all their oats and barley in, while the majority have not, so far, done any work on the land . . . Quite a number of dairy cattle have been exported. Interest in hogs is being well maintained. Many flock owners report a good lamb crop . . . A large crop will be seeded, with a continued increase in the acreage of cash crops. Local demand for seed grain has been good."

About 25 per cent of spring grain has been sown in Durham . . . A few farmers have finished seeding in Ontario county, "but most of the spring seeding remains to be done."

The story of marking time sounds from county to county. Elgin—In most cases there has been very little progress on the land to date"—at the beginning of the week."

Leeds—"Cold and wet weather has prevented any further work on the land, and none will be possible for a week."

Grey—"Cold, wintry weather has stopped all seeding operations. They have not gained any momentum this season so far."

More acreage is reported in seed in York and Prince Edward. The demand for dairy cattle has been strong in Perth county.

Fall wheat looks healthy,—exceptionally well in Norfolk where "there has been a great increase in the amount of nitrate fertilizer used on wheat this spring."

Leeds in the east says a considerable acreage of soy beans will be grown in the county this year, and the grain corn area will also be expanded. But, "demand for dairy cattle is disappointing."

Here is a glimpse in Renfrew: "A good many farmers will be using recommended mixtures for the first time this year." Stormont cheese factories are all open, some running at full capacity. "Tank trucks from condenseries are delivering a large supply of milk to the cheese factories."

MILK FROM CANADA—With a moustache of milk and a grin a yard wide, six-year-old An Pong Yol gets a big bowl of steaming hot milk in a primary school at Seoul, Korea. The milk, distributed to 25,000 school children in Seoul's 76 primary schools, was sent to Korea by the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada. A total of 210,000 pounds of milk powder has arrived for use in the program. It is served under the supervision of the United Nations Civil Assistance Command, Korea.

Charles Coleman President Bible Society

Charles E. Coleman was elected president of the Upper Canada Bible Society Tuesday night in the YMCA and Mr. O. Axford was elected to the office of first vice-president; secretary, Miss Leatha A. Kidd; treasurer, W. P. Laverty, and G. H. Roper the campaign organizer.

It was decided by the executive of the campaign committee that the campaign for the Upper Canada Bible Society would commence on May 24, with special mention in the churches.

The funds secured from the campaign will be used to place copies of the Bible in homes by colporters and help finance new translations of the Bible in different languages.

Immediate past-president of the society is A. E. Whatkins.

Decorations To Be Like Series Of Rooms

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Sir Hugh Casson, British architect who has the job of trying to keep over-all order, beauty and good taste in the decorations along the Coronation route in London, says he examined manuscripts back to Queen Elizabeth I, but didn't find them much help

In the yesteryears, for one thing, safety regulations weren't so much of a factor.

"If you decorated something with spruce bows, and it caught fire and burned some people to death, it was just one of those things. We have to be more careful now. We must watch even for things that might frighten the horses."

In the planning job, added Sir Hugh, "we can't dictate, but we can persuade, and as every one wishes to do his best, we hope to have a co-ordinated scheme."

Decorations of various streets will be designed to express their separate characters—so that going along the route will be like going through "a series of rooms."

It is planned to have the decorations in place from about May 25 to June 25, so that visitors may see them both before and after the Coronation.

Sir Hugh is in Toronto to address the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada Saturday night.

Canadian business and industry have many associations, bodies with an eye on the particular interests of each group, but it was interesting to see a new one come into being this week.

Only a few years ago Canada's industrialization had not proceeded far enough to need it.

The new body is the Automotive and Aircraft Parts Manufacturers' Association (Canada), which held its first annual meeting in Toronto Tuesday.

34 Girls Given Certificates For Work Done

Approximately 94 Junior Homemaking Club members and leaders and guests attended the Junior Homemaking Club banquet held at the YWCA Tuesday night.

The banquet was sponsored by the Peterborough County Federation of Agriculture and the Peterborough District Women's Institutes.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of certificates to 34 girls for the completion of club work projects. The certificates were presented by Mrs. J. Moore, district president of the Peterborough Women's Institutes.

All club members who had satisfactorily completed the year's project, Cottons May Be Smart, were presented with silver teaspoons. Teaspoons were also presented to club leaders in recognition of their work.

RECORD BOOKS

Special recognition for fine work on record books as part of the clubs' projects was given to Mrs. Edith Althouse, Miss Beverley Bennett, Miss Analee and Miss Helen Kimball.

Guest speakers at the dinner included Harold Lewis, field man with the Federation of Agriculture; F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative for Peterborough county; and Miss Elaine Savigny, vice-president of the Peterborough Junior Farmers.

Miss Jean Noble, home economist for the counties of Peterborough, Victoria, Durham and Northumberland, was chairman.

Following the dinner, the club members were guests at the Junior Farmers' meeting at the Normal School.

FASHION PREVIEW

During the evening the girls presented a short fashion preview, Cottons May Be Smart. They modelled dresses they had made themselves.

Taking part were Thelma Syre, Bailieboro; Joyce Wrightly and Mrs. Edith Althouse, both of Belmont; Barbara Hamilton, Hall's Glen; Beverley Bennett, Havelock; Betty Eason, Joy Ellison, Caroline McNevan, Marie Maloney and Eileen Davidson, all of Keene; Dorothy Pott and Joann Wannamaker, Lakefield; Ruth Fowler, Barbara Mann, Beverley Hetherington, South Smith; Marlene Darling, Marie Drain and Donna Payne, Warsaw. The commentator was Miss Nola Wilson, South Smith.

$25,000 Fire Damage In Shipping Offices

TORONTO (CP)—Damage estimated at $25,000 was caused Wednesday night when fire gutted the shipping offices and part of the plant of National Iron Corporation Limited in the east end.

Flames roared 100 feet in the air from the single-storey building. A blazing 300-gallon tar tank threw flames into the end of the main plant building and a pile of dry lumber.

Firemen beat the flames back into the shipping building and in 15 minutes had the fire under control.

Antarctic whales migrating each year are found off the Australian coast from April to October.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Inside Story Of Home-Made Chili Con Carne

Many of you know that my sisters and I had a canning company and that one of our best-selling products was chili con carne. The formula was never given to you in this column although I was writing the column before the business was started and still am after I had to give it up.

But when I make chili con carne at home the recipe I follow is based on the big commercial formula and there are biased and unbiased friends of ours who claim it is the best yet.

We packed two styles of chili con carne. We called one "mild" and the other "Mexican" The Mexican was hotter than the mild because we added more hot paprika and cayenne pepper, and besides those two spices we added a very small amount of Mombassa cayenne, which is the hottest known spice, and which comes from Madagascar.

EARLY GIRL—Aiming at the "Miss America" title this summer, Frances (Boots) Moore, 20, of Sanford, Fla., says she's the first entrant in this year's "Miss Flordia" contest. In vying for the crown, Boots will perform an underwater ballet.

Because chili con carne calls for red kidney beans which are a protein vegetable as you know, you can make a large dish of chili con carne with a comparatively small amount of beef—even hamburger—and still serve your family a high-protein meal that is satisfying and costs little.

The recipe I am giving you today is based on our commercial formula, but is made practicable for the home, where buying has to be done in retail outlets. I say that because one of the items—tomato puree—was bought in commercial quantities in a pack that is seldom found in grocery stores. So I have substituted tomato juice or tomato paste for the tomato puree, because you can buy them in most grocery stores. Our canned product had the advantage of hermetically-sealed-canned processing, which produced a blend of flavors impossible to obtain in an open pan. But it is still possible to make a superior product using it as a base.

Most of the butchers are selling good quality stewing beef or hamburger around 40 cents per pound these days. So give this a try because it is such a welcome change. If your family does not like heavily spiced food you can follow my suggestions for lessening them.

EMEM'S CHILI CON CARNE

In 3 tablespoons lard or other dripings gently brown 1-pound ground beef and 1¼ cups chopped onions for 5 minutes over medium-low heat. Add 1 No. 2 can of kidney beans (or 2½ cups soaked and cooked dry red kidney beans) and the liquid in which they were canned and ½ cup very thick Italian-style tomato paste or 1½ cups best quality thick tomato juice. Simmer these together covered for 15 minutes. Now comes the spicing: 2 tablespoons chili powder, 1 teaspoon paprika, ¼ teaspoon black pepper, ¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper, 1½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon garlic powder (or ½ very finely chopped clove garlic), ½ teaspoon powdered thyme. (If you want this hotter increase the cayenne and black pepper. If you want it milder decrease these or leave them out—the chili powder and paprika will give the dish its characteristic flavor.) To these spices add 1 tablespoon flour, mix well and stir them to a paste in ¼ cup tomato juice and stir into the cooked mixture until slightly thick. Simmer over lowest possible heat for 45 minutes, covered. Do not burn this. If your heat when turned on as low as you can get it is still too hot protect the pan with an asbestos pad.

In our houseful of chili lovers I have to provide rye bread to go with this. Pete always wants his rye bread toasted. Marianne demands the finest shredded cole slaw I can manage, and likes to have finely chopped chives and parsley and plenty of homemade mayonnaise with it.

She served this meal to her nursing buddies who came home with her one Saturday night and nine of them ate double this quantity, but it should satisfy eight normal appetites.

Mrs. Pollock Grace WA Speaker

Vice-president Mrs. J. W. Waldie presided for the meeting of Grace United Church WA on Tuesday evening. Mrs. B. L. Hooey conducted devotions on the meeting theme "Christianity." Miss Lois Corner played two piano solos, "Peasant Dance" and "Mona Lisa." Mrs. H. Corner was pianist for hymns. Scripture was read by Mrs. M. Beasley. Commentary and prayer were by Mrs. D. L. Montgomery. Mrs. I. G. Pollock, the minister's wife, was the speaker. She chose "The need for a church in building a community spirit" as her topic, this being of vital interest to the members who are seeking permission to build a new church right away. "Always think of the influence our life may have on that of our fellow man," she said. "Through community worship we may enjoy the goodness and love of living together in brotherly unity. Through understanding truth and the love of God we cultivate restraining Christian principles as our Guide. If we can obey and honor God's laws, we may more easily adapt ourselves to obey man-made laws." Mrs. Pollock was thanked by Mrs. C. Wilson. Business was mostly concerned with the tea being held on May 27th with Mrs. Waldie convening. Lunch was served by Mrs. A. Tripp, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Beasley, Mrs. R. Latchford and Mrs. Hooey.

"VIOLETS! FOR ME?" exclaimed little Linda Sullivan of 482 Hamilton St., as David Deemert of 93 Bennett St., offers her a fistful. Shown with a chairman of the St. Joseph's Hospital Ladies Auxiliary Mrs. Melvin Armitage the occasion was the preparation of 10,000 artificial flowers which will be sold on city streets on Saturday. The money collected will go toward the purchase of an automatic vacuum producing machine in the hospital which will have outlets in the operating and recovery rooms, maternity wards and nursery; it will cost $2,500.

Coronation Tea At Parkhill Event Of H. & S. Association

The Coronation Tea held by the Parkhill Home and School Association on Wednesday afternoon was a huge success, 300 or more admission tickets being sold and an estimated 275 guests attending in spite of bad weather.

The scheme of decorations in the tea room was carried out in red, white and blue, with the bouquet of white carnations, red tulips, and blue iris, the tapers white and tied with striped ribbon. The silver flower bowl was set on a reflector which accented the lighted tapers in triple silver candelabra.

Each guest was served a cupcake topped with a little Union Jack. These individual flags were drawn and painted by several members, including the tea convener, Mrs. G. B. Goulding. Each member of the Association assisting wore a tiny silk flag beside her name badge.

Bazaar tables in another classroom were decorated with the Coronation in mind with purple and gold streamers. There was home baking and candy, white elephants and used books for sale.

Mrs. V. Ferguson and Mrs. J. C. Rowan convened the bake table and were assisted with sales by Mrs. F. M. Banks, Mrs. A. Dearing, Mrs. J. Thorburn, and Mrs. D. Barringer. Mrs. Donald Lamb convened the candy, with Mrs. Bruce and Mrs. Theobald assisting. Mrs. J. D. Jory and Mrs. G. Porter the white elephants, and Mrs. H. Lewis and Mrs. M. Belch the books.

A nursery for the small children was in an adjoining classroom and Mrs. O. Medland and Mrs. McCartney were in charge, assisted by four girls from Miss Bailey's room, Barbara Jory, Hester Gledhill, Maureen Duncan and Susan Medland.

Miss Cora Bailey, principal of the school, entertained five girls of her class at the tea as a reward for selling more than five tickets each.

Miss Bailey was receiving with the association president, Mrs. V. Ferguson and vice-president Mrs. Gordon Duncan at the opening. Later Mrs. W. R. Howson, teacher, and Mrs. H. Cookman, second vice-president, assisted Mrs. Ferguson.

Ticket convener Mrs. R. Parnell and treasurer Mrs. M. Montgomery were at the door to receive admissions.

Mrs. W. Griffin was hostess in the tea room. Mrs. R. Fleming provided the musical background with piano selections.

Tea pourers were past president Mrs. Lloyd Parnell, now of Havelock, Mrs. W. R. Howson, Miss Cora Bailey and Mrs. C. Osborne, also of the teaching staff.

Serving were Mrs. I. Franks, Mrs. C. Osborne, Mrs. G. Morrow, Mrs. P. Seifried, Mrs. G. Bronson, Mrs. C. Gledhill, Mrs. J. W. Lee, Mrs. R. H. Adams

Plates were replenished by Mrs. J. Johnston, Mrs. L. M. White, Mrs. J. Jarvis, Mrs. A. Wallwork, Mrs. R. Cookman, and Mrs. J. Cassidy. Mrs. H. Vollans and Mrs. J. Wallwork washed the cups and saucers and Mrs. A. Lester and Mrs. A. Strode were making the tea.

Welfare League Providing Milk To $60 Monthly

The Welfare League of Peterborough met this week at the home of Miss Claire Mason.

A report of a successful rummage sale held last Saturday was given and the proceeds apportioned to the milk bill. The League now has a larger number of needy families to which it supplies milk and the bill is running between $50 and $60 per month.

It is hoped the public will also support a Coronation Tea which is to be held at Mrs. R. R. Faryon's home on River Road on May 20. This date was chosen as the time when tulips in the Faryon garden are likely to be at their loveliest.

Recently the League members made up two dozen towel kits and sent them to Korea and letter from the Committee on Overseas Relief acknowledged receipt. Eighteen babies' knitted garments were recent sent to the Save-the-Children Fund headquarters also.

The League continues to sew and mend for children at the Shelter and sent a large box of good clothing to them from the rummage sale donations.

English Style Tea Held By St. George's Evening Guild

Afternoon tea in England consists of "fruit and clotted cream" with buttered bread and cakes—and, oh yes, a cup of tea.

A Coronation Tea at St. George's new church hall Wednesday afternoon featured just such a menu and with the hall being draped with flags and streamers in red, white and blue and the weather outside dull and rainy, it took only a brief flight of imagination to put oneself in England and a large and very life-like portrait of Queen Elizabeth II and golden replicas of her crown placed the trip at Coronation time.

This novel event attracted a crowd of more than 200, many of them being from the other Anglican churches of the city. They were welcomed by president of the Evening Guild Mrs. Walter Bannon and vice-president Mrs. K. Cardwell.

The tea table achieved an outstanding effect with its centrepiece a raised dias on which was a model of the Queen's coach drawn by eight horses with drivers mounted and the Queen's guards in marching stance alongside. The model was practically exact even to a tiny Queen and Prince in the coach. The dias was draped in white satin and red velvet, typical of the Queen's robes for her coronation.

Each small serving table was centred with a standing model of the crown in gilt with the jewels put on in colored paste. Guests were provided with serviettes ornamented with flags and the inscription "Coronation 1953" and each of the Guild ladies assisting wore ribbons in the flag colors.

Pasteboard models of the royal coach were filled wit hhome-made candy and sold at "Ye Olde Tuck Shoppe." The shoppe was operated by Mrs Ted Fitten, a recent newcomer from England who provided the idea for the style of this tea. Her other wares were English biscuits, jam, marmalade and included a Coronation Calendar which was her first sale. The booth itself was gay with red, white and blue striped poles and skirting.

Other booths too were draped with the colors. Mrs. H. Siddall had charge of the apron booth and Mrs. C. H. Crouter and Mrs. L. McLearn sold the home baking. The latter had a complete sell-out early in the afternoon. Mrs. W. Wright attended another attractive booth at which some products of a well-known cosmetic firm were for sale.

A corner of the hall had to be used as the nursery when it was found the room planned for was unavailable. The children had a grand time, paying no attention to the tea party since they were well supplied with cookies. Mrs. Len Cooper and Mrs. John Bright took charge of their entertainment.

A background of piano music was provided during the tea hours by Mrs. Albert Watkins, followed by Mrs. R. G. Shouldice.

Mrs. W. Hall who convened the tea room had as servers Mrs. Andy Fowler, Mrs. Jack Hope, Mrs. Frank Deller, Mrs. Harry Ferguson, Mrs. Donald Perks, Mrs. Richard Pearson and Mrs. Robert Ross. The tea was poured by two past presidents of the Guild, Mrs. William Thompson and Mrs. E. W. Cooper and by the presidents of the Afternoon Guild and the WA, Mrs F. Dorrell and Mrs. J. Sparks.

The fruit cups and plates were prepared in the new kitchen, which has been well laid out and equipped for efficiency and convenience. The ladies doing this were Mrs. M. White, Mrs. E. Adkison, Mrs. Wm. Reynolds, Mrs. E. McLaughlin and Mrs. Fred Greer. Mrs. M. Nickson looked after filling the tea pots.

Tea tickets sold in advance were made by the members and were decorated with tiny Union Jacks. They were taken at the door by Mrs. A. Siddall.

Convener of the decorating committee was Mrs. Richard Pearson. Men of the parish assisted the ladies in putting up the streamers and flags.

Sacred Heart CWL Elects Mrs. M. McDougall

Annual meeting of the Sacred Heart sub-division of the Catholic Women's League was held Wednesday afternoon in the church basement. Retiring president Mrs. Leo Marytn was in the chair as Monsignor P. P. Butler opened the meeting, which was well attended, with the League prayer.

Regular meeting business included a request that as many members as possible receive Holy Communion and spend an hour of adoration on Sunday, April 26, as it is the feast of Our Lady of Good Counsel.

Annual reports were given by the secretary Mrs. B. Rogers; welfare chairman Mrs S. Gilmour; hospital, Mrs. M. Sheehan; education, Mrs. L. Hickson. Mrs. H. Connolly as nominating committee chairman brought in the following slate of new officers:

President, Mrs. M. McDougall; first vice president, Mrs. Leo Martyn; second vice president, Mrs. Neill Collins; third vice president, Miss Louise Letellier; treasurer, Mrs. Vernon LaPlante; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. Giardino; recording secretary, Mrs. B. Rogers.

Councillors are Mrs. A. Brioux, Mrs. M. Sheehan, Mrs. Vincent Flynn, Mrs. Frank Bailey, Mrs. Fred Lajoie, Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. J. DeNoble, Mrs. J. Dugan, Mrs. A. Thompson, Mrs. E. Amyotte, Mrs. R. Bacon, Mrs. P. Coursey, Mrs. A. Conlin, Mrs. R. Miller, Mrs. J. Stewart, Mrs. H. Connolly and Mrs. E. LaPlante.

After the installation conducted by Mrs. Leo Martyn, the act of consecration was recited. Monsignor Butler concluded the meeting with an address to both retiring and new executives.

ORMTA Meeting Reviews Bylaws

Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association, Peterborough Branch. met Tuesday evening in the Public Library auditorium. President Mr. Donald Kennedy presided. Miss Barbara Craig, soprano, sang "The Four Leaf Clover," and was accompanied by Mrs. R. G. Aman.

Mr. Christopher Gledhill is to be nominated for election to council at the convention in Toronto next July.

A report on the zone convention at Midland recently was read by Mr. Gledhill. Representative from the branch was Mrs. Alice Roger Collins who gave a paper on "Beauty and poetry in life." Peterborough has issued an invitation for the central zone convention to be held here next November.

Mrs. Donald Flett read thoroughly the Revision of By-laws which was of great interest to the members.

WMS To Pack Bale For Korea

Trinity WMS regular meeting Tuesday afternoon was in charge of Mrs. R. G. Cornell's group for the devotion and study program. Mrs. A. Edmison led in prayer and Mrs. G. M. Moncrief played for the singing of "The church is one foundation." A panel discussion by group members of the work and organization of the Church of Christ in Angola brought questions from the audience .

Afterward, President Mrs. B. McFadden took the chair for business. Mrs. A. Hastie announced an attendance of 39 and suggested a return to the roll call system. Reports followed from Mrs. A. B. Cunningham, secretary; Mrs. Chas. Spearin, treasurer; Mrs. G. Powell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. T. Rehill who reviewd new missionary books on the library shelf; Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy representative to the cabinet meeting where allocations were distributed; Mrs. A. Logan who gave part of a review of the annual Temperance Federation meeting in Ottawa.

Mrs. McFadden appealed for clothing for a bale to be packed for Korea between May 1st and 15th. Mrs H. Martin brought to attention the coming campaign for funds for the United Church training school. The president reminded of the CGIT work display and the interesting speaker program arranged by the Federation Group for May 14th.

At the conclusion a social time was spent and refreshments were served by Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Foley and assistants.

Assoc. Members Bring Mrs. Roblin

St. Andrew's WMS spring Thankoffering meeting and the Associate Members' meeting was combined on Tuesday afternoon and it was well attended. Members observed the birthday of Queen Elizabeth II by singing the national anthem. President Mrs. A. A. Munro opened with a prayer poem.

Guest speaker was Mrs. A. S. Roblin of Park St. Baptist Church and she was introduced by Miss Eva Preston, associate members' secretary. Mrs. Roblin brought a fine inspirational message. "The Dead Sea has no outlet and so is repulsive. So is the man who does not give God his share" she said. "Have we the right to say 'I love Thee' and then give him a little corner of our lives. It is important 'how gladly' not 'how much' is given.

An expression of appreciation of the message was voiced by Miss Margaret Ferguson.

Mrs. E. Hawley reported eight home and 15 hospital calls made. Mrs. R. Y. Kenny, christian stewardship secretary, presented the allocation af $1,000. for this year and it was accepted. The spring tea being held May 27th was discussed and some further arrangements made. Mrs. T. Skinner is convening.

Mrs. E. F. Reid read the 121st Psalm and all members repeated the 23rd Psalm. Mrs F. W. K. Harris led in prayer. Mrs. Gordon Whitney sang "Teach me to pray" and was accompanied by Mrs. Henry Cotton. The offering was dedicated by Mrs. Kenny.

DOROTHY DIX:

Ex-Husband Uses Child To Resume Bitter Quarrels

DEAR MISS DIX: Two years ago I divorced my first husband —the father of our six-year-old daughter, Faith. He was ordered to pay $15 a week for the child, but after two payments he stopped. When I got in touch with him to remind him of his obligation, he threatened me, so in order to avoid further unpleasantness, I dropped the matter of support. Six months ago I remarried. My husband is very fond of my child, and she calls him "daddy" of her own volition. We are very happy together. My ex-husband found out where we live, and has been coming around to see Faith. He wants to take her home for a visit (he's remarried, too) but I think his wife should call and let me know when it's convenient for her to have the girl. He is beginning his quarreling again whenever he stops by and Im finding it most disagreeable. I would prefer that he keep away. He wouldn't do anything for the child when he was supposed to, now I don't see why he's interested in her all of a sudden.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your weapon to keep your ex-husband away may lie in the divorce agreement. He may still be obligated to pay the weekly $15 for Faith's support, and if you threaten to go to court to collect it, I'm sure he will make a quick and permanent exit. He is more interested in making life miserable for you than he is in being a devoted father to his daughter. When he discovers that the pseudo-devotion may cost money, he'll revert to type.

HARSH ACTION ADVISED

Continue refusing to let Faith visit him until you've spoken to his wife about it. I doubt if she'll welcome the suggestion with any great degree of affability. Since you have succeeded in establishing your home and family harmoniously, you're entitled to use any means available to maintain your life on that basis. If your former husband threatens to disturb and disrupt your home life, take any means to keep him away from the house, and your daughter.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am one of a trio of girls who have been pals for some time. Now I'm beginning to feel there is tension among us. If I am particularly friendly with one, the other gets mad; if I go out with one, the other sulks for a week. Sometimes we have lots of fun together, but it is becoming increasingly difficult for all of us to be pleasant at the same time.

S. D.

ANSWER: Threesomes are difficult to handle at any time; always there seems to be a bit of jealousy between two over the favors of the third. The positions may differ in seesaw fashion throughout the friendship—sometimes it's one person who is singled out for attention, sometimes it's another — but it's rarely that the three meet on completely amicable terms. The best way out of the dilemma is to add a fourth to the group, which will have the effect of breaking it up into two couples. While the foursome may travel around as a unit most of the time, there is always a better chance of pleasing everyone if two sets of plans can be put into action when needed.

Suggest having a fourth girl join your outings, and I'm sure you'll find greater pleasure in each other's company.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm in junior high school. Recently a boy I have known for three months gave me his identification bracelet to wear. I lost it, and don't know whether I should get him another one or just forget it.

M. A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: This is not the sort of thing one can just "forget." Explanations and apologies are in order, with an offer to replace the bracelet, if you wish. However, since the boy asked you to wear the bracelet, the responsibility of its loss is not really yours.

Home And School Association News

GROVE SCHOOL

Grove Home and School Association held a fathers' night on Monday. Mr. J. Weir showed the film "Call of the Kawarthas" and entertainment was by the "Kawartha Four" barbershop quartette which includes Messrs. Phil Chevalier, Doug Montgomery, Bob Wilson and George Mackay. They were thanked by Mr. Ron Page.

Vice president Mrs. S. Whitfield conducted the business which included reports on the Home and School convention by Mrs. G. Stewart and Mrs. Whitfield.

The attendance prize was won by Mrs. Adams' grade 2. An executive meeting will be held April 25th at the home of Mrs. Nels Foster, 581 Arndon Ave.

Lunch was served by Mr. and Mrs. G. Stewart.

WOODVIEW SCHOOL

Mrs. W. Edwards presided at this month's meeting of Woodview Home and School Association in absence of the president Mrs. E. Hill. She called for a vote as to whether an election of officers would be held and it was unanimously carried that the present slate of officers stand for the coming year.

The president attended the OEA convention in Toronto during Easter week and is to report at the next meeting.

Speaker of the evening was Mrs. J. R. Henderson of the Branch Public Library and was introduced by Mrs. Edwards. Mrs. Henderson stated that while television is coming to the fore it cannot take the place of reading. "Reading starts very early in life—sometimes along the way the interest lags with many" she said. "A child of two years should have his first books, these with colored pictures familiar to him. Different sizes of books make reading more interesting" she added. "Magic takes a great part in a child's development and don't worry about the evil effects of fairy tales" said Mrs. Henderson.

Comic books on today's market were compared by the speaker and she suggested that if the good points in these were found in some other books it would be more advantageous to the child as the latter books are in themselves poor reading often. She stressed that parents should set an example of good reading and help the child to adopt the right attitude toward reading.

A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Mrs. F. Howson.

A social hour was enjoyed, with lunch in charge of Mrs. Stewart Joyce and Mrs. Stanley Joyce.

Free Methodists Hear Of African Mission School

Miss Verna L. Tite, recently returned missionary from Portuguese East Africa, was the guest speaker at a meeting Monday evening in the Free Methodist Church. Having served five years as principal of the Girls' Boarding School and Government Day School at Inhamachafo (Southeast coat of Africa), Miss Tite very capably and with great missionary zeal presented the work of the schools and mission while showing a fine set of colored slides. More than a dozen Free Methodist missionaries on that field were shown in various activities with African children, young people, native preachers, cathechists, the sick and others.

Miss Tite said that this year they had 450 students in their schools. The mission owns a tract of 800 acres and on this property are the Christian village, missionary residences, the church, the girls' school, government day school, the dispensary, the evangelists' school, and many huts connected with these schools. There are 226 or more outstations and 60 organized churches under supervision of the Inhamachafa mission station. Miss Tite said "In our mission field there is one missionary to each 70,000 Africans. So, our chief concern as a group of missionaries is to prepare native Chirstians so that they will feel the great need of heathen villages many miles from the mission to spread the Good News of the Gospel." And she related the story of Zefania, while showing pictures of him, who came to their school as a heathen boy and years later, with his Christian wife answered the call of a heathen chief in a distant village for a teacher.

A good number of the Junior Misisonary Society were present and very much interested throughout, as were all by Miss Tite's enthusiasm and information. As in many other churches of the city, the WMS and JMS have been studying about Africa this year and the JMS are contributing to the "Water for Africa Fund."

"In many locations", the missionary said, "the women and girls have to make the long hot journey of one, two and three days to bring back home a "fuko" of the precious water, carrying it of course on their heads". A "fuko" is a clay water jar usually holding four gallons. Recently one missionary was forced to issue slips of paper to the natives to assure her that all would get their quota of water from the mission well.

Miss Tite told of one girl who had been so many days without water that when she came in to the clinic to have a sore dressed and the nurse was bathing it with water into which she had just put disinfectant, the child insisted she should have a drink.

Early in the meeting Miss Tite dressed one of the girls, Alberta Moffatt, of Marmora, as an African mother carrying her baby on her back. She then showed several curios which called for a close-up examination by the younger folk at the end of the service. Miss Tite also taught an African chorus: "Nza Vumila ku lanzela Jesu". In English, "I have decided to follow Jesus".

Two J.M.S. boys, Clarence Clark and Kenny Collins, presented to Miss Tite two large bundles of used Christmas cards for her school children in Inhamachafo.

Being under the auspices of the W.M.S., Mrs. J. W. Johnston, president was in charge of the meeting, The Rev. and Mrs. K. B. Bauder sang a duet "God Bless Africa", and Mrs. H. Minifie rendered a solo "Shall The World Be Made The Better."

Mrs. A. B. Moffatt, of Marmora, a past district W.M.S. president, offered prayer. Mrs. G. H. Robinson was the pianist.

Conference Hears

housed at home. Where this was not possible they should be placed in a home where the atmosphere and surroundings were as pleasant and homelike as possible, where the meals were attractive and plentiful, and where friendly and family relations of long standing were not broken.

Dealing with health facilities Dr. Kelly said that frequent and regular health examinations or appraisals were essential; hospitals should develop divisions equipped and staffed to care for the ills of the elderly; business and industry might co-operate in the employment of the elderly person; and old-age guidance clinics could be established to supply information and helpful and discreet guidance for a solution of the problems of old age.

PREVENTIVE PROGRAM

Commenting on health departments, he said it was their function to carry out preventive programs for the benefit of their cities. But, he said, so far they had nothing to offer to the older person. "It is our duty and responsibility," he said, "to extend our activities and endeavors to include a program for the older person. This should begin, not in the middle of old age, but in youth, for after all old age is but a part of life.

Such a program would have as its chief purpose, to prolong life, to render the life of the mature person free of chronic illness and disability and to preserve his mind and body during that period of life when his ripe judgment and past experience should render him a valuable and productive member of society. Then indeed, the goal of living through the later years gain new meaning, purpose and dignity."

Other speakers at the one-day conference were Mrs. Jean Good, executive secretary, division on old age, of the Welfare Council of Toronto and District, whose subject was "Requirements of Adequate Housing for Old People"; Kenneth York from Hastings' on "Description and Operation of a County Home"; L. E. Ludlow, director of home for the aged branch of the Ontario Department of Public Welfare on "Provincial Legislation for Housing Accommodation for the Aged"; Miss S. Hensley, public division of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, Ottawa, on "Federal Legislation for Low Rental Accommodation"; and Mrs. C. E. Hofman, chairman of the committee on Co-operative Houses of the Julia Greenshields Home on "Co-operative Homes for Older People."

Chairman for the luncheon session was Robert A. Willson, president of the Community Welfare Council of Ontario. Chairman for the morning session was Mrs. Harriett Vanluven, president of the Kingston Community Council. Chairman for the afternoon session was Dr. Albert Rose, of the Ontario division of the Community Planning Association of Canada.

Only Through Interest In Politics Can Responsible Interest Be Taken In Country Women Told

Addressing a gathering of nearly 200 Liberal women in the Empress Hotel Kawartha Room Wednesday evening, Mrs. Douglas Blair, of Ottawa, the executive secretary of the National Federation of Liberal Women of Canada, dwelt on the attributes of the Prime Minister of Canada, leader of the Liberal party, and the financial position of the country as illustrated by the latest budget.

"Any woman not interested in politics is unlikely to take a responsible interest in her country," said Mrs. Blair. Responsibilities of women in elections are first, to know the issues, she pointed out.

After listing the issues in the next federal election as given by the president of the National Liberal Federation on a trans-Canada radio program, Mrs. Blair commented, "Not a sentence in this statement can be refuted by the opposition parties." To the women she commended two points for special consideration.

UNITED BEHIND LEADER

The first point was: "A government united behind a leader, Mr. Louis St. Laurent, who is respected and admired by most Canadians and by other nations." Mrs. Blair claimed that: "Never in our history have we had as leader of our country a man who is so generally loved and respected by everyone. No Tory criticism of the government ever attempts to criticize Mr. St. Laurent, the man. No Tory you speak to can fail to admit that in Mr. St. Laurent we have as Canada's Prime Minister a man of the highest integrity, charm and human kindliness." She added: "How lucky we are that he happens to be leader of the Liberal party."

She contended then that: "No man with such a wealth of ability could surround himself with men of mediocre brains" and pointed to the Finance Minister, Hon. D. C. Abbott, who was dubbed the "Wizard of Ottawa" by a New York newspaper after his latest budget was brought down.

Mrs. Blair clarified the budget simply. She said the gross national debt was paid off by 17 per cent in the last seven years and the per capita debt by 31 per cent. Although federal estimates this year were $135 million higher than last year, the new budget showed that government revenues were slashed $361 million, or nearly one million dollars per day in a full year. She said that "increased productivity of the country and economic developments in the nation have enabled the government to pay for defence and social security and at the same time reduce taxes to this extent."

OBVIOUS ALL BENEFIT

"If the personal income tax has been reduced as it has been by 11 per cent, it is obvious that we benefit," said Mrs. Blair. She referred to reports that the new budget does not help the low income bracket wage earner, and showed that Canadians in the lower income brackets do far better than any similar group in any other English - speaking country. Her example was this:

"In Canada a married couple with no children pays no income tax at all on a salary of $2,000 a year. In the United States they would pay $153 a year, in the United Kingdom $264 a year, and in Australia $206 a year." New tax cuts giving cheaper cigarettes, no radio fees and cheaper books will also help these Canadian families, she reminded.

"We know that our government has brought about the greatest expansion of social welfare in our history," said Mrs. Blair. "But what we know best of all is that all this has been accomplished by unity in our ranks, a team spirit probably unprecedented in the world because of the devotion and confidence the members of the government have in their leader."

Concluding, she said: "Is it not a sane role for us workers in the coming campaign to tell the people of Canada about our Prime Minister—that with him as leader we shall enjoy true unity within our nation, true security for our homes and families, and true freedom from fear and aggression."

Mrs. Blair was introduced by Mrs. Robertson Davies and was thanked by Mrs. D. R. McGregor who presented her with a travel alarm clock from the Liberal women of Peterborough.

Senator J. J. Duffus also spoke to the ladies, remarking that "The day is past when women in politics are looked on as accessories. We have accepted the full implication of woman suffrage, welcoming them as citizens. Being 52 per cent of the voters, they are entitled to nothing less," he added.

"A real Liberal is moved by good will and guided by liberty," said the Senator. "I can see no reason why the candidate, Mr. M. J. Swanston, should not be elected if this organization works. This constituency is treacherous. See that your canvas is thorough and that you know every Liberal vote. Don't be too confident—that is one thing that has lost many an election."

Mrs. John Duignan, president of the Women's Association, who was chairman, paid tribute to Senator Duffus for encouraging her in her work in political circles.

Mr. T. J. Carley, QC, president of the general Liberal Association, commented briefly on the principles of Liberalism expounded by Mrs. Blair and Senator Duffus. "I hope we can soon be represented at Ottawa by a man who can say he represents the Liberal thought in Peterborough," he said. "Even the CCF has despaired of putting before the people the idea of a better government," remarked Mr. Carley.

A vote of thanks to past-president Mr. Arthur Lewis for his support was given by the women.

Mr. Maxwell J. Swanston, who will be Liberal candidate in the next election, in brief remarks said: "I feel we can put up a good fight."

It was reported by retiring treasurer Mrs. P. D. Scollard that the Women's Association balance in the treasury on this date was $10.52.

Mrs. F. Guilfoyle was pianist for the evening and played before and following the addresses and for the National Anthems. A social time was spent at the close with refreshments being served.

Mrs. T. F. Doughty To Head Liberal Women

Mrs. T. F. Doughty was elected president of the Women's Liberal Association of Peterborough at the annual meeting Wednesday evening. She succeeds Mrs. John Duignan who has been president for the past two years and was honored for her work with presentation of a rhinestone ring by the retiring secretary Mrs. F. W. Lundy.

Mrs. Doughty's executive includes Mrs. P. D. Scollard, Mrs. J. A. Dewart and Mrs. W. B. Gordon as vice presidents, Mrs. G. Faux of Bridgenorth as secretary, Mrs. Roy Brown as treasurer.

Report of the nominating committee which consisted of nine women was read by Mrs. R. C. Honey. Mr. T. J. Carley was chairman for the election and added to the slate an approved nomination from the floor that Mrs. R. M. Glover be honorary president of the Association.

Country representatives are: Lakefield, Mrs. E. Orr, Mrs. S. Richardson; Galway - Cavendish, Mrs. Peter Pearson; Harvey, none appointed; Smith, Mrs. W. Shearer, Mrs. F. Steinkraus; Ennismore, Mrs. J. Harrington; Douro, Mrs. J. V. O'Connor, Mrs. Joe Lonergan; North Monaghan, Mrs. C. Laing; Otonabee, Mrs. W. Drummond, Mrs. George Hanbidge.

Bush League Champs Honored At Dinner

MILLBROOK — (ENS) — A turkey dinner was given in honor of the 4th Line Hockey team, champions of the Bush League for the third successive year. The dinner was given by supporters and admirers living on the 4th Line of Cavan township.

Henry Gray congratulated the 1953 champions and gave them the cup to keep since they had won it three years in a row. Each member of the team received a coronation silver dollar with Arthur Thorn expressing the congratulations and pride of their 4th Line supporters in the team and Allie Fallis making the presentation.

Better Living Reduced Crime In Europe

LONDON (AP) — Better living and general prosperity have cut down on European crime—except for sex offenses.

An Associated Press survey of 10 countries shows only two—Britain and France—still battling the record crime waves that marked the early years after the Second World War.

With a peacetime pattern displacing the wartime disruption, such crimes of violence as murder, manslaughter and major assaults are generally on the wane. Thefts and other property offenses are slumping too.

Black markets now are near the vanishing point because Europe's stores are full.

Sex offenses, however, are generally up. Authorities in both Austria and Germany attribute the increase to better feeding. German officials say sex crimes boomed when food rationing ended in 1948, but now report a decline. Other countries blame a general post-war slackening of morals.

GANGSTERISM UNKNOWN

Most European crimes, the survey shows, are one - man jobs. Gangsterdom is virtually unknown except among smugglers.

France blames a new abundance of liquor for at least part of a five per-cent increase in crime during 1952.

Only Britain is really worried by an upsurge in crime of all kinds. Home office men working out their 1952 statistics fear they may top the all-time records of 1951.

Latest official figures show convictions for major offenses nearly double the pre-war rate. In 1951 one in every four convictions was of children under 14.

Officials say the chief cause of Britain's crime wave is a post-war depletion in the police forces. The pre-war policeman earned well above the average working man's wage, then less than £5 a week. Now he earns less. The average workers' wage today is approximately £9.

Fasting Off May 1

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Pope has excused Roman Catholics from the normal Friday requirement to abstain from eating meat on May 1—a labor holiday in many countries. Vatican sources said Wednesday this was in response to requests from bishops in many countries.

Traffic Deaths 645

QUEBEC (CP)—A total of 645 persons were killed in 82,211 traffic accidents in Quebec province in 1951, figures published by the Quebec finance department show. The figures are contained in a 30-page booklet published by the department.

Dorval-Based North Stars Globe-Trotters Of The RCAF

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TOKYO (CP)—To the globe-trotters of the RCAF's Dorval-based 426 transport squadron a trip to Tokyo is just another entry in the log books.

The "Thunderbirds" certainly get around. Twenty-three-year-old FO. John Middleton of Burlington, Ont., who captained the North Star aircraft which flew me from Canada, has flown 864,000 miles during the last 10 months.

Since his last trip to Tokyo in December he has made four trans-Atlantic crossings to Germany, two to England and crossed Canada each way twice.

GET "JAMMY" JOBS

The squadron is the glamor outfit of the RCAF but, as my flight's navigator, 20-year-old FO. Mort Lightstone of Ottawa, says:

"Yes, we get the jammy jobs, but people would be surprised to see how beat up we can be at the end of a long haul."

The squadron operates eight scheduled flights a month from Dorval, near Montreal, to Tokyo; one a week from Dorval to North Luffenham, England (shortly to be stepped up to three a week); a trans-Canada flight from Dorval to Vancouver and return every eight days, and flights as required from Dorval to the Arctic station at Resolute Bay.

It also is on call for emergency and special flights. During the recent floods in Britain and Holland it flew emergency shipments of Canadian Red Cross supplies to disaster areas. Its Canadian-built North Star aircraft also fly home sick soldiers from Canada's 27th brigade in Germany.

Elapsed time of my flight from McChord Field, Wash., to Tokyo was just under two days—four days from Montreal. Time in the air from McChord was 23 hours but there was a 14-hour stop at Shemya in the Aleutians to sleep. The aircraft carried 5,000 pounds of mail, and 800 pounds of CBC equipment to record the Wayne and Shuster show in the Far East.

FLIGHT VARIETY

Air crews do not stay together in the transport outfit. Nor do they stay on any particular run. A man operating with one captain today on a Tokyo flight may next week be with another flying to Resolute Bay.

No. 426 is a chummy squadron in which everyone is interested in unit gossip. Between Elmendorf Alaska, and Shemya we had a half-hour chat with another Thunderbird North Star, captained by FO. Jack Schroder of medicine Hat, Alta., returning from Tokyo. Schroder and his crew were brought up to date on the latest squadron "gen" from Canada.

At some places the RCAF occasionally uses a "slip crew" system, fresh crews taking over the aircraft while the incoming crews roll into bed to be rested in time to take over the next aircraft. Actually, Middleton's crew brought the aircraft in which I flew all the way from McChord to Tokyo.

It is expected that shortly two slip crews will be in the Far East at a time. The idea is to give crew members four or five days for a flip to Korea to get the "feel" of that theatre.

A GOOD LIFE

Flying the Pacific, says the squadron's commander, Wing Cmdr. H. W. (Bill) Lupton of Regina, "is a good life." His headquarters are at Dorval but he makes frequent check flights with his aircraft and flew with my crew as far as Vancouver.

"A man is with the squadron about three years," he said. "They don't get much time at home—perhaps a week a month, taken a couple of days at a time. But we've exceptionally good men who don't complain—and neither do their wives."

He said the most boring jobs are those of the 10-man servicing detachment at lonely Shemya, under FO. Fred Heward of Haileybury, Ont. However, they serve there only three months at a time, and requests for extensions are not unknown. United States ground-crew men serve there for 18 months.

Rushing More Military Aid To Help Bolster Indo-China

Find 4 Children Slain With Ax, Father Being Held

QUEBEC—(CP)—The bodies of four children, slain with an ax, were found in blood-soaked beds Thursday and police are holding their father as a material witness. Solicitor-General Rivard said Georges Hebert, 45-year-old tile and cement worker, described by neighbours as a "quiet man", has made statements to police which are to be produced as evidence at a coroner's inquest today. No charge will be laid against Hebert until the inquest has been held. Hebert was picked up in a downtown tavern by Provincial Police shortly after the battered bodies of the children were found in his three-room apartment in Quebec West. His wife, who is pregnant, is also being held as a material witness.

The bodies, their heads smashed beyond recognition, were identified as those of Rene, 9, Louisette, 7, Nicole, 5, and Gaetan, 3.

Blood on the bodies and on the walls near the beds was dry, leading police to believe the slayings occurred Tuesday or Wednesday.

The ax was found Thursday night, but police declined to say where.

Rene and Louisette were found on a living room couch. The two babies, Nicole and Gaetan, were in a small bed in the bedroom.

Police, checking a tip from a Quebec City morgue attendant Hebert had visited earlier, entered the deserted house and made the grim discovery.

RECEIVE TIP

Police said their information was that Hebert Thursday informed his wife, living with her mother, that the children had been killed in a level-crossing accident and that he wanted her to come with him to make funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Hebert went into another room and telephoned Police Chief Joseph Isabelle of suburban Quebec West, where the Heberts lived in a second-floor dwelling.

She asked him if all was normal at her home. Chief Isabelle said he could check. Telephoning back he told the woman all seemed normal, except that the children did not appear to be around.

Mrs. Hebert said she would not go home but accompanied her husband to the city morgue.

Hebert asked the morgue attendant about funeral arrangements, repeating the story of a level-crossing accident.

SUSPICIOUS OF STORY

The morgue attendant told police:

"I was suspicious of Hebert's story. Usually when people come ere after relatives have been killed in accidents, they are grief-stricken. These people did not show any emotion, so I decided to phone the provincial police."

Police discovered the bodies and Hebert was taken into custody a short time later.

A crowd gathered to watch as the bodies of the children, packed in a large aluminum box, were taken away.

Later police picked up Mrs. Hebert at the home of Mrs. Dominique Picard, her mother.

A background of quarrelling in the Hebert home was dug up by police in their investigation. Neighbors said the woman frequently left home.

U.S. Secretly Allocates New Supplies

Authorities Afraid Extra Equipment Will Arrive Too Late

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The United States has secretly allocated more military aid to Indo-China in a move to bolster French and native forces now trying to stop a new Communist offensive.

Authoritative officials who disclosed this today said the extra money will go for more American "hardware"—guns, tanks, artillery, planes, ammunition and other military supplies.

Delivery will be speeded, but it is doubtful if the additional equipment can arrive in time to influence the outcome of the battle between Communist-led rebels and French forces in the kingdom of Laos.

NEW BATTALIONS

The new funds will be turned over to the French and Indo-China states to help finance a French plan for creating 54 new commando battalions during this year to fight against Communists in all areas of Indo-China.

This plan was outlined to President Eisenhower by French Premier Rene Mayer and his aides during top level talks here three weeks ago.

The specific amount of additional money involved was not disclosed, but officials said it was "substantial."

FROM SECURITY FUNDS

The money will come from mutual security aid funds appropriated by Congress last year to help strengthen United States allies. It is understood part of the money will be taken from funds reserved for Europe and the remainder from $540,000,000 set aside for military aid to the Far East.

The U.S. already is reported giving France $450,000,000 a year toward the Indo-China war, now in its seventh year. France is estimated to be putting up twice as much money, plus manpower.

AID DOUBLED

HANOI, Indo-China (CP)—The French high command said today Communist China's military aid to Vietminh rebels in Indo-China has more than doubled in the last two months.

Refuse To Ratify Treaties To Rearm Germany

BONN, Germany—(AP)—West Germany's upper house today postponed indefinitely the ratification of the treaties to rearm but Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said he will make the main sections law anyway. He said he will hand the treaties, which create a European army with 500,000 Germans enrolled and make a peace contract with the West, to the West German president for signature despite the fact they have not been approved by the Bundesrat, or upper house.

The Bundesrat voted 20 to 18 to delay ratification until the West German Supreme Court rules on Socialist objections that the European army pact is unconstitutional. The court previously had refused to rule on the pact until it had been ratified.

Adenauer told a press conference he had a right to make the treaties law because:

1. The elected lower house had approved them in full.

2. The main sections do not require approval by the upper house. He will hold back two sections which do require its approval. These deal with financial support for the troops.

3. The Bundesrat could not, on its own request, get the legal opinion it wants from the Supreme Court, so there is no use waiting.

The Bundesrat voted delay as ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization met in Paris and urged early ratification.

MUST BE RATIFIED

The West German Supreme Court already has refused to rule on the treaties' constitutionality until they are ratified, contending that without legislative action, there is no ground for a court test.

Baden-Wurttemberg's governor, Dr. Reinhold Maier, moved, however, that the government and both houses of Parliament should join in asking the court for the advance ruling.

Adenauer personally entered the debate to unsuccessfully oppose the motion, warning that "this is a burning hour" which permits no further delay in alliance with the West.

Striking at those who believe that if the European army plan is defeated, West Germany can get direct entry into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Adenauer asserted:

HAVE NO CHOICE

"President Eisenhower has declared that there is no alternative to the European Army Treaty. The suggestion that Germany might get direct membership in NATO is incorrect because France opposes this and France would veto it.

Won't Allow PoWs To Talk Boss Charges

By BILL BOSS

FREEDOM VILLAGE, Korea (CP) — Two conflicting pictures have come from correspondents reporting for the last four days on the exchange of prisoners with the Communists.

On the one hand there are accounts from United States prisoners of death marches and Communist atrocities; on the other are Commonwealth accounts of uniformly decent treatment.

British security regulations governing the interviewing of British and Australian prisoners prevent either corroborative or balancing narratives compared with U.S reports which are being played with all stops out.

RULE OUT QUESTIONS

Security officers rule out all questions approaching the aspects capturing U.S. attention.

Two out of five Australians returned Thursday were made available for interviews and both were obviously apprehensive after being warned. They obviously spoke under duress and their testimony apparently could be discounted.

Regardless of original directions, now that it is apparent that U.S. authorities are unconcerned over security precautions, Commonwealth correspondents feel Commonwealth authorities here should be likewise.

The correspondents received a statement Thursday night from Commonwealth authorities which did not answer reporters' questions concerning the scope of interviews.

Midget Radios Help Trio Win At Cards

NUERNBERG, Germany (AP)—Three suave, middle-aged Germans are under arrest here for cheating at cards with the aid of midget radios concealed under their expensive evening clothes.

Police said the men operated in elite gambling houses throughout West Germany with phenomenal success—until the day they were caught with their antennas down.

A sharp-eyed croupier at a fashionable club here became suspicious and called in police, who found the men wired for action.

The police said the men operated this way:

Acting as total strangers, they would enter exclusive gambling clubs—legal in West Germany—and pose as men of wealth and prominence.

One would play the part of a bored kibitzer. But strapped out of sight under his clothes was a compact, battery-operated radio transmitter.

One of the other men would get into a card game. Hidden under his clothes was a tiny radio receiver.

The kibitzer would watch the victims' draw. On a telegraph key in his right-hand trouser pocket, he would tap out the information in code.

His partner would receive the signals in the form of impulses against his body. With the information, he would play his hand accordingly.

How much money the men raked in was not revealed, but police indicated it was a tidy sum.

The sharpers were nabbed in their hotel room here—packed to leave when the police closed in.

Give Knighthood To Churchill

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen today conferred a knighthood on Prime Minister Churchill investing him with the insignia of the garter.

The Order of the Garter is the highest of all the orders of knighthood.

The Prime Minister will be styled "Sir Winston Churchill, KG."

Churchill thus accepted an honor he declined when it was offered to him by the late King George VI in July, 1945.

At Windsor Castle the Queen formally touched Churchill on the shoulder with a golden sword as he knelt before her.

Churchill declined the Garter in 1945 because it was an honor which had political attachments—it was offered on the recommendation of Prime Minister Attlee whose Labor party had just won the post-war general election.

But since 1946 the Garter has been bestowed by the sovereign without political advice, and Churchill now has found it possible to accept the honor in Coronation year.

Name Sub-Committee To Study Seaway

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today discussed plans for U. S. participation in construction of the St. Lawrence seaway with his cabinet and designated a sub-committee to study the matter further.

The discussion came after Eisenhower formally notified the Senate foreign relations committee that the national security council regards "early initiation and completion" of the project as in the interest of national security.

He also wrote Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.), chairman of the committee, that he was planning to discuss with his cabinet "the extent of any limitations upon United States participation in the project."

After the cabinet meeting, the White House announced that Eisenhower had assigned a sub-committee to prepare recommendations. These would be submitted soon to the cabinet.

Given Year's Sentence In Husband's Death

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Veronica Langlois, 47, was sentenced today to one year definite and three months indefinite by Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven after being found guilty of manslaughter Wednesday in the Dec. 5 death of her husband, Charles.

Langlois died of a dislocated neck following a drinking party at their Toronto home.

Vitamin B-6 Cures Drunk, No Hangover

LONDON (Reuters)—British doctors have found that an injection of vitamin B6, "bandon," can sober up a drunk in three minutes without leaving a hangover.

A doctor, writing in the British Medical Journal, says a woman of 45 was brought into his hospital singing, swearing and staggering.

He gave her an injection of B6 and three minutes later she became quiet, apologized for the trouble she had caused and said she felt quite sober. He claimed the same result in five other cases.

Another doctor said the injections not only got rid of the excitement "but of every other symptom of intoxication, and will even dispose of delirium tremens in a matter of hours."

40 Homeless In Vancouver Apartment Fire

VANCOUVER (CP)—Flames forced a 50-year-old nurse into a fatal, 50-foot leap Thursday night as a $100,000 fire pillaged an apartment building in north Vancouver.

Some 40 persons were made homeless and three injured as the fire raged out of control for more than two hours in the three-storey Mount Crown apartment block, an old wooden building with a brick fronting.

Five men using a piece of canvas as a fire net tried to break the fall of the nurse, Laura Dingwall, but she died after being admitted to the hospital where she worked.

"We didn't quite get under her," said Eric Moxam, one of the men who stretched the canvas above the sidewalk.

MAKE IT SAFELY

Other tenants, mainly those on the lower floors, jumped without mishap.

One woman was admitted to hospital for treatment of burns and shock and another was allowed to go home after medical care.

Bystanders told how Miss Dingwall first threw her bird cage from her third-floor apartment and then jumped herself, slamming into the pavement after glancing off the canvas.

The woman died about two hours after she arrived at hospital.

Begin Trade Talks

BONN, Germany (AP)—Negotiations for a new West German-Czechoslovakian trade agreement began today. Economic ministry officials said the Czechs are mainly interested in obtaining German machinery.

NATO Asks Five Members Reach Quick Agreement

PARIS—(AP)—Spurred on by the United States, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization today formally requested five of its members to come to a quick agreement with West Germany to create the proposed European Army.

Even as the Allied leaders acted, the Upper House of the West German Parliament defied Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and voted to postpone its decision on whether to ratify the army treaty.

Nato's request for early ratification came from the organization's top council, the foreign, defence and finance ministers of the 14 member nations—in a secret session. It was their first action during the second day of a three-day meeting here.

The ministers also passed an $890,000,000 budget for airfields, jet fuel pipelines, communications and other permanent installations through 1956.

An aide who came out of the afternoon meeting said the program was approved without any dispute among the 50-odd ministers from the 14 countries, including Canada.

SPEED RATIFICATION

Following the morning meeting, J. W. Beyen, Netherlands foreign minister, told a news conference the foreign ministers of France, Belgium, Italy and Luxembourg had declared their governments would speed up ratification of the European Army pact "as much as

Will Think Twice Before Using Act

OTTAWA (CP)—After the "lashing" it took, the government will think twice about using the Emergency Powers Act, Trade Minister Howe indicated Thursday in the Commons.

He was replying to Howard Green (PC—Vancouver - Quadra) who suggested that the government restrict exports of iron ore from British Columbia to Japan.

Mr. Green said the ore was being dug out by a United States company and shipped to Japan in Japanese ships. Canada got only about $7 a ton for the ore but paid between $150 and $200 a ton for the steel she bought from Japan.

His great concern, said Mr. Green is that if the operation is carried on indefinitely, there won't be enough iron ore to start a steel mill in B.C.

Mr. Howe said the B.C. government had the power to control its resources. The federal government only regulated on national affairs.

"I am afraid the only way we could do it (restrict exports) would be to use the Emergency Powers Act and after the lashing we took on that I would think. . . ." said Mr. Howe.

"I am not suggesting that for one moment," Mr. Green interjected.

U.K. Stronger Than Year Ago

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill said today Britain's home and international position is "definitely stronger" than a year ago.

"Who can doubt that our position abroad and at home is definitely stronger now than it was a year ago?" he asked in an address to a mass meeting of the Primrose League, a national Conservative party organization.

"I said we were getting stronger. We do not seek to spring a general election on the country. That is not our idea at all. We seek to do a job—a hard job. We hope to be judged by deeds and not by words and by performance rather than promises."

Churchill combined his claims with an attack on the Labor party.

Navy Plane Missing Fear 5 Men Dead

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A U. S. Navy plane with five aboard is missing and believed to have crashed in the ocean off nearby Point Loma.

The coast guard said a Point Loma resident reported hearing a plane dive and crash about 11 o'clock Thursday night. This was shortly after the navy R4D two-engine passenger plane took off from the naval air station here.

The plane was en route from El Centro, Calif., to Alameda, Calif., with a crew of three and two passengers.

Planes early today spotted a life jacket on the water but no wreckage.

Police Foil Bank Holdup

ST. LOUIS (AP)—One bandit shot and killed himself, two others were wounded and a policeman was shot in the head here today in an attempted bank hold-up.

One bandit, trapped in the bank with capture imminent, shot and killed himself as police poured tear gas into the bank. About 20 persons, including employees, took refuge in the basement.

One bandit, driving the get-away car, escaped uninjured. Two of the other robbers were wounded, one in the back and another in the foot. The condition of one was reported serious.

The robbers were surprised by two policemen, who were cruising within a couple of blocks of the Southwest Bank.

The two policemen were at the bank minutes after an alarm had been sounded by an employee.

Demands Labor Laws Scrapped

WASHINGTON (AP)—John L. Lewis asked Congress today to strike from the law books "lock, stock and barrel" all labor laws passed in the last 21 years.

The burly, 73-year-old mine workers chief, in a prepared statement, told the Senate labor committee:

"This proposal is seriously made. The ever rising tide of industrial strife in recent years and the repeated governmental interferences . . .under existing law and the bitterness engendered thereby in all segments of our population justify the Congress in striping the statute books of both the Wagner and Taft-Hartley acts."

That would leave two basic laws dealing with organized labor—the 1932 Morris-LaGuardia Act and the 1914 Clayton Act.

The Taft-Hartley law, passed in 1947 to supersede the 1935 Wagner Act now is up for possible revision before the Senate and House labor committees. Most of organized labor favored the Wagner Act and wanted it kept on the books.

No matter how amended, Lewis said, the Taft-Hartley Act will remain "a thorn and a spear in the side of American labor."

Hope To Extend PoW Exchange

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The United Nations today sought an indefinite extension of the exchange of sick and wounded prisoners of the Korean war.

The Reds have returned 500 Allied prisoners, as scheduled. They have received 2,499 Communist disabled, including 700 Chinese, at a rate of 500 a day except for today, when one North Korean refused to return.

The Communists asked a one-day postponement of full-scale armistice negotiations which had been slated for Saturday.

They said there were administrative reasons and suggested the session be held Sunday.

Rear-Admiral John C. Daniel, chief UN liaison officer, readily agreed.

He promised the Reds they could expect "an increase over our original estimate" of 5,800 Red sick and wounded to be returned.

The Communists promised to give back "all" Allied sick and wounded, including those captured recently.

900 Of 1,000 Prisoners Died In Horrible Death March

FREEDOM VILLAGE (AP) — One thousand American soldiers cut off from their lines. . .700 of them wounded. . .all so desperate that they spelled out a giant S O S with corpses of their fallen comrades. . .eventual death for 900.

That new story of horror in the early days of the Korean war—in November, 1950—was related today by Pte. William J. Trabucki, 21, Pittsburgh. He just had been returned by the Communists after 29 months in their prison camps.

The 1,000 were stranded after a "horrible" battle in which there were nearly 75 per cent casualties.

"We were desperate. . .so desperate that we even spelled out messages with bodies in the snow," Trabucki said in a brief interview which didn't allow time for many details.

HELP NEVER CAME

Trabucki said one plane sighted the S O S in corpses and he understood helicopters were being sent to pick up the wounded.

But help never came.

"Instead a message came through to take off in groups of five. Most of us didn't want to leave the wounded so somebody—I don't know who—arranged to surrender."

Under the surrender agreement, "the wounded were supposed to be released. But they were not.

"I'd say a few—no more than a dozen out of the 700—lived."

MARCHED NORTH

The Communists left some of the 700 wounded behind, but lined up more than 1,000 men and ordered them to march north.

For 28 days they struggled over North Korean roads, arriving about Christmas at a prison camp the captives labelled as Death Valley, Trabucki said.

In the next few weeks "more than 200 men died of starvation."

New Oppressive Measures Indicate Fright In Kremlin

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

NEW YORK (AP)—A rising tempo of oppressive measures against workers and farmers in the Soviet hinterland indicates that a frightened regime sits in power in the Kremlin today.

Communist party leaders have been instructed to tighten the screws on workers and peasants in all the 16 Soviet republics to wring out a maximum of production at a minimum of cost. And the Soviet press makes it clear that these orders extend to satellite Eastern Europe.

That is not the only sign of uneasiness in the Kremlin. Apparently the purge is continuing—a purge of unreconstructed Stalinists. They are being lopped from responsible party and government positions.

GENERAL TIGHTENING

Security measures have been tightened everywhere, with Russians taking over the chief police posts from men of other nationalities in the republics outside the big Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic.

The impression is that Premier Georgi Malenkov and police czar Lavrenty Beria, his first deputy, are working in concert to bolster their power. The best information is this: As long as Malenkov remains in the top post, Beria is safe, and so long as Beria remains in the No. 2 spot, Malenkov is safe—the two are mutually dependent.

Tightening of the security forces began before Stalin died. This slipped through Soviet censorship this week. It ties in with a report from a reliable observer who was in Russia at the time of Stalin's death.

This observer got the impression that Stalin suddenly soured on the power ambitions of the Malenkov-Beria combination, that possibly he even suspected his power twins engineered the deaths of Andrei Zhdanov and other Stalinist leaders. Thus the arrest of the doctors and the fantastic story of their plot, all denied after Stalin's death.

Lawyer Pleads Guilty To Stealing Money

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Floyd A. Baillargeon, Windsor lawyer who was disbarred last week, today pleaded guilty to stealing money from a client. He was remanded in custody until May 8, when he will be sentenced.

Baillargeon pleaded guilty to stealing $2,434.93 from his client, Joseph Randall. Crown attorney Hervey McCulloch, of Hamilton, who prosecuted the case, said that Baillargeon received a cheque from Randall to pay off a mortgage, but deposited the money in his own bank account.

The cheque was deposited on August 28 of last year, Mr. McCulloch said, and Baillargeon withdrew the money steadily in small amounts. There is now a small overdraft in the account he said.

Benchers of the Law Society of Upper Canada last week disbarred Baillargeon for professional misconduct in converting a client's money to his own use, and for failing to keep proper records. His appointment as a notary public was also revoked.

Canada Negotiates New Trade Pact With Japan

OTTAWA—(CP)—Canada is negotiating a new trade agreement with Japan which Trade Minister Howe expects will be "mutually beneficial to both countries". The minister made the disclosure in the Commons Thursday as he piloted his estimates through the House and parried opposition criticism of Canada's trading policies. The trade department will spend $17,303,000 in 1953-54 compared with $16,900,000 in 1952-53. Mr. Howe was questioned closely about Japan—to whom Canada sold $102,000,000 worth of goods last year and took $13,000,000 in return—and about Japanese competition.

He said "negotiations are proceeding for a trade agreement between Japan and Canada in an amicable and friendly manner and we have good reason to believe that an agreement will be arrived at which will safeguard the interests of Canadian manufacturers and at the same time will be mutually beneficial to both countries."

SEEKS MEMBERSHIP

He also said Japan has applied for membership in the 34-country General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. Japan's application would be considered when the agreement comes up for review this year.

But he could not say if the review would result in renewal of certain concessions in the agreement or in a widening of its scope. He could not anticipate the attitude of the United States.

Canada, he said, will seek a three-year renewal of the tariff-reducing pact.

Much of the opposition criticism was about loss of some markets in Britain and what should be done about it. A CCF spokesman—Ross Thatcher (Moose Jaw)—said if Canada does not regain the British food market, many Canadian farmers will face ruin, but Britain herself could do much more than at present to sell in this country and get the dollars to buy Canadian produce.

"FICTITIOUS TALK"

Mr. Howe replied that Canada sold Britain $745,000,000 worth of goods in 1952, with sale of Canadian foodstuffs at a peacetime high. Talk of food surpluses in Canada, he said, was in many cases "fictitious."

He believed that convertibility of sterling was "some months or years away," but the U. K. is making steady progress and Canada is ready to do everything to help. Canada had given Britain $100,000,000 worth of defence orders and favored giving Britain the preference whenever the price, delivery date and quality justified it.

A scarcity of goods in Britain was hampering sales to Canada, he said. But he expected this situation would be corrected as Britain's position improved.

Mr. Howe said he felt certain that Britain will buy wheat from Canada in the next crop year whether she comes in or stays out of the new international wheat agreement. Britain has refused to meet the $2.05-a-bushel maximum price in the new agreement.

NOT REQUESTED

Replying to Solon Low, Social Credit leader, who said Canada should accept sterling in return for British purchases from Canada, Mr. Howe said that would be the same as giving Britain an interest-free loan. Britain had not asked Canada to do that.

Mr. Low said the main cause of the world's "trading sickness" is a non-realistic outlook by the United States, an outlook Canada had shared. Instead of accepting sterling for goods, Canada had gone along with the U. S. in trying to bolster up a non-workable world trading system based on such agreements as GATT which just wouldn't produce balanced trade.

John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge) said that through GATT the United States may be aiming "at the utter destruction of the British Commonwealth."

Mr. Thatcher said Britain should send more salesmen to Canada, set specific delivery dates, give priority to Canadian orders and increase her servicing facilities in this country.

The Canadian government could help too, Mr. Thatcher said, by increasing defence orders in Britain, instructing Crown corporations to buy British where possible and even consider further tariff concessions to Britain.

Charge Railways Welsh On Deal

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian chief of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen Thursday night accused the railways of "welshing" and "stalling" in implementing a wage agreement reached in February under the threat of a rail-crippling strike.

But A. J. Kelly, boss of the 22,000-member union, said no strike is contemplated while the complaints are under arbitration.

Mr. Kelly said he looks for a decision in the next few days from the arbitrator, Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada, and he said he hopes the verdict will be favorable.

The union and the railways placed arguments Thursday before Mr. Justice Kellock. A major point at issue, Mr. Kelly said, is that the railways are disputing a part of the settlement applying to freight train employees and ntil it is settled are holding up retroactive pay cheques for all BRT members. The retroactive pay goes back to April 1, 1952.

Warships Try Rescue Wounded

SEOUL (AP) — U.S. warships steamed through a bombardment from Communist shore batteries today in a bold operation to rescue wounded men from an Allied-held island at the entrance to Wonsan harbor.

There was no report whether the ships were hit or whether the mission was successful, but the navy said the ships and supporting navy planes silenced the Red guns.

The ships were the light cruiser Manchester and destroyers Owen, Henderson and Epperson.

In the air, Capt. Joseph McConnell, a Sabre jet pilot from Apple Valley, Calif., was credited with downing his 10th Red MiG to become the Allies' fifth double jet ace. He also damaged another.

Historical Society Round Table Meeting

The second meeting of a group interested in forming a Peterborough Historical Society was held in the form of a round table discussion at the Public Library Thursday night.

The following committee was formed to study the drawing up of a constitution: Dr. G. S. Cameron, Magistrate W. R. Philp and F. D. Kerr.

The group also discussed necessary steps towards a workable plan for future projects.

The next meeting will be held May 20 at the Public Library when Mrs. R. G. Maniece will give a paper on Old Peterborough Homes.

3 Minor Blazes

TORONTO (CP) — Firefighters are battling three minor blazes in Ontario's forests. The lands and forests department said today that two of the outbreaks are in the Tweed district and the other is near Fort Frances. Weather forecasts for the week-end indicate the forest fire danger will increase.

Grocery Breakin Nets Thief $97

Breaking into Ross' Food Market on Hunter St. E. some time late Thursday night or early this morning, a thief took $97 from a drawer and left undetected.

A further $17 in a nearby pouch was left untouched.

Entrance was gained by prying a board off a window at the front of the store. The thief climbed into the cellar, went upstairs, took the money and left the same way.

Manager of the store, D. E. Ross, had left about 10.30 Thursday night. The theft was discovered shortly after eight o'clock this morning.

Sergeant of Detectives John Stevenson and Detective Douglas Farthing are investigating.

China, said the Communists now are pouring from 2,000 to 3,000 tons of military equipment a month into rebel bastions. Most automatic weapons, he said, are of Czech manufacture but the heavier ones bear Chinese characters.

"With these new arms, which are of a superior type, the Vietminh is becoming a more and more formidable foe," Salan said.

He said the number of Chinese "technical advisers" with the Vietminh forces had risen to about 7,000.

FRESH SETBACK

The general issued his statement as French forces suffered a fresh setback in their efforts to repel the rebel invasion of Laos.

The main landing field on the Plaine des Jarres where a major battle was anticipated became water-logged today, hampering a vital part of the French defence system in central Laos. The rebels were reported to have almost surrounded French positions on the plain.

Salan said he believed a second Vietminh division was moving down through Laos to reinforce the one already at the plain.

The general expressed confidence that French forces could counter any attack on the city of Luang Prabang, home of the king of Laos.

The French Air Force has been striking at routes leading to the China border, but the Vietminh seems to be getting plenty of ammunition to push the war against Laos, a tiny club-shaped state which until now has formed a buffer between the rebels in coastal Annam and Thailand and Cambodia, the Indo-Chinese state in the south.

All three Vietminh spearheads are pointed at Luang Prabang, the capital of King Sisavanglong, which lies in the approximate centre of the "head" of the club in the north.

Informed sources said the Thailand government, feeling itself menaced by developments in Laos, has decided to move about 40,000 Indo-Chinese from the frontier city of Long Mekong to the interior. Many of these Indo Chinese in Thailand are Communist sympathizers who might make up a fifth column.

"And, remember this," the chancellor added. "If we don't join up with the West, we cannot sustain an economy to support our own people. Without trade with the West we might be isolated and face catastrophic economic consequences."

28 Boys Respond For Boxing Club

LINDSAY (ENS)—Coach Lloyd Burrows of the Kiwanis Boxing Club which has been re-activated in Lindsay this spring after a layoff of two years, said this morning that last night's workout of the club, the third of the year, attracted 28 Lindsay boys to the temporary quarters of the club.

Some of the boys are coming along says Mr. Burrows and with Harry Peirce organizing the proceedings, the hopefuls boxed 54 rounds last night. Some of the boys with previous experience were standouts in the action last night, notably Alex Pearson, Clifford Smith, George Dames, and Tommy Quibell.

Mr. Burrows is looking for opportunities to present summer boxing shows in the Lindsay area, for organizations and clubs willing to support them.

The club in its former great days, produced some good fighters from this area. Among the more recent graduates, Herlihey of Downeyville, won the 175-pound championship at Western U this year but lost the intercollegiate final at Queen's. George Johnson, another graduate, won the services championship at Camp Shilo, Manitoba, and then when in Korea with the forces won his division of the United Nations Forces championships. Another youngster, Hutton, won the 118-pound title at the Halifax navy base this year.

Student Killed In Oshawa Crash

OSHAWA (CP) — Allan K. Mitchell, 17, a veterinary student from Saskatchewan, was fatally burned Thursday night when the panel truck in which he was riding crashed and caught fire near here.

A fellow student, Murray Martin of Junite, Saskatchewan, was treated for burns to the hands.

Students at OAC in Guelph, the youths had picked up a new truck in Toronto and a new trailer in Peterborough from the H. B. McGinness Co. Ltd. to transport to their western homes. The truck and trailer were for Alberta dealers.

After the truck went out of control on a grade of highway east of here, Martin managed to get out but couldn't free Mitchell for some time.

He said he finally managed to pull him out through the vehicle window.

Aerialist Faints 50 Feet In Air

WASHINGTON (AP)—Twirling unconscious in the air 50 feet above the centre ring at a circus, a pretty young aerialist was rescued by a fellow performer Thursday night.

Kitty Oriol, 24, blacked out while hanging on the end of a cable held in the teeth of Dave Oriol who was suspended by his knees from a trapeze.

She was held by a harness about her head and neck when she slumped into unconsciousness.

As spectators shrieked, Mathias Coronas of a Czechoslovakian high-wire troupe raced to a small rope ladder.

He scaled the ladder, unstrapped Kitty and carried her unconscious to the ground.

A physician for the circus said Kitty apparently fainted from the heat.

Prices Hold Firm On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO (CP) — Prices held firm in early afternoon stock market trading today but signs of weakness appeared in some sections.

Western oils were up. Industrials were firm and golds turned mixed. Base metals slipped.

Bonville, a uranium prospect, traded more than 565,000 shares to gain 13 cents. Other uraniums were mixed and New Brunswick base metals held firm.

In base metals Eastern Metals and Barvue climbed. Noranda dropped $1.

In Western oils, Anglo-Canadian, Home and Triad rose. National and Fargo slipped.

In the industrials list, papers, constructions, foods and liquors slipped while refining oils, banks, manufacturing companies, retail stores and miscellaneous issues gained.

Senior golds and holding companies held firm as Kerr Addison, Inspiration and Lake Dufault gained, but juniors slipped.

possible." He said there would be no delay in his own country and predicted complete ratification "by autumn."

After adoption of the resolution on EDC, French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, who voted for it, asked continued support for his country in the war in Indo-China.

The council urged ratification at an early date of the European Defence Community pact, under which France, Italy, Belgium Luxembourg and The Netherlands—all NATO members—would pool their fighting forces with West Germany's.

The resolution was presented by State Secretary John Foster Dulles of the U. S. who told a press conference Thursday night that Congress would be looking for some other way of defending Europe if there was not substantial progress toward ratification of the treaty by June 30.

VERY IMPORTANT

As reported to the press the resolution declared the whole community of 14 North Atlantic nations regards with "extreme importance" the rapid entry into force of the treaty.

Of the six parliaments which must approve the pact, only the West German lower House has ratified it.

Later today the NATO ministers were to take up the major work of their current session, their military budgets. They must decide how much they can spend on defence without weakening their national economies.

HIGHER AUTHORITY

The statement said: "Regarding allegations of ill-treatment by the repatriated Commonwealth prisoners, this has been referred to higher authority. Information at hand is that no ill treatment has been reported by prisoners from the Commonwealth forces so far returned to us."

Capt. George Vanner, 25, of Toronto, who was three days within the Commonwealth tent in Freedom Village, was interviewed by The Canadian Press in the presence of Lieut. Dan Loomis of Ottawa, aide-de-camp to divisional commander Maj.-Gen. Michael West and 2nd Lieut. J. Y Gauthier, Quebec, both of whom have seen most Commonwealth prisoners.

They said that as far as they could see the prisoners have all been well treated within the limits of Chinese capabilities.

When a British security officer said Thursday he is responsible for the security enforced on all Commonwealth prisoners, consternation was caused by this correspondent's rejoinder that Ottawa instructed that all correspondents have the same access to Canadian prisoners as to U.S. prisoners if medically able to be interviewed.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

Y's Swim Course Starts May 4

The two-and-a-half-week learn to swim campaign sponsored by the two Peterborough Ys in co-operation with the Public School Board will start May 4.

Children in grades five to eight are eligible to enroll for the swimming course which will take place twice weekly.

It is estimated by the end of the two-and-a-half-week course that 80 per cent of the youngsters will be well on their way to being fair swimmers and able to swim the length of the pool. Another 20 per cent should be abe to try the beginner's test.

The learn-to-swim course was first introduced in Peterborough in 1936 by Jim McClenaghan and more than 1,000 girls and boys have learned to swim through the classes.

All applications must be in by April 28 in order to enter the course.

Treat PoW Well In Hospital

PANMUNJOM—(CP)—Pte. Arthur J. Baker of Montreal, second Canadian soldier exchanged by the Communists, said today he lost consciousness after being wounded near Little Gibraltar hill and was captured by the Chinese, who held him prisoner 17 months. The 31-year-old member of the Royal 22nd Regiment, speaking hoarsely due to a cold contracted six days ago, said he received good hospital treatment throughout his captivity. Baker, among the first of a group of Allied prisoners released by the Reds today, was named Monday by L./Cpl. Paul Dugal of Quebec City as one of 16 Canadians held by the Communists. Dugal was the first Canadian prisoner to be released.

Tired and somewhat grizzled in appearance, Baker told newspaper men he was captured Nov. 28, 1951, the day after the Van Doos' 2nd battalion made its famous five-day stand holding ground flanking Little Gibraltar against continuous Chinese attacks.

HEAVY SHELLING

The battalion underwent incessant shelling. On the night of the battle, Baker suffered shell and mortar fragment wounds in the legs, feet and trunk.

He said he recovered consciousness in the Chinese lines and found his wounds dressed.

"I was put in a cart and pushed by hand the first day until I reached a hospital," he said. "I stayed overnight and then was taken north by truck. Finally I reached a Chinese hospital."

That hospital became Baker's home until April 19 when one of the hospital hands told him he was going to be exchanged. He left half an hour later, bringing nothing with him.

He said he was well treated in the hospital. Doctors saw him regularly and his dressings were changed.

"We got Chinese food—rice, lettuce, potatoes and turnips. It wasn't prepared the way we cook it but it was all right."

TWO MEALS A DAY

He had two meals a day in winter and three in summer.

The reason he was so long in hospital was that, when his wounds healed, he contracted a form of sleeping sickness. He still tires easily and wants to sleep.

He would seem to recover during his hospital stay, then relapse again.

"So they just kept me in hospital."

Lieut. J. Y. Gauthier of Quebec City was waiting at Panmunjom to welcome Baker to freedom.

Baker told The Canadian Press he couldn't believe someone from his own unit would be there to receive him.

Gauthier, who accompanied Baker to Munsan, said the former Van Doo, whose term of enlistment in the Canadian Army expired more than a year ago, appeared in fair shape.

ALLOWED INTERVIEW

Capt. George Vanner of Toronto, Canadian medical officer at Munsan, permitted Baker to be interviewed by newspaper men.

Gauthier said Private Baker "walked across under his own steam and we sat together in the ambulance during the drive to Munsan. He told me about hospital life. He said he thought he noticed that Commonwealth prisoners got preferential treatment to others, especially when they discovered I was a Canadian.'"

Gauthier added that Baker told him the hospital doctors were all women. When they noticed that a scar on his leg was rather large and was not healing they operated to close it properly.

Gauthier said the released Montreal soldier told him: "The doctors were competent but they lacked equipment. They applied a local anaesthetic and operated with scissors and a razor blade."

Baker added that he saw other operations performed in a similar manner.

COMMANDER THERE

Brig. Jean Allard of Nicolet, Que., commander of the Canadian 25th brigade, was waiting at Munsan with Maj.-Gen. Michael West, commander of the 1st Commonwealth division.

Allard said: "After an interview, we took Baker back into the ward tent and issued him with a complete Canadian kit. He was a changed man when we put it on—pleased as punch as he donned his jacket, put a cap badge on and adjusted his beret in the familiar way. He said he was especially happy to have good Canadian army boots again."

At the time of Baker's capture in 1951, Communist negotiators at Panmunjom were arguing with United Nation representatives over a cease-fire line and the Van Doos' battle represented a last-minute attempt by the enemy to wrest dominating ground from the UN forces.

Crash Damages Total $135 In 3 Accidents

Damage estimates totalled about $135 in three accidents on city streets Thursday.

One at the corner of Water and Hunter Sts., at noon involved James Andrews of Lakefield and Norman Reddick of Apsley.

Andrews was driving south on Water when he stopped for the red light at Hunter St. Reddick, driving behind, failed to stop in time to avoid striking the Andrews' vehicle.

Damage to Andrews' car was estimated at $30 while Reddick's car sustained $20 in damages. PC Art Beardsmore investigated.

Mrs. Adeline Racy of 78 Lansdowne was driving on Lansdowne early Thursday night when she was forced to make a wide right turn on to Lock to avoid striking a cyclist.

Her car came into collision with one owned by Andrew Hudson of 116 Lansdowne, causing damage estimated at $10 to her car and $48 to the Hudson vehicle. PC Harold Andrew investigated.

The third occurred on George St. in front of the Metropolitan store.

Fred Maybe of 342 Downie St. was parked at the curb and had just started edging away from his parking space when a second car driven by Fred Panter of 643 Chamberlain pulled into the space in front of him.

When the two cars collided, damage amounting to $5 was caused to Maybee's car and $20 to Panter's.

PC Jack Wilson investigated.

PARKING PROBLEM SOLVED—Parking was no problem for the driver of this car which came to rest squarely on top of another in St. Louis. Elma Sykes, the driver, was unable to straighten out the wheels on a left turn, and the car went on to "park" this way.

Roy Dodge Chairman Of Recreation Group

COBOURG (ENS)—Roy Dodge, who was a member of the recreational commission when it was formed some years ago, heads this year's commission as chairman.

When the commission was first organized it received substantial financial assistance from the town and various local groups but the corporation has had to reduce its financial assistance and other groups followed suit.

Accordingly, the commission's activities have been considerably curtailed but at least it will be able to assist in the recreational program for small children.

Salvation Army Commissioner Describes Death 98 Companions

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Commissioner Herbert Lord of the Salvation Army, free again after 2½ years' internment in North Korea, said today 98 of his fellow captives were "written off" during a seven-day march of death in Communist territory.

"They fell out during the march and we never saw them again," Lord told a press conference.

In general, the commissioner said, he had no complaints against what the North Koreans or the Chinese could not help doing, "but we do complain at the cruelty and tyranny of one person." He identified this person as a commandant known simply as "the Tiger—we never did know his real name"—who was in charge of the death march.

The seven-day trek covered more than 100 miles. The captives slept in frozen fields and were given little food. The "Tiger" told Lord that if any of the marchers fell out, their company commanders would suffer the full rigors of military law—execution. The first day 13 American soldiers fell out. The company commanders were threatened with death but intervention by Lord and others saved their lives—except for "one unfortunate incident" which Lord declined to elaborate on.

DETAILED ACCOUNTS

The bronzed, 63-year-old commissioner, who spent 26 years as a missionary in Korea before the Second World War and was interned by the Japanese in Singapore during that conflict, gave a detailed account of what happened to him and other internees from the moment of capture to the strange circumstances surrounding their liberation this month.

Through the changing fortunes of war, Lord and his companions moved from camp to camp, sometimes bad, sometimes good, experiencing harsh treatment at times, never sleeping in a bed, suffering all the frustrations and uncertainties that usually befall prisoners.

The "Tiger" left them in February, 1951, and was replaced by a commandant who later suffered tuberculosis. They so respected this man that they have obtained permission to send him streptomycin.

CONDITIONS GOOD

At one camp, controlled by the Chinese, conditions were "almost heavenly."

"We got white flour, meat, vegetables, pheasants and chickens, toothpaste and tooth brushes, toilet soap, towels, changes of clothing and shoes." This was toward the end of their internment.

Summarizing his experiences, he said: "We are not complaining about what they could not do, but we do complain as far as the death march was concerned, and do complain of the cruelty and tyranny of the man who was in charge of it—the 'Tiger.'"

Form Committee To Mark Coronation

LINDSAY—(ENS)—Representatives of many Lindsay organizations and clubs met Thursday night and selected a committee to organize the town's Coronation celebrations.

Many suggestions were offered but nearly all the speakers stressed the religious nature of the celebration. Lieut. H. Rickard of the Lindsay Ministerial Association and the Rev. Berry Armstrong endorsed the stand that religous services should take a leading place in the day's program.

Mayor Charles Lamb was in the chair and later promised the town's financial support, mentioning, as did Ald. Bruce Maidens, a figure of some $300.

Some of the suggestions offered were: A massed patriotic and religious service, to be held outdoors, with clergy participating; a parade of veterans, school children and other groups; games and athletic events for the children; fireworks and a bonfire at night, followed by a street dance for the adults.

Those named to the committee were: Chairman, Jasper Forman; Mrs. C. Laidley, Mrs. W. C. Follwell, Ald. Bruce Maidens, Charles Pilling, Cliff Cote and the Rev. A. E. Cresswell.

Death Sentence For 7 Africans

NAIROBI, Kenya (CP)—Seven Africans were sentenced to death in the Supreme Court of Nakuru today for the murder of a British farmer in a terrorist raid last January.

Three more Africans received indefinite jail terms and two were acquitted.

Farmer R. E. Ruck, his wife, small son and an African servant were all killed in the bush knife raid.

Said the judge: "The bestiality and savagery of the murders beggars the power of words."

New steps have been taken, meanwhile, in the campaign against the terrorists.

The entire city and district of Nairobi was decreed a special area in which security forces were given authority to shoot anyone who fails to halt when challenged.

Cobourg Red Cross Campaign Lags

COBOURG (ENS) — The Red Cross campaign so far has obtained only $3,334 and the objective is $5,000.

There are some returns from the rural section and from the business canvass still to come in. These may alter the picture somewhat.

The crippled children's fund sponsored by the Rotary Club is doing well.

Another drive for funds is now under way, that of the YW-YMCA, with an objective of $5,000.

Jailed Two Months On Liquor Count

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Kew Fong, Front St., was sentenced to two months in jail Thursday for keeping liquor for sale.

Alan Laver, of Warkworth, was fined a total of $35 and $5 costs for having liquor in a place other than his residence.

Assessor Resigns

COBOURG—(ENS)—Dick Hall, assessor for Northumberland and Durham counties, has resgined to take a position with the assessment department of the engineering firm of George Warnock of Montreal. He was appointed counties' assessor two years ago when the counties decided to have a re-assessment of Northumberland and Durham.

Mr. Hall will be doing a lot of travelling in his new job and his family will continue to reside in Cobourg.

Smelt Run Again

COBOURG (ENS)—The warmer weather has started the smelt season up again. Thursday night they were running in Factory Creek after a lapse of about a week.

Cold weather had prevented the smelt from running in very large numbers and it was noted that most of them were being netted along the lakeshore near the outlets of streams rather than in the mouths of creeks.

Firemen's Fire

COBOURG —(ENS)—The fire department which has been fighting grass fires all spring, sometimes four or five in one day, had another grass fire call late Thursday afternoon on Ontario St. S. There was still some grass in the field that remained unburnt so the firemen lit it and had a fire for themselves, guaranteeing that at least there would be no more calls to that partiocular field.

George Biggers Heads Newspaper Publishers

NEW YORK (AP)—George C. Biggers, publisher of the Atlanta Journal and Atlanta Constitution, was elected president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association Thursday.

Biggers, vice-president for the last two years, succeeds Charles F. McCahill, general manager of the Cleveland News, who had served as association president for two one-year terms.

Among those re-elected to the board of directors was Walter J. Blackburn, president and publisher of the London Free Press, London, Ont.

Mendell Braund Dies Suddenly

Mendell Ralph Caldwall Braund, 55, 571 Chamberlain St., died suddenly in hospital today.

Mr. Braund was born in Peterborough, son of Ralph Carlos Braund and the former Emilia May Greene and has lived in Peterborough all his life.

He operated a grocery business on Chamberlain St. for many years. A member of the Salvation Army, Mr. Braund was a bandsman with the corps.

He leaves his parents; his wife, the former Anne Beer; one daughter, Mrs. W. Wilkinson (Doren), Peterborough; four sons, Aubrey, Frederick, Gerald and Carlos Jr., all of Peterborough; two sisters, Mrs. Aileen Richardson, Peterborough, and Mrs. Nelda McLean, Cleveland, Ohio; and three brothers, Dr. Grant Braund, Toronto; Keith Braund, Ottawa, and Garth Braund, Peterborough. One sister, Mrs. C. J. West, predeceased him in 1951.

The funeral will be held Monday at 2 p.m. from the Kaye funeral home to the Salvation Army Temple. Major H. G. Roberts of the Salvation Army will conduct the service. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

Busy Mayor

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—Mayor Louis Lowry, who will become city retail sales manager for an oil company here May 1, informed council he was prepared to continue as mayor on a part-time basis. He suggested his horarium be reduced from $4,200 to $2,400.

Farmers Plan Work Stoppage On Highway

CHATHAM (CP)—District farmers today threatened to force stoppage of work on the new controlled access highway between Toronto and Windsor. They object to land-buying methods used by the Ontario department of highways.

The farmers, members of the Southwestern Ontario Highway Association, said they will ban construction workers from their properties if the abuses are not corrected. They appointed Lawrence Kerr of Harwich to present their grievances to Highways Minister Doucett.

One association member, Leonard Girard of Woodslee, said he signed an option form with the highways department two years ago for 2½ acres of land. He did not get paid for the option and has been forced to pay taxes on the property, he said.

Settlement promises many Hardwich township farmers for damage to their property by surveyors had not been paid. It was promised two months ago, association members said.

W. S. McKillop, warden of Elgin county, said he did not realize the extent of the situation in the Chatham district. He said farmers in his area would "know what to expect" when road construction reached that district.

Young Musicans Get Twelve Scholarships

KITCHENER (CP) — Twelve piano and violin scholarships were awarded at the Waterloo county music festival Thursday night.

The winners: Piano, Virginia Belfer and John Taylor of Galt; Marion Snyder, Jean Ott, Betty Wildfong, Ruth Shaffer, John Dick and Catherine Hallman, all of Kitchener and Marion Koegler of Waterloo; violin, George Ferguson of Ayr; Loisann Wolstenholme of Waterloo and Nancy Fietsch of Kitchener.

The winners will perform in the festival finale at Kitchener-Waterloo collegiate Saturday night.

Good Impression On Tour Viscount Montgomery Says

MONTREAL (CP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery bade farewell to Canada today, sailing for home aboard the Empress of Scotland following completion of a tour of military establishments in the United States and central Canada.

In a statement read to newspaper and radio men aboard the ship, Lord Montgomery said nations cannot have security without preparedness, the ability to spring to arms quickly should danger confront them.

Preparedness could be achieved but "only if the people of each nation are prepared to make sacrifices." All nations, he said, must make sacrifices through the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to provide "peace for the next 50 or 100 years."

The deputy commander of Allied forces in Europe said he was "most favorably impressed" with the military establishments visited and the young men he met on his tour.

"As long as Canada can produce such good men they should have no fear for the future."

He thanked the people of Canada for the "very friendly welcome I have received everywhere" and said he will return in August to open the Canadian National exhibition at Toronto.

Manitoba Election To Be Held June 8

WINNIPEG (CP)—Premier D. L. Campbell today announced a provincial general election will be held June 8. Nomination day will be May 25.

The election falls between two other provincial votes already announced—Nova Scotia on May 26 and British Columbia June 9.

Voting in the northern riding of Rupert's Land will be deferred until July 6 with nomination day June 22.

Proud Record

CALGARY (CP) — Mrs. Helen Grassick, nurse-technician, has closed a six-year Red Cross career after taking a total of close to 70,000 blood donations. She helped to establish the Red Cross blood donor clinic here in 1947.

Let Them Crow

The Minister of Justice, Mr. Garson, is trying to hurry the revision of the Criminal Code through Parliament, and he warned the Commons and the special parliamentary committee on this bill that every Communist in Canada will "crow" if the bill is not passed during the present session.

* * *

Well, what about it? Let them crow! What could be more stupid than for the parliament of a democratic country to hustle an important revision of its Criminal Code through both houses on into the statute books simply to quiet the ill-natured exultation of a handful of ill-conditioned rascals. This revision is of the utmost importance to the country and if it takes until next year to complete it, let us not hurry the work.

* * *

We are surprised that a man of Mr. Garson's abilities should worry about what Canada's Communists think. Of course it would delight them if the bill were delayed, for they have been up to their usual antics, protesting by telegram about this, that and the other in order to impede the work of the parliamentary committee. But it would please the Communists even more if the bill were passed with faults in it which made it unworkable, and reduced sections of our Criminal Code to a snarl of contradictions and illogicalities. We must get it through our heads that the chief purpose of such poor splinters of international communism as the Communist party in Canada, is to make mischief, to impede whatever is being done, to protest—in short, to make infernal nuisances of themselves in any way they can.

* * *

If they want to crow about something, let them crow. The job of our parliament is to make the best and wisest laws it can for our country, not to bother about the jeers of the local communists. Jeering is their business.

Helping Deceased Soldiers' Children To College

Widows of soldiers, seamen and air force men receive a pension, and an allowance for their children. These are certainly not enough to provide a university education for the children, such as might have been provided had the serviceman lived and been able to set aside money for this purpose. An act has been given first reading in Ottawa by which the Government of Canada will accept responsibility in this regard, which the deceased father was prevented from carrying out through his sacrifice to his country. The bill is certain of passage. Members on both sides of the House approve its principle and applauded its introduction by the Minister of Veterans Affairs.

Briefly, the bill will provide for the Government to pay the tuition and living expenses of children of deceased veterans killed during the Great War and the last war, and of other deceased soldiers to enable them "to continue, within an educational institution, their education or instruction beyond matriculation, secondary school graduation, or equivalent education". By "educational institution" it means a university, college or other school of higher education. In addition to having his fees and other costs paid, he may receive an allowance of $25 a month.

This educational assistance will not be given to every deceased veteran's child. He must, in the first place, be continuing his education, and be able to qualify for university entrance or the professional school he may wish to attend. It will not be given a person beyond his twenty-fourth year. It will cover four academic years—the usual length of a university degree course.

A special provision is made in the Act for children of deceased veterans who may have quit their formal schooling before the Act passes. They may, if qualified, enter university and be entitled to the special assistance, within fifteen months after the act comes into force. Other children, thereafter, must proceed immediately to the higher education, directly from high school, in order to qualify for the benefits. In other words, they cannot leave school, decide three or four years afterwards that they would like to go to university and then take advantage of the education assistance.

Another clause in the act provides that any student receiving the benefits who twice fails any examination on his course will be disqualified from the assistance.

The Act, when passed, is scheduled to come into force on the first of July. After its passage, details will be provided any widow receiving a war pension on behalf of her children, should she or they be interested in the terms. The Act does not of course apply to children of ex-servicemen who may have died since they put off uniform. In effect, it is for sons and daughters for whom pension allowances are already being made to the widow.

Other Peaceful Moves

The North Korean and Chinese Communist officials have decided to free more prisoners of war. This is a conciliatory gesture, and shows that the incitements to a peaceful settlement in Korea are still strong. Mr. Churchill has told the House of Commons—which cheered him lustily— that he hopes Russia and the West will soon sit down to a conference to end the cold war. President Eisenhower has made his important statement on foreign policy and the requirements of peace and yesterday said he was ready to do anything and confer anywhere to bring about peace in Korea.

Peace is not achieved over-night; it requires a proper soil and climate. The climate is now favourable. Some digging and testing of the soil is now in order.

Peterborough On The Bulletin

The Ontario Department of Highways issues a weekly printed pamphlet describing the condition of the highways, calling attention to detours and construction work, and giving other details of the road surface. In the current pamphlet, for instance, we see this description of Highway 28:

No. 28 Highway—Port Hope to Bancroft —95.9 miles. Paved except Gravel from: six miles north of Burleigh Falls to twelve miles north; twenty miles north of Apsley to Bancroft. Bituminous Surfaced Gravel from: twelve miles north of Burleigh Falls to Apsley. Construction from: twenty miles north of Apsley to Bancroft, rough. Rough from: seven miles north of Port Hope to Bailieboro.

Our purpose in mentioning this weekly Road Bulletin is not to acquaint readers with the condition of Highway 28. They know it already. Nor even to tell them what Number 7 is like west of Peterborough. (Actually, the Bulletin fails to mention that the paving on Number 7 from Fowler's Corners to Omemee is the roughest surface a driver is likely to encounter outside a blazed trail through woods.) No; the reason for mentioning the current issue of the pamphlet is that it contains in its twelve pages three of the most pleasant full-page photographs of Peterborough points we have lately set eyes on.

The cover page (the pages are, by the way, only six inches by nine) shows the Hunter Street bridge from the south-east—taken near Riverside Park with the Quaker Oats building behind. Building and bridge look really fine and handsome. Inside is a charming photograph of the canal and the poplars along it, and inside the back cover is a view of Little Lake and the pier; another charming picture. All are flattering to Peterborough. The back cover tells in brief the story of Peterborough's rise and spread; a well-turned story.

It is gratifying that the Department of Highways sees fit to publicize this city and does it so well.

By the way, these weekly pamphlets, called Weekly Road Bulletin, are available without charge from the Ontario Department of Highways, Toronto. They can be especially helpful to anyone planning a trip and wishing to be forewarned of pitfalls like "PATCHING from: Iroquois Falls to Porquis Junction". Where is that? That is Highway Number 67.

NOTES AND COMMENT

The trouble with so many self-made men is that they were so inexperienced until they were at least half-way through.

In Italy there is a law which makes it a criminal act to eat any legal document. As a way of disposing of evidence, however, it has the virtue of completeness.

It is predicted that the earth's population will double in the next 70 years. It's a solemn thought that humanity should become any denser than it is.

An Indiana child threw its mother's apron, with a $20 bill in the pocket, into the fire. The mother may console herself with the thought that the bill was only worth about $10, anyhow.

In a recent BBC contest for child composers a little girl cheated by submitting a piece by Mozart and was awarded second prize. This ought to cheer the winner, if it does nothing else.

We now know that Queen Mary always carried an umbrella to take some of the weight off her feet, which were sensitive. In a really sensible world the umbrella and the w[illegible]tick would never have been permitted to go out of fashion.

A government official in New Zealand made a survey of a property which had been suggested as a sports field, and sent in this report: "It is obvious from the difference in elevation with relation to the short depth of the property that the contour is such as to preclude any reasonable development potential for active recreation". Translated, this means the field was too steep to play on.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

DEAR ALPHA: I understand that although Peterborough became a place only after the immigration of the Irish paupers from the Cork area, it had its beginnings and took its subsequent tone from English gentry. Therefore, it seems to me, Peterborough owes little to the Irish and should have no reference to them, even indirect, on the new coat-of-arms of the City.

ANSWER: Before the Irish immigrants came, in 1825, under the Peter Robinson management, there were settlers here, some of them veterans of the Napoleonic wars. But as I read the story, the Irish immigration saved many of these, especially the gentry, from destitution. They got government jobs, became middle-men to the Irish settlers, and thus staved off hunger, physical work in the fields or a penniless and ignominious return to Britain. They set up stores, they became postmasters, land agents and the like.

Even so, this has been an Irish community, chiefly because the genesis of the town of Peterborough was the Irish immigration from Cork, although most of them were settled outside the town, in the new townships. The fact is that even the gentry were mainly Irish-Protestant Irish, and so it continued through the century, through the Moodies, the Stewarts, the Traills. The poor Roman Catholic Cork immigrants were as Irish as they could be, but so were many of the gentry, of Protestant Irish stock.

I would like to hear some arguments on this theme: that the English in this district were unimportant to it; that it was the Irish, peasants and gentry, which generated it . . . In arguing the point, my readers must take into account the prevailing Peterborough-Cavan-Emily-Douro accent; more Irish than English.

✧ ✧ ✧

LAST WEEK I referred to a letter written by Miss Edith B. Lewis of Hudson Heights, Que., about nineteenth century Peterborough days. Miss Lewis seems to have misconstrued either her original letter or my references to it. At any rate she has now written this: that her sister Mrs. (Canon) Davidson was the only member of her family NOT born in Peterborough — which is what I said. She also adds, contrary to her first letter, that the Rev. Mr. Davidson of St. John's was never stationed in Ottawa at any time: "I think he was in Uxbridge before Peterborough, or possibly succeeded his own father at Colborne."

✧ ✧ ✧

SIR: Why do they call a funny-bone a funny-bone? This, not the bone, tickles my fancy.

ANSWER: The term is applied to what anatomists, call, I believe, the inner condyle of the humerus, a blow upon which jars the ulnar nerve and produces a funny tingling sensation. An old dissection-room joke is this: "Why is the funny-bone funny?" "Because it borders on the humerus." Ha, Ha!

IN THE NOTE two weeks ago on the Lumsden family, it was incorrectly stated that the stone house on the hill west of Warsaw was a Lumsden home. It was built by Sampson Lukey. The Lumsden house, replacing the original log cabin homestead, is a two-storey building on the other side of the village.

SIR: How many courts are there in Ontario and with what do they severally deal?

ANSWER: All aspects of criminal law are within the competence of the Dominion. Civil claims are generally within Provincial competence. The Governor-General in Council (the Federal Cabinet) has exclusive authority to appoint judges in the Superior, County and District courts. Lesser judicial appointments such as magistrates, justices of the peace, sheriffs, clerks of the peace, crown attorneys and coroners are within Provincial jurisdiction, and the Province or the municipality pay their stipends. The salaries of judges are paid by the Federal Government. Here are the courts:

(1) Division Courts: presided over by County Court Judges. These courts have a civil jurisdiction to the following extents: money claims on contracts up to $400 where the amount in question is ascertained; $200 in unascertained claims, and $120 in personal actions (which may be increased to $200 where the parties consent).

(2) County and District Courts: These have a civil jurisdiction in contracts up to $800, and in other actions usually up to $500. Sittings, with or without jury, are held at least semi-annually in each county and district town.

(3) Surrogate Courts: County Court Judges are invariably named by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council (the Provincial Cabinet) as Judges of the Surrogate Courts. These are situated in county towns and have a wide jurisdiction with respect to the granting and revoking of letters probate of wills and letters of administration of the property of deceased persons.

(4) Supreme Court of Ontario: This is the highest Provincial court. It has two branches (a) the High Court of Justice and (b) the Court of Appeal. The High Court has, outside Division and County Court areas, original jurisdiction in both civil and criminal matters. Its Judges, with headquarters at Osgoode Hall, travel on circuit throughout Ontario holding assizes for criminal matters and both jury and non-jury sittings in civil cases. The Court of Appeal sits permanently at Osgoode Hall. It hears appeal in civil matters from Division Courts, County Courts and the High Court of Justice, and also various types of appeals in criminal cases.

(5) Mining Court: The Judge of the Mining Court has powers similar to those of a Judge of the Supreme Court sitting in a civil case. He is, however, appointed by the Province and is paid from Provincial funds. The Court has jurisdiction in matters arising under the Mining Act.

✧ ✧ ✧

CRIMINAL COURTS: These are (a) the Magistrate's Court, the County Judges' Criminal Courts (see above), the General Sessions of the Peace, the Supreme Court of Ontario (see above), the Supreme Court of Canada, which is the final court of appeal in criminal matters.

There are other courts, to which Ontario people may have recourse, such as the Exchequer Court of Canada and its Admiralty Courts. For Ontario the division is the Ontario Admiralty District. It has prize jurisdiction over all manner of captures, seizures, prizes and reprisals of all ships, aircraft or goods.

DEAR ALPHA: Is sugar the only food still rationed in Britain? I understand that it, too, will soon be unrationed.

ANSWER: Shell eggs were "decontrolled" on March 26th. In his Budget Address, Mr. R. A. Butler said that sugar would be taken off the ration soon. That will leave still on ration bacon (five ounces), cheese (1½ oz.), fats (9 oz.), and meat (1s 9d worth) a week.

✧ ✧ ✧

COUNTRY NOTE: A lamb was born to one of the three remaining, non-maternal ewes Wednesday night. Why do they always have their deliveries after midnight when I have retired to sweet slumber? . . . He is, by the way, the seventh male of the eight lambs which have first seen the light of day on Belle Acres. Only one female. Does that indicate Nature is preparing for World War III in the sheep world? The new lamb has a nice black nose and his mother is very possessive . . . Three of the cats survived the winter, somehow, somewhere. They are all back at the dish of scraps, one of them wearing what I assumed was winter fat. A visitor to The Acres snorted and said: "Fat? Kittens." And spent the rest of the evening maliciously computing how many cats I woud have by September . . . Spent yesterday grinning; the return of the sun and warm weather was so wonderfully heartening. Snow last Sunday and Monday were the latest in Alpha's living memory.

ENOUGH FUEL TO GET IT ROLLING AGAIN

Colombians In Korea

By J. HALCRO FERGUSON

IF PEACE is concluded in Korea, one of the countries directly affected will be the Republic of Colombia, the only Latin American country to have sent troops to aid the United Nations —troops which, incidently, have acquitted themselves with great courage and effectiveness, and astonished more than one American observer by their ability to get along quite nicely without a mountain of ancillary equipment.

The story behind the presence of the tough little Colombians in Korea is a curious one. Between the two world wars and during the last one, Colombia acquired the reputation of being one of the most stable and democratic of Latin American countries, where the Army stayed out of politics and professors became President. The slow rate of social progress, however, finally split the Liberal Party in 1946, after sixteeen years in office, and the Conservative Party—strongly clerical and somewhat feudal— was returned to power on a minority vote. In 1948 the assassination of the Left-wing Liberal leader, Jorge Eliecer Gaitan, by an unbalanced fanatic, caused an uprising among the masses. Official Liberal leaders joined the Conservatives in restoring order to the capital, Bogota, and the big provincial cities, but as soon as this had been achieved the Conservatives threw the Liberals overboard and began to turn Colombia into a one-party state.

Since then a veritable civil war has been raging in several parts of the country. The Liberals have been branded as bandits, and have in some cases been forced into behaving like bandits, while genuine bandits are having a field day. The Press is heavily censored, Congress has been suspended, Liberal leaders have been shot "accidentally," Protestants are being persecuted and Catholic members of the Liberal Party denied Christian burial by Conservative priests. President Urdaneta Arbelaez and his predecessor, Laureano Gomez, who made no secret of their admiration of Adolf Hitler during World War II, now make no secret of their admiration for General Francisco Franco.

Why, it may be asked, should such a Government send troops to defend liberty in Korea? There are three reasons. Firstly, the Colombian Government does not like the rival brand of totalitarianism called Communism. Secondly, it wants aid from the United States, including more arms with which to suppress opposition at home. Thirdly, the Korean theatre of war is a good place to send young men who, if they were not fighting Chinese and North Koreans, might fight the Conservative Government at home instead. As far as the troops are concerned they don't mind going: they don't like Communists either, and for many of them life in Korea is not much more uncomfortable than life in Colombia. At least there are some rules—and some allies—in the Korean War.

If peace breaks out, the return of all these young men, who have found out just what a disciplined unit, however small, can achieve against odds, may well be an embarrassment for the Colombian Goverment, unless it can persuade the Governments concerned that they need military assistance from Colombia in Indo-China, Malaya or Kikuyuland.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea; though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof. Selah.

There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacles of the most High. God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved: God shall help her, and that right early.

The heathen raged, the kingdoms were moved; he uttered his voice, the earth melted . . . Be still, and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth. (Ps. 46: 1-6, 10.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And when the sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, had brought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint him . . . And when they looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away: for it was very great.

And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted. And he said unto them, Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him. (Mark 16:1,4-6.)

✧ ✧ ✧

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God . . . All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made. (John 1: 1, 3.)

Nice For Ma!

(Detroit Free Press).

In the very near future, we anticipate the housewife will have to be licensed as an electronic engineer in order to run her home.

This conclusion is reached after reading the announcement made by David Sarnoff, chairman of RCA, about the invention of a new televison camera which will enable Mom to keep an eye on any part of the house while seated in her easy chair.

This camera device will throw pictures of various parts of the house on the regular television screen, so the housewife can see whether the old man is cleaning up the basement, as he was told to do.

This makes it all pretty cushy for the little woman who'll have to stir around hardly at all, although Sarnoff offers no guarantee that a picture of unwashed dishes, piled in the sink, will automatically wash them.

WHICH?

After the family had been increased to three it was decided to employ a girl as nursemaid. "My husband is very particular whom we engage" said the mistress to the girl who applied for the job. "Are you faithful? Have you a kind and loving disposition? Will you ——"

"Excuse me, madam," said the girl, "but am I to take care of the baby or your husband?"

AMERICA'S REPLY TO THE "COMET"

Howe, M.P. Clash In House Over Sugar Beet Policy

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe and J. W. Murphy (PC—Lambton West) clashed in the Commons Thursday over Canadian imports of Cuban refined sugar and things the minister was quoted as saying about them.

At one point Mr. Howe accused Mr. Murphy of being a "stooge" for J. W. McGregor, president of the Canadian and Dominion Sugar Company. At the request of the chairman he withdrew the word "stooge" but substituted "emissary."

Mr. Murphy, himself a sugar-beet grower, pressed the minister during a debate on trade for a statement on what was being done about imports of Cuban refined sugar and the prospects of sugar beet growers this year.

NOT MENTIONED

Earlier the minister had said in an interview that Cuba has placed a ban on exports of refined sugar to Canada, but he did not mention this in his exchange with Mr. Murphy.

Mr. Murphy said later outside the House that he knew of this development and added that the minister "should have made the statement in the House." Mr Murphy later issued a statement welcoming the Cuban action and said it would open the door to greater trade with Cuba.

Earlier Mr. Howe had said on his return from a Latin-American trip that included Cuba, that that country had agreed to cut shipments of refined sugar into the sugar-beet growing areas of Canada.

Referring to this in the Commons Mr. Murphy said that during a recent speaking trip to Mitchell, Ont., Mr. Howe had been interviewed by a sugar-beet grower, Wilfred Brockman. He quoted from a press clipping.

In the clipping Mr. Howe was quoted as telling Mr. Brockman that his House statement about curtailment of Cuban imports had been to the effect there would be no "direct" shipments to Canada. According to the press clipping Mr. Brockman then asked the minister if his Commons statement was "only a shield" and the minister replied "that's right."

"MISQUOTATION"

Mr. Howe jumped up. That was a "direct misquotation of what happened," he said. "My honorable friend (Mr. Murphy) was not there. It is hearsay. If he continues to stooge for Mr. McGregor, he might at least be decent about it."

Deputy chairman W. A. Robinson ruled the word "stooge" unparliamentary.

"I withdraw it," Mr. Howe replied, "and I will say 'emissary.'"

Mr. Murphy said he wanted it made plain he was "no emissary for Mr. McGregor or of anybody else in the processing industry." He was a grower who was born in the sugar-beet growing area.

CNE Boosts Awards

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian National Exhibition prize money for agricultural sections this year will be more than $100,000. Sam Foster, the fair's agricultural superintendent, said Thursday this amount is higher than last year's total awards and should help agricultural exhibitors meet increased costs. The fair this year runs from Aug. 28 to Sept. 12.

Army Lists 16 Soldiers As PoWs Now

OTTAWA (CP)—A Korean casualty list today transferred 16 soldiers previously listed as missing in action, to the status of prisoner-of-war.

All persons listed were reported alive and in enemy hands by L.Cpl. Paul Dugal of Quebec City, who was released by the Communists in a prisoner exchange last Monday.

Army headquarters said reports from Canadian officers who have interviewed Dugal indicate they are satisfied that all 16 Canadians are alive, as Dugal reported.

Today's list, No. 175, altered the status of the 1,308 Canadian casualties in Korea to: 248 dead, 947 wounded, nine missing, 87 injured in action and 17 captured.

In addition, the navy has reported three dead and three injured in action, and the air force has reported one missing.

Previously reported missing, now prisoners of war:

Cuban Sugar Ban Called 'Good News'

STRATFORD (CP)—It's the best news we've had in a long time," a spokesman for the Stratford District Sugar Beet Growers' Association said Thursday when he heard that Cuba has banned exports of refined sugar to Canada.

Wilfred Brockman said the news "should have a wonderful effect on sugar beet acreage in the province."

300 GEORGE ST. BESIDE CAPITOL THEATRE

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

NHL bulletin No. 25 was received several days ago but we weren't permitted to release it till tonight. It gives the first and second all-star teams for 1953. Players from the NHL champion Detroit Red Wings dominate the first all-star squad for the third straight year. Here 'tis: Goal, Terry Shawchuk of the Wings; defence, Red Kelly of the Wings and Doug Harvey of Canadiens; forwards, Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay of Detroit, and Fleming Mackell of Boston. Second team is: Goal, Gerry McNeil of Canadiens; defence, Bill Quackenbush of Bruins and Bill Gadsby of Hawks; forwards, Alex Delvecchio of Wings, Rocket Richard and Bert Olmstead of Canadiens.

* * * * * *

The all-star team was selected by hockey writers and broadcasters in the six NHL cities, each place being allowed three votes. Points are awarded on the basis of five for a first choice, three for a second and one for a third, while an unanimous choice consists of 90 points. Judging is strictly on performance during the schedule. You may or may not like some of these choices, but there they are. Each member of the first all-star team picks up $1,000 from the league, and each member of the second squad pulls down $500. These are nice bonuses after league play and extra playoff do-re-mi, and the winners also have a good argument for a fat contract next season.

Doc Calls Consultation

President Dr. Don Aitken of the grid Orfuns has called an executive meeting for the "Y" at eight p.m. next Wednesday. Last year's financial report will be read, plans for the 1953 season discussed, a coach possibly named at this time, work on a booster club outlined, sub-committees formed, and discussion held on new CRU bylaws. All executive members should attend. Orfuns' vice-prexy this year is Gordon McGavin, while Dr. Wilf Preston is secretary, and Dennis Fitzgerald, treasurer. Co-managers are Gord Beatty and Wally Farr. Stan McBride looks after grounds and equipment for the 1952 Eastern Canada intermediate champs, Dr. Ralph Smyth deals with the schedule and game, while Bill Shadgett is the administrative chap. Trainer again is Leo Tompkins, as Dan O'Connell is the minor grid member, and Dr. Les Calvert medical director.

* * * * * *

There are other chaps, too, keenly interested but who prefer not to act in an executive capacity. A grid enthusiast doesn't lose his interest easily in the autumn classic. We hear the Orfuns have had several applications for the job of coach, and some of these applicants may appear in person at the Wednesday meeting. Just what our grouping next fall will be is hard to say yet, as there's talk of Belleville coming in and also rumors that Oshawa may not be back. However, it's too early yet to worry about the grouping, though it's time to name a coach and check on prospective players ere Fred Dufton of Cobourg put the snatch on 'em all!

Eight Clubs Expected

Practices are going regularly these nights, softballers commencing last eve, senior lacrossers on a nightly diet now, and the junior OLA prospects getting in trim, too. It looks like Peterborough Pats will operate this season in an eight-team OLA junior "A" setup, other clubs being: Mimico, Orillia, Long Branch, Oakville, Dundas, Brampton and St. Catharines. Six of them are expected to be strong squads, but some doubt has been expressed as to the "A" or "B" calibre of Oakville and Dundas. After all, junior "A" lacrosse is pretty fast. This was shown last year when several of the local lads stepped up toward the end of the season and went well with the senior Petes in playoffs.

A dispatch from Hamilton today indicates that Lou Plummer beat a law rap when the magistrate dismissed an assault charge against the burly Texan pro grappler. Lou had his partner, Dick Raines, and the referee as witnesses. The complainant was a fan who said Plummer hit him in the face with a horseshoe Lou was carrying after the main bout when Primo Carnera and his partner had been beaten by Dick and Lou. The magistrate ruled that the fan wouldn't have been hit had he remained in his seat. We've seen Pummer and Raines having to fight their way through angry mat crowds here on more than one occasion, and wouldn't be surprised to learn that's why the terrible Texans tote that "lucky" horseshoe in and out of the ring with them in their bouts.

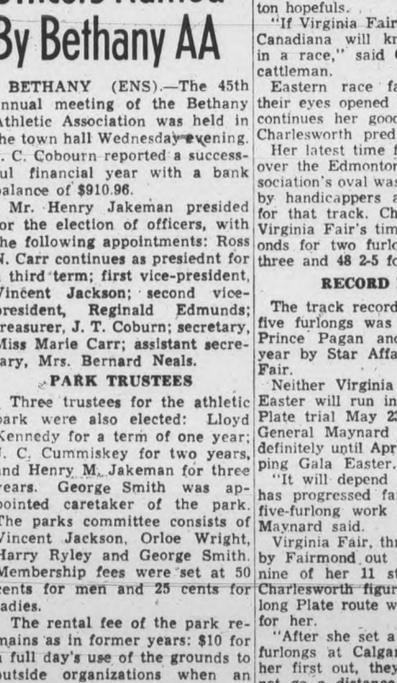
Down Sports' Rialto

Kitchener erased Smiths Falls last night for the Eastern Canada senior "A" puck title . . . It's 2-2 between Weston and Waterloo in OHA junior "B" finals at present . . . West Yorks play Brampton an exhibition senior lacrosse game Saturday in Orillia; a number of Orillia players are seeking berths with the Yorks . . . OLA senior clubs meet this weekend in Mimico to deal with the schedule and other matters. Cherney's won the Major Bowling League title, as Aces won out in the YM senior lasses' loop . . . Latter windup dinner is next Wednesday at 6.30 p.m. in the Empress . . . King Edward took a 16-7 intermediate school softball win from Prince of Wales . . . Re-organization meeting of the PMBA (minor ball) is at 7.30 tonight in the City Hall . . . Bun Morganson writes: "Parfitt is heading the mad scramble among West Toronto managers for Doug Plunkett's signature. The former Peterborough righthander is in great demand since taking up Toronto residence." . . . Kingston Uniteds open the Eastern Ontario League soccer schedule against UEW in Morrow Park tomorrow afternoon . . . The local soccer Merchants are at Trenton next day . . . That wipeth off the Friday slate.



Canadian Scores Win In Dinghy Racing

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP)—Bermuda won the Amorita Cup Thursday when its yachtsmen scored their fourth straight victory in the best-of-seven series over the united States' international one-design sailors.

A Canadian broke the sequence of Bermuda victories in international 14-foot dinghy racing when W. Dawson of the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club took first position on the second leg of the course and was never headed.

John Mills, also of the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club finished in sixth place.

Enter Allan Cup Finals

Dutchmen Pound Smiths Falls Team 6-0

OTTAWA (CP)—Despite their distaste for Ottawa's egg-shaped rink, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen moved into the Allan Cup finals Thursday night with a convincing 6-0 win over Smiths Falls Rideaus in the deciding game of their best-of-seven Eastern Canada senior hockey final.

The high-flying Dutchmen now meet Penticton V's, Western Canada titlists, in a best-of-seven series in the East for the coveted trophy. The opening game will be played in Kitchener Monday night.

After the game, team officials were too absorbed in their victory over the Rideaus to continue their criticism of the Ottawa playing surface. Kitchener at first refused to play the seventh game of the series on Ottawa ice but changed their minds when W. B. George, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, told them they would play in Ottawa or forfeit the series.

The Kitchener dressing room was packed with bustle and excitement as team members hurried to catch a train for home.

Probably the happiest member of the team was stocky Keith Woodall who turned aside 25 scoring attempts for his shutout. Goalie John Craig of Smiths Falls stopped 21.

"The boys really gave me good protection out there," he said as he took off the pads. It was his first shutout of the series.

"It was a tough series," said coach Bobby Rafferty. "I was really happy with the way the boys caught fire in the third period and especially pleased with the showing of young Greg Hicks."

Hicks, who has one year to go as a junior, picked up one goal and helped on another in the wide-open third period when Kitchener scored four goals.

In the Smiths Falls dressing room, coach Hal Dewey said merely: "We've scored only two goals in the last three games and you can't win games that way."

The Dutchmen forced the seventh and deciding game by taking three of the four games played in Kitchener and Guelph after dropping the first two here to the Rideaus.

Jack McKenzie and Don Rope scored two goals each and Harry Psutka tallied the other.

McKenzie rammed home two goals in less than two minutes late in the second period after Rideaus held a slight edge in play during the first half of the game. Don Bauer and Charlie Brooker assisted on both, the first from close-in and the second on a 12-foot break-away drive that caught the upper part of the net.

Psutka started the third-period rally at 9:21, picking the corner on a pass from Clare Martin. Hicks counted at the 11-minute mark on a passout from Paul Oliver before Rope added two more, his first 17 seconds after Hicks.

The eight minor penalties issued were evenly divided.

Officers Named By Bethany AA

BETHANY (ENS).—The 45th annual meeting of the Bethany Athletic Association was held in the town hall Wednesday evening. J. C. Cobourn reported a successful financial year with a bank balance of $910.96.

Mr. Henry Jakeman presided for the election of officers, with the following appointments: Ross N. Carr continues as presiednt for a third term; first vice-president, Vincent Jackson; second vice-president, Reginald Edmunds; treasurer, J. T. Coburn; secretary, Miss Marie Carr; assistant secretary, Mrs. Bernard Neals.

PARK TRUSTEES

Three trustees for the athletic park were also elected: Lloyd Kennedy for a term of one year; J. C. Cummiskey for two years, and Henry M. Jakeman for three years. George Smith was appointed caretaker of the park. The parks committee consists of Vincent Jackson, Orloe Wright, Harry Ryley and George Smith. Membership fees were set at 50 cents for men and 25 cents for ladies.

The rental fee of the park remains as in former years: $10 for a full day's use of the grounds to outside organizations when an entry fee is charged: $5 for a half day; $3 to any outside group who do not charge admisison. In the case of local churches or welfare organizations the park is free of charge provided the grounds are left in a clean condition.

It was decided to celebrate the Queen's birthday May 18 and plans were made to include a full afternoon of sport events, a concert and dance.

Hope Rayson and Creighton Carr were appointed the advertising committee. An entertainment committee comprised of Creighton Carr, Orloe Wright, Robert Sisson and J. C. Cummiskey were appointed to look after the evening's program and a sports committee comprised of Hope Rayson, Reginald Edmunds, Bruce Ryley, Mrs. Bernard Neals and Miss Marie Carr were appointed to arrange the afternoon's program.

The baseball committee appointed were Wilfred Reynolds, Vincent Jackson, Reginald Edmunds and Bruce Ryley; girls' softball committee, Mrs. Bernard Neals and Miss Marie Carr. J. T. Coburn, George Smith, Henry Jakeman and James McKinnon were appointed to look after selling tickets. Bruce Ryley was appointed auditor.

Alberta Horses May Steal Glory When Queens' Plate Run In June

By LORNE BRUCE

EDMONTON (CP)—A couple of Alberta horses could steal the glory from the favored Canadiana when the June 2 Queen's Plate is run at Toronto's Woodbine track.

Virginia Fair, owned by J. A. (Jim) Charlesworth, and Gala Easter, owned by Attorney-General Lucien Maynard, are Edmonton hopefuls.

"If Virginia Fair ships all right, Canadiana will know she's been in a race," said Charlesworth, a cattleman.

Eastern race fans should get their eyes opened if Virginia Fair continues her good workouts, Charlesworth predicted.

Her latest time for five furlongs over the Edmonton Exhibition Association's oval was 1:01, described by handicappers as "very good" for that track. Charlesworth said Virginia Fair's times were 24 seconds for two furlongs, 36 1-5 for three and 48 2-5 for the half-mile.

RECORD IN 1939

The track record of 1:00 2-5 for five furlongs was set in 1939 by Prince Pagan and equalled last year by Star Affair and Virginia Fair.

Neither Virginia Fair nor Gala Easter will run in the six-furlong Plate trial May 23 and Attorney-General Maynard will not decide definitely until April 30 about shipping Gala Easter.

"It will depend on whether she has progressed far enough for a five-furlong work and the time," Maynard said.

Virginia Fair, three-year-old filly by Fairmond out of Branca, won nine of her 11 starts last year. Charlesworth figures the nine-furlong Plate route won't be too long for her.

"After she set a record for four furlongs at Calgary last year in her first out, they said she may not go a distance," Charlesworth said in an interview. "Then she won at five and 6½ furlongs."

EASIEST WIN

"Her easiest win was at seven furlongs when she won by five lengths and was only 1-5 second off the track record set 20 years earlier by a five-year-old carrying 16 pounds less.

"Both her mother, Branca, and her father, Fairmond, were distance runners."

A leading North American track observer described as a probable record Virginia Fair's feat last year of going six straight races and being in front at every call in the chart.

Gala Easter is a three-year-old colt by Gala Hour and out of Moore's Gift which won the Winnipeg and British Columbia futurities. Gala Easter, route-running grandson of Sir Galahad III, won twice at Toronto last fall.

Gala Easter now is in Calgary with other horses from the attorney-general's Murray Hill farm.

Virginia Fair earned a little more than $10,000 on western tracks last year.

King Edward Wins

King Edward intermediates took a 16-7 public school softball triumph over Prince of Wales "A" team yesterday, bunching seven runs in the fourth inning and nine next time to bat. The losers got three in the fourth, and two each in the second and fifth. Elmsley hit a homer in the fourth for the victors, while Davis and Allen each banged out four-baggers for the losers in the fifth. Teams:

Prince of Wales: Andrew, Todd, Falkner, Davis, Allen, Julian, Davis, Meredith, Gilders, Heath.

King Edward: Curtis, Elmsley, Finney, Outram, Rogers, Lumbard, Jenkins, Weese, Towns, Cuff, Meredith, Roseborough, Stevens, Hunter.

DO YOU OWN A CAR?

When the man who developed Bardahl Rad Conditioner brought his car to a garage for repairs, the garage owner phoned to ask him what on earth had he put in his radiator. He said that when they drained his radiator the water was so thick with dirt it would hardly pour. The Bardahl Rad Conditioner had removed rust, scale and dirt untouched by a popular brand chemical cleaner. The garage owner immediately placed an order for their own use. Since then hundreds of thousands of car owners in Canada and the United States have used Bardahl Rad Conditioner. If you own a car you should try it too . . . if your car is new it will keep your radiator in permanently new condition . . . if you have been running your car for a few years you'll be amazed at the dirt, rust and scale it will remove. Bardahl Rad Conditioner keeps radiators clean . . . eliminates rust formation which can insulate a motor, causing harmful overheating . . . and it also lubricates and stops squeaky water pumps. Bardahl Rad Conditioner costs only 89c. Ask for it at your Service Station.

Aces' Bowlers Champions YMCA League

Aces won the championship of the YMCA senior girls' bowling league this week by taking four points from Commandos. Glens, Lucky Strikes and Corvettes made clean sweeps over Bombers, Tigers and Hurricanes. The final standing showed Aces with 110 points, Lucky Strikes 98, Glens 92, Tigers 90, Commandos 88, Bombers 78, Hurricanes 62 and Corvettes 54.

Mary Gimblett had high three of 820 for the season as N. Henburn's 359 single was tops for the winter. The annual banquet will be at 6.30 p.m. in the Empress Hotel on April 29.

In the final night's play, Nancy Moffatt had top tree of 748, while M. Flaherty and Dot Woods rolled 690 each, Betty Pogue 685, Lil Crocker 666, N. Hepburn 648, Marg Arnold 631 and E. Pearcey 627. Mary Flaherty had high single of 312, followed by N. Hepburn 302, L. Crocker 286, N. Moffatt 282, B. Pogue 274, D. Woods 273, L. Martin 269, M. Arnold 254, B. Castle 251, P. Follis Awarded Split Decision

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Joey Follis, Toronto boxer, and Hamilton's Al Langfeldt, a southpaw slugger, whaled away at each other for five rounds in the main bout of the amateur boxing card here Thursday night before Follis was awarded a split decision. It was a 138-pound scrap.

Bob Hesson, Stratford making his return to amateur boxing after a brief whirl among the pros, drew with Henry George, a Port Colborne policeman, in the second five round feature, a heavyweight clash.

The bout was called at 38 seconds of the fourth when George suffered a bad cut between his eyes. Ordinarily, it would have gone for a TKO in favor of Hesson, but under the new Ontario athletic commission rules, a fight may be called a draw if the injured fighter receives a cut from a butted head, provided the bout is close. When it ended all three judges had the contest even.

Gary Williams of Hamilton took a unanimous decision from smooth Sammy Pilliarik of Sarnia in a five-rounder at 158 pounds, but had to battle for it.

In other bouts, Paul Beauvais, Sarnia, won from Erwin Beire, St. Thomas; Jimmy Cluff, London, decisioned Bob Devellier, Sarnia; Jerry Labelle, Port Colborne, got a split decision over Al Boyd, London, and Joe Sangoes, London, outpointed Gaston Breton, Sarnia.

Nine Home Games For Montreal Alouettes

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes announced Thursday night nine home games next season, including two exhibition affairs, the heaviest home schedule in the local Big Four football club's history. Four of the games will be played at night.

The exhibition games, under the lights, bring Saskatchewan Roughriders to Montreal Aug. 14 and Calgary Stampeders Aug. 17.

The big four schedule calls for seven home games, compared with six last year. Ottawa's Rough Riders will make three visits to Montreal, the new schedule calling for an extra home-and-home series between the two clubs.

PRESIDENT EISEHOWER, shown wearing a big smile and a button to match which reads, "Don't ask me what I shot." The button was handed him by a newsman shortly before he was to start a game at Augusta, Ga., in the hope the President wouldn't be pestered by the routine question.

4 Detroit Players Dominate NHL All-Star Team Again

MONTREAL (CP)—Four Detroit players dominate the National Hockey League all-star team for the third successive year and the make-up of the 1952-53 team, released by the NHL today, shows only one change from the 1951-52 lineup.

Centre Fleming Mackell of Boston Bruins was chosen for the first time. The 1951-52 choice was Elmer Lach of Montreal Canadiens. Mackell led the league's centres with 27 goals. Defenceman Red Kelly and winger Gordie Howe of Detroit were the only unanimous choices, with 90 points each.

Each member of the first all-star team receives $1,000 from the NHL; second-team members $500.

Hockey writers and broadcasters in the six NHL cities voted. Five points were awarded for each first choice, three for second, one for third. Each city was allowed three ballots.

COMFORTABLE MARGINS

First-team choices had comfortable point-margins. The second team's left-wing position went to Bert Olmstead of Montreal by one point over Chicago's Jimmy McFadden.

Selections, with points bracketed:

First Team:

Goal, Terry Sawchuk, Detroit (69); Defence, Red Kelly, Detroit (90) and Doug Harvey, Montreal (56); centre, Fleming Mackell, Boston (73); Right wing, Gordie Howe, Detroit (90); left wing, Ted Lindsay, Detroit (88).

Second Team:

Goal, Gerry McNeil, Montreal (57); defence, Bill Quackenbush, Boston (44) and Bill Gadsby, Chicago (30); centre, Alex Delvecchio, Detroit (22); right wing, Maurice Richard, Montreal (52); left wing, Bert Olmstead, Montreal (26).

Phillies Take 3 Straight From Dodgers, Have Eyes On Pennant

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

By now at least Brooklyn Dodgers know that Steve O'Neill is serious when he claims his Phillies can win the National League pennant. You can't be much more convincing than Philadelphia was in winning three straight from the Dodgers. O'Neill maintained all spring the Dodgers could be beaten and that he had the team that could beat them. Robin Roberts applied the clincher Thursday night, 6-1. Pittsburgh comes into Philadelphia today and the Phillies' manager has named Jim Konstanty to open against the Pirates.

The Phils have won four straight and moved into sole possession of first place with Thursday night's victory, a half-game ahead of the idle St. Louis Cardinals. In National League day games Chicago defeated Milwaukee 6-2 and Pittsburgh edged New York Giants 6-5.

DOWN RED SOX

New York Yankees whipped Boston Red Sox 6-3 and extended their American League lead to a full game over St. Louis Browns, who weren't scheduled. Philadelphia Athletics beat Washington 6-4. Detroit Tigers snapped a five-game losing streak by trimming Chicago White Sox 8-4. Cincinnati, St. Louis Cardinals and Cleveland also had the day off.

Brooklyn got to Roberts for nine hits, but the only one that paid off was Pee Wee Reese's first-inning home run. Stan Lopata homered, doubled and drove in three runs for the Phils. Granny Hamner also blasted a four-bagger off loser Johnny Podres.

The Giants outhit Pittsburgh 12-7, but the big blow in the Pirates' attack was a grand-slam home run by outfielder Frank Thomas, the first of his career. Johnny Hetki, drafted from Toronto, came on during a New York uprising in the sixth and pitched brilliantly to save the decision for Howie Pollet. Dave Koslo was the victim.

FIRST VICTORY

Warren Hacker weathered early home runs by Andy Pafko and Ed Mathews to post his first victory for the Cubs.

Mickey Mantle saved the day for the Yankees as he hit Ellis Kinder's first pitch into the right field stands at Yankee Stadium with two men on and two out in the last of the ninth inning. Gene Woodling of the Yankees had a perfect day with four singles.

Bobby Shantz won his first game this season as his teammates came from four runs behind to nip the Senators.

Billy Hoeft became the first Detroit pitcher to last nine innings as he turned back the White Sox on five hits. The 20-year-old southpaw got away fast as Russ Sullivan gave him a three-run lead in the first inning with a home run with two on base.

Buffalo Clips Orioles 6-4, Leafs Score Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jack Tighe's Buffalo Bisons belted three Baltimore pitchers for 13 hits Thursday night in downing the Orioles 6-4 to take first place in the International Baseball League.

In the only other Thursday night encounter, Toronto Maple Leafs edged Springfield Cubs 7-6. Each now has won and lost a game.

Weather permitting, Buffalo and Baltimore again tangle today and Toronto tackles Springfield. Other clubs again are idle.

At Baltimore Thursday night, Buffalo used a pair of home runs to their advantage. Ken Johnson, pitching into the eighth inning before being replaced by Johnny Weiss, allowed seven of Baltimore's nine hits and aided his own cause with a two-run homer in the third.

ROUND-TRIPPER

Hal Daugherty hit the other round-tripper, this time with two on base, in the sixth.

Baltimore hurler Dick Starr, the first of three pitchers, took the loss.

At Springfield Toronto's Mike Goliat hit a grand slam 390-foot home run in the first inning at the expense of Don Elston, making his first start in triple A ball.

The Cubs came back with three runs in their half of the first frame and two in the second off Toronto starter Bill Voiselle, who was brilliantly relieved by Ray Shore.

The Leafs went ahead to stay in the sixth when Bill Demars hit Elston for a two-run single. Darius Hillman relieved Elston in the seventh and Bob Hartig took his turn in the ninth. The three hurlers allowed 15 hits.

Pile-up Gives Many Thrills At Championship

EDMONTON (CP)—A contentious pile-up going into the last lap of the senior womens' three-quarter mile event provided the thrills at the opening of the North American speed skating championships here Thursday night.

Barbara Marchetti, favored contender for the senior women's title this year, fell in an attempt to regain her lead from Pat Underhill of Edmonton, who skated to a win ahead of Karen Mattson of St. Paul, Minn.

Miss Marchetti, who hails from Berley, Mich., almost knocked the Edmonton girl off balance as she made a desperate attempt to sprint around a sharp corner into a lead. Judges said her action was accidental, ruling out the expected disqualification.

THREE RECORDS SET

Three records were set, one of them by Edgar Dame of Revere, Mass., a navy veteran making a prominent comeback on indoor tracks after breaking his leg two years ago. Dame established a senior men's 800-yard record of 1:20.4, finishing ahead of Bob Olson of Pasadena, Calif., and John Walsh of Saint John, N.B.

Stan Fail of Los Angeles showed obvious teamwork as he "towed" the rest of the field in the men's three-quarter mile event, only to signal Dick Hunt of the same city into a lead that won him a record of 2:09.1.

David Arends of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, established the third record-breaking win, coming in at 1:29.6 in the juvenile boys' 880-yard final.

The last event, the senior men's two-mile race, saw Dame equal his previous record of 6:02.3.

LONG SHOTS GRAB LEAD

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Leaving the favored Sam Snead far behind, long shots Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa., and Earl Stewart, Jr., of Dallas grabbed the lead in the inaugural $35,000 tournament of champions Thursday with four-under-par 68s.

Travelling over the Desert Inn Country Club course, a sun-baked expanse that stretches 7,102 yards with a par of 36-36—72, Stewart posted 35-33—68 and Worsham, 1947 U.S. open champion, did the reverse with 33-35—68.

Twenty top professionals teed off on the first leg of the 72-hole event, aiming at the $10,000 first prize but only nine were able to finish under par.

Snead helped himself to a 40-39—79.

One stroke behind the pace setters were Jack Burke, Jr., with 34-35—69 and Dave Douglas with 36-33—69.

PROTEST OVER PLAYER

AYLMER, Ont. (CP)—Straffordville, engaged in the ORHA intermediate A final series with Bolton, have protested the eligibility of Johnny Irons of the Wanderer.

Straffordville claims that Irons signed two certificates this season and has played in three different leagues.

Irons, it is claimed, started the season with A. V. Roe of Toronto Mercantile League and was suspended for hitting a referee. Irons then moved to Orangeville of the WOAA for two games but was turned back by Tory Gregg, general manager of the WOAA.

STAMPS DROP BLADE

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders of the Western Hockey League will have a new coach at the helm when they start training for next season. Hank Blade, who took over from Tommy Anderson shortly after the start of the 1951-52 campaign, will not be back. Members of the hockey committee of the Calgary Stampede and Exhibition Association issued a statement saying Blade would not be available because "of pressure of business."

CARDS TRIM ROSTER

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis Cardinals sent outfielder Larry Miggins and pitcher Dennis Reeder to the minor leagues Thursday, reducing the Cardinal roster to 31 players.

Miggins, who hit .229 with the Cardinals last season, was sold outright to Columbus, O., of the American Association.

Reeder, lefthander who won 20 and lost six last season with Columbus, Ga., of the South Atlantic League, was sold outright to Rochester of the International League.

Acquit Plummer On Charge Of Assault

HAMILTON (CP)—The team of Texan wrestlers, Lou Plummer and Dick Raines, lent color to the court Thursday morning, when they arrived wearing flamingo-colored sombreros and yellow windbreakers to appear as accused and witness in an assault case. Plummer was charged with assault occasioning actual bodily harm and Raines was a defense witness.

After hearing the evidence of William Dicesare, complainant, and that of several other fans at a wrestling match held on Feb. 28 at the Municipal Pool, Magistrate Beamer W. Hopkins acquitted Plummer of the charge.

He said he believed the wrestler had been trying to protect himself from a hostile crowd, incensed of the fact that Primo Carnera and a mate had been defeated in a match by the Texan team.

Complainant claimed that Plummer struck him in the face with a horseshoe he was carrying, breaking his nose and requiring him to remain in hospital for two weeks.

HAT KNOCKED OFF

After the evidence of the last witness, Inspector George James of the park police, said his hat was knocked off in the scuffle and that he was struck over the head with a rolled-up newspaper by a woman fan. Magistrate Hopkins said that if the complainant had remained in his seat he would not have been hurt.

A referee said the crowd was largely Italian and took a dim view of the Italian's loss. He said complainant threw a stone in an ice cream cup and struck him on the head. On the way to the dressing room, he said he was struck over the head with the shoe.

Truck Goes In River Sault Driver Drowns

BLIND RIVER (CP)—Bill Crawford, 39, of Sault Ste Marie, was drowned Thursday night when the truck he was driving left a highway and dropped over a 30-foot bank into the Mississaugi river nine miles west of here.

Police said Mr. Crawford was on his way to his home 90 miles west of here. A witness said the truck swerved to the left side of highway 17 and plunged down an embankment.

Previously it was reported a second man, Ken McLean of Sault Ste. Marie, also was in the truck and was drowned. Police said today Mr. McLean was not in the truck at the time of the accident.

Lawyer To Investigate Real Estate Charges

OTTAWA (CP)—A St. Catharines lawyer, Murton A. Seymour, has been appointed by Premier Frost of Ontario to investigate charges regarding real estate deals in Ottawa housing projects, it was learned Thursday.

Nature of the charges, which have been made by Mayor Charlotte Whitton, has not been made clear. They mainly concern real estate dealings in the Manor Park area at Ottawa's eastern outskirts.

It was understood here that Mr. Seymour will investigate all aspects of the Manor Park housing area and all other recent housing developments in the capital area.

South Korean Soldier Tells Atrocities

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—A South Korean freed from Red captivity said today he saw Chinese Reds killing American prisoners on a death march and later saw "many Russians" in far North Korea near the Yalu river.

Asked how he knew they were Russians, Pte. Lim Yoo Kun said he "heard people saying they were Russian military advisers."

Lim, 44, was with U. S. troops near the Changjin reservoir late in 1950 when captured.

"I saw Chinese guards kicking American PoWs during the march and letting them die after kicking them into a ditch," he said. "The Americans could not keep up the march because of their wounds and frostbite."

Lim, physically weak, said many American soldiers died in a civilian house mainly from "poor food and wounds."

Lim said he saw "17 dead U. S. prisoners being piled up in a tent and covered with snow."

TRAVEL: with Jean Stenton

No Money Needed To Buy Goods At Tarascan Market

ERONGARICUARO—The big Sunday market at Erongaricuaro is like something out of a fairy tale because here nobody has to have any money. They buy food, wood and clothes and don't spend a cent. It is all done by barter.

* * * * *

The market starts early and ends early because the people from the islands have to get home at noon before Lake Patzcuaro gets too rough to cross in their small boats. It is one of the most colorful markets in the Republic. The Tarascan women have bright costumes. Their long full skirts are pleated all across the back, many of them are in a scarlet color. Their blouses are vivid too and they all wear beads.

* * * * *

Saturday night the people who live up on the mountain begin their trek down to Erongaricuaro on the lake with burro trains laden with firewood. When they arrive, they dump their wood along the side of the hilly street above the beach, "park" their donkeys and settle down on the street for the night.

* * * * *

Early Sunday morning, hundreds of canoas leave Janitzio and the other islands with the fisher folk who are ready to do business with their Highland cousins. The islands have no wood and the forest people have no fish so that is the basis for currency. Large boats like dots on the horizon begin approaching. Then they take a clearer formation and soon hundreds of boats head in for the landing and the islanders scramble ashore.

* * * * *

USE SPECIAL BOAT

You can drive from Patzcuaro or take a two-hour trip by launch for 65 pesos as I did. It is a delightful trip by boat. Because the lake has dropped about 15 feet the launches can't get into shore due to the weeds, so one of the canoas is poled out for you.

* * * * *

These big canoas are about 25 feet long and hollowed out of a single trunk of a tree related to the pine family. They are only a little wider than a canoe and have to be balanced carefully. There are smaller ones made the same way. I went to shore in a big one and came back in a small one. Before I could reach the beach, I had to jump from canoa to canoa till I could make the landing.

* * * * *

The sight of the beach as you approach is magnificent. Hundreds of boats are drawn up on the shore and there are hundreds of people swarming there. Some of them are putting loads in the boats. Vendors squat beside huge piles of firewood and women with big bowls of fish go along and offer so many fish for so much wood. Sometimes they bargain, sometimes it is accepted or rejected. The whole area sparkles with color. But that is only part of the market.

* * * * *

By climbing a steep path you reach a hilly street lined on both sides with more wood merchants. The same bargaining goes on. Two handfuls of fish for half a load of wood. Most of the fishermen give a little extra fish to have the load taken by burro to the beach.

* * * * *

GIVEN SAMPLE FIRST

The main market is on the Zocalo. Here you find pottery, textiles and food. Many of the merchants had mescal which everyone chews like candy. Everything is very clean and set on fresh grass and leaves. The prospective mescal buyer gets a sample first. If he likes it he will offer so much fish. Maybe it will be accepted, maybe not. Sometimes the price will be named—1 peso—but it means I peso's worth of fish. Toward the end of the market it is harder to trade. A number of women tried to interest vendors in their fish for goods they wanted but the merchants already had their week's supply.

* * * * *

The only place where you can spend any money is for corn. This is sold by people from Patzcuaro who want money. They have enough fish.

* * * * *

Coming back we had three Tarascan women, two babies and two children in my boat. They were shy but exchanged friendly smiles. Then we towed one of the big canoas to Janitzio. It had four people and was loaded to the gunwales with wood. It would have been a long, hard paddle across the lake and the wind was getting up.

* * * * *

MUCH EXCITEMENT

We had an interesting trip because half way across the children got looking at a Geographic magazine we had brought along and there were pictures of Patzcuaro, Janitzio and Erongaricuaro. There was much excitement as the women spotted it and they tried to pick out the people they knew. I was afraid we would go aground because the driver of the boat was so busy looking over his shoulder too. These people are not familiar with cameras or color photos and they couldn't get over how they got there. We had a lot of fun looking at the pictures together.

* * * *

Any time you are short of money, I would suggest this is the place to come.

Hospital Board Tries To Collect Pledges

ST. THOMAS (CP)—The Elgin hospital board is trying to figure out how to get $100,000 in unpaid pledges for the hospital fund.

In a drive for money three years ago, $455,000 was pledged. There's still $100,000 to come.

Members of the board met Wednesday night and decided on an advertising campaign to persuade some of the delinquents to pay up.

One member suggested blacklisting those who failed to meet the pledges by publishing their names and unpaid amounts in the newspaper. Other members opposed that.

The board hopes to get all the cash before the hospital's next fund rolls around in the fall.

Suggests Threat To Strike At Red China

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur declares that a U. S. threat to strike at Red China might force Russia to settle the Korean war "and all other pending global issues on equitable terms."

Vigorously renewing the controversial program which led in part to his ouster by former President Truman as the Allies' Far East commander, MacArthur said in a letter made public today:

"We still possess the potential to destroy Red China's flimsy industrial base and sever the tenuous supply lines from the Soviet. . . .

"A warning of action of this sort provides the leverage to induce the Soviet to bring the Korean struggle to an end without further bloodshed."

Such a threat, MacArthur said in a letter dated April 19 and addressed to Senator Harry Byrd (Dem. Va.), would face the Communists with a possible "Red China debacle." When the Soviet saw the U. S. had "the will and the means," he said, it "might well settle" Korea and all other world issues equitably.

NOT THIRD WAR

He declared he was sure it would not lead to a third world war.

MacArthur blamed "the inertia of our diplomacy" for throwing away what he called "the golden moment" to achieve peace after he had badly beaten the North Koreans in October, 1951.

Not only was this opportunity thrown away, he said, but a failure to capitalize on the situation contributed to the entry of the Chinese Communists in the fighting.

He wrote that normally the Chinese would not have dared to risk entry into the war, but that "by one process or another it was conjectured by, or conveyed to, the Red Chinese" that their territory would be designated as a sanctuary free from U. S. attack.

MacArthur agreed with Byrd, who had written asking his comments, that there were ammunition shortages in Korea.

But he said it was a lack of "the will to victory" that was "the over-riding deficiency."

Grain Glut Continues Until Weekend

MONTREAL (CP)—Harbor officials said Thursday they saw no relief in sight for Montreal's grain glut until at least the weekend.

Elevators are bulging and lake vessels are arriving with additional grain faster than ocean vessels can carry it out. A slight dent in supplies was made Thursday when two ship-loads left for Pakistan. Another for Pakistan left Wednesday.

Montreal Family Thrilled Son Alive

MONTREAL (CP)—When 16-year-old Emily Allan was told by a reporter Thursday that her brother now is reported a prisoner of war in the hands of the Communists instead of "missing," she replied over the telephone: "Thank God he's alive."

Official word from army headquarters in Ottawa about Pte. Thomas Allan, 21, had not reached the Allans. A few minutes later the Allan home in suburban Ville Emard was a confused scene with reporters and photographers and then the younger children coming from school for lunch.

Mrs. Allan, on an errand when Emily learned the news, was reached by telephone by her daughter. "She was so excited she couldn't speak," said Emily.

Independent experts say it's the ideal

"The Chrysler Corporation has dared to set the pace for the industry by putting into mass production the type of engine which is universally recognized as the ideal. It's the automotive scoop of the decade." That is the considered opinion of independent research engineers who have put the FireDome engine through its paces. This FireDome V-8 engine brings you, for the first time, the triple power advantages of "dome-shaped" combustion chamber, the most efficient design for complete combustion . . . short stroke design which reduces friction, lessens wear . . . high lift lateral valves, for quieter, smoother operation. And this great engine develops its rated 160 h.p. on regular grade gasoline.

THIS YOUNG HOMEMAKER simplifies moving day chores with use of clear tape. She avoids work involved in removing contents of dresser drawers (left) by sealing each drawer with strips of clear tape. The drawers are then fastened to cabinet at each end with two strips of tape. Arrived in her new home (right) she protects walls as she hangs pictures. To prevent unsightly cracks in plaster when she drives nails, she uses a criss-cross of tape over spot where nail is to be driven.

How To Organize Moving Day

Moving is a task that practically nobody enjoys except people who don't have to move. They can look on and feel smug.

Some of these non-packers may include husbands and children, both given to pouncing on rubbish about to be discarded, meanwhile yelping: "You can't throw that out! That's my college pennant!" (Class of '03). Or, "I wanna keep my stuffed toad!"

This sort of thing will get you nowhere. So, we offer an assist in the way of handy hints on moving. First things first. And the very first of these is to set aside one packing case for those articles you'll need immediately on arrival in your new home.

This means blankets, sheets, pillowcases, towels, washcloths, soap, light bulbs, flatware, coffee pot, cups and saucers and plates, plus a can of coffee. That way you can count on having a cup of coffee in your new surroundings before you dig in.

If you're not having professional packers, ask your moving man to supply you with as many packing boxes and barrels as you think you'll need. (You'll need more than you think you will).

Collect a good supply of newspapers and tissue paper to wrap all breakable both singly and well. Cushion them with wads of paper; but pillows and blankets in the bottom of the barrel.

If you have six rooms or so of furniture, plan to move in the morning when your energy and that of the moving men is highest. This way, you save on overcharges and get a definite time of arrival of the van.

Be sure to have everything packed and ready to go when the men come. Otherwise, you'll find they may be inclined to carry out one thing at a time— a mop, a broom, a powder puff.

Don't forget to notify utilities —gas, water, electricity, telephone as well as milkman and laundry. Be sure to arrange to have your newspaper sent to your new address and notify your bank, charge accounts and insurance company.

You'll all set now. Have a good time and don't work too hard. If you follow our hints faithfully and something goes wrong, we'll be out of touch. We're moving, too. To the South Seas.

Easing Tension Problem Of Pakistan's New Premier

BY HOMER BIGART

KARACHI, PAKISTAN.—Reductions of tensions in the relations between Pakistan and India will be a primary problem for the new premier of Pakistan, Mohammed Ali.

Of all the disputes now bedevilling Indo-Pakistan relations by far the most explosive one involves the supply of water by India to irrigation canals in the chief Pakistani granary—the West Punjab.

Trouble over this question began soon after the hasty partition of India in 1947. The international frontier was drawn across the eastern portion of the Indus river's basin without regard to one of the most complex irrigation systems in the world.

Pakistan suddenly found itself at the mercy of India. All four of the main tributaries of the Indus rise in Indian territory. And all of the most important diversion dams, especially those of the Sutlej are on the upper reaches of the Indus, inside India.

Many Pakistanis believe the Indians are drying up the canals of the West Punjab and that this alleged illegal diversion of water is turning into a desert one of the most fertile areas on this subcontinent. Thus they hold the Indians partly responsible for the famine threatened in Pakistan because of a disastrous failure of the wheat crop.

Actually, the real reason for the crop failure was two successive failures of the monsoon rains. There is just not enough water in the rivers for either India or Pakistan.

FAULTY ADMINISTRATION

Contributory causes of the food shortage in Pakistan have been faulty administration, lack of foresight, hoarding and unwise diversion of much wheat acreage into cash crops such as cotton, sugar cane and oil seed. Last year the wheat crop in Pakistan was 2,099,000,000 tons, a drop of 925,000 tons from the previous year. This year the country faces a deficit of 1,500,000 tons.

Pakistan has made no direct protest to India over the canal waters during the last year. There is now a tendency among more responsible officials here to accept India's word that on the few occasions last winter when the canal waters were suddenly diminished this was due to unauthorized action by subordinates and did not represent Indian policy.

But to the 25,000 Pakistani farmers who have had to leave arid acres in the West Punjab and in the state of Bahawalphur, India is the cause of all their misfortunes. The canals coming down from India are dry. The farmers conclude that India is taking all the water. An irresponsible press helps to keep their feelings inflamed.

Probably the new government headed by Mohammed Ali will discourage inflammatory statements and withhold judgment on India until after the conclusion of a report by the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (the World Bank) at Washington.

In fact, India has given to Pakistan private assurances that there will be no undue diminution of the water supply until the world Bank's study of the matter is completed.

TRYING TO FIND SOLUTION

Since last May an international team consisting of two engineers representing the World Bank, two from India and two from Pakistan has been trying to find a solution of the problem. It now has completed a survey and is expected to have recommendations ready in time for the annual meeting of the World Bank in September.

The World Bank's ultimate objective is to finance specific engineering projects by which water supplies to India and to Pakistan will be effectively increased. 100 per cent utilization of the waters of the Indus Basin during the latter half of the dry season.

Pakistan, meanwhile, is trying to tap subsoil water, and has ambitious plans for digging this year 1,300 tube wells. But these wells will have to be powered by Diesel pumps, which means that Pakistan will have to import a lot of expensive oil.

It would be cheaper to dig canals, but what use are additional canals if the existing canals are tapping all the available water in the main tributaries from January through March—the crucial months for growing wheat?

The only plausible solution would be construction of huge retention dams along the upper Indus for storage of monsoon flood waters now wasted. However, the only available sites are in remote areas of Northern Pakistan which are difficult of access for heavy machinery.

In any event, the World Bank approach offers the best hope of ending the dispute. With their rapidly expanding populations, India and Pakistan are liable to go hungry in the future unless more irrigation water becomes available.

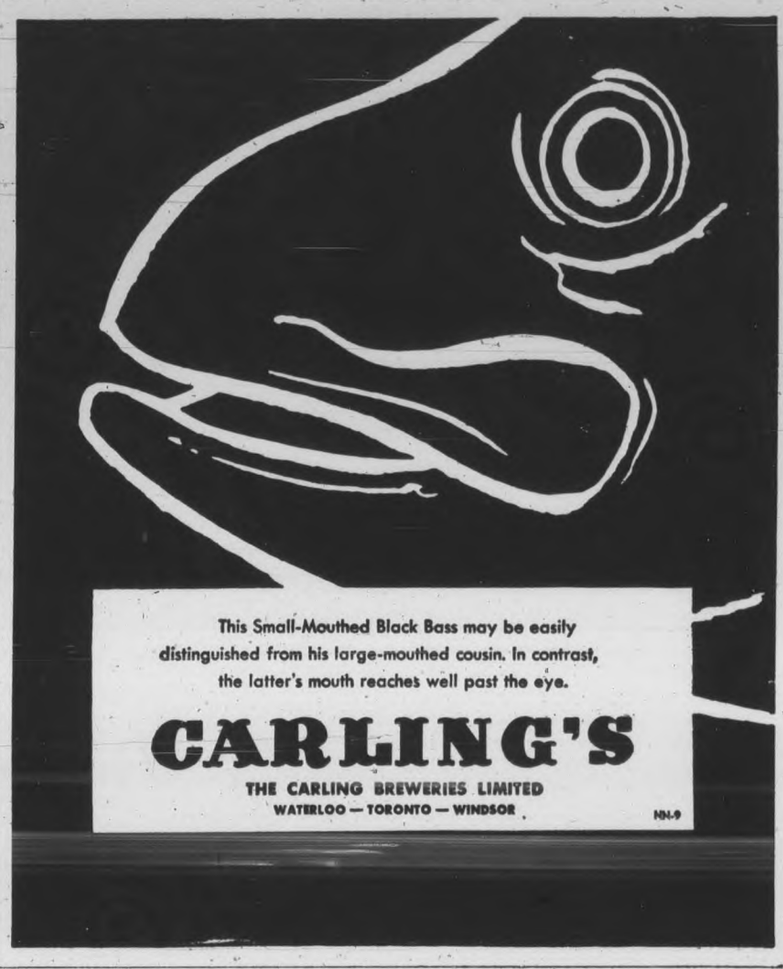
Dutch Bandsmen Leave For Canadian Army Jobs

LONDON (CP)—The first contingent of Dutch bandsmen, bound for duty with army bands across Canada, arrived Thursday in London. They leave for Canada today from North Luffenham, Rutland, aboard an RCAF plane.

"How's Calgary" or "where is Winnipeg" were typical eager questions asked army officers meeting the 15 clean-cut Dutch musicians, already Canadian army recruits and all single but one. All know where they are being posted.

A second party of married men and their families is scheduled to leave for Canada early next month.

It was their first look at England. Most were music students or professional musicians and speak English.



LEAVES FAMILY

Werner Van Zweeden, sole married man in the group, left his family in Amsterdam where his two children are finishing the school term. They will go to Canada in July by sea. Ubo Dykstra of The Hague cuddled the largest visible memento of home. He carried a wickerware arm chair, an old family possession his father gave him for company.

The group is in charge of Capt. Reg Watts of Kingston, Ont., posted to duty in Ottawa, and Lieut. Clark Dancey of Ottawa. The party is scheduled to land at Dorval airport, Montreal, Friday.

Canada has recruited about 50 Dutch bandsmen because of shortages of Canadian personnel.

The area of Quebec is approximately equal to that of France, Germany and Spain combined.

This Small-Mouthed Black Bass may be easily distinguished from his large-mouthed cousin. In contrast, the latter's mouth reaches well past the eye.

22 District Men Land At Seattle From Korea War

Among a boat load of over a thousand Canadian servicemen returning home after a year's action in Korea are 22 Peterborough and district men who landed at Seattle, Washington, Thursday.

Four special trains will speed the men of the 1st battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment to their homes shortly after their arrival.

Peterborough men who arrived in Seattle today are: Pte. Harry Watson, 68 Sophia St.; Pte. C. A. Cannon, 536 Patterson St.; Pte. E. G. Martin, 121 Montgomery St.; Pte. H. Holland, RR5,; Pte. E. L. Clancey, 460 Sherbrooke St.

Of special significance is the return of Pte. Martin. He arrives hame with a 13-month record of service in Korea and will be greeted by his wife and his 11-month-old son, whom he has never seen.

Arriving in Ottawa by special train Monday, the RCR's will be welcomed briefly at the Union station by Mayor Charlotte Whitton and Labor Minister Gregg, honorary colonel of the regiment, representing the government.

Following a short break-off to meet relatives and friends, the regiment will fall in and march to Parliament Hill, to receive from Mr. Gregg the unit colors, held "in deposit" while the regiment was overseas.

After an address by Mr. Gregg and a march past on the hill, the battalion will march through the city with fixed bayonets and colors flying. They will be given lunch at Lansdowne Park and later in the day will be dispersed to continue on to their respective homes.

A greater part of the RCRs are from eastern Canada and a few who live in western Canada will drop off en route and will not take part in the April 27 ceremonies.

The RCRs will be the first Canadian unit returning home from Korea that will be officially welcomed in this way. Previously the army has brought units home from Korea in smaller groups, but under a new policy, units are rotated in a body.

EMMETT SHEEHY

Emmett Sheehy Leaves City

Emmett Sheehy, barrister at 142 Hunter St., has been appointed Canadian counsel for American Oil Associates whose offices are in Dertoit. He plans to remove to Windsor for future residence.

This engagement is with a group of oil companies, virtually a holding company, in the capacity of adviser in any of their business affairs extending into Canada. It also permits Mr. Sheehy to carry on some private law practice in Windsor, the former home of his wife. His present intentions are to close his Peterborough office and move to Windsor within the next month.

Mr. Sheehy was born in Peterborough, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sheehy, served with the RCAF during the Second World War, and is a member of the Peterborough Law Association. He is a graduate of St. Michael's College, Toronto.

Major R. T. Hounsell

Funeral services for Major Reginald Thomas Hounsell were conducted Thursday from the Comstock funeral home. Major Hounsell, a resident of 228 Bennet St., died Monday at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Officiating at the service was the Rev. A. A. Methews of George Street United Church. Pallbearers were: James Brown, Stewar' Blizzard, Kenneth Underhill Major Bruce Mills, Lieut-Col. W. Gordon Hall and Lieut.-Col Charles Ackerman.

Interment was in Ray's Cemetery, Lakefield.

Something New In Movies For Aquatic Star

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—What will they think up next for Esther Williams?

Hollywood's only amphibious film star was doing the last big production number for her latest picture, "Easy to Wed." It took place in the water, of course. But any resemblance to previous routines ended there.

In the first place, she was outfitted in baggy pants, a red wig, painted face and other elements of a clown's attire. While a grandstand full of kids yelled and cheered, she was to stand on her head and go through other gyrations on a tiny, self-propelled aquaplane board.

"For the climax," she reported enthusiastically, "I grab onto a bunch of balloons and get carried into the air!"

USE SOME DOUBLES

Doubles will do some of these stunts for Esther, who is expecting her third child. But she was on the set and prepared to spend a good part of her day in the MGM tank.

Esther's vehicles have the limiting factor that she must always be kept close to the water. In case there is a lull in the plot, there must always be a tank handy for a swimming routine. Despite this limitation, she remains immensely popular after 10 wet years in the movies.

"She is the No. 1 star in foreign countries," producer Joe Pasternak reported. "They love her in Germany, in England, Africa, Japan and all over Asia. When I was in Paris, five of her pictures were playing on the Champs Elysee."

What is the reason for her success?

"She is clean, wholesome sex," the producer analyzed. "Her pictures have no messages. They aren't aimed at promoting lend-lease or furthering world peace. All they do is entertain.

"Esther is great because she doesn't act. She's not an actress; she's a personality. She plays herself, and you know that she's enjoying her work. Look at her on a movie set. She doesn't hide in her room, the way most actresses do. She's out among the others, kidding and having a good time.

"If she ever tried to act, she'd be a dead pigeon."

CAUGHT IN THE ACT—Unaware that his action trips a camera taking his picture, Milford Arthurs pulls at a cash drawer in a Thessalon, Ont., barber shop. Convicted of theft, Arthurs was sentenced to four months for stealing from the shop he had visited as a customer 13 years. Barber Gordon Delhenty, a part-time photographer, rigged up the camera when the till in his shop was robbed four times in four months. The unusual photograph was taken in natural light with a lens opening of 4.5 at 1-25th of a second.

Garson Suggests New Body Study Sentences

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Garson suggested Thursday that powers of courts dealing with suspended sentences could be referred to a parliamentary body for consideration.

The subject was broached in the Commons criminal law committee by J. W. Noseworthy (CCF—York South). The committee is considering Canada's new Criminal Code.

Under the present law, sentence of a second offender may be suspended providing his first offence was committed five years previously or was of a different character.

Mr. Noseworthy suggested that the courts should be able to suspend sentence for second offenders without the two conditions set out in the present law.

Mr. Garson said the new code generally eliminates minimum sentences so that a judge, if he saw fit, could impose a light sentence for second offenders.

However, he added that this point might be considered by a parliamentary body. The committee earlier decided to ask Parliament to establish such a body to consider possible abolition of the death penalty and whipping and use of exact wording to cover insanity.

Plan Safety Campaign

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian automobile industry will sponsor a country-wide safety campaign in May. It is to be aimed at every car owner and driver, said J. L. Stewart, general manager of the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce. To underline the importance of keeping lights, tires, brakes, horn, exhaust system, steering, windshield wipers and rear view mirrors in proper operating condition, contests will be organized.

THE DANISH LUXURY LINER Kronprins Frederik lies half submerged alongside her Harwich, England, pier after being gutted by a night-long blaze early this week. Firemen were forced to run for their lives when the vessel took on a sudden list, snapped her supporting lines and rolled over on her side. The hull of the stricken ship strikes a similar pose to that of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada which was destroyed by fire while at her berth in Liverpool, England, January 25.

Judge Has No Authority To Go To Accident Scene

TORONTO (CP)—A trial judge has no authority to go to an accident scene and act on evidence he obtains himself, the Ontario Court of Appeal ruled Thursday in ordering a new trial of a Sarnia damage action.

The suit arose from an accident in Sarnia Jan. 23, 1952, involving Thomas R. Chambers and Peter L. Murphy. Judge A. E. Shaunessy found Murphy solely responsible and assessed damages of $621 plus costs. He dismissed Murphy's counter-claim.

The trial judge, accompanied by lawyers, went to the scene of the accident and made certain tests of Murphy's claim that his view had been obstructed by a house.

Mr. Justice R. E. Laidlaw said in his written judgment, in which two other justices concurred:

"There is no doubt that the trial judge proceeded quite innocently. Nevertheless, the facts ascertained from these tests was evidence which might properly have been received from a witness at the trial but was not so given.

"The learned judge in reality supplied that evidence himself and erroneously acted upon it."

RHEUMATIC PAIN
Can Be Costly!

"This winter I had to quit work because of rheumatic pain," writes Mr. T. Glofcheskie, Wilno, Ont. "I became fearful of being laid up as on a previous occasion with rheumatic pain. My pain became increasingly severe and spread from hip to ankle. Out of bed, the leg felt cold as though in cold water, so I stayed in bed. A friend persuaded me to take T-R-C's and I'm glad I did. In a short while I was relieved of my pain and was soon on the job again."

Better Relations With Papers Labor Told

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Newspaper Publishers Association was told today that there was "a definite improvement in newspaper labor relations" in the last year.

"But that improvement has been partially offset by less arbitration and more strikes," a special standing committee reported to the association's annual convention.

It said there had been several gains in promoting "amicable relations between publishers and employees," including:

1. "Restoration of free local bargaining," and curbing of "the monopoly threatened by national bargaining."

2. An end of government control of wages.

5-YEAR RENEWAL

3. Renewal for five years of the ANPA's international arbitration agreement with the AFL International Printing Pressmen's Union. It binds the parties to arbitrate disputes that can't be settled in negotiation.

The report, presented on the final day of the three-day convention, said there were 11 strikes against newspapers last year, compared with none in 1951, but added that the 1951 record of no strikes was "unparalleled in the 20th century."

"Three of the 11 work stoppages last year," the report said, "were settled overnight and only four continue now."

TRAIN WRECK TAKES FIVE—Bent and smashed cars of the Atlantic Coast Line Streamliner "Champion" lie across the tracks at Dillon, S.C., and spill into the surrounding fields. At least five persons were killed and 150 more injured after the train was derailed. Rescue workers were forced to use crowbars and cutting torches to free trapped passengers inside the telescoped cars.

Stories Portray African Life To Mission Circle

MILLBROOK (ENS) — The Golden Links Mission Circle and C.G.I.T. of St. Andrew's United Church held a joint meeting to which W.M.S. members were also invited in the Sunday schoolroom on Tuesday evening.

Helen Ingham gave the African drum call to worship. Joan Gilbert, C.G.I.T. president, announced the worship service theme "God is Calling" and told the story of the life of Margaret Dawson, Missionary to Africa. Ada Olan presented the life story of Frances Botham, missionary nurse and Janet Hobbs that of Dorothy Schauffler. Carol Ridge and Judy Hobbs contrasted camp life for girls in Canada and in Angola. Scripture lessons were read by Dorothy Dawson and Donna Murney. Slides on girls' work in Africa were shown by the Rev. Margaret Butler with Miss Edith Clarke giving the commentary. There were displays of an African village, of products of Africa and missionary pictures done by the girls.

Dorothy Ball gave the closing prayer for the C.G.I.T. part of the program and Patricia Peebles and Marilyn Sanders took up the offering.

Mrs. M. E. Hobbs, circle president welcomed the members and guests. She announced that the book "Labrador Nurse" by Bessie Banfill had arrived and that each member in turn was to be given a chance to read it.

The stewardship report was given by Mrs. Ernest Powell.

Mrs. Hobbs told some interesting stories of Africa gleaned from a biography of Dr. Albert Schweitzer. She told that a man's wealth is estimated by the number of his wives. African wives are pleased when their husband acquired a new wife because it means more hands to do the work. Once a man marries it is no longer necessary for him to work. He [illegible] then his responsibility is over.

Mrs. Hobbs announced that a circle member, Mrs. Bruce Ingham, had been appointed secretary for Circles at an executive meeting of the Bay of Quinte Conference held in Kingston last week.

The excellent color and sound film "An End to Darkness" which portrayed the life of an African convert was shown by Wilfred Elson.

Mrs. David Lunn was in charge of serving refreshments.

Dewar Plans Statement For Parliament

REGINA (CP)—Austin E. Dewar (L—Qu'Appelle) said Thursday night he will make a statement in the House of Commons early next week concening his dealings with Havey Lunam, Regina contractor.

In an interview here Mr. Dewar said he had with him cheques totalling $22,008, which he said were part of his dealings in November, 1950, with Mr. Lunam. He also said he had cheques totalling $51,500 which he showed the Regina Leader-Post Wednesday.

In a copyrighted story Wednesday, the Toronto Telegram said Mr. Dewar had received cheques totalling $71,800 from the Harvey Lunam Construction Company in November, 1950.

FINANCIAL DIFFICULTY

Mr. Dewar said he and Mr. Lunam had "exchanged cheques" in November, 1950, to help Mr. Lunam when he was in financial difficulty.

Mr. Lonam said the Telegram told "only half the story."

Mr. Dewar said that in view of the statement made by Prime Minister St. Laurent in the Commons, he wonld make a statement to his colleagues when he returns to Ottawa, possibly Monday.

Fewer Divorces Senators Find

OTTAWA (CP)—Work was a bit easier this session for the 16 members of the Senate's divorce committee.

Senator W. M. Aseltine, committee chairman, reported Thursday to the upper chamber that members recommended 282 divorces from Quebec and Newfoundland, only provinces without divorce courts.

It was the lowest number since 1950 and second lowest since the end of the war. The committee handled 312 divorces last year.

Since the war the committee has approved 2,408 applications with a peak of 350 in 1949. The low was 240 in 1950.

Eight divorce petitions this year came from Newfoundland and 274 from Quebec compared with three from Newfoundland and 309 from Québec at the last session.

For the seventh consecutive year, Ontario granted the largest number of divorces last year at 2,130. This was a reversal of the steady decline between 1947 and 1951 when the number dropped from 3,509 to 2,102 in 1951.

Farmer Electrocuted

TARA, Ont. (CP)—Fred M. Crawford, 30-year-old Arran township farmer, was electrocuted Thursday while repairing the water pump at his home, two miles west of here. Carl Morrow, local implement agent, who was assisting him, was knocked unconscious for 20 minutes, and had both hands burned. The men had taken a 20-foot length of pipe from the well and were putting it back when it touched a hydro wire carrying 2200 volts into the house and barn.

HUSBAND ON LIST—Mrs. Winnifred Watson, of Toronto, is overjoyed to hear her husband, Pte. R. B. Watson, is listed by L. Cpl. Paul Dugal, of Quebec City, as being one of 15 Canadian prisoners of war in Korea. All had previously been reported missing or dead. She passes the glad news to her son, Stephen, 2, and tears up the telegram received last October which said her husband was missing. Cpl. Dugal was the first Canadian prisoner released in the prisoner exchange in Korea.

Canada Plans Wide Program Of Immigration

OTTAWA (CP)—Citizenship Minister Harris told the Commons Thursday night the government is fully aware Canada cannot fulfil her destiny with a population of 15,000,000 and will continue as wide a program of immigration as development of the country's economy will allow.

He introduced his estimates after the House completed scrutiny of the trade department figures.

Canada, he said, has much to contribute to peace. That contribution would be greater the larger her population.

He reported that of a total of 164,498 immigrants to Canada in 1952, down 30,000 from the previous year, 42,675 were from Britain. That was a 36-per-cent increase, or 11,000, over the number of British immigrants in 1951.

However, Mr. Harris foresaw the June Coronation in London as a hindrance to increasing British immigration this year. Trans-Atlantic two-way passages booked by Coronation visitors would tie up much of the shipping during the summer.

Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) said the government has not given sufficient thought to the fact there might be unemployment in the years ahead if immigration isn't planned to fit in with a program to expand the country.

BOUND FOR OTTAWA—Nicholas Monsarrat, author of the best-selling novel of World War II, "The Cruel Sea," and his wife, Philippa, reached Montreal recently aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Scotland. Mr. Monsarrat will go to Ottawa as director of the United Kingdom Information Office, a post similar to the one he held in South Africa before coming to Canada.

Organization Meeting

Children's Aid Society To Mark 60th Anniversary

This year the Children's Aid Society is celebrating its 60th anniversary and a history, the information for which is secured from board minutes and newspaper clippings, is being prepared.

It was on January 13, 1892, that a meeting was held for the purpose of forming a branch (the first in Canada) of the British Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Names associated with the meeting were:

Rev. Dr. E. Torrance, St. Paul's Presbyterian; Rev. J. C. Davidson, St. John's Anglican; Father Rudkins, representing Bishop O'Connor; Rev. J. E. Trotter, Baptist Church; Messrs. D. W. Dumble, police magistrate; J. R. Stratton, MLA; His Worship Mayor Kendry; Hampden Burnham.

"Others" attended and these may be those whose names were recorded in "the roll":

Rev. Jos. Locke, George St. United Church; A. C. Dunlop; James Wallis; John Burnham, MP; Peter Hamilton; George Hilliard; Thomas Cahill; R. A. Morrow; James Stevenson, MP; R. C. Strickland; Rev. W. Edwards, Charlotte St. Methodist Church; Rev. W. Thorn, Methodist Church, Ashburnham; Rev. J. W. McCleary, St. Luke's Anglican.

The officers elected at that meeting were: Hon. president, Bishop of Peterborough; president, James A. Hall; vice president, A. C. Dunlop; secretary-treasurer, J. Hampden Burnham; executive committee, R. A. Morrow, Thomas Cahill.

The police magistrate endorsed the opening of the branch as he "anticipated the most beneficial results from the moral influence exerted upon the community by the very existence of such a society."

Three of the 18 situations looked after by the Society during the first year were:

(a) Physical abuse of children, child beaten with a cordwood stick; (b) Mother leaving children alone; (c) An entire family was put in jail from January to April because they had no home or means.

The first annual meeting was held on January 16, 1893 with six present. The Society appealed for funds with which to carry on its work.

The Society took no responsibility for such conditions as desertion and drinking. One such case was referred to the rector as "the case did not come within the scope of the Society's work."

There was mention of one child born out of wedlock.

J. J Kelso, a reporter for "The Globe" became concerned about the youngsters he saw on the Toronto streets late at night, homeless and hungry. He felt so strongly about this that he made every effort to get them protection and had considerable responsibility for the passing of the Children's Protection Act in 1893. Children's Aid Societeis were formed in that year to carry out the provisions of the Act for the protection of children. On the invitation of J. Hampden Burnham, Mr. Kelso came to Peterborough on Nov. 2, 1893 "to re-organize the local Society (Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children) on the lines of the Act."

Those present were: Mr. David Dumble, magistrate; Rev. Davidson, Hampden Burnham, J. W. Bennett, Rev. J. Symonds, George Roger, F. R. Yokome, W. Pearse, Rev. Fr. Scollard.

The object was "to remove any obstacle in the way of Christian people carrying out proper intentions."

On this date the first Children's Aid Society for Peterborough was organized and its officers were:

President, James A. Hall; vice-presidents, A. C. Dunlop, Mrs. Roger; secretary-treasurer, Hampden Burnham; assistant secretary-treasurer, J. W. Bennett; honorary counsel, E. B. Edwards; agents, Chief Roszell, George Cochrane.

200 Workers Out In Kitchener Dispute

KITCHENER (CP)—A dispute in the industrial products division of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company of Canada Limited resulted in between 175 and 200 employees walking off their jobs.

Wilfred Weaver, president of local 73 of the United Rubber Workers (CIO-CCL), said Thursday night the workers went on strike in protest against what he called the company's "get tough" policy.

The company said the men apparently went on strike as a result of new standards being posted.

Sixteen tube room workers walked out over a grievance. Other employees in the division left their jobs in sympathy.

Election Campaign Will Be Televised

OTTAWA (CP)—Voters may see part of the forthcoming election campaign fought by candidates in television broadcasts, the Commons broadcasting committee was told Thursday.

A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors, said the publicly-owned corporation plans to offer Canadian political parties broadcasting time on television.

In reply to E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops), Mr. Dunton said the CBC hopes to have a meeting as soon as possible with representatives of all political parties. This meeting would work out the broadcast times to be allotted candidates or spokesmen for the various parties.

He told Mr. Fulton that statutory regulations would prevent dramatized political broadcasts on television. However, he thought it might be possible to work out a television broadcast of a political meeting or nominating convention.

Omemee Scouts Out For Hikes In District

OMEMEE (ENS)—The Omemee Scout Troop have taken to the open air recently, beginning with a bicycle hike to Pigeon Lake. Here tree identifications, outdoor cooking and the investiture of Earle Ruttle and Grant Hart were the main features.

The Senior Scouts of the troop went on an overnight to Mt. Nebo to test their scouting skills. Trail reading, camp layout and estimation of heights were the important features. Scoutmaster is John E. Joyce.

OVERHEATED PIPES

A fire department pumper truck went to the home of Mrs. Marjorie Fowley, 367 Bethune St., at 6 p.m. Thursday when a chimney fire and overheated pipes were reported. A handpump was sufficient to put out the chimney fire. No damage resulted.

FIRE LOSS FIGURES

The quarterly bulletin of the Ontario Fire Marshal has listed estimated losses in Peterborough's two most recent large fires. Loss to the old Metropolitan Store building and nearby stores is $64,057; and to the Quaker Oats Co. Ltd., 13 days later, when the explosion and fire occurred, $80,000.

KIWANIS CLUB

Mrs. Benite Shields of South Carolina and Miss Musa Cox, supervisor of music for public schools in Peterborough were the guests of the Kiwanis Club Thursday at their weekly luncheon meeting and gave a short talk on the Community Concert Association which is sponsoring a musical concert Friday, May 1, in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Gordon Touzel, also a guest of the Kiwanis Club played several musical selections on his accordion.

PACKING CASES BURN

A flurry of excitement was caused in the downtown district Thursday afternoon when the fire department came out in force to douse a fire that broke out at the rear of the Peterborough Lock Co., 198 Simcoe St. Lacquer was being burned off some racks at the rear of the building when a spark, carried by the high wind, set fire to a nearby pile of wooden packing cases, rubbish and garbage that was waiting to be taken away. Firemen put the blaze out with a booster line and two-and-a-half-inch hose. There was no damage.

A MEMBER OF THE UNDERGROUND movement in Norway during the Second World War, George Raeder arrived in Peterborough Tuesday to take over as sales manager of Maur Products of Canada. New Canadian Fought Nazis In Norway, Settles Here

Although he was born in Boston, Mass., there's no trace of the Beacon Hill influence in the continental accent of George Raeder, who arrived in Peterborough Tuesday from Norway where he served with the underground movement during the Second World War.

Mr. Raeder's father, an officer in the Norwegian army, was attending a course at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1919 when George was born. He returned with his parents a year or so later to Oslo, where he has made his home ever since.

He and his wife Astri made the trip from Norway on the Stavangerfjord of the Norwegian-American line, landing in Halifax. He has been appointed sales manager of Maur Products of Canada, branch of an Oslo firm manufacturing material-handling equipment at its plant on Armour Road at Downer's Corners.

Mr. Raeder was attending technical school in the Norwegian capital when the Second World War broke out. He graduated shortly after the Germans invaded his country on April 9, 1940.

WORKED FOR GERMANS

He went to work as assistant to the plant superintendent of one of Norway's largest steelworks, Christiania Spigerverk. Christiania was the original name of Oslo, which had been named after King Christian. The name of the city was changed in 1935 but the company retained the old title.

The Oslo plant manufactured a great variety of goods for export, including nails, wire, rails and tools of all kinds, so that it played an integral part in the supply system of the German Wermacht.

But the envoys of the master race had trouble with their Norwegian subjects from the time they entered the country and sabotage began on a small scale as soon as they took over the plant. By the summer of 1941 the underground movement was well organized and Mr. Raeder had become a member.

SABOTAGE PLANT

The first major act of sabotage was committed at the plant less than a year later in the spring of 1942 when two of the biggest steel converters were blown up.

In reprisal, the enraged Nazis shot two of the saboteurs and placed guards around the factory with machine guns in every entrance. The managing director of the company was jailed for a time but was later released.

Shortly after that, 40 company engineers were asked to leave by the Germans, and Mr. Raeder decided to follow suit. He became a wireless operator in the underground movement and was placed in charge of communications in the area north-west of Oslo.

Meanwhile, members of the underground were being smuggled out of Norway for training in the United Kingdom and some of them parachuted back into their native country where they maintained liaison with the British and trained their countrymen in sabotage methods.

JOINED BRITISH

In the summer of 1943, Mr. Raeder linked up with British agents in Norway as a representative of the underground. Later he acted as interpreter for the famous British paratroop battalion that won the name "Red Devils" at the battle of Arnhem in the Netherlands.

The day the war ended, May 8, 1945, he accompanied the Red Devils on their raid of one of the biggest German camps in Norway and Mr. Raeder unbelted the pistol of a German major.

"That's how I won my war," Mr. Raeder said with a self-effacing smile.

The war over, Mr. Raeder was sent to Aldershot with others from the continent to train as an officer. In his own troop were candidates from Luxembourg, Denmark and the Netherlands. He was commissioned as an artillery officer in the spring of 1946 and returned to Norway where he spent two years in the army.

COMPATRIOTS HERE

On leaving the army, he joined the parent firm of Maur Products in Oslo which opened its Canadian branch in Peterborough about a year ago. Here Mr. Raeder has joined such compatriots as Bjorn Jensen and Gisle Opsal. The latter is chief designer for the Canadian firm and is the inventor of the company's patented pneumatic-tired wheel, a basic component of all the material - handling equipment produced by the firm.

A lithe, athletic type, Mr. Raeder shrugs off his underground exploits with a disarming smile.

"We had three or four clashes with the Germans but our activities were small compared to those of the allies," he said modestly.

"It's difficult to remember the details now, but it seemed those were some of the happiest days

Health Plan Proposals Wait Sanction

MOH To Take Over Health Services Of Bd. Of Education

Terms of a proposed agreement for the Board of Health to take over the medical health services of the Board of Education were approved by the health committee of the Board of Education Thursday night.

The terms will be submitted to the Board of Education and the Board of Health for their approval. Should the agreement be signed by these two bodies, the change-over will take effect July 1.

The agreement calls for assumption of medical inspection, excluding dental inspection, of all elementary and secondary school pupils in the city by the Board of Health under the direction and control of Dr. J. P. Wells, MOH.

The Board of Education is to supply and maintain suitable accommodation and provide equipment and furniture recommended by the MOH and approved by the Board of Education. The Board of Health is to engage all persons required for the services and supply all necessary medical supplies, record forms and other stationery.

TO REPAY BOARD

The Board of Education is to reimburse the Board of Health for expenditures contracted by the latter in providing immunizations and pre-school examination medical services for the Board of Education and approved by it during the current school year and prior to July 1, 1953.

During the time that the agreement is in force, adequate medical inspection service is to be supplied by the Board of Health in elementary schools in keeping with standards set by the provincial department of health. In addition the following are to be provided in respect of nurses' services:

(a) Rapid classroom inspection by the nurses of all children in September of each year for detection of communicable diseases.

(b) Inspection of all children referred by the teaching staff for special reasons (including vision and hearing) with specific arrangement to ensure the inspection of any cases referred immediately after Christmas and Easter vacations.

HEARING TESTS

(c) Hearing tests and weighing, as well as vision tests, three times during elementary school life, specifically in preparation for complete physical examinations by the physician.

(d) Investigations and home visits if deemed necessary by the MOH in cases of children with defects, communicable diseases or other reported illnesses.

(e) Close liaison with teachers in respect to the health of children.

(f) Health counselling for children in senior grades.

Additional physician's service in elementary schools is to consist of:

(a) Complete physical examination in grades 4 and 8.

(b) Annual program of immunization.

(c) Examination of children participating in competitive school sports.

NURSES' SERVICES

Additional nurses' service in secondary schools is to consist of:

(a) Preparation for health examinations by the physician of students in grade 9 who have not been examined in grade 8.

(b) Health counselling to individuals and groups as directed by the MOH.

Town Council Of 1862 Passed First Bylaw Setting Restrictions On Downtown Buildings

Ninety years ago Peterborough was becoming self-conscious, glimpsing its personality and appraising its appearance present and future. In March 1862 the town council passed a by-law placing the first restrictions on main street building. New construction was to be of brick and stone, especially on George Street.

If the council could not order the demolition of the simple buildings that sufficed in the shabby days of the pioneers, when anything was better than the nothing the first settlers faced, they could raise a hand in favor of that phrase and concept of today's Horticultural Society—the beautification of the city.

The councillors of 1862 realized that eventually the frame buildings of the only material that was at hand for the George St. of pioneering years would disappear. They were left to the combined effects of time and progress. However, in recent years when the widening of the main streets was proposed on a similar basis of gradual change and replacement, some opposing folks must have thought they were going to live forever, and their properties stand unaltered and unaffected by the flow of life past their doors.

That date of March 17, 1862, stands out today in significance of the community's early examination of itself and a desire to redress the neglects which were unavoidable in the progress from trees to stumps to log cabins of Peterborough's earliest enterprise.

Peterborough today has proceeded on to a Master Plan plus zoning, but for some reason that escapes the main streeter's understanding the intentions have not been reinforced by the bylaw such as that of 90 years ago when the council first applied restraint on its downtown construction.

That was an important date. The young and growing town was beginning to think in terms of amenities, continuing figuratively today in the bath tubs, barbershop attention and other aids of appearance.

E. J. Ryan Moves To Kitchener As Ticket Agent

E. J. (Ed) Ryan, 275 Reid, passenger and ticket agent for the CNR in Peterborough since 1941 will leave Tuesday for Kitchener, where he will take charge of the CNR ticket office there.

Mr. Ryan was born and educated in Peterborough and entered the CNR service in 1918 in Peterborough as a clerk and has been employed with them for the past 35 years. He was transferred to Windsor in 1932 and was there nine years in the capacity of a streetman. In 1941 he moved back to Peterborough, where he has been since in charge of the ticket office.

Looking back over the years, Mr. Ryan remembers when he started with the CNR. He worked a six-day week, from eight in the morning to eight o'clock at night. But his most striking recollection is that the CNR ticket office on George St. was there long before he started to work and most of the men he started with are dead today.

He has also been active in the Peterborough Kiwanis Club for the past 12 years and served for four years as a director and on various committees.

Jack Minnery of Toronto will succeed Mr. Ryan.

Police Warn Cyclists On Riding Lights

Warnings have been issued to six Peterborough bicyclists police found Thursday night riding without necessary lighting equipment.

Department of Highways regulations require a white light on the front of a bicycle, a reflector on the rear and a white stripe on the back of the rear fender.

Chief of Police John Thompson warned that cyclists without the necessary equipment will be prosecuted in the near future.

Assessors Meet Here On Problems

Mounting Tax Rates Focus Citizens' Attention—Hunter

Seventy-five assessors, municipal clerks and elected representatives from Central Ontario are today attending a one-day school on assessment problems in the city hall's general committee room.

Leading the discussion on the Department of Municipal Affairs' assessment manual is Reginald Hunter, assistant assessment supervisor and one-time assessor in North Monaghan township. The session is a combination of lectures and questions and answers.

"Assessment is getting more and more attention from not only the elected representatives but also the taxpayers," said Mr. Hunter.

He said that this interest has stemmed from the fact that taxes have been mounting. But the higher tax rate doesn't mean that municipal affairs are being poorly administered or that there is a lack of foresight on the part of muncipalities. It is a reflection of generally higher prices.

STUDY MANUAL

After these opening remarks Mr. Hunter plunged into assessment as laid down in the government manual. He illustrated his talk with blackboard sketches.

There was time for only a couple of questions before the morning session adjourned at 11.30 a.m.

Stewart Sparling, assessor for Peterborough County, welcomed the visitors and said the one-day

Bride Of Two Hours Fatally Wounded

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—A 15-year-old bride of two hours was fatally shot by her 'teen-age brother Thursday night during an argument over plans for a wedding-night celebration.

Detective A. E. Jennings said the shooting was described by friends as accidental but that the bride's 18-year-old brother, James F. Corley, was arrested on a charge of murder.

The detective said Barbara Corley Ledbetter was shot in front of her home where she and her husband, Mack Ledbetter, 18, were discussing a proposed visit to a night club with a group of friends.

An argument developed, Jennings said, and the brother went to his car and got a revolver. A friend grabbed his arm and the revolver discharged. The bullet struck the young bride in the lower abdomen. She died a little more

Capacity Audience At Lakefield Play

LAKEFIELD—(ENS)—A capacity audience greeted the performance of "The Dead of Night" a three-act mystery play presented by the theatre group of the Young Adult Society of the United Church on Wednesday evening in Memorial Hall.

The parts were well taken and it was not until just before the final curtain that the audience learned "who done it" to quote the constable.

Those in the cast were: Martha Baldwin, played by Jean Millar; Joey, her crippled son, Dave Spence; Allan Richards, her nephew, Archie Stewart; Sarah Watkins, the "hired help", Mayme Grylls; Donald Johnson, her nephew, Ralph Millage; Ruth Nash, Donald's fiance, Bette Millage; David Carruthers, in love aMrtha, Leslie Poole; Lela Chapman, the mystery woman, Lois Keller; Adam Glassett, the constable, the Rev. W. H. Tonge.

Prompting was in charge of Mrs. W. Millage and Mrs. C. Payne. Jean Spence looked after the sound and lighting and Dave Spence was stage manager.

This is the fourth successive year this group has presented a three-act play. There will be another performance May 1.

Following the performance the cast were guests of the Rev. W. H. Tonge and Mrs. Tonge at the manse. Mrs. Tonge was assisted in serving by Mrs. Allen Graham.

British Protest Rejection Of Bid For Transformers

New York Herald Tribune

LONDON—Peter Thorneycroft, president of the British Board of Trade, has revealed that Britain has lodged strong representations in Washington regarding the rejection of a British bid to supply generators and transformers for the Chief Joseph Dam, located in Washington state.

Commenting on the issue, which aroused widespread resentment in the British press, Mr. Thorneycroft told the House of Commons, "we took steps to make it clear to the (Washington) Administration on the highest level that a decision not to award the contract to the lowest bidder because it was British and not American would be regarded here and by all countries concerned with increasing their exports to the United States as a bad omen for the future."

He said Britain has been "surprised and disappointed" by the American government's decision and added:

"I find all this hard to reconcile with statements made recently by the American Administration, there is more involved here than the award of a $6,000,000 contract. We must regard the treatement and eventual outcome of this case as in some ways a pointer to the future commercial policy of the American Administration."

The Washington correspondent of "The Times" of London, said that "this single case of economic nationalism" involved in the rejection of the British bid will cost the American taxpayer $1,600,000.

Noranda President Predicts More Stable Copper Market

By FORBES RHUDE

TORONTO (CP)—James Y. Murdoch, president of Noranda Mines, Ltd., said today the "high price for copper fixed by the Chilean government, equivalent to 36.50 cents a pound delivered in the United States, has been and remains an unsettling factor" in the copper industry.

Addressing the annual meeting of Noranda, big copper-gold producer of northern Quebec with interests in many other companies, Mr. Murdoch said the Chilean price "is unrealistic and encourages substitution in fields where copper can most usefully serve."

The United States domestic price, Mr. Murdoch noted, is 30 cents a pound, replacing the ceiling price of 24.50 cents which had prevailed for two years before last February's decontrol.

The Canadian price which, following control, became the equivalent of 33.50 cents U.S., the same price as paid by the United Kingdom to Empire producers, was reduced to 32 cents April 10 and was further reduced today to 30 cents U.S.

ACCENTUATE SHORTAGE

As with most commodities, said Mr. Murdoch, "controls on copper accentuated shortages, distorted prices, and resulted in discrimination to both producers and consumers."

Progress at Gaspe Copper Mines, Ltd., Noranda's subsidiary in Quebec's Gaspe peninsula, is "on schedule," with smelter production due in early 1955.

Commenting on the gold mining industry, Mr. Murdoch said "it is imperative that gold be restored to its proper role as the universally accepted medium of exchange.

"There is strong opposition in the United States to a higher price for gold, but it is time that the U.S. government reviewed the matter in an international sense and realized that what is good for world trade will also prove good for the U.S.

"In my opinion, a higher price for gold is a necessity before world-wide convertibility of currencies can be a reality."

Mr. Murdoch said the demand for copper has recently eased. However, while consumption is off in Europe, it continues at a high level in the United States and "the expected re-opening of the London metal exchange should help to bring about more orderly marketing."

"I look forward to a more stable copper market and while somewhat lower prices may prevail, I am sure that the 'red metal' will experience a sustained and growing demand," he added.

Noranda's net earnings for the first quarter of this year were estimated by Mr. Murdoch at $1.68 a share, compared with the estimate of $1.50 a share a year ago.

Directors declared a dividend of $1 a share, payable June 15 to shareholders of record May 15.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Federation Proposes Farm Picnic About July 24 . . . . Hereford Breeders Select 48 Head for May 30 Sale at Morrow Park . . . . Local Juniors to Attend Conference at O.A.C. . . . . Clifford Waite Coming For Sunday Services at Gilmour, Indian River and Norwood.

Plans for a picnic before the grain harvest in July were discussed at the meeting this week of Peterborough Federation of Agriculture.

With the co-operation of the Farm Forums of the county, the directors expressed the opinion that a picnic somewhat on the pattern of the C.G.E. affair could be made an attractive event. The committee to consider preliminaries was named as follows: Milton Clark, Wellington Sutton, Breaden Bullock, Mrs. Lorne Reynolds, Henry Sharpe and John Kitney. A suggested date for the picnic is July 24.

Auction 48 Herefords

For their annual sale Saturday, May 30 at Morrow Park, the executive of the Eastern Ontario Hereford Cattle Breeders have listed 48 head consigned by 23 members.

Homer Hawkey and Wm. Mood completed the catalogue this week, and delivered it to the printers for immediate publication.

President Hawkey said yesterday: "We've done quite a lot of culling to be in the position of offering buyers the best entries of Herefords since we established this sale. The fine success of last year showed the recognition our sale has built up. So, we are going on from that accomplishment to make this year's sale more attractive than ever to farmers who are in the market for good stock."

Consignors are from Mountain Grove in Frontenac to Richmond Hill on the west. Bobcaygeon district will be well represented and the breeders in the Peterborough area are also coming back with quality cattle.

The executive has decided to omit the show of last year, but will present a ring of the 14 bulls. Auctioneer will be W. S. O'Neill of Denton who will be assisted by Ray Williams of Hoard's Station and Campbellford.

"We are arranging to use the big building at the Park if we run into wet weater," Mr. Hawkey said.

Trotter Shorthorns

J. Trotter & Son of Madoc had two class winners in the March report of production for Dual Purpose Shorthorns. In the 365 day mature class their Mapleville Dorcas was credited with 11,174 lbs. milk and 481 lbs. fat. In the three year class Mapleville Lucky Maiden had 8,553 milk and 391 fat.

✦ ✦ ✦

Value In Culled Herd

"A culled herd will always be of value. But, keep the animals that should be culled and it is not likely to amount to much." That is a quotation from F. C. Paterson. "The poultry people have learned to cull ruthlessly, and in that practice they have shown good results. I don't mean that a farmer should cast out a cow that has grown old in his service, and given him quite a lot of good calves. There is still room for some sentiment. But, generally farmers are finding that culling the herd pays."

✦ ✦ ✦

Juniors To O.A.C.

Representing Peterborough at the Ontario Junior Farmers Conference at OAC April 26, 27 and 28 will be Eleanor Northey, Marian McMullen, Charles Lobb of Norwood and William Porter. The conference theme is "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow". Registration will be Sunday afternoon, church service in the evening in the Memorial Hall at the College.

Dr. Herb Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation, will address the Juniors Monday afternoon and take part in a panel discussion on the topic "Understanding One Anothes". Panel chairman will be Watson Porter, editor of the Farmer's Advocate and Canadian Countryman.

Mrs. Raymond Sayre of Iowa will be the dinner speaker Monday evening. She is president of the Associated Country Women of the World.

J. Allen Francis, assistant agricultural representative in Hastings, expects that 21 delegates will represent the Juniors of that county.

✦ ✦ ✦

Odds And Ends

R. G. Bennett, associate director of extension with the Ontario Department of Agriculture, will be the speaker at the Madoc Junior farmers' dinner Thurs., April 30 . . . Bred sows averaged $128 at a recent Walkerton sale . . . Sunshine and high winds Thursday quickly dried out the light rain of Wednesday night . . . Farmers have been forced into inaction during the last week or ten days, even more, by persistently chill weather, with occasional rain and conditions generally that held up work . . . However, fall wheat is reported excellent, apart from a litties purple touch from several cold nights . . . But, no damage . . . Meadows and new seeding are also promising.

✦ ✦ ✦

Services On Sunday

Cliff Waite of Toronto, secretary of the Ontario Farm Radio Forum, will speak across Peterborough county in three services of worship on Sunday. He will be at Gilmour Memorial Church on the Chemong Road, with Rev. W. Leaton at 11 a.m., at Indian River Baptist Church at 3 p.m., and at Norwood Presbyterian Church at 8 p.m.

Similar services last year were actively sponsored by the Baptist ministry with general support for the proposal of beginning the new seeding season with recognition of God's place in the success of all the work and planning of the farmers of the community.

Rev. W. J. Bingham of Norwood will be at Indian River in the afternoon. The evening service at Norwood accepts the larger accommodation of the Presbyterian Church and is a community service. Farmers are invited to these services which are apparently being established in these two years as a preliminary of prayer in the crop season. Mr. Waite's plans for his future are in the ministry of the Baptist Church according to information from several of his friends.

✦ ✦ ✦

Stresses Management

Art Douglas of Quaker Oats staff wound up a talk on modern trends in livestock feeding to the young men's section of the Junior Farmers' meeting Tuesday night by stressing the importance of management.

Without good management in agriculture, its other phases including present day nutritional practice could be largely ineffective effort. Management in business, which embraced also the business of farming, was a fundamental to success.

The body of the talk by Mr. Douglas was interesting and helpful, and greatly appreciated by the young men. Miss Jean Noble, home economist, presented many of the members of the county home-making clubs in a fashion show.

The evening at Normal School was reported one of the best of the season. The two groups met together after their separate programs, and closed with dancing and refreshments.

✦ ✦ ✦

McMullen At Norwood

W. S. McMullen, Toronto, of the federal Department of Agriculture, was in Norwood Wednesday afternoon discussing with the president and some of the directors of the Fair the possibility of financing buildings required for various phases of exhibition purpose.

Since the Norwood Fair was revived after its suspension during the war years, attendance and number of exhibits have been enlarging. Prospects for further development centre around improved facilities for which governments customarily contribute assistance.

For instance, on certain conditions and classification the federal government would pay half the cost of erection, the provincial government one-quarter and the fair board would have to raise the rest. If buildings cost $40,000, the federal grant would be $20,000, provincial $10,000 and the board would have to find another $10,000.

Mr. McMullen went to Norwood at the request of G. A. Brethen, president, to look into the problem and talk it over with some of the directors. Presumbaly, further their action will have to come in the board who are now in the stage of weighing their Fair prospects.

Holsteins In News

Glenkindie Isobel DeKol, a purebred Holstein owned by E. L. Anderson, Campbell, has joined the select list of cows with lifetime records of over 150,000 lbs. milk by producing in the nine lactations on twice-a-day milking 157,517 lbs. milk containing 5,570 lbs. fat, average test 3.70 per cent. She thus qualifies for a Silver Seal Certificate of Longtime Production presented by the Holstein -Friesan Association of Canada.

Isobel started on test as a senior yearling and made her ninth record as a ten-year-old. Two of her individual records have qualified for the Honor List, her highest individual production having been made as a senior three-year-old when she gave 20,495 lbs. milk containing 782 lbs. fat in 365 days. Isobel is a good individual as well as an outstanding producer, having been classified as "Very Good" the second highest rating attainable for type. As a three-year-old she was a first prize winner at the Central Ontario Championship Show at Warkworth in 1944.

Oriole Lodge Crusader Alice a member of the purebred Holstein herd of J. Bishop, Keene, Ont. has completed a Record of Performance test of 17,576 lbs. milk containing 775 lbs. fat, average test 4.41 percent butterfat. This record was made as a six-year-old in 365 days on twice-a-day milking. "Alice" has twice previously qualified in the Record of Performance. She is a daughter of the XX bull Montvic Rag Apple Crusader and is out of a dam classified as "Very Good" in Selective Registration.

High Ratings At Keendale

Two members of the purebred Holstein herd of Stewart Nelson, Keene, Ont., have qualified for certificates of Longtime Production presented by the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada. Keendale Lodge Pietje Lass is in the Blue Seal class with her eight lactation twice-a-day milking lifetime total of 141538 lbs. milk containing 4909 lbs. fat while Keendale Lodge Pietje Belle is in the Red Seal class with her seven lactation 2x lifetime total of 107288 lbs. milk containing 3792 lbs. fat.

"Lass" is classified as Excellent, the highest attainable rating for type and has been a famous show cow. She has twice been Grand Champion at the East-Central Ontario Championship Show and was Reserve All-Canadian in 1944. Her largest individual record was made as a seven-year-old when she produced in 365 days 19309 lbs. milk containing 748 lbs. fat, average test 3.87 per cent. butterfat.

"Belle's" largest individual record was made as a senior four-year-old when she produced in 365 days on 2x 20919 lbs. milk containing 746 lbs. fat. This was an Honor List record being amongst the top five in her class in Canada in 1948.

Overworked Papa Rhea can't keep up with egg-laying Mama.

Bachelor sniffs eggs.

"No thanks," he says

EGGING HIM ON—Off on an egg-laying spree at the Bronx Zoo in New York, a female Darwin's Rhea, a rare South American ostrich, has created a big problem for officials. Papa Rhea has to sit on the eggs and, with just so many tail feathers, he can't keep up with his mate, who lays an egg every three days. In desperation, zoo officials tried to get a bachelor common Rhea to sit on some of the eggs. So far he's refused to co-operate. The dilemma is outlined in pictures below.

No Sale In Peterborough For Agricultural Lime

Peterborough does not appear in the list of Ontario counties that limed their land in the last twelve months.

Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, would probably say the omission is as it should be.

Ontario Department of Agriculture has just issued a summarizing statement of the tonnage of limestone used in the counties of the province for the period April 1, 1952, to March 31, 1953. The information is obtained from the department's limestone freight assistance policy. Presumably the figures are substantially indicative if not exactly correct in the quantities of agricultural limestone used for soil improvement.

The review has been prepared by A. H. Martin, director of the crops, seeds and weeds branch of the Ontario department.

Introductorily, Mr. Martin says: "Farmers of Ontario are daily becoming more conscious of the value of agricultural limestone for soil improvement. . . . Last year they used 47,164 tons as compared with 4,471 tons in 1939."

Top counties in quantity according to tonnage moved under the limestone freight assistance policy were; Welland 4,468 (tons); Kent 4,248; Essex 3,890; Lincoln 3,488; Haldimand 3,149.

In the East Central Ontario area some of the counties used the following quantities: Victoria 14 tons; Ontario county 40; Durham 140; Northumberland 118; Hastings 304; Peterborough 00.

Incidentally, the Ontario potato growers' committee in their recommendations of practice to reduce potato scab advise: "Avoid liming soils that are to be used for potato production. Lime increases soil alkalinity. This increases conditions favorable for the development of scab producing organisms."

Another memorandum from the Ontario department affirms that "generally speaking there is not nearly enough lime applied at present in Ontario. There are extensive areas in the province where ground limestone can be used to advantage." This article explains the limestone freight assistance policy, but as Peterborough farmers are not in the market for lime there is no point to publishing the details.

Mr. Paterson's comment on this limestone topic has been to the effect that at least 90% of the land in this county does not need lime. "Actually, there is too much as far as we know. It may be that ten years hence we may learn more. There may be merit in a farmer trying some if he believes his soil conditions are not right. On the whole, however, our tests have shown high alkalinity."

Some mention was heard at Spring Show time that one of the exhibiting dealers was going to send Henry Sharpe a quantity of lime for one of his fields as an experiment to observe production results. However, nothing definite has been heard about it since then, although it may have come through.

If any farmers around here are using lime in their stables. Mr. Patterson says, it turns out harmful rather than helpful when it eventually reaches Peterborough land with its lime adequacy.

"The general practice is to use ammoniam sulphate because that is what is needed."

Scientists Study Cow Milking

HAMILTON, N.Z. (CP) — Research experts here are conducting experiments to determine the best way to milk a cow. The machine they are using in the tests was made from parts of two war surplus bombers.

The tests are being conducted at Ruakara animal research station in the Waikato district, centre of one of the world's richest dairying areas. The machine used is a complicated electronic arrangement of lights, cables, wheels, relays, levers and springs. It is the first of its kind and has already attracted the attention of overseas farm scientists.

It tests not only the efficiency of milkers and milking machines, but also the likes and dislikes of individual cows. It shows if a cow is affected by the presence of visitors or loud noises, and if she is fond of "music while you milk."

Every time .23 lb. of milk is given by the cow an electric impulse records the fact on a graph. Scientists studying the completed graph can tell how much milk the cow has given, measured vertically, and the time taken, measured horizontally. The shape of the graph shows exactly how the cow has reacted during milking.

Thus a scientist knows by a glance whether a cow really is contented. He can tell if a cow has been happy during milking, or whether any incident has upset her, because a contented cow gives more milk faster.

The machine is of far more than academic interest to scientists. By its means farmers can get information on improvements in milking techniques for different types of cows, and study ways to speed up milking.

The inventor of the machine, W. G. Whittlestone, a milk ejection recorder at the research station, made it himself. Unlike most complicated electronic devices, it cost very little. Most of the parts came from the surplus bombers which were bought for a nominal amount from the government.

Key 38 Acres Taken Over

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A key block of 38 acres was acquired Thursday by Ausable river conservation authority as a first step in taking over the Pinery as a conservation and recreation project.

Fred Jackson, authority secretary-treasurer, said the authority has taken an option on land opposite the proposed entrance to the Pinery.

The land is owned by F. C. Walker of Grand Bend.

Acquisition of the Pinery's 4,066 acres as a conservation and recreation project has been approved by the Ausable river authority, and plans are being made to take over the area.

Decide Earth Now 5,500,000,000 Yrs. Old

TORONTO (CP)—Using uranium as a basis for their findings, University of Toronto researchers said Thursday they think the earth is about 5,500,000,000 years old.

C. B. Collins, R. D. Russell and R. M. Farquhar, working under the leadership of Dr. J. T. Wilson, used the atomi reaction of uranium in their count. Uranium atoms change to lead at a regular rate. By computing the quantity of lead in uranium it was possible to tell when the process began.

The 5,500,000,000-year figure coincides with the age which geophysicists and astronomers have set on the earth using other methods of computing the cycle.

Roses For Junior Farmers An Attractive Hobby And Essentials At Hand

Remember that Forum subject March 9: Making Farmsteads Attractive? One of the Peterborough forums might have invited John A. Smith for a talk on the alluring subject: "How to Grow Roses".

He would probably have told them that farmers have everything at hand but the bushes, and that Juniors of the family, particularly on the feminine side could visualize the prospect of picking dozens of roses throughout the summer for their dining tables: whites, reds, pinks, and the queen of them all, the yellows.

However, that is the extent of involving Mr. Smith in this suggestion to Junior Farmers that they can grow roses if they so desire, and thereby brighten their homes from June to October with the beauty of color and form and fragrance that repays in aesthetic value and a great deal of satisfaction in cutting your own bloom. And, it is likely that after the first season of "cropping", the Junior miss of the household will advance to the stage of at least an amateur rosarian.

Essentials in growing roses are: good soil, well-rotted cow manure and a spray tank. Experience hesitates to place these requisites in absolute order of requirement. At the outset of the season land and fertilizer come first, but later the spray tank is not to be discounted, and usually by that time moves up into first place of necessity.

ROSES GROSS FEEDERS

At any rate, most farms have all three fundamentals. There is usually a tank around the place, one of the seven-to-nine-gallon containers that can be slung over a shoulder. As to fertilizer the rose grower cannot afford to be squeamish about such term and actuality as well-rotted cow manure. As the late William H. Young, who was a past president of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, used to say, roses are voracious feeders.

Anyone who has read the book on rose culture by Dean Samuel Reynolds Hole of Rochester, England, Anglican, and celebrated rosarian, whose name was given to a silvery pink, would probably conclude that fertilizer in those Victorian times and gardens was not confined in source to the cattle barn.

Of course there are bone meal and commercial fertilizers in the familiar formulae such as 4-12-10, but the barnyard product helps to keep the soil loose and eventually contributes humus.

WES WILSON'S WAY

Just as a pedestrian diversion on this topic the Examiner made a not unfamiliar discovery of "souping-up" (hot-rod term of young motorists) plants at the farm of Wesley Wilson on the Downeyville Road, north of Omemee. Mr. Wilson is a director of the Central Ontario Spring Show, and has won many a prize for the biggest squash and pumpkin at fall fairs, including Peterborough Exhibition.

Three or four stovepipes about three feet high of thereabouts, and an old oil drum were noticed in the Wilson garden last summer.

Curiosity looked into them and found each filled nearly to the top with the w-r.c.m. They were placed close to the hills in which squash or pumpkin seeds had been planted at seeding time. At midsummer the stalks were as big as Mr. Wilson's forearm, and out along each vine there was at least one mammoth pumpkin or squash, weighing 50 to 75 pounds, and putting on final size for the Peterborough "Ex"—where several of them were displayed. That's what w-r.c.m does to pumpkin and squash plants when they first put out their young shoots. They become mastodons, and first prize winners.

That is what the same treatment can do for roses. Set up an old milk can or oil drum in the yard, put plenty of the well-rotted in it, put in several buckets of water, and collect the drip. With that kind of stimulant a junior farmerette rose grower could halt the flower show judge in envy and admiration.

If Gordon Miller and Bert McLeod could regularly apply that concentrate to their "Peace", there's no knowing whom they wouldn't buttonhole to rave about it.

PLANTING IMPORTANT

As to species there are so-called perpetuals, hybrid teas, teas, polyanthas or floribundas, Austrian briar and so on. You can order a dozen from a nursery that will cost around $1 to $1.25 each. The beginner can also resort to the roses imported from Holland, and sold in several of the local downtown stores. There are also the local greenhouses who put in stocks and are also qualified to give advice.

Unwrap the roots and spread them in a hole about two feet wide and a foot and a half deep. Half fill with water, spade in the earth until the garden level is above the graft on the briar root. It is readily recognized.

The earth should be tamped in, and in the background of this operation should be the w-r. Some say roses prefer the cool footing of clay, but a loamy soil with some sand in it should do. Soak the ground once or twice a week. If there is a rain barrel around the farm, so much the better. A place with some shelter is usually a help. But, in the beginning one doesn't need to be too finicky about all these details.

Some of the roses around town that once retailed down to 25 cents apiece used to give surprisingly good results.

The hybrid teas bloom all summer, but the so-called perpetuals, an older species on the whole, yield their best bloom toward the end of June. There is later flowering on new wood. If you include the old white Frau Karl Druschki and the George Dickson, a dark red, they provide beautiful bouquets of red and white. The German rose has won many a prize in its long day at some of the best shows, but for all its form and attractive leafage and long stems, it lacks fragrance.

This is only touching the surface of rose growing, and is inspired by that Forum subject, the ready facilities on the farm, including the shoulder spray. The federal department of agriculture has put out several booklets on rose culture, with recommendations of varities suitable to the Ontario winter. They are free on application. Some of floribundas make a grand show. Further on there are climbers and standards. New Dawn is a hardy, vigorous pink climber, fragrant with shiny leaves. Enemies usually appear before the season is over, and that is when the spray tank acquires importance. But that is a subsequent topic. For those interested, the primary business is to get the bushes well planted.

Then the day comes when, if you persevere, your dining table glows with a dozen or more perfect yellows of your own nurturing.

(P.S.—Anybody buying notions store roses should make certain that they have not dried out in transit and storage.)

Attention Farmers!

At the approach of spring all farmers are planning and hoping for improved crops, greater acreage under cultivation and more livestock. These are natural desires, but you (the farmer) are needed in order to do the work required and carry through such plans.

ARE YOU GOING TO HAVE AN ACCIDENT SOON?

I can't answer that and neither can you. However, we both know that a sudden accident can cause great expense and loss of working time.

UN Assembly Approves Inquiry

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The UN general assembly Thursday voted overwhelmingly for an impartial investigation of Communist charges that American troops waged germ warfare in Korea.

The vote, 51-5 (Soviet bloc) with four abstentions came immediately after the U. S. accused Russia of "utterly and complete iniquitous" behavior for spreading the charges and called Soviet opposition to the investigation "reprehensible in the extreme."

U. S. delegate Ernest A. Gross made the gloves off attack on Russia as the UN assembly began the last day of its stormy seventh session.

Chief Soviet delegate Andrei Vishinsky immediately took the floor and counter-charged that U. S. denials of germ war were "reckless denials of fact" and said the kind of investigation the U. S. wanted was based on "hypocrisy and falseness."

The assembly's 60-country political committee already has approved the inquiry and the UN budget group had appropriated $65,500 to finance it.

Debate on the U. S. demand for charges coincided with press reports pouring in of alleged Communist atrocities against UN prisoners in Korea. As a result, the cordial atmosphere which has prevailed here recently cooled as time for debate approached.

Says Tobacco Second To None

OTTAWA (CP)—A Progressive Conservative member from the tobacco-growing belt of Southwestern Ontario said Thursday Canada is second to none in the quality of tobacco she produces and should strive to increase exports.

J. W. Murphy (PC—Lambton West), speaking during a trade debate in the Commons, urged that Canada trade commissioners in tobacco-importing countries try to get a toe-hold in those markets for the Canadian product.

He noted, for instance, that Portugal imports tobacco to the value of more than $3,500,000 a year and three quarters of it comes from the United States. Canada produces much the same type of tobacco as the United States and of just as high a quality.

"I feel satisfied that in this country we can grow tobacco that can be imported and used by all these trading nations for either cigarets or pipe tobacco."

Parents See Work Of Scout, Cub Sons

OMEMEE (ENS)—The Omemee Cubs and Scouts have held their first Parents' Night, at which parents watched a varied program of Cub and Scout work. There were demonstrations on the Union Jack, and signalling by the Cubs; and knotting and first aid by the Scouts. The parents enjoyed taking part in a relay game with the Cubs and proved that they had not lost their youthful agility.

Mrs. George Stephenson was invested as a Scouter under the watchful eyes of her Cub pack. The Rev. C. Richmond presented Dale Linton, Jerry Nelson, Jim Gladding and Herb Robertson with their Second Class badges. Patrol Leader Jim Gladding, Jerry Nelson and Dale Linton were presented with their bronze arrowhead badges by the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt.

The Parents' Night closed with a word from the Scoutmaster, John E. Joyce, to "aim high."

KEEPING JUNIOR looking spruce is not the job it used to be. Mother now can have fewer garments for her small son, spend far less time in the laundry and eliminate ironing entirely. This lightens her entire load of housework and makes the job of looking after the kiddies that much easier. By finding sun suits, crawlers, pyjamas and little shirts in combinations of orlon and nylon, mother will also find more leisure for herself. These fibres are not only easy to launder, they're long wearing. What this means to the budget, every mother knows. We show our young man dressed for play just after his nap (left). He's wearing red and white crawlers in a lightweight, puckered fabrice made of a combination of the two fibres. His sun suit (right) is also puckered, lightweight material in gay blue and white window-pane plaid. It's bound in white and has an elasticized waist. Here, it's worn with white shirt, also in the puckered orlon and nylon.

Heart Disease Leads

TORONTO (CP)—Heart diseases killed 1,461 people in Ontario in March, the health department said Thursday. Vascular lesions affecting the central nervous system came second with 571 deaths, cancer third with 568 and accidental deaths numbered 238.

Fish Industry Hit By Pork

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's state-controlled canned pork business is interfering with free-enterprise fish sales, a Senate trade committee was told Thursday.

If the government wants to help the fishing industry, it should "get out of canned pork," said H. W. Welch of Air Haven, N.B., a director of the Fisheries Council of Canada.

The question of the government's huge pork stockpile emerged as the committee discussed the factors that relate to Canadian fish sales to North Atlantic countries.

The council executive told the committee also that the industry is deeply concerned over possible increased import restrictions by the United States against Canadian fish.

News Of Missing Man Brings Joy To Family

MONTREAL (CP)—"It was the greatest news a brother could get," said Henry Baker Thursday night when informed his brother, Pte. Arthur J. Baker, was among a group of prisoners repatriated by the Communists at Panmunjom.

"The first I heard of it was when a neighbor, who heard it over the radio, came over to the house and told me," he said.

The father, Peter A. Baker, was at work as an engineer at the time and the mother was at the movies.

"I called my father and told him about Arthur," said Henry. "He was very happy."

Love For Others Theme Of WA Meeting

OMEMEE (ENS) — The April meeting of Trinity United Church WA was held Tuesday night in the church basement. Mrs. H. Deyell presided. Included in the business was the appointing of Mrs. R. Brooks and Mrs. T. A. McConnell to supplement the quilting committee. A catering request was considered and it was decided to comply.

The corresponding secretary read thank-you notes from Mrs. L. McQuade for remembrance during illness and from Mrs. Albert Finney and the family of the late Mrs. Fred McBain for sympathy in recent bereavements.

The devotional program was in charge of Mrs. H. McKee's group, the theme being "Love." Mrs. M. Jones read I Corinthians, Chapter 13, and a commentary on that chapter was read by Mrs. McKee. Mrs. W. D. Weir led in prayer. An article on "Obedience, the Proof of Love," was read by Mrs. E. Mahood. A quartette arrangement of "He Lives" was sung by Mrs. A. N. Weir, Mrs. T. J. Pogue, Mrs. W. D. Weir and Mrs. L. Casey.

The topic was presented by Mrs. Casey, who based her message on John 13:35, "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one for another."

It is easy, she said, to love the lovely, but to love a neglected, ill-bred child or an unattractive, disagreeable adult, you have indeed to be a true disciple of Christ. It was this type of love which, through the centuries, had brought about social reform and the recognition of the equality of men. But, said Mrs. Casey, the greatest token of love the world has ever known was Jesus on the Cross. In that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

Mrs. McKee concluded with urging the necessity of using every opportunity to do a kindness now, since we will never pass this way again.

The group served an attractive lunch.

Canned Fruit Imports Big Worry To Growers

OTTAWA (CP)—O. L. Jones (CCF—Yale) urged the government Thursday to investigate uncontrolled United States exports of canned soft fruits into Canada which he said bordered on "dumping" and threatened the livelihood of Canada's fruit growers.

Speaking during a trade debate in the Commons, the British Columbia member said there was a carryover of 25,000,000 pounds of British Columbia peaches. Yet in 1952 the U.S. exported 11,000,000 pounds of canned peaches into this country. An additional 10,000,000 pounds probably came in in the form of canned fruit cocktail.

If it were not for these imports, he said, the Canadian domestic market could absorb all the peaches and other soft fruits which Canada's fruit-growing areas in British Columbia and Ontario could produce.

Apprentices Needed

OTTAWA (CP)—More employers must provide apprenticeship training to increase Canada's supply of skilled workers, the national apprenticeship-training advisory committee said Thursday. A statement issued after a two-day meeting also said the committee called for higher wages for apprentices among other measures for improving the flow of skilled tradesmen into industry.

"The Store That Makes A House A Home"

LOWEST PRICED SPORTS CAR displayed at International Motor Sports Show was this $1,455 item. Real addicts were intrigued by more expensive (and harder to get into and out of) cars.

Foreign Sports Cars Offer Entrancing Gimmicks

NEW YORK (NEA).—You can get a sports car for $1,455. You can also get one for $17,450, which is a different kind of sport entirely.

On display at the International Motor Sports Show here were both, and quite a few in between. The $1,455 job was a little, open Morris Minor. The $17,450 mechanical masterpiece was a big, black Rolls-Royce, with rugs on the floor and a radio on either side in the rear seat.

If you like the idea of a Roll-Royce, but $17,450 is a little steep for you, there was on display the Rolls-Royce Silver Dawn. It cost only $11,225. No rugs. Only one radio. Quite a buy, if you have $11,225—or you might prefer four Buicks.

The sports car fanatics, a new breed, were going from one model to the next, entranced with the latest designs in these mechanized peanut shells. Some of the designs that caught their fancy were these:

MOTOR IN REAR

A car called a Porsche, which looked like its hood was buckled down with leather straps. Only it turned out to have the motor in the rear, so it was the baggage compartment up front that had leather straps.

A long, low, sleek Ferrari, in fire engine red, carried the low trend to an extreme. Not only can you look over it, but if you're not careful you can trip over it, too.

An Alfa-Romeo, billed as a "Flying Saucer" model, with some justice. The model is almost flat. A gentleman tried to get in the thing, and finally, through some historic contortions, made it. He needed help to get out again.

A Bristol featured colors that made a rainbow look like an old piece of adhesive tape. It was vivid pink, with contrasting bright blue interior and wheels. And there was the custom-built Pegaso El Domenicano, a bright yellow job with green interior and red-wall tires. It had a plexiglass baggage area, fine for people who like to show off their baggage.

FRONT BULGE

There was a vehicle called the OSCA, with an unexplained bulge in the front. This extended about a foot out from the engine, and was enclosed by a fancy grille. A lady said she thought it would be a good place to dry laundry.

There was one car that had its instrument panel in the centre of the dashboard, with empty spaces on either side. Not even a glove compartment. The theory, apparently, is that after you've bought the car, you can't afford gloves.

There was a car called a Morgan, which carried, somewhat ominously, two spare tires. One car had the instruments scattered all across the dash, with the oil pressure gauge way over on the passenger's side. You'd have to ask your passenger for the latest oil pressure.

The Italian-made car had gauges that were labelled "Acqua Termometro" and "Olio Termometro," which tell you how hot the acqua in your radiator is and the olio in your crankcase. The British-built cars recorded the amount of petrol in your tanks.

OWN GEAR SHIFTS

Most of them use foreign gear-shifts, and, for the benefit of domestic drivers, have a little diagram of the shift layout either on the shift knob or somewhere on the dash. There are ash trays on the floor, gear-shifts on the floor, and one called the Skyline had five levers for throttle and lights and such on a special "control quadrant" between the two front seats.

Accessories are big things for the sports who run sportscars. You can get all kinds of side curtains and tire covers, including some dashing plaid ones. You can get rear-view mirrors to set on your fenders and luggage racks to set on your roof. You can dress up your motor with aluminum valve covers. If you want, you can order Union Jack decals, at 50 cents a pair.

You can have your tires with sidewalls of yellow, red, green or blue. If you have short arms, you can get a chrome gear-shift extension. You can get gauges that measure everything, even one that records the total accumulated engine revolutions, a handy thing to know.

Lindsay Seeks Entry In Tri-County

LINDSAY (ENS)—The Lindsay entry in the Tri-County Baseball League this year, if accepted tonight at the league meeting, will bear the name of the famous intermediate hockey team, the Muskies.

A group of hockey players, who performed last year for Merchants in the Lakeshore League, and the Tri-County team, appeared at Thursday night's meeting of the Lindsay Baseball Association and made application for the franchise, owned by the association.

Lou Walker, president of Walkwood Ltd., former sponsors of the Tri-County team, did not appear at the meeting, but it was understood that he would not oppose the new entry. A request was made that Walker allow the new teams to use the uniforms and equipment of his old squad.

ASKS BETTER BALL

President Bill Cummins, newly elected, spoke to the meeting on the matter of the stadium and called for increased effort to improve the calibre of ball played there, and, later, to improve the stadium itself.

Some discussion took place regarding the financial situation and it was decided to leave the "cut" for the association and the teams as it has been for some years, 20 per cent for the association and the rest for the team.

Andy Widdis, manager of Merchants of the Lakeshore League, asked permission for use of the diamond for the first time this year. He expressed satisfaction with prospects for this year and although he will lose three of his players to the new Tri-County entry he told the meeting that he had four senior players from Peterborough and one from Orillia lined up for this weekend.

U.K. Promises To Back European Community

PARIS (Reuters)—Britain, anticipating trouble through its failure to join the projected six-nation European army, promised the Atlantic pact council here today it would give unlimited backing to the European Defence Community.

An authoritative source said Selwyn Lloyd, British minister of state for foreign affairs, made this promise but added Britain alone was not prepared to keep troops in Europe for the 50-year life of the community, as requested by France.

France faces internal trouble over the controversial issue of German troops joining the army and wants more practical British support for the plan to offset domestic criticism.

Obituary

JOHN JAMES GRADY

John James Grady, 564 Annette St., Toronto, and formely of Peterborough, died suddenly Thursday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Mary Rose, Lansdowne St., whom he was visiting.

Mr. Grady was born in Peterborough, son of the late James Grady and Johanna Condon, and received his education here. Later he attended the Ontario College of Pharmacy, Toronto.

Resident of Toronto for the past 22 years, Mr. Grady was manager and proprietor of the Runnymede Dairy. He was a member of St. James' Roman Catholic Church.

Surviving are four sisters, Sister M. Paschal, Mt. St. Joseph, Peterborough; Sister M. St. Frederick, St. Joseph's Convent, Honey Harbor; Mrs. Mary Rose, Peterborough; Mrs. Margaret Condon, Hamilton; and two brothers, Frank, Peterborough, and Dr. F. V. Grady, Sault Ste. Marie.

The funeral will be held Saturday from the Duffus funeral home to Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church for requiem mass at 9 p.m. Burial will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

Prince Sips Cocktails Japanese Upset

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Japanese Temperance Society today protested to Emperor Hirohito because his son, Crown Prince Akihito, 19, had been reported sipping cocktails on his current world trip.

A solemn delegation of five left a note at the imperial palace saying Akihito was openly revolting against the Japanese law which forbids alcohol to minors.

(Akihito officially came of age at 18—two years earlier than required by law.)

Can't Accept Cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless they can show clearly they have it coming, President Eisenhower has ordered all government workers appointed by him not to accept cash for unused vacation and sick leave. Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the order is the result of acceptance of more than $700,000 cash for earned but unused leave by officials of the Truman administration when they left office.

Faithful Dog

ESTHER, Alta. (CP)—Ray Trevor's dog saved him from possibly serious injury when he was knocked down by a vicious heifer on his farm. The dog worried the heifer long enough for his master to escape.

Green Estate

COSHOCTON, O. (AP)—William Green, American Federation of Labor President, left an estate valued at $151,899, probate court records revealed today. Green died last Nov. 21 at 79.

In Mental Hospital

LATINA, Italy (Reuters) — Antonio Cappa, 25, was committed Thursday to a mental hospital for spicing his family's macaroni with rat poison two years ago. He was found unfit to plead to a charge of attempted murder and committed for at least eight years. When arrested, Cappa said "I wanted to kill my father. Unfortunately he had no appetite that day."

Eligible For Promotion

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 11,521 Americans reported missing or captured in Korea—with one exception—are as eligible for promotion as any other member of the service, under a new U.S. policy. The exception is Maj.-Gen. William F. Dean, 24th division commander reported a prisoner. He was left out since the directive applies to officers below his rank only.

FIRE DESTROYS GARAGE — J. F. Stillson, 77, salvages a few soft drinks from the ruins of his garage which burned to the ground at Woodlands, 13 miles west of Cornwall, Ont. A filling station, owned by his daughter, also was destroyed in the fire. Damage was estimated at $12,000. Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

61 To Be Tried As Terrorists

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—British authorities announced Thursday night that 61 more suspected Mau Mau terrorists will be tried on charges of taking part in the Lari massacre, bringing to 260 the number of defendants in the case.

An estimated 200 men, women and children of the Kikuyu tribe, including Chief Luka, were butchered at Lari, near Nairobi, on March 27. The surprise attack—the worst in the past months of terror in this East African colony—was aimed at government servants and their families who had remained loyal to the whites.

Since the British declared an emergency here just over six months ago, 1,059 people have been killed, according to official count.

British authorities said the Mau Mau has been responsible for 464 slayings, including 425 members of the Kikuyu tribe, 25 other Africans, 10 whites and four Asians. The total of 1,059 does not include the Lari massacre, for which there is no official figure.

Commissioner Baugh Dies At Kent Home

LONDON (CP)—Commissioner Charles Herbert Baugh, 72, territorial commander of the Salvation Army in Canada from 1946 to 1951, died today at his home in Bromley, Kent.

Commissioner Baugh was chief of staff and second in command of the international Salvation Army from 1943 to 1946. Funeral services will be held Tuesday.

Judge Frees Reluctant Man

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A man who wanted to go to jail for five years to be with his pal was freed Thursday by district judge Clarence Mills despite his protest.

Oscar Lee Clark had pleaded guilty to a car theft charge earlier in the week. He asked for a five-year term like the one given his friend, Leon Wilderson, who was sentenced for car theft and burglary.

But Clark had no previous convictions, and an assistant district attorney recommended a suspended sentence. Clark said no thanks, he wanted to go to jail. He had agreed with Wilkerson they would stay together, and he wanted it that way.

But Judge Mills paid no heed. "This doesn't make sense," he said. "Everybody that comes before me wants out." He suspended Clark's five-year sentence.

Y's Men Club Gains Member, Hears Report

Doug Martin formerly of Sherbrooke, Quebec and a member of their Y's Men's Club there, was welcomed as a member into the Peterborough Y's Men's club Thursday night at their weekly meeting.

Joe Barnard directed a short play put on by Ron Watson, Bill McFarlane, Don Harwood and Gerry Garton. There was a report given by several members of the club on the conclave conference held recently in Belleville.

Erosion Problem

REGINA (CP)—The agriculture department reports that of 50 land-use surveys made in Saskatchewan since 1948, wind erosion was reported as a major agricultural problem by 35 municipalities. It said moderate to severe soil drifting has occurred almost every year in some areas.

Oust Meters

BRIDGETOWN, N. S. (CP)—Town council voted to remove parking meters from this Digby-Annapolis municipality. The majority felt that their disadvantages outweighed the advantages in a town the size of Bridgetown which has a population of just over 1,000.

Five New Members Initiated By Lodge

BETHANY (ENS) — The initiation ceremony for five new candidates was held by the Good Luck Ladies Orange Lodge. They were Sister Margaret Edgerton, Sister Myrtle Robinson, Sister May Whitnall, all of Cavan, and Sister Bertha McGill and Sister Ora Palmer, of Bethany.

There was an attendance of 60, with visitors from Lindsay and Peterborough lodges.

Conducting the initiation ceremonies were Right Worshipful Grand Mistress of Ontario East, Edith Benton; Past Mistress Sister Freida Pilling, of Peterborough; Grand Deputy Mistress for Ontario East Rose Sexsmith, and Grand Chaplain Myrtle Sproat, also of Peterborough. The degree team came from Lindsay and were accompanied by Past Mistress Sister L. Moore and Worthy Mistress Ethel Porter. Sister Mary Edwards, Worthy Mistress of the Bethany Lodge, welcomed new members and visitors.

The attendance prize was won by Mrs. G. Robinson. Holding lucky tickets on cushions were Mrs. Emory Smith and Mrs. Roy Ferren. Refreshments were served.

Coronation Reality After Woman's Dream

TORONTO (CP)—Maj. Handley Geary, VC, and his wife are going to the Coronation because Mrs. Mary Cox had a dream.

Major Geary is sergeant of arms in the Ontario legislature. Both he and Mrs. Cox reside at nearby Woodbridge.

Mrs. Cox says she fell asleep in a chair. "When I woke up I remembered dreaming Maj. Geary was at the Coronation. Then I thought it would be a good idea if the Gearys went to the Coronation and told my husband about it."

The Cox's decided to suggest the idea to the Woodbridge branch of the Canadian Legion, of which Maj. Geary is a past-president. The Legion agreed to finance the trip.

The Gearys are sailing for Britain May 15 and have a section reserved for them in the courtyard of Buckingham Palace to see the Coronation procession.

Thousands Homeless

TOKYO (AP)—Thousands of Koreans were made homeless today by a fire which raged through an estimated square mile of temporary houses in Korea's southeast port of Pusan. The army said firemen stretched hose "as far as a mile" in an effort to halt its spread. No casualties were reported.

DOROTHY DIX:

Woman with Children Finds Living With Mother Trying

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a married woman of 25 with three children. The youngsters and I are living with my parents while my husband attends college in another state.

I am working to support all of us. My parents have been wonderful to us, but my mother and I quarrel bitterly at times because we simply do not see eye-to-eye on many subjects. She objects to my friends (all female), can't see me going out to visit or attend a movie, and argues about everything else I do. If she doesn't change I'll have to move, though it means my husband must give up school—and he has only a few months to go.

M. S.

HAVE PATIENCE

ANSWER: you've been handling a difficult situation quite admirably, and since it will continue for such a short time, I'm sure you can extend your patience for another few more months. Your domestic setup is enough to try the nerves of any wife and mother, but the end is in sight. Separating a family, as you have done, in order to provide a man with further education is a very foolish undertaking. Since his schooling involved such a difficult arrangement, it would have been better to let him finish college before you married. See that you set up a home of your own just as soon as feasible after your husband's graduation, and don't let anyone talk you into breaking it up again.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: A few years ago I promised my husband on his deathbed that I'd never marry again. Now I have met a fine man who wants to marry me, and I feel bound by my promise. I am 59, and, while my first marriage was a perfect one, I would like a home and companionship now.

M. T.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I do not believe in keeping deathbed promises of this nature. However, if you feel bound by yours, why not talk to your minister, who will, I am sure, convince you of your freedom to marry now.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Recently I met a boy of 17, two years older than I. I liked him quite a bit, but found out he was interested in another girl. He asked me to go out with him, but I've been refusing because of the other girl. I haven't told him why I refused his invitation and he seems to be hurt about it.—M. W.

ANSWER: Of course, the boy is hurt and with good cause. He wouldn't ask you out if he weren't free to do so. For you to draw conclusions otherwise is most unfair to the boy. You are both too young to go in for steady dating, so accept his invitations on the basis that he's going out with other girls, and you are free to enjoy the privilege of other dating, too.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: After 20 years of marriage, I'm convinced my husband will never settle down to a quiet old age. He has had at least three affairs in the last 10 years, and, though I love him, and know he loves me, I'm getting fed up. I work, and would like to quit. The first two affairs nearly killed me, but now it doesn't bother me any more. Should I leave him, or give up my job and stay home to find what contentment I can?—HELEN.

ANSWER: Since your husband is living his life as he wants to, I see no reason why you can't have some compensation for your unhappiness. If staying at home is your desire, go ahead and do it. Be prepared, however, to learn that giving up your job may not be the cure-all. With extra time on your hands, and less to occupy your mind, you may tend to do more brooding over your domestic troubles. At any rate, it's worth a try.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Two years ago, when my youngest child was only a few weeks old, my husband deserted me and our three youngsters. I went to work to support us and managed very well with the help of my sister. Recently I met Leonard, and we fell in love. Our emotions got the best of us, and now I'm pregnant. He wants to marry me, and is devoted to my children, so I am sure we'd have a happy home together. The problem is, what can I do about my first husband? Have I got grounds for a divorce? Will I have to file suit?—LAURA W.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: To iron out your difficulties, you need legal aid at once. Divorce proceedings can become very tangled and difficult, and in your case time is of the essence. Depending upon the state in which you live, the divorce may be granted quickly or not at all.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: We are a group of girls in an office, and for the last few months have been distressed to see one of our finest co-workers falling for a man who is utterly worthless. She is 30, and he is close to 50. We'd like nothing better than to see his charming manner exposed, before the lady is completly taken in. What can we do?—FOUR MUSKETEERS.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: There isn't much you can do. When a person sets out to be gullible, a ready victim for any charmer, her friends are quite helpless. The lady is 30, and should be old enough to know gold from dross. Of course, you can tell her what you know against the man—first being sensible enough to have proof of your charges—but I doubt if she'll even listen to you. Better leave her alone and hope her good sense finally will prevail.

T-Skirt Line Forms Top Stunning Suit

By LUCY NOEL
New York Herald Tribune News Service

PARIS— Fresh youthful midsummer clothes by Schiaparelli for daytime, streamlined in Schiaparelli's own manner featuring skilled cut and know-how are subtly spiced with amusing details.

A T-shirt line forms the top of a stunning suit worn under a white tweed topcoat. A kerchief knot appears on each side of a floppy starched linen cartwheel brim. A blue-and-white striped sailor is of white handkerchief linen matching the lining, blouse and gloves of a navy shaunting suit.

Guipure lace is tailored for daytime on shirtwaist lines with cuffed, oversize pockets over each hip. It steps forth in black over white and again for evening.

The about-face in her approach to fashion occurs for after-dark clothes where Schiaparelli allows her fancy plenty of leeway. A formal cerise faille ball gown has five tiered pagoda points in the centre front, balanced in the back by a fishtail train.

Several formal gowns are, however, attuned to official splendor. A white satin gown has a petal skirt in the back and lavish gold embroidery in the front.

For wear over evening gowns for the theatre, Schiaparelli presents a new long nylon-and- cellophane, fringed, white-and-silver fabric, looking like a longhaired summer fur. All white and forming an apron with a yellow top and boa, it steps forth on its own. Graed from white to shocking it forms an evening coat lined in shocking crash linen matching the low-cut, scooped-neck dress.

Fun is had with accessories. Straw-bound sun glasses have two pigtails bowed in colored ribbon forming the stems. Jewelled crabs form the bra and pocket of a summer dress with more smaller crabs scattered over the skirt.

Huge crystal chandelier hoops make earrings, a youthful black crepe cocktail dress is very desollette, but has an off-shoulder cape holding it up.

This line appears several times in short cocktail sheaths or light summer dinner gowns.

The collection is amusingly accessorized with new hats, gloves and jewels.

The volcano of Mount Etna on the Island of Sicily has a record of more than 120 major eruptions.

St. Peter's parish, Mrs. R. Hill; Sacred Heart, Mrs. J. Kearns; Immaculate Conception, Mrs. J. Driscoll; St. Anne's, Mrs. R. J. Macdonald; St. John's, Mrs. R. A. Gravelle; St. Frances de Sales, Mrs. C. B. Young; Ennismore, Mrs. J. Harrrington; Douro, Mrs. Angela O'Grady; Otonabee, Mrs. Vincent Clancy; Lakefield, Mrs. E. Mann; Lakefield rural, Mrs. J. Delaney; Indian River, Mrs. Jos. R. Sheehan; Keene, Mrs. A. Doris; Bridgenorth, Mrs. A. Seidel; St. Alphonsus, Mrs. E. Bailey.

The Rev. J. Coughlin thanked the outgoing executive members for their co-operation, on behalf of himself and the high school staff, and he welcomed the new executive. Mrs. Clare Theobald was chairman of the nominating committee and brought in the slate of nominees.

A film on health of teenage girls was shown by Miss M. Scanlon, physical education instructor at the school. Three girl's basketball teams will be here from Kingston on Saturday to play St. Peter's girls and they will be entertained by the girls while in the city. The Athletic Society of the school is holding a "sock hop" in the gym in May.

Soroptimist Club New Members

Two new members were accepted by the Soroptimist Club at the dinner meeting Thursday evening at the Empress Hotel. They are Mrs. Grace Tate and Mrs. Ada Staunton. They were introduced to the members by president Miss Gene Clark.

The program was presented by Miss Musa Cox who introduced Mrs. Benita Shields, representative of the Community Concert Association in New York. Mrs. Shields outlined the history of the association and the administration policy.

She announced that Miss Lois Marshall has been added to the list of artists from which each Concert Association may choose. Young pianist Ray Dudley of Bowmanville is another Canadian who has just been taken on.

A film on the life of Bizet whose greatest achievement was the opera "Carmen" gave the club an idea of the work that goes into being a great artist. The film was photographed in France and Italy and was attractive in itself without the history and the music it presented.

A vote of thanks for this program was voiced by Miss Myrtle Sargent.

Welcome Given New Minister

HASTINGS (ENS)—Mrs. William Whitred was hostess to St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society for their April meeting. Mrs. C. Dodd led in prayer. The scripture was read by Mrs. J. E. Taylor and the Apostles' Creed repeated in unison. Mrs. W. Scott Fife, present after her long illness, gave current events of missionary interest.

Mrs. Brown took the topic, 3rd chapter of study book, 'African Religions, Old and New."

The president, on behalf of the society, welcomed the Rev. and Mrs. Kennedy to the meeting as they begin their work in the Hastings and Warkworth charge.

Mrs. Fife thanked the members for the cards, etc. and the kindness shown her during her illness. Six sick calls were reported during the month, also 11 cards were sent by Mrs. H. B. Wilson to sick and shut-ins at Easter. Mrs. John E. Taylor invited the ladies to her home for the May meeting.

The hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Stevenson, and Mrs. J. S. Taylor served tea, during the tea hour. Little Morris Stevenson played a piano instrumental. Mr. Kennedy thanked all for their welcome and asked for their support as he begins his work in his new charge.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. W. Chrysler to Mrs. Whitred and Mrs. Stevenson for their hospitality.

Stress Teamwork Nursing Service

TORONTO (CP)—Teamwork is desirable in many phases of nursing, Helen McArthur of Toronto, president of the Canadian Nurses' Association, said Thursday.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario, she said:

"Teamwork must exist between doctor, nurse, social worker and many other allied workers striving for the same objective. We must see that the teamwork philosophy exists between administrator, staff nurse and consumer, between administrator, teacher and student, between nurse and patient."

QUESTION: Would you be too much rushed to send me a recipe for a rich icebox Ginger Cookie for a bridge party?

ELIZABETH M.

ANSWER: It was delightful to hear from you again Elizabeth.

GINGER ICEBOX COOKIES

One cup each butter or shortening, sugar, light molasses, 1 egg, 5½ cups sifted flour, ½ teaspoon soda, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 tablespoon ginger, (nuts are optional). Cream shortening, sugar and molasses until thoroughly blended and creamy. Add beaten egg and mix well. Sift and measure flour then sift it with the other dry ingredients. Add to first mixture. Chill. Form into rolls. (At this point the rolls may be rolled in chopped nuts.) Wrap in wax paper and allow to stand 24 hours in refrigerator. With sharp knife cut into ⅛-inch slices and bake 10 to 12 minutes at 400 deg. Fahr. This makes 80 cookies.

QUESTION: Could you please help us on planning a banquet supper? This graduation supper is being sponsored by the Students' Union and must be cold plate and the cost kept to a minimum . . . approximately 85 guests . . . have you any suggestions for a drink for the toast? We would welcome suggestions for appetizers, main course and desserts. Shirley K.

ANSWER: From long experience we have found this the best menu for minimum cost, fine-flavor banquet purposes: Tomato juice, Ham (Boneless and skinless see notes below), potato salad, jellied perfection salad, hard rolls, celery hearts and mixed sweet pickles, apple or peach cobbler cheese (if budget will stretch for it), Coffee.

If you want punch for drinking toasts use it instead of tomato juice and use the following recipe:

PUNCH (for toasts at banquet)

Three and one-half dozen lemons, 14 oranges, 1 20-oz. tin grated pineapple, 10 ½ cups sugar, 11 cups water. Make a syrup of the water, sugar and the grated rind of 4 lemons and 3 oranges; boil gently 10 minutes. Cool. Add fruit juices and strain. Choped fresh mint may be added if desired. Add double (or more) the quantity of ice or ice cubes. Ginger ale may be added to stretch this if desired. This amount serves 85 adequately.

If you allow 3 ounces of sliced, boiled or baked, boneless and skinless ham per person buy 25 lbs. ham raw weight to serve 85. There will be a small amount left-over to make your servings generous, but this ham must be sliced thinly by an expert in the kitchen.

QUESTION: Would you please give me a recipe for Butter Tarts?

MRS. K. A.

ANSWER:

BUTTER TARTS

Line 12 medium-small tart tins with rich plain or flaky pastry and fill 2-3 full with this filling: Steam ½ cup seedless or seeded raisins, cut them up if desired and add to them ½ cup sugar, 1½ tablespoons fine sifted cracker crumbs, 1 egg yolk, ½ or 1 tablespoon melted butter, dash of salt, 1 tablespoon each lemon juice and grated rind, 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts. Bake tarts at 450 deg. Fahr. for 12 to 15 minutes.

QUESTION: I am a newcomer to this city and am fond of cooking and have had some lovely recipes from you. I noticed that someone was asking for a different Beefsteak pudding from the one you put in the paper, as they had never heard of potatoes going in and neither did I. So here is the recipe my mother used to make if you will pardon me for sending it:

BOILED BEEFSTEAK PUDDINGS

(Contributed by a reader)

Four cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ lb. finely cut up suet. Mix well together and add ½ cup cold water and make this smooth and very fine dough, and cut into 2 pieces. Grease a small bowl all around the inside. Roll out 1 piece dough and line bowl with it. Have ready: 1 lb. best stewing beef cut into small cubes, 1 beed kidney cut up same as beef. Put this in bowl and add a little salt, pepper and ½ cup cold water. Next roll out the remaining dough. Put on top of bowl and seal sides and top by pinching together. Then take a cloth and put over bowl and tie around the rim with twine strongly. Take 2 corners of cloth and tie together at top of bowl, then take the opposite corners and tie. Have boiling water ready in saucepan, lower bowl into boiling water, and let boil without stopping for 4 hours. When done take out and take off cloth and you are ready to dish it out. You boil your vegetables separately. This is a grand treat.

I would like the recipe for faggots. (No signature).

ANSWER: Thanks ever so much. I will print recipe for faggots soon.

IODE Is Making Effort To Help New Canadians

HAMILTON (CP)—The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire is lending a helping hand to new Canadians seeking to find a place in the life of their adopted country.

Mrs. Earl Gott of Waterford, a new convener in the IODE's immigration and Canadianization division, said Wednesday at the annual meeting of the provincial chapter that the efforts included providing opportunities for the newcomers to mingle with the Canadian-born. At such gatherings, conversation in English and the exchange of ideas was beneficial to both.

Other work with new Canadians took the form of presentation of IODE greeting cards at citizenship courts and entertainment of the new citizens after the hearings. The IODE also arranged social gatherings in conjunction with basic English classes and, through discussions and the showing of films, acquainted the newcomers with many phases of Canadian life.

Increased support of educational projects is planned for next year, Mrs. J. A. Stuart of Hamilton, treasurer announced. The proposed 1954 budget provides for 35 per cent for education, 30 per cent for services at home and abroad and eight per cent for immigration and Canadianization.

Mrs. Stuart said primary and junior chapters in Ontario raised tion, spent $212,633. In addition, year and spent all but $502 on their various chapter projects.

Mrs. A. H. Leckie of Dundas said the home and abroad department, in its first year of operation, spent $212,63. In addition, voluntary services carried out by chapter members, including those for institutions, represented more than 15,000 hours.

Chapters continued to maintain hospital cots, equipped some four-bed hospital wards, donated linens and other equipment to various hospitals.

Growing interest in Empire and world affairs studies was reported by Mrs. George Weeks of Lindsay.

Mrs. R. C. Bennett of Hamilton, educational secretary, said the IODE in Ontario last year spent $73,137 on aid to specially-gifted and struggling young students, to encourage school children generally and to improve facilities in schools. Chapters awarded prizes totalling more than $4,000 and placed pictures, flags, sports equipment, craft and art supplies in the schools.

Mrs. C. F. Washington of Walkerton, reporting for Commonwealth and Empire work, said that of the $5,000 sent to India to translate textbooks from English into Hindi for use by native nurses, more than half was given by Ontario chapters in the last three years.

Home and School Association News

OMEMEE

OMEMEE (ENS)—Featured at the Home and School meeting were reports from the 34th annual Home and School convention in Toronto by Mrs. V. E. R. Zufelt, official delegate, and the president, Mrs. A. Stephenson, who also attended.

Mrs. Stephenson called attention to cancer week, hoping all would take advantage of information given over the radio and in literature supplied for that purpose. She also announced the next meeting, May 4. The shield for parent attendance went to the High school.

Mrs. Zufelt dealt with Mrs. Taylor's presentation of the convention theme, "Towards International Goodwill." She quoted her as saying: "We cannot build the world for our children, but we must build our children for the world." A book entitled "The Lost and Found" was recommended for those interested in child education. "Let us never ask more for our children," said Mrs. Taylor, "than we want for all children."

From a panel discussion on parent education some of the points were: The aim of Home and School should be to make parents feel at home with teachers; the parent is part of the teacher's job, for teachers can do better work with a child when they know his home life; personal interviews of parent and teacher were recommended, such interviews to be private and on appointment; there is not enough time for this at Home and School meetings; Home and School programs should aim at giving help to parents; they should be planned by a committee and evaluated afterwards.

Mrs. Stephenson reported on the findings of a rural group discussion, led by Mrs. Chambers, where one of the subjects was play. Play was pronounced as important as anything else in a child's life. It was not necessary to provide created toys, but more stimulating to their imagination to let them use make-do playthings.

To have newcomers feel at home it was suggested they be encouraged to display their skills. Hobbies were upheld as an aid to good mental health and the same speaker urged that each member of the home and school be given a chance to lead in some way.

Toronto's Mayor Lamport saw a danger in making things too easy for children and warned educationists against being too anxious to eliminate hard tasks.

A vote of thanks to Mrs. Zufelt and Mrs. Stephenson for their reports and to Mr. and Mrs. Hough for providing transportation for the delegates was heartily endorsed.

Lunch was served.

You can't go "ALL-OUT" If you feel "ALL-IN"

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" heavy-headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter. 53

No Depression Likely—Hackett

MONTREAL (CP)—A decrease in rearmament expenditure is unlikely to cause a sharp or prolonged depression in Canada or the United States, W. T. G. Hackett, assistant general manager of the Bank of Montreal, said today

Addressing the seventh annual conference of the Canadian Industrial Trainers Association, Mr. Hackett said there is no need to be "overly concerned" once rearamement requirements are met.

"Behind the headlines of conflict, near conflict and unrest, is the challenging fact of vast populations stirred to an awareness of and a desire for something a little closer to the living standards enjoyed in the more fortunate corners of the globe."

Realism in trade policies would determine whether demands made by the struggle for peace would be met by handouts or exchange of goods and services.

Sugar Beet Growers Expect Crop Increase

CHATHAM (CP)—District growers figure on getting at least $1 a ton more for sugar beets this year as a result of Cuba's ban on the export of refined sugar to Canada.

A. W. McIntyre, with the Canada and Dominion Sugar Company, said today that the ban, announced in Ottawa Thursday by Trade Minister Howe, is expected to result in a record acreage in southwestern Ontario.

"To date, only 2,500 growers have signed contracts with Dominion for 23,000 acres," he said. "However, there is ample time for planting of a 35,000-acre crop this summer."

There is no set price for sugar beets, which growers contract by the acre and sell by the ton. The price is determined largely by the prevailing market price for sugar and sugar content in the beets.

New Canadian

of my life," he confessed with the rueful nostalgia of a war veteran. "We were fighting for the ideals we hoped to see realized after the war."

OPTIMISTIC OF FUTURE

Mr. Raeder was optimistic about his future in this country. He hadn't been able to absorb the details of his train journey from Halifax but so far he was immensely pleased with what he had seen of Peterborough. He was impressed with the size of the city which he had expected to find much smaller.

The only stop on the train trip was for breakfast in Montreal where he and Mrs. Raeder caught a glimpse of Crown Prince Akihito of Japan who was on his way to England to attend the Coronation.

But Mrs. Raeder retains a special place in her memory for the Duke of Edinburgh whom she saw in Norway last year.

"I wasn't able to eat all day," Mr. Raeder admitted. "My wife made me take her all over Oslo to see the Duke."

At that rate, it shouldn't take them very long to fit into Canadian ways.

Assesors

school was an informal session designed to help assessors, clerks and the elected representatives. The annual meeting of the Assessing Officers of Ontario will be in Hamilton, probably some time in May.

He said the group were fortunate in getting Mr. Hunter who has been studying the manual for three years. It was issued, said Mr. Sparling, to bring about a more equitable method of assessment within the province.

Councillors, clerks and assessors were present from Peterborough, Haliburton, Victoria, Hastings and Durham-Northumberland. Included also were assessors from Trenton, Campbellford, Belleville and Oshawa.

At the end of the session today they will make a tour of the city hall and a luncheon will be served.

ALEXANDRIA, Ont. (CP)—Ulric Lalonde was honored by a gathering of townsfolk for 42 years of voluntary service on the Alexandria fire brigade. Native of St. Zotique, Que., he is 70 years of age and still serves as captain of the fire brigade.

British Paper Says Atrocities 'Propaganda'

LONDON (Reuters)—The Daily Mirror says today the American public mind is being "poisoned" by hate propaganda arising from atrocity stories told by returning Allied prisoners of war in Korea.

Under the front-page headline "atrocities or bunk?" the mass-circulation newspaper appeals for moderation in the public outcry until atrocities have been checked.

"Angry politicians — no doubt themselves misled — are stirring the brew," an editorial says ". . . We beg U.S. politicians to reflect upon the tragic harm that a slanging match could do.

"Hate propaganda is a game that two can play. And the Chinese know how to make the most of the shootings of rioting prisoners that marred the record of some American camps. Peiping radio has already called these camps Belsens."

The Socialist-slanted Mirror said that atrocities occur in every war but "cruelty has not been a system" in North Korean camps.

NOT VICTOR'S TERMS

"U.S. politicians should understand," it said, "that they cannot lay down victor's terms. There is no victory. There is no unconditional surrender. Who would try whom for war crimes.

"What is aimed at is peace by agreement. Hate propaganda can do nothing except perhaps prolong the fighting and bring about more atrocities."

The newspaper's comments followed an article from its special correspondent in Korea, John Walters, who reported only "a few isolated instances of brutality and neglect."

"According to Allied officers here, some horror stories published in U.S. newspapers were distorted and greatly exaggerated versions of tales told to correspondents," he said.

Publisher Arrested For Wife's Murder

GLASGOW (AP)—Police arrested Archibald H. Ferguson, 68, a publisher, and charged him with the murder today of his wife, Edith

A servant found [illegible] body in a downstairs room of their home. Police said Mrs. Ferguson had received severe head injuries. Her pet black poodle also was found dead by her side.

Ferguson is well known in world shipping circles. He is managing director of Messrs. Brown, Son and Ferguson, Ltd., a Glasgow firm of printers and publishers. The firm published the "Nautical Magazine," one of Britain's oldest marine publications, and "Brown's Nautical Almanack."

Clan Macpherson To Meet In Toronto

MONTREAL (CP)—Macphersons from all Canadian provinces will gather here May 16 for the annual gathering of the Clan Macpherson Association of Canada.

Chairman of the association is Han. Ewen Mcpherson, chief justice of Manitoba, and vice-chairman is Maj. J. A. C. Macpherson of Ottawa.

Health Plan

(c) Inspection of students referred by teachers for reason of special condition.

Additional physician's service in secondary schools is to consist of:

(a) Health examination of grade 9 students who have not been examined in grade 8.

(b) Examination of students participating in competitive school sports.

(c) Examination of students referred by nurse by reason of any special defect.

Wherever an examination by a physician is contemplated by the agreement, the report or certificate of the family physician may be accepted by the MOH.

With respect to non-resident school children and students, the agreement requires only the intra-mural part of the school medical services but the Board of Health would agree to undertake such home visiting as the MOH considered necessary and practicable with the consent of officials of the municipalities concerned.

The terms of the agreement may be revised at any time by mutual consent of the Board of Health and the Board of Education.

The agreement is to remain in force for three years and from year to year thereafter, provided either party may terminate it on July 1, 1956, or on July 1 of any subsequent year on six months' notice.

Russians Agree To Discuss Eisenhower Peace Proposal

Secret Flight Ends In Disaster 6 Perish In Crash

WESTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP)—A secret experimental flight by a B-29 Superfort and an F-84 Thunderjet ended in flaming disaster Friday, with the two craft carrying all their six crew members to death. The planes, flying together when they suddenly burst into flames high above Long Island, apparently collided. However, investigators said no one on the ground actually saw them come into contact.

Air force spokesmen said the flight was of a "classified nature." The service denied an earlier report that the bomber was refueling the fighter in flight at the time of the crash. However, no other details of the mission were disclosed.

The pilot of the jet and the five men aboard the Superfort were from the Wright air development centre at Dayton, O.

CRASH OVER BAY

Both planes had taken off from a field at the Republic Aircraft Corp. in Farmingdale, N.Y., and flew east until they were over Great Peconic bay, an arm of Long Island sound cutting into the island about 100 miles east of New York.

While over the bay they crashed, about an hour after their takeoff.

Witnesses on the ground said there was a ripping sound, a burst of flames, and then the planes plunged down, trailing smoke and flame.

The B-29 hit the bay near the southern shore and sank, leaving only an oil slick. The jet fell into some woods near the south shore and burned on the ground.

The air force identified the jet pilot as Maj. John Davis, 32, of Dayton, O., a test pilot from the Wright centre.

Crew members on the bomber were identified as: Capt. J. J. Vapenick, about 30, the pilot, of Cleveland; Capt. H. C. McClanahan, 30, the co-pilot, of Dayton; Sgt. John R. Clarkson, 31, of Austin, Tex.; and Sgts. Claude Chemp, 34, of Martins Ferry, O., and D. D. Shaffer, 34, of Dayton.

NATO Countries Work Out Defence Policy

PARIS (Reuters) — The 14 North Atlantic Treaty nations announced Western defence policy based on belief that the fundamental threat to security remains undiminished.

The final communique of the North Atlantic Council meeting here said the pact nations had reached complete agreement in their views on recent Soviet moves.

Insofar as events prove that these moves constitute authentic efforts to lessen international tension, they will be welcomed by the member governments, the council said.

But nothing has so far happened to lessen in reality the "fundamental threat" to the security of the "free peoples," it added.

The communique went on to say that the Communist attack on Laos in French Indo-China is only the latest example of policies responsible for aggressive warfare in several parts of the world.

BOOST AIR STRENGTH

The ministers ended their spring meeting by voting to boost NATO's air strength by 2,700 war planes and its ground forces by 10 divisions, an aide reported.

The foreign, defence and finance ministers wound up their three-day meeting, at which they approved a costly military program estimated at $70,000,000,000 in the next year and pledged to remain on guard despite Soviet peace hints by arranging to meet again in October.

External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson, Defence Minister Brooke Claxton and Finance Minister Douglas Abbott lead the Canadian delegation.

The new plane program will increase NATO's air strength to 5,600 planes by the end of 1954.

The additional aircraft will include trainers as well as jet and all-weather fighters.

The 10 new divisions, four of them intended to be ready to fight and six of them in reserve, will increase NATO's land forces to 60 divisions.

However, among the six reserve divisions may be a number of regimental combat teams which would be attached to existing first-line divisions.

Governor Asks Investigation

BOSTON (AP)—Governor Christian A. Merter's office said today the chief executive has asked the Massachusetts boxing commission for a report on Friday night's one-sided lightweight championship fight between title-holder Jimmy Carter and Tommy Collins.

The action followed a wave of protest from television fans who thought the fight should have been stopped earlier than the fourth round to prevent Collins from taking such a beating. Collins was knocked down 10 times before Carter was awarded a technical knockout.

Members of the commission plan to meet and question referee Tommy Rawson and others.

Meanwhile, the plucky Collins was resting at home. He had a blackened left eye but said he felt fine.

Collins came to the defence of Referee Rawson by saying: "I'm glad he didn't stop it before. I had a chance to win the title everytime I got off the floor."

Germans Will Sign Arms Treaty First

BONN (AP)—West Germany's treaties to rearm in alliance with the West will be proclaimed the law of the land as soon as federal President Theodor Heuss signs them, probably next week, a government spokesman said today.

Government sources appeared confident that Heuss would sign the pacts despite the fact they have not been approved by the Bundesrat (upper house) but only by the lower house.

"Thereby Germany will become the first of the six partner states to have completed political action on the European Army Treaty," the spokesman said. "For us there will remain only a Supreme Court decision on the constitutionality of the pacts, while France remains so far behind us that it has not even brought them up for a parliamentary test."

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer decided to send the pacts to the president for signature Friday after the Bundesrat rebuffed his demand for an immediate ratification vote.

Pearson Ready To Go Half Way

PARIS (Reuters)—L. B. Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister said Friday night the 14 North Atlantic Treaty members have all agreed to go half way to meet any genuine Soviet peace move.

Pearson, president of the United Nations general assembly, told a press conference the NATO council is not convinced that any such Soviet moves have appeared so far. But at the same time it did not want to condemn the latest Russian peace offensive as "meaning nothing."

The NATO council agreed Thursday with the position outlined by the United States—that Russia has changed her tactics but not her long-range aims.

Asked what practical deeds would convince NATO of Soviet sincerity, Pearson listed the signing of a Korean armistice, the completion of an Austrian peace treaty and a settlement of the German problem.

Pearson said that the strengthening of NATO might well be the cause of the "shift" in present Soviet policy.

Canada Plans Give NATO $60,000,000

Four-Year Budget Reaches $885,000,000 For Defence Items

PARIS (CP)—The North Atlantic treaty council Friday voted an $885,000,000 military equipment program, of which Canada will contribute more than $60,000,000.

The four-year budget covers construction of airports, a radar warning system and other defence installations in Western Europe, including enlargement of supply ports.

The U.S. agreed to contribute the largest share of the cost, 42.86 per cent. This is a slight increase from the 42 per cent the U.S. has paid heretofore.

SECOND LARGEST

France, which gets a major share of the airports, will contribute the second largest amount, 13.75 per cent. Britain is third with 11.45 per cent and Canada fourth with 7.13 per cent—or $62,215,500.

The budget vote followed one Thursday in which it was agreed to spend $550,000,000 for airplanes to be built in Europe. Canada, already providing Sabre jet airframes for Britain, is not involved in this budget. The U.S. is contributing about half of the $550,000,000.

The new appropriation brought total equipment appropriations in the last three years to almost $2,000,000,000.

Already 124 airfields have been authorized and 80 of these will be ready for use by the end of this year, a NATO statement said.

Senator Talks For 22 Hours

WASHINGTON (CP)—Senator Wayne Morse ended a 22-hour, 26-minute speech at 10:06 a. m. EST today—the longest non-stop address ever made in the United States Senate.

Morse, an independent from Oregon who broke with the Republican party during the last election campaign, spoke at length to dramatize the fight against a bill establishing state ownership of oil-rich submerged coastal lands.

His record far surpassed the almost legendary feats of Robert M. (Fighting Bob) Lafollette and Huey P. (The Kingfish) Long.

Senator Morse, a healthy and wiry 51-year-old outdoor type of man, thanked his colleagues for sticking with him through the night. Few did, but he was grateful to them.

Vice - President Richard Nixon and most senators stayed away. Nixon arrived at 8:25 a. m to relieve Senator Frank Carlson (Rep. Kan.) who had presided.

FIRST RALLY HELD in Peterborough of the Christian Business Men's Committee drew 75 delegates from all over Ontario and parts of Quebec. The two-day rally is being held in George St. United Church. 2,650 Troops Watch Latest Atomic Blast

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—One of the spring series most brilliant and powerful atomic bombs exploded with golden brilliance before dawn today as 16 congressmen and 2,650 troops looked on.

Shortly after the blast, touched off from a 300-foot tower at 4:30 a. m. PST, troops climbed from their trenches 4,000 yards from ground zero and advanced in a tactical manoeuvre.

The shot, at the atomic energy commission's Yucca Flat test site 75 miles away, was a thing of beauty as seen from here. Fleecy clouds, invisible in the darkness an instant before, were momentarily printed with gold.

Observers at the control tower, where the congressmen were stationed, 10 miles from ground zero, said the shock wave at their vantage point was the strongest of the series. It broke light bulbs and window panes in outbuildings.

The flash was seen as far away as San Francisco—600 miles distant.

A U. S. Navy AD-2 Skyraider drone plane, flown into the churning atomic cloud, crashed. Such craft carry instruments to obtain scientific data, which is relayed to the ground by radio.

Fifty-two aircraft, including six B-17 Stratojets and six B-50s, were in the air on various missions.

The army manoeuvre was conducted by two combat teams of 1,200 men each. With them in the trenches were 250 military observers. And in trenches an undisclosed distance closer to ground zero were eight officer volunteer observers.

The army said there were no casualties.

Family Murdered In Mau Mau Raid

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—A white settler, his wife and two children, aged 14 and 16, have been murdered in a suspected Mau Mau terror raid, police announced today.

The bodies were found in a remote spot east of Nyeri, capital of the central province.

See Soviet Taking First Concrete Step

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House said today Russia's new peace statement may be "a first step toward something concrete" in settling cold war problems.

"If so," an official White House statement said, "the Free world will continue to wait for the definite steps that must be made if the Soviet leaders are sincerely interested in a co-operative solution to world problems."

The statement was read to newspaper men by press secretary James C. Hagerty as a comment on a declaration in the Communist newspaper Pravda that Russia is willing to enter into "business like" discussions with the West. Pravda's page one statement made it clear, however, that the Russians are not backing down on their foreign-policy line.

Charge Immigration Policy Now Too Harsh In Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition parties in the House of Commons charged Friday that Canada's immigration policy toward some minority groups is too harsh and in one case discriminatory.

Joseph Noseworthy (CCF—York South) said the government is discriminating against British West Indies Negroes at a time when it has an anti-discrimination bill before the House and when there was talk of the West Indies becoming a Canadian province.

Six members—Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC (PC—Nanaimo), E.D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops), W. J. Browne (PC—St. John's West), Gordon Higgins (PC—St. John's East), Angus MacInnis (CCF—Kootenay West)—urged the government to relax immigration restrictions for relatives of Chinese Canadians.

Mr. Fulton and Mr. MacInnis also suggested similar action for East Indians and Mr. MacInnis included Japanese Canadians who were either stranded in Japan at the outbreak of war and had to serve in the Japanese Army or had been returned to Japan from the west coast.

ITEMS CONSIDERED

At the night adjournment before the week-end break, the House had begun item-by-item consideration of estimates for the immigration and citizenship department.

Main theme of the debate was that Canada needs more new blood. Angus MacLean (PC—Queens) said immigration is a world problem and he suggested deployment of entire populations from overcrowded countries. If Canada didn't share her resources voluntarily, they might eventually be taken from her by force.

Immigration Minister Harris said immigration is being tailored to the needs of the Canadian labor market.

PROTECTS WORKERS

He said his department controls immigration so that Canadian workers will not be displaced, but at the same time tries not to stamp on natural optimism about Canada's economic future. The department was constantly consulting other government departments and the provinces on labor requirements.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said too many immigrants with Fascist and Nazi sympathies are getting into the country. Canadian authorities rightly made thorough checks of applicants for Communist leanings, but were much less stringent in checking for other totalitarian sympathies which could be as dangerous for Canadian democracy.

Ross Thatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw said more immigration—he suggested 300,000 a year, about double the 1952 figure—would solve, or at least alleviate, two big problems: taxes and export markets.

He said more immigrants would mean more consumers who would use products of Canadian fields and factories and spread out the tax burden.

2 Canadians Under Arrest For Abducting, Robbing Vet

COLDWATER, Mich. (AP)—Two Canadians were arrested here early today in the kidnapping-robbery of a Detroit Korean war veteran on a Detroit street. A police radio broadcast within a few hours after the early morning abduction led to the arrests.

Earl Williams, 24, the veteran, said two men entered his car as he stopped for a traffic light.

One stuck a gun in his back, he said, and he was forced to drive to a field three miles west of Wayne.

BOUND TO TREE

His wallet and wrist watch were taken and then he was bound to a tree. The men then drove off in his car.

Wallace freed himself and hitchhiked to the Wayne county road patrol office. The license number of his car was put on the police broadcast.

The arrests in Coldwater, 100 miles west of Detroit, followed at 5:20 a. m.

Police stopped a car identified as Williams' at a traffic light.

TAKEN TO SHERIFF

Two men in the car, who gave their names as Raymond Johnson and Arthur D. Goneau, both of Toronto, were taken to the Branch county sheriff's office.

Police said they found Williams' wallet and wrist watch and a loaded revolver in the men's possession. The men refused to make a statement, police said.

Williams, after 11 months service in Korea, was discharged from the army last October.

Johnson and Goneau were held for Detroit police. No charge was placed against them.

Employee Gets Holdup Reward

BUFFALO, N. Y. (CP)—A jewelry store employee, pistol-whipped by robbers before they killed his boss last Dec. 9, will receive $500 reward posted by a jewelers' organization.

Justice William H. Munson, who presided at the state Supreme Court trial in which two Canadians were found guilty of killing Donald F. Hurd, 46, decided Friday the reward should go to two prosecution witnesses.

The witnesses, Thomas J. Williams and Charles E. Evans, immediately assigned the money to Frederick L. Volker, who still wears a head-neck brace as a result of injuries inflicted by the robbers.

Munson said that without information provided by the two witnesses, police still might be seeking Maurice (Digger) O'Dell, 27, and Walter F. Griffen, 26, both of Hamilton.

Bush Fire Halted Near Munition Dump

CAMP BORDEN (CP)—A bush fire raced to within 300 yards of a big ammunition dump near this military camp Friday night before 1,000 firefighters put it out.

Firemen said light winds helped them prevent the blaze from spreading to the dump. No one was hurt.

Camp Borden is about 50 miles north of Toronto.

Moscow Stresses 'No Retreat' On Foreign Policy

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP)—The official newspaper of the Communist party declared today that Russia is ready to enter into "business-like" discussions with the West to end great world controversies but made it clear the Soviet Union is not retreating anywhere along the line of foreign policy. The Russian reply to President Eisenhower's April 16 foreign policy speech was spread across the entire front page of Pravda in an editorial. The text of the president's speech was printed on an inside page of the same edition.

The whole tone of the Pravda reply was sharp and argumentative. But it was not vituperative or belligerent.

It took issue with the president on several points and vigorously criticized State Secretary Dulles. It definitely reaffirmed previous Soviet positions on many issues that have created tension with the West, and it took exception to certain principles of U.S. policy.

But it declared:

"The Soviet government will welcome any step of the American government or any other government if it is directed at the friendly settlement of difficult questions," the statement said.

"This is evidence of the readiness of the Soviet side for serious business like discussions of outstanding problems."

The statement added that the Russians would participate in direct conversations and, when necessary, in negotiations through the United Nations.

LEADERSHIP STATEMENT

Although it was unsigned and entitled solely "on the address of President Eisenhower," it seemed clear that the article was a statement by the leadership of the Soviet Union.

It was clearly an answer to President Eisenhower's April 14 speech.

In that address, the president challenged the new Soviet government to prove its peace overtures by agreeing to global disarmament and taking concrete steps to end the tensions that threaten world war.

Eisenhower said the first step must be an honorable armistice in Korea, followed by political discussions leading to free elections in a united Korea. He also called for an end to Red aggression in Indo-China and Malaya, an Austrian peace treaty, unification of Germany and independence for the East European satellites of Russia.

Force Aly Khan Give Up Race

BRESCIA, Italy (AP)—The Aga Khan today forced his son, Prince Aly Khan, to withdraw from this weekend's hazardous Italian road speed classic, the Mille Miglia—thousand mile race.

Prince Aly, an avid auto race fan, had entered his own Afla Romeo racer with Goffredo Zehender of France as his co-driver.

At the last minute the Aga Khan said "no." He insisted the course that Italians call "the race of 7,000 curves" is too dangerous.

Prince Aly was in India until eight days ago. He came to Milan Friday, accompanied by Hollywood film star Gene Tierney, then hurried to Brescia to look over his racer.

Now, according to Zehender, the prince probably will not even show up at midnight tonight to watch the cars take off.

He is greatly disappointed," Zehender explained. "He would feel ashamed if he showed up and fans cheered him—when he cannot race."

Seeks Place For Spain In Western Defence

PARIS (Reuters)—Portugal today appealed to the West to allow Spain to join the Western defence system.

Paulo Cunha, the Portuguese foreign minister, told a press conference here it is "absurd" to keep Spain out.

The question of Spain's admission to the North Atlantic Pact—"the real solution of the problem"—was not discussed at the current NATO council meeting here, Cunha said.

Portugal would not insist on Spanish membership of the organization, as there were other ways of integrating her into the Western defence system, such as by bi-lateral agreements with NATO members, he contended.

Infantry Cuts Down Third Of Red Force

SEOUL (AP)—Grim U.S. infantry, using bayonets, rifle butts and hand grenades, cut down about one-third of a 500 to 750-man Communist force that smashed against Allied lines in central Korea today.

Fifty Chinese attackers who jumped into the American trenches were wiped out. In all, nearly 200 Reds were killed or wounded in three hours of bloody fighting, the 8th army said.

The rest of the Red attack force scurried for cover under withering fire from the U.S. 3rd infantry division.

The Reds hit an American outpost and nearby main line position just east of Jackson heights about midnight.

The besieged American troops weathered a hail of 4,000 rounds of Red artillery and mortar fire during the battle.

Yoshida Scores Triumph In Japanese Senate Vote

TOKYO (AP)—Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida's Liberal party rolled up an impressive triumph in Friday's Senate (House of Councillors) election, possibly strengthening Yoshida's position in his fight to keep his job.

The Liberals had nailed 38 of 97 seats by 5 p. m., and independents who frequently vote with the Liberals had collared 25 more. The lefist Socialists had 11 seats, the next highest total. The small but vocal Communist party didn't win a seat.

It was Japan's second national election in five days. At stake were 128 seats in the 250-seat House of Councillors, which can delay but not veto legislation approved by the powerful lower house.

Last Sunday Yoshida's party won 43 per cent of the lower house seats—far more than any other party, but below a majority. He is trying to collect enough outside support to win nomination as prime minister again when the lowerhouse meets soon.

Yoshida dissolved the Diet (Parliament) last month and called new elections after his opponents joined forces to push through a non-confidence vote.

The voters dumped many labor leaders, who ran mostly on Socialist tickets. And the Communists lost two of the three seats they have held in the upper house.

Half of the upper house is elected every three years. The Liberals had 47 seats among the holdovers, which might give them more than 100 seats in the new house. They had 82 in the last upper house.

Reds Keep Up Exchange Of War Prisoners

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Another 100 Allied prisoners—including a bonus number of Britons, Americans and Turks—were freed today as the Communists kept their promise to continue the exchange of sick and wounded captives beyond the original limit.

The Reds said they would free 13 more Americans and 71 disabled South Koreans Sunday as truce negotiators return to this neutral zone for the first full-dress armistice talks since last Oct. 8.

Seventeen Americans, four Britons, four Turks and 75 South Koreans came back today, bringing the total to the 600 the Reds said they would exchange in six days. But of the total:

136 were Americans—16 more than promised.

32 were Britons—12 more than promised.

15 were Turks—equal to the number of non-Koreans the Reds said they would exchange aside from British and Americans.

Two were Canadians.

15 others included men from Colombia, Australia, South Africa, Greece, the Philippines and Holland.

400 were South Koreans.

PLEDGED TO CONTINUE

Both sides have said they would continue the exchange beyond the 600 originally pledged by the Reds and the 5,800 promised by the UN command.

Neither side has said how many more it will trade, but some observers have speculated the exchange could go on indefinitely.

The UN command proposed Friday that sick and wounded be exchanged continuously while hostilities continue. The Reds have not replied.

A South Korean lieutenant freed today said the Communists hold "more than 1,000 seriously sick and wounded South Korean prisoners" near Manpo in North Korea.

There were no litter cases among the Americans, Britons and Turks exchanged today.

Bombs Explode At Army Club

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—Bombs exploded in front of the Military Club, an army officers social club, here early today causing considerable damage in the building.

No casualties were reported.

The club, in the fashionable part of town, is on the Plaza San Martin, a few hundred yards from the foreign ministry building.

Two bombs went off killing six persons April 15 as President Peron was addressing a mass meeting in the Plaza del Mayo.

At that meeting President Peron announced a new purge in the government and his own Peronista party, as well as drastic action against "dishonest traders" whom he called profiteers.

Aim Two Spearheads At Capital Of Laos

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—Communist-led Vietminh troops advancing across Laos aimed two invasion spearheads at the little kingdom's royal capital of Luangprabang today.

One moved southward after crushing stubborn resistance from French and Laotian defenders at the mountain post of Mungnpoi, in northern Laos, 60 miles from the capital.

The other force came from the east. It included rebel units that participated in the capture of Kiengkhouang, 90 miles southeast of Luangprabang.

The French estimated the enemy column driving from the northwest was about five days from Luangprabang. The distance is only 50 miles but progress is slow over the narrow mountain trails which pierce thick jungles and are cut by swift streams.

Charge Laborer With Murder Of Four Children

QUEBEC (CP)—Georges Hebert, 42-year-old laborer today was arraigned on a charge of murder in the brutal ax-slaying of his four children.

He was remanded to April 30 for preliminary hearing.

The Crown decided to proceed on a charge of murdering one of the children—nine-year-old Rene—instead of all four.

Rene was the eldest. The others were Louisette, 7, Nicole, 5, and Gaetan, 3.

Hebert's 34-year-old wife, who left the children with her husband last Saturday, was charged with "having, between April 10 and 23, neglected taking care of your children and providing for their life."

A coroner's court jury Friday night found Hebert criminally responsible for the brutal deaths.

In a courtroom jammed with 300 spectators a provincial police detective had disclosed that Hebert said he planned to kill three other persons.

"I am tired of the life my wife is leading. I killed my children . . . You have arrested me in time. I planned to kill three other persons," Hebert was quoted by Det.-Lieut. Aime Pettigrew of the provincial police.

ANGRY CROWD

Hebert, a big, black-haired tile and cement worker, was brought secretly to the court house cell block for appearance at the inquest while a crowd estimated about more than 1,000 stood in the court house's broad corridors and in the entrance.

However, on a decision of Coroner Dr. Gustave Ferland, Hebert was not brought into court.

"We could not bring him up," Dr. Ferland told newspaper men. "The crowd would have killed him."

CANADIAN HISTORY — Like a page out of Canadian history, this authentic old train goes on display this evening at Central Station. The only mobile museum in the world, its six ancient coaches and three locomotives—one of which is shown—carry exhibits covering Canadian rail history from 1836. Even the "crew" is dressed in period costume.

Armed Men Guard Villages Against Douks

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Determined men carrying shotguns stalked through villages in the Slocan valley Friday night protecting their homes and businesses against possible violence by Sons of Freedom Doukhobors.

Fearful of a continuance of terrorist raids which have destroyed 23 homes and buildings this spring, non-Doukhobor residents of the valley are taking no chances. Armed night patrols have been organized in most communities and the situation is described as "tense."

One shot has already been fired. A jittery guard let go a warning blast from his shotgun when two men failed to answer his challenge. No one was hurt.

The Slocan valley is in the heart of the uneasy west Kootenays where the radical Freedomites are blamed for the most recent burnings. "Bottle bombs," filled with gasoline, were used in the destruction of the buildings. Railway tracks and telegraph poles have also been blasted.

Last weekend the non-Doukhobors demanded that the government impose a curfew on the radicals.

Attorney-General Robert Bonne replied that the curfew was not feasible but he announced that the government would offer rewards up to $3,500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the terrorists. The attorney - general said the government was also preparing for mass arrests if demonstrations result from government action.

The violence is reported to be spurred by opposition from the minority group of 2,000 Freedomites to plans for relocating the Doukhobors in another country. Various sites in Central and South America are being considered.

Reaume Denies Urging Holdout

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A denial that he has been urging farmers to hold out for "fantastic prices" for their land in the face of Ontario department of highways attempts to push through the new Windsor-Toronto super highway was issued today by Mayor Arthur J. Reaume.

At the same time, Mayor Reaume accused provincial land agents of using "Hitler-like tactics" in attempting to shove around farmers, who are only asking "fair and reasonable prices" for their property.

Mayor Reaume today issued a strongly-worded denial of statements attributed to a "high official" of the highways department, who was reported to have said expropriation will be necessary in many cases because of the interference of Windsor's mayor.

"I did not tell anyone to hold out for high prices," Mayor Reaume told the Windsor Star today. "I did tell them to hold out until the government offers to treat them fairly.

"These government land agents have been acting like a bunch of Hitlers, pushing the farmers around. The prices they offer are not in keeping with today's land values."

Extend Rent Controls In United States

WASHINGTON (CP)—The Senate today passed a bill extending federal rent controls to July 31 in areas of the United States where they now are in operation. Some 5,600,000 dwelling units are affected.

The House of Representatives passed the bill last Thursday and it now goes to President Eisenhower for final approval.

Federal rent controls would have ended April 30 if not extended.

After July 31 federal controls will continue on 1,300,000 dwellings in areas designated as critical because of the growth of defence activities.

Claim-Stakers Push Rush

URANIUM CITY, Sask. (CP)—Gus Hawker of this booming mining town hopes to retire to England this year on profits from his store and claim sales.

To strangers visiting the hub of Saskatchewan's 500 - squaremile Beaverlodge uranium field Hawker says "stake some claims and make a fortune."

In general, his advice reflects the surging wave of optimism now sweeping what is regarded as the hottest of Canada's mineral "hot spots."

What is possibly the greatest staking rush recorded in Canadian mining continues unabated as claim-stakers rush in to take the advice of Hawker and other successful sourdoughs.

During a 12-day period from Fed. 26 to March 10, 1,600 claims were recorded in Uranium City by submitting recorder W. "Bill" MacDonald.

In all, between 4,000 and 4,500 claims have been staked and recorded here since early last summer.

Among the estimated 300 bona fide prospectors now active in the Beaverlodge field, Charlie Menifee, 60, could be singled out as a typical sourdough. Born near Lexington, Ky., Menifee moved to Canada in 1915 and started prospecting in Northern Ontario the following year. He came to Beaverlodge last June and since then has staked or otherwise acquired 300 claims (in land area about 15,000 acres).

Charlie hopes to form an exploration and development company of his own and predicts he'll have a uranium mine in operation within two or three years.

If Charlie's plans work out, he will get 10 per cent of the new company's stock issue, a percentage of royalties, and will be manager of field operation.

However Charlie readily admits that the odds are stacked heavily against the old-time prospector, few ever really striking it rich. He says "we live in hope and die in despair."

Pair Plan Trip To Paris

By FRED HAMPSON

HONG KONG (AP) — A petite Parisienne with dark and curly hair and her aviator husband plan to start this month on a 15,000-mile voyage from Indo-China to Paris by way of the Panama canal —in a 30-foot Chinese junk.

Their sole companion will be a pet monkey, Penelope.

Henri Bourdens and his wife Jose were in Hong Kong early in April for a week, buying maps, weather books and other navigation aids. They hope to bring their 11-ton crescent - shaped junk Iemanja—named for a Brazilian sea goddess—up the seine to Paris by next January.

FIRST ATTEMPT

It will be their first attempt at a long-distance sea voyage under sail, but the Bourdens are optimistic.

"There has to be a first time," says Henri.

His wife added, "We're French," which, she indicated, explained everything.

The trip will take them first to Manila, then to Japan and across the Pacific to U.S. or Canadian ports. By easy stages they plan to cruise south to the Panama canal, then across the South Atlantic to Gibraltar, Spain and France.

Bourdens was a pilot with the RAF during the Second World War. He went to Saigon after the war with Air France. His tour of duty in Indo-China is over.

Moscow Stresses

(In Washington, the White House press secretary, James A. Hagerty, said there would be no comment until the full Pravda statement has been received by the U. S. government.)

The Soviet statement sharply attacked some things Eisenhower said and many that U.S. State Secretary Dulles has said since the president made his appeal in speaking before the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

ATOMIC WAR THREAT

Referring directly to Eisenhower's remarks, the Soviet statement accused him of trying to threaten the U.S.S.R. with atomic war.

Eisenhower said the alternatives to true peace endeavors were: At worst "atomic war," at best, "a life of perpetual fear and tension."

The Soviet statement fully agreed with Eisenhower's plea for a lessening of tension and building peace, but it accused him of not being consistent.

"In his address," it declared, "the president of the United States for some reason considered it possible to connect his proposals of peace with a whole series of preliminary conditions presented by him to the Soviet Union, although these claims are not reinforced by corresponding obligations from the side of the United States."

Making it perfectly clear that they did not subscribe to or agree to many of these "conditions," the Soviet statement pointed out that Russia, too, has claims and ideas about what should be done.

WHY THREAT HEEDED

"Those who wish to see in the Eisenhower address a real striving for peace," the statement declared, "cannot but ask why it was necessary for the president in a speech calling for peace to threaten in language capable of only one interpretation—atom war?"

Discussing the apparent conditions laid down by Eisenhower, the statement said the President asked: "What is the Soviet Union prepared to undertake or do?"

"It is well known," the statement continued, "that the Soviet Union always manifests readiness to discuss and solve in a friendly manner international questions on condition that proposals on the solution of these questions, no matter who shall make them, are in some degree acceptable and are not counterposed to the basic interests of the Soviet people and the interests of other peace loving peoples."

CAN'T IGNORE IT

Referring to State Secretary John Foster Dulles, the statement declared:

"We cannot pass by in silence the claim of Dulles that the alleged call of Soviet leaders for peaceful settlements was made under the pressure of the so-called firm policy of the United States.

"It is, however, known to the entire world that Soviet leaders determine their actions not by consideration of the 'firmness' or 'softness' of the policy of one or another country towards the U. S. S. R. but based on the interests of the Soviet people and world security."

Police Find Second Body

PEACE RIVER, Alta. (CP)—A second body has been found by the RCMP in their two-week search for two missing trappers in the Peace River district.

A search party discovered the body of Harold Sherris Friday, buried under moss at a point about 1½ miles from a burned-out cabin where the charred body of an unidentified man was found April 12. Sherris' body has been brought here for examination.

Sherris and his partner, George Craig, vanished in mid - March along their trapline in the Reno district, 300 miles northwest of Edmonton.

The fire-gutted cabin was found March 26 by Logan Sherris, brother of Harold. The RCMP were called in and a search of the cabin unearthed the charred remains of a man.

A coroner's inquest has been ordered.

Three Union Members Committed For Trial

TORONTO (CP) — Three union members were committed for trial Friday on charges of wounding and threatening the life of factory owner Edmund Goldberger, who allegedly refused to allow a union to operate in his plant.

Lowrie Rosen, international representative of the Ladies Garment Workers Union (AFL-TLC) and Harold Cuttler and Graham Robinson were charged with attacking Goldberger and his son-in-law, Andras Jacob.

Drunk Fined

James Boudreau of Fraserbrace was fined $10, and $2.50 costs, today for being drunk. He told Magistrate W. R. Philp that he intended to start to work Monday with Centre Lake Radium Mines, and was given until Wednesday to pay his fine.

Toronto 'Through' Highway One Of Worst Bottlenecks

TORONTO (CP) — Across the southern edge of Toronto stretches a highway intended to speed traffic along the Lake Ontario shoreline from one side of the city to the other.

Motorists driving over it from the western entrance pass over the Humber river bridge, roll through the heart of Sunnyside amusement area, skirt the Canadian National Exhibition grounds and Maple Leaf Stadium, then traverse the waterfront and a busy industrial area before passing Woodbine racetrack and heading for the eastern exit.

Suburban growth, coupled with a tremendous increase in the number of automobiles in use in the area, created congestion and bottlenecks along the driveway patterned after Chicago's famous Michigan Boulevard.

RUSH HOUR JAM

Untangling the rush hour chaos is to be one of the first major tasks of the new metropolitan Toronto council. Planners from Toronto and the 12 other federated municipalities are thinking in terms of elevated super-highways to lift through traffic out of the local flow.

No. 1 bottleneck is at the city's western entrance, where traffic from the Queen Elizabeth Way, the fine super-highway linking Toronto and Niagara Falls, merges with through and local traffic on No. 2 trans-provincial highway which runs from Windsor to Montreal.

Two main possibilities are under consideration for eliminating this bottleneck. One includes building a raised six-lane super-highway, eastward from west of the present single bridge over the Humber river. The other is to improve roads at ground level and erect a second Humber bridge.

A third idea is to detour Queen Elizabeth Way traffic by way of Toronto Island, which lies across the harbor mouth. This would involve building causeways to link the island with the mainland.

PARK MUST GO

Most authorities are agreed that virtually any improvement plan will call for the moving of Sunnyside amusement park from the west-end site it has occupied for more than 30 years. The amusements now are on either side of the highway and children and adults surge back and forth across the busy thoroughfare. It has been suggested that Sunnyside be moved to the exhibition grounds about a mile to the east.

The proposed super-highway would skirt the northern edge of exhibition park itself, running parallel with the Canadian National Railways line. An elevated road would take traffic through the central industrial area which lies west of the Union station.

Fred Gardiner, super-mayor of metropolitan Toronto, foresees the eventual possibility of extending the expressway farther along the lakefront by building a breakwater under the Scarboro Bluffs east of the city and cutting into the bluffs for a road surface to connect with existing highways to the east.

304,587 People Employed By Crown Firms

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government and its Crown corporations employed 304,587 workers in January, 1953, at a cost of $74,279,719, the bureau of statistics reported today.

Of the total 161,978 worked in departmental branches and services of the government. They earned $37,315,339. The remainder —142,709—were employed by such corporations and companies as the Canadian National Railways, CBC, Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships, Ltd. and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. They netted $36,964,380 in salaries.

Permanent employees of the departmental branches and services totalled 57,465, with their earnings reaching $15,982,869. Temporary employees were 72,088, earning $14,632,890; prevailing rates workers, 19,348, earning $4,154,935; casuals, 11,464, earning $2,164,803 and ships' crews, 1,613, earning $379,842.

The bureau reported that the number employed by departments during the month was lower than the previous month. December's total of departmental employees was 160,352—1,626 less than January. Some 143,544 worked for the corporations during December, 536 more than January.

Funeral will be held on Monday from the family residence to St. Luke's Church where requiem mass will be said at 10 a.m. Burial will be at St. Luke's Cemetery.

Quarantine Imposed On Wayne Hogs

DETROIT (CP)—A quarantine on Wayne county hogs was imposed Friday in Michigan's $180,000 battle against vescular exanthema, a disease which officials said is also known as "foot and mouth disease."

Three thousand pigs in Wayne, Oakland and Macombe counties have already been slaughtered to stop spread of the disease and it was estimated another 5,000 to 7,000 remain to be killed.

Dr. Lee Davisson, chief of Michigan's bureau of animal industry, said the disease cannot affect humans if pork is properly processed and cooked.

New Type Specialized Course For French-Speaking Soldiers

By KEN STEWART
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—The Canadian Army has come up with a new type of specialized course which provides young French-speaking soldiers with a chance to learn a trade, further their education and to become bilingual.

Twenty French-Canadians from Quebec and New Brunswick, aged 16 or 17 years, started the course Jan. 12 at the Canadian Army Training School at nearby Valcartier camp.

The soldier-apprentices — Farmers' sons, former delivery boys and boys whose schooling has been limited for various reasons—live in their own quarters, eat in their own mess, and generally are kept apart from regular troops.

SIGN FOR SEVEN YEARS

To enlist in the course, which includes trades, academic and basic military training, the boys must pass special entrance examinations. They sign up for seven years but can ask to be released after five years if they wish.

Another class of recruits from various parts of the country is expected to start the course in August.

Boys like Georges Maltais, 16, of Jonquiere, Que.; Jean Migneault, 17, of Edmundston, N.B., and Claude Rossette, 17, of Montreal, who gave up delivering groceries to learn a trade in the army, agree the schedule they have to follow was hard at first. Now, after more than two months of it, they find they enjoy it.

Besides learning a trade and becoming a good soldier and a solid citizen, the apprentices learn to speak English. Before they finish the course most of them will be bilingual.

The boys wear regular army issue uniforms and are identified by bright green stripes on the shoulder straps. They get army pay, monthly 48-hour passes, Christmas and Easter leave and the regulation annual 30-day leave granted every soldier.

The boys find army life agrees with them and in most cases they have gained from 10 to 15 pounds in less than three months.

During their first year training is devoted mainly to academic studies for a period of 28 weeks. After that they branch into trades and military training.

When they finish their course they may be sent to any branch of the army except the infantry. Most of them now are training to be medical assistants in the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps or specialists in the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers.

Maj. W. E. Sutherland, French-speaking commanding officer of the school, said the object of the course is to "turn out better citizens as well as to make good soldiers" of the young men. Sutherland, who is bilingual, added: "So far, we seem to be succeeding."

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Price changes were irregular Friday in a moderately active session on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Barley prices were firm in early trade reflecting continued fair export demand, but eased later. May barley was firm on the export trade and light offerings. Other grains reflected outside declines. Prices of Class 2 and IWA wheat were unchanged.

Nominate Three For Massey Post

TORONTO (CP) — Three men have been nominated to succeed Governor-General Vincent Massey as chancellor of the University of Toronto.

University alumni have nominated Dr. Samuel Beatty, former dean of Varsity's University College, Dr. W. E. Gallie, former dean of the university's School of Medicine, and former Prime Minister Arthur Meighen, now a corporation lawyer here.

A special committee, comprising W. Eric Phillips, chairman of the university's board of governors, President Sidney Smith, six members of the university alumni, six members of the university senate and six other members of the board of governors, will meet Thursday to make the selection.

Mr. Massey has completed two consecutive three-year terms as chancellor and is not eligible for a third term.

Carry Three Babies From Burning House

TORONTO (CP)—Two women carried three babies out an attic window, across a rain-soaked roof and through a window of the house next door when fire broke out in a downtown rooming house early today.

A roomer wakened Mrs. Richard Garton and Mrs. Phyllis Burnett, who carried Mrs. Garton's children to safety.

Blaze At Bench Burns Man's Hands

Jeweller and watch repair man Fred Kemp of Queen St., Lakefield, while repairing a cigaret lighter at his work bench on Friday evening at 8:45, accidentally ignited an open dish of naptha gas on the bench.

The flash flames spilled on his clothing and on the floor and in an effort to beat them out with his bare hands Mr. Kemp received painful burns on both hands.

He notified his wife in their living quarters above the store who alerted the Fire Department. The short blaze was out upon their arrival. Mr. Kemp was treated by Dr. H. E. Gastle.

Births In Canada Show 11% Increase

OTTAWA (CP)—Births registered in Canada during January showed an increase of 11 per cent over January, 1952, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The bureau also reported that there were a greater number of deaths and marriages during the first month of this year than January, 1952.

There were 32,897 babies born in January compared with 29,612 a year ago. Deaths numbered 11,500 compared with 11,088; a year ago and marriages 5,722 compared with 5,054.

Germans Captured Vital Supplies By Cracking Secret British War Codes

LONDON (CP)—Many British under-cover agents and large quantities of vital supplies were captured on the continent by German occupation forces during the Second World War through discovery of the key to the secret radio codes used in communicating with London.

The disclosure was made by Lt.-Col. H. J. Giskes, Hitler's chief of counter-espionage during the war in Belgium, The Netherlands and Northern France.

Up to the end of the summer of 1942 about 30 transmitters were discovered in Belgium alone, Geskes said, to add to an even larger number found in The Netherlands. Most of them had been in regular communication with London for some time.

"It was possible to crack the codes the British were using because many of them were based on the same key book, an anthology of French poetry," the former spy chief declared. "The British did not vary their system enough."

TRICKED TWO YEARS

He told of one transmitter near Brussels being used to send fake signals from December, 1941, to the spring of 1943 without the fact being disclosed that the secret set was being operated by German espionage agents.

"The trick worked so well," Giskes said, "that the British made 15 drops to the Germans with weapons and material and also dropped six special agents We even asked the British to drop things that were short on the continent like tennis balls, golf balls and raincoats."

During the peak of the 1942 drive to arm the resistance forces in the occupied areas, the German security services in two nights had gathered in more than 10 tons of equipment, rations, money and other supplies in response to bogus messages.

CAUGHT 50 ALLIED SPIES

By using the captured transmitters and "cracking" the secret codes some 50 Allied spies had been rounded up in The Netherlands and nearly that number in Belgium and Northern France.

"Believe me it was not always pleasant to be rounding up these keen young patriots," Giskes said. "But I talk quite openly about these failures of yours because the mistakes ought not to have happened."

British officials in London declined to comment on the general allegations for reasons of security. They admitted, however, that the strange request for tennis and golf balls had led to the discovery that the transmitter in question had fallen into enemy hands.

PATZCUARO WAS FOUNDED in 1540 on the site of the summer home of the Tarascan monarchs. This is a typical scene on Lake Patzcuaro with the "butterfly" nets which are used by the fishermen in that area. The people in this section have clung closely to their pre-conquest customs. Patzcuaro Fishermen Use Strange Butterfly Nets

By JEAN E. STENTON

PATZCUARO—The fishermen on Lake Patzcuaro use strange nets which resemble huge butterfly wings and they are famous because it is the only place in the world today where you will see them. The men use such skilful teamwork that it is poetry in motion.

* * * *

The Islanders always fish in groups and these vary in size. The ones I watched had six boats and another group eight boats. First they all form a loose circle and stir the water with their round paddles to set the fish in motion. Then they all dip their nets together and begin to gradually close the circle. As though on signal they all raise their nets together and they are full of transparent little white fish which are dried and used extensively. They also catch a sardine-type fish and a larger white fish that is delicious.

* * * *

The fishermen use canoas, boats hollowed out of a single trunk of a type of pine tree. The canoas are custom made in the Sierra and brought to the lake by ox cart. In Mumachuen and Santa Juana their manufacture is a centuries old craft. The bigger ones are manned from the prow by three oarsmen and the boat is steered by a paddler in the stern while the other crewmen arrange the nets. The smaller craft which use the butterfly nets usually are manned by one person.

* * * *

THREE KINDS OF FISHERMEN

There are three kinds of fishermen on Lake Patzcuaro. Those who fish at night use big nets like seine nets. It is quite a sight to visit Janitzio Island early in the morning and see the gigantic nets hung up around each yard to dry. Then there are the fishermen who use the nets like butterfly wings. A third group of fishermen use a different technique for working on the shallow side.

* * * *

At the moment the people of Patzcuaro, the islands and the villages have a water problem. The lake has dropped about 15 feet in the last few years. Piers along the town shore have been abandoned because they are high and dry. There is a belief here that the water rises and falls in a cycle of 50 years. There would seem to be some truth in this because back from the present shoreline are stone retaining walls, breakwaters, etc., made many years ago. In addition neither the villagers or the islanders will put any buildings near the water. They say "Oh it will rise again in a few years and then our homes would be lost."

* * * *

The time to see the butterfly fishermen at work is in the morning. By noon the lake is deserted. Because Lake Patzcuaro is whipped by a strong wind every afternoon, the frail dugout canoes have to make shore before they capsize. You will never see them on Sundays either, because the Tarascans are a very religious people and will not fish on the Sabbath day.

* * * *

The Tarascans are a proud race of Indians who have not always lived as humbly as today. The civilization they founded along Lake Patzcuaro's shores in the 14th century rivalled the Aztecs. They built an empire whose strength was felt throughout west and central Mexico. They were great warriors and hunters. Though the Aztecs tried many times to conquer them, the Tarascans were never defeated in battle till the Spanish came. The Aztecs ended up making friends because they needed the fine work of the Tarascan artisans whose products were exported.

* * * *

GREAT HUNTERS

The islanders are good duck hunters and are very skilled. Most scorn the use of a gun and throw a long spear in an arc. To launch the spear from the end of a bamboo pole 12-14 feet long, they use a spear thrower or atlatl which provides catapultic action. It is an earlier development of the bow and is effective up to 150 feet. Their accuracy is uncanny and the men rarely miss. A youth about 18 gave a demonstration and it was a beautiful sight. In their biggest hunt of the year, about 1,000 boats take part.

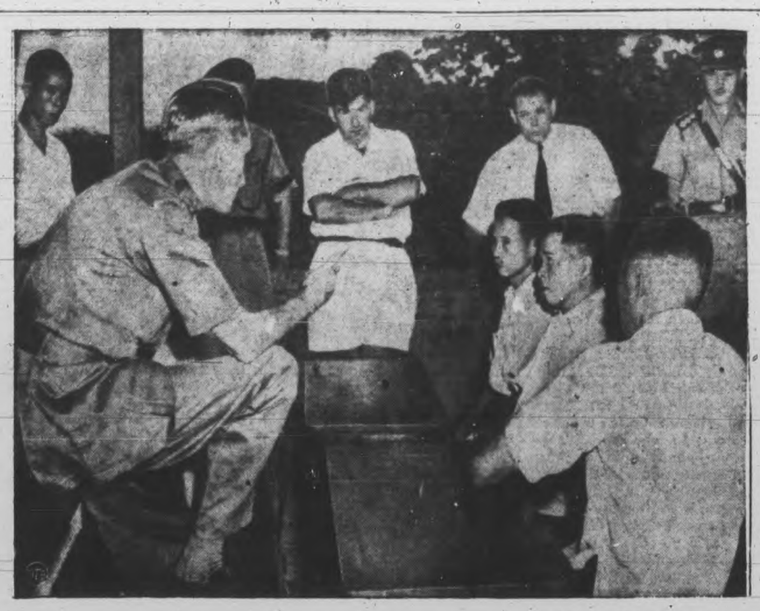
* * * *

The Tarascans were so valiant when they used to hunt lions and tigers they used only a copper axe. The hunters would form a big circle and use camouflage from the skins of the animals. One man stood in the middle of the circle and blew a horn so the tiger would come.

* * * *

Everyone would be perfectly still and when the tiger was about to leap, the hunter in the middle would cut the two front legs with one blow and the back legs with a second. As the animal dropped, he was covered with a big skin so that the blood would not ruin his hide. They were a fantastic people somewhat equivalent to the Africans in their hunting ability.

Warkworth Bowlers Hold Closing Banquet



WARKWORTH (ENS) — The members of the five-pin bowling club closed their season with a chicken dinner at Trenton Friday evening.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of a bronze trophy to the Schmoos team, winner of the highest number of points, the presentation being made by Claude Morgan. Dr. R. F. Jolliffe, captain of the team, thanked Mr. Morgan.

W. Grant Allen informed the club that Mr. Morgan had donated the trophy for annual competition. Members of the team are: Dr. R. F. Jolliffe and Mrs. Jolliffe, Mr. and Mrs. Jim McCleary, Mrs. Harry Allen and Mr. Morley Smith.

Want Restrictions Ended

HULL, Eng. (Reuters)—British timber merchants are pressing the government to end all licence restrictions on the trade. T. A. Storey, president of the Timber Trade Association, said Friday night the merchants had assured the government there would be no sudden rush of buying, possibly accompanied by a rise in prices.

DRASTIC MEASURES taken by the British in the past year against Communist-led guerillas in Malaya have improved the situation considerably, but the fight, which started in 1948 in that important rubber-producing federation of states, still goes on. Picture above shows the dynamic British high commissioner, Gen. Sir Gerald Templer, as he talks with village elders of Kampong Pelawan in lower Perak. Templer told the native leaders that their village was under par and a clean-up was expected. Picture at left shows members of the First Battalion of the Queen's African Rifles as they arrive in Singapore ready to join in the fight against the Reds. They brought their native Angoni spears and shields, but they'll be packing British rifles when they meet the guerrillas.

New Canadian Tells Of Ireland

CAMPBELLFORD— (ENS) — A large crowd attended the April meeting of the St. John's Young Adults Club in the United Church basement Thursday night.

Earle Nelson led in songs, accompanied by Anne Nicholls. The devotional period was conducted by Eunice Sayers and Pearl McComb, and included a solo by Muriel Heagle.

Walter Elliott, president of the club, dismissed the business period when no problems or reports were forthcoming.

Entertainment portion of the program was in charge of Mort. Sayers. Dick Koning played his harmonica accompanied by Anne Nicholls at the Piano. Dr. Smith introduced the guest speaker, Robert Bell a native of Domaghadee, Ireland, who came to Canada 18 months ago.

Mr. Bell spoke on Ireland, with particular emphasis on the Irish Protestant state of Ulster, and in particular, the vicinity of Belfast in which he resided. He spoke of the final division of Ireland completed in 1922 because the south wanted independence from an English monarch, while the north was determined to remain within the United Kingdom.

Ulster, the Protestant north of Ireland, was only a very small portion of the Emerald Isle, being outnumbered by the southern states 32-6. Belfast, a city resembling Toronto, but harboring only a quarter of a million inhabitants, was highly industrialized.

Mr. Bell was thanked for his address by Earle Nelson.

496 Incidents

BELGRADE (Reuters) — Yugoslav guards have reported 496 border incidents with neighboring Communist countries since the Soviet peace overtures started last month, the Belgrade paper Borba reported today. Borba said most of the incidents started when shots were fired at Yugoslav guards from Hungarian, Romanian, Bulgarian and Albanian territory.

Mr. Churchill Takes The Garter

The highest titular honours at the disposal of the Sovereign might have been bestowed on Mr. Winston Churchill, but he refused them, accepting only membership in orders bearing no title. He is a member of the Order of Merit and a Companion of Honour. But now Mr. Churchill has taken a title of rank. He is Sir Winston Churchill, Knight of the Garter.

* * *

It is the most illustrious knighthood that the Queen could have granted, and on none more suitably than Mr. Churchill. The Order is an ancient one of true chivalry. Only Britain's most exalted and greatest sons, and some foreign royalty, are accepted into it. The knighthood is fittingly bestowed; personally granted by the Queen without political advice, and given by her in the first year of her reign as Elizabeth II and prior to her Coronation. It is truly a Royal favour. The great Churchill, it must not be forgotten, is servant of both the people and the Queen. None can mistake, in seeing photographs of him greeting Royalty, his deep respect for the Throne and courtly historical regard for Kingship. It is a special delight that the grand old man should accept his knighthood at the knee of the lovely young woman who is now his Queen. Churchill first entered Parliament in the reign of Queen Victoria. The great Commoner is still in Parliament, through successive reigns as member, Minister and Chief Adviser to the Sovereign.

* * *

One wonders if his title will be worn? His knighthood is uncommon, but knighthoods are of many orders and they are numerous. Other Knights of the Garter are not known by the title 'Sir', for they wear other and higher titles, of Viscount, Earl and Duke. Mr. Churchill —Sir Winston—has not accepted, nor is likely to accept as long as he is politically active, a title of nobility, for this would remove him to the House of Lords. He still remains the Great Commoner—unlike Pitt, never deserting the Commons for a title.

Four Years Of NATO

This month the North Atlantic Treaty Organization observed its fourth anniversary, and in Paris on Thursday the eleventh Council session of NATO was begun. The fourteen-nation talks are taking place in a different atmosphere from that which give NATO birth. NATO was the West's collective response to Soviet aggression. Now the Communist world has changed its manner, if not its mind, and there is no doubt that one of the influences creating that change was the active and strong NATO.

NATO was born in collective insecurity, as a writer in the current issue of External Affairs says, summarizing the purposes of the Organization. "When universal collective security could not be achieved through the United Nations, it became necessary to organize collective security on a selective basis. This selection naturally embraced the North Atlantic area as of first strategic importance in the defence of the free world."

The primary purpose of the Treaty is to deter aggression, first by the acceptance of definite commitments in the case of attack and second by the agreement of the parties to "maintain and develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed attack".

This primary purpose of NATO is being well filled, so well, it would seem from the changed attitude of the Communist world, that some people may be unwise enough to think that NATO can now be put in moth balls so as not to scare the doves of peace.

The continued existence of NATO is one of the best guarantees of sweet air in which these doves can fly. It is not without reason that the Soviet foreign office complains that NATO is a threatening organization and interfering with harmony between East and West, and should be abandoned. NATO threatens only Russia's power to threaten the world. Its military emphasis is protective, not aggressive. Anyway, Russia forgets, and so do many people on this side of the unravelling Iron Curtain, that NATO has a double purpose. One is military and defensive, as already stated. The other is non-military, calling for economic co-operation. This aspect of NATO has been constantly urged by Canada, one of the principal designers of NATO.

The Canadian official view is that military co-operation and collective security depend for their fulfilment and justification, on economic and social co-operation. Further, this long-term "community" purpose is conceivably the most important function of NATO. Article 2 of the Treaty states that member nations should not only agree to associate for security reasons but should resolve as well to promote "conditions of stability and well-being" and to "encourage economic collaboration". Article 2 is thus a rebuttal of economic threats posed by Communist propaganda.

NATO is now emphasizing the "community" purpose of the organization. An excerpt from the Council declarations following their Lisbon meetings in February, 1952, states,

"Members of the Council look forward to the time when the main energies of their association can be less centred on defence and more fully devoted to co-operation in other fields for the well-being of their peoples and for the advancement of human progress."

An excerpt from the Council declarations made after last December's Ministerial meeting confirms the concept of the North Atlantic nations as a real community:

"By combining their resources and their knowledge, by sharing the material burden of defence, by the constant practice of mutual consultation and mutual association, member states have already increased their common strength, understanding and unity".

Do away with NATO? Never, we hope, until it can be replaced by an even more comprehensive international structure with as much or more common strength, understanding and unity. The Communist half of the world has nothing to fear from NATO unless it aggressively challenges NATO members.

Where The Money Goes

Because the Canadian Cancer Society has been collecting money in Peterborough during the past week, we were particularly interested in receiving the Society's financial statement for 1952; the object of the Society is well known and public trust in it is high, but it is always interesting to see where the money goes.

Last year the Society collected, from all parts of Canada, $1,412,462. Of this money $535,525 went for research in one form and another. About a quarter of a million dollars went for education of the public, and another quarter of a million on welfare. Running the Society and conducting its campaign cost $141,535 and $125,431 respectively. When all other expenses had been taken care of it was possible to add $91,663 to the surplus funds of the Society, which now amount to $829,940; a considerable part of this sum will have been consumed in expenses before the 1953 contributions are available. The Society also has some trust and special funds.

From this report we can see clearly what the Society is doing with the money. The greatest outlay is on research, and who can deny that it should be so? Cancer is one of the few very serious diseases of mankind which is still mysterious in its origins, and anything which can throw light on that aspect of cancer is of the utmost importance. Education is of lesser importance, but it is still vital; the more we recognize that early diagnosis is still the best weapon we have against cancer, the better we can cope with it. And the assistance which can be given to cancer patients is the pressing humanitarian side of the Society's work.

The publication of such a financial statement is reassuring to the contributors to the Society, and strong evidence of its fine work and good management.

Icebreaker At The Isle of Wight

A great Coronation naval review is being held June 15th at Spithead, the strait between Portsmouth and the Isle of Wight. Warships from most of the world's navies—including a Russian ship—will take part. Besides them will be more than fifty merchant ships, fleet auxiliaries, fishing craft and other small vessels. The smallest will be two lifeboats which rescued a total of 3,400 men from the Dunkirk beaches in 1940. Included in the great display will be a type of craft never before seen in Britain — a Canadian Government icebreaker. This will be the D'Iberville. It may be the first time that a Canadian icebreaker has been seen in Britain, yet there will be something traditional about its appearance there. Is not Canada frequently cast in the role of icebreaker at affairs of international moment?

NOTES AND COMMENT

A scientist remarks that gravity has its effect on even the smallest physical action. Perhaps that accounts for the fact that it is usually easier to open the mouth than to close it.

In Cooksville, a village west of Toronto, court was held for the first time in its new $250,000 municipal building. More than a hundred persons were convicted of speeding and fined in excess of a thousand dollars. There is more than one way to pay for a new municipal building.

Ottawa's chief librarian has resigned after 16 years service, because the city's per capita library grant, already the lowest in Ontario, is to be still further reduced. Which prompts repetition of the old observation: If it didn't have the Dominion Government to keep it in the limelight, what a godforsaken dump the city of Ottawa would be!

The Journal of Samuel Marchbanks

SUNDAY: Pondered upon the condition of my garden this afternoon. April and May are my heavy gardening months. I plant and sow and reap and mow and am a farmer's boy until early June every year, and then, as the weather warms up I take to the hammock and trouble the soil no more until it is time to rake the leaves in Autumn. But April calls forth all my talents as a manurist, and this year I have been scientifically dosing every living thing around the Towers with costly, nasty-smelling substances. Two weeks ago I doled out sheep manure, for foliage; last week I distributed heaping teaspoons of a magical chemical compound, for bloom; in ten days I shall creep up on all my plants with a hypodermic needle, and inject them with a colour-enriching plasma. But as I perform these rites I wonder how it is that jungles which nobody loves bloom so profusely. They need no weeding; they get little sun; they worry along with a trifle of lion's manure, but they do better than my pampered garden.

MONDAY: To a cocktail party this evening and would have had a good time if I had not quickly tired of standing. Why is it that a cocktail must be taken standing upright, whereas every other sort of drink, hard or soft, may be consumed seated or recumbent? However, I stood first on one foot and then on the other, until both legs went to sleep and I moved from group to group with an uncertain, stumbling gait like a man on stilts . . . Precisely an hour and a half after I arrived there was a mass rush for the door, and as I am a sheep in social matters I joined it, murmuring to a lady near me "Where are we going?" "Home, of course," said she, and added, "You don't want to be the last to leave, do you?" "I don't really care if I am," said I, but I knew at once that this was the wrong thing to say and branded me as a yokel. So I made further enquiries, and found that it is now the height of social infamy to be among the last at a cocktail party. One must not arrive early, and one must not leave late; if this is carried to its logical conclusion there will soon be a football scrimmage during the central ten minutes of these affairs, and peace at both ends.

TUESDAY: Saw the best movie I have found in several years, a French film called "The Seven Deadly Sins," filled with wit, good acting, literary skill and fine photography. Enjoyed it thoroughly. Each sin was demonstrated in some fashion, and I was interested to find that the producers had had great trouble with Sloth, for it is a sin very little known in the modern world. Of intellectual and spiritual Sloth there is plenty, of course, but physical Sloth — real, downright laziness — is a rarity. I racked my brains to see if I could think of a really lazy person among my acquaintances, and there was not one. I am not even really lazy myself. I am ambitious in that direction; I yearn to loll in bed all day, eating cream puffs and staring at the ceiling, but I cannot do it. The Puritan Conscience which I share with my fellow Canadians will not let me. We must always be up and doing. If we have nothing to do, we torment ourselves until a job appears, or until we have created one. It is not merely that we are afraid of being thought lazy; we are afraid of laziness itself. I must try to be more courageous about laziness, and overcome my aversion to it.

WEDNESDAY: Snow fell today, and people gaped in wonderment and said "Snow in April! What next?" I suggest that what will be next will be snow in May. Well do I recall the 24th of May, 1932, when I went on a picnic with a few roystering blades and bladesses and a heavy snowstorm drove us into cover in the middle of the afternoon . . . It was upon that same ill-fated expedition that I performed by one striking mechanical feat. We had a puncture and the wheel of the car had to be changed. But there was no spanner, and indeed nothing that anybody could possibly use to change a wheel. However, one of the girls had a good-sized pair of scissors of the type used in dress-making, and with those, and much prayerful crawling in the dirt, and a jack which seemed to have no pride in its work, I changed that wheel. It is not an easy thing to unfasten several large, tight bolts with a pair of scissors; it is less easy, perhaps, to fasten them again. But I did it, and at that hour foreswore all mechanical work for the rest of my life.

THURSDAY: Two or three books have come my way recently which disconcert me, for they suggest that I am being watched. They are by sociologists and they are about people like me — people who work for a living, but are not unionized workers nor yet business men and promoters; they are about the professional people, and the seedy hangers-on of society such as writers, painters, musicians and whatnot. It appears that, as a class, we are disappearing. An economic situation is arising in which we have no proper place, in our present form. Frankly, I don't believe it; I am indestructible and economics have no effect upon me because I am an economic atheist. But I don't like the notion that a lot of snoops are watching me and writing books about me and nudging one another whenever I happen to have an off day and look a bit pale.

FRIDAY: To a concert this evening where a large number of gifted coughers were in splendid form. Coughing at concerts and theatres could be eliminated of course, by making coughing an inexcusable indecency. The body is capable of a variety of offensive noises, some of which are permitted by public opinion, while others are forbidden and 99 people out of a hundred would rather burst than be guilty of them. Put coughing in that category and in a generation it would cease. If, instead of glaring at coughers, we turned our heads away from them, blushing for their shameful lack of self-control, they woud soon stop their noise. If, when a cough burst out in company, we all spoke a little louder and more distinctly, as though to drown the shameful sound, coughers would think twice. If the word "cough" were to become a Forbidden Word, and if children were to have their mouths washed out with soap when they used it, the cough would cease to be a popular indulgence. Coughing would become a thing that rude little boys did, amid the snickers of their companions, to annoy the teacher. Stamp the cough as a disgusting and indecent personal noise, and its knell is rung.

SATURDAY: It is not easy to talk to women. They lack depth of understanding. Today, for instance, a party of ladies persuaded me to show them over the office in which I work, and in the course of time we arrived at the room where the big press is kept. "What's that?" asked a Young Person. "That," said I, with a gesture, "is the Archimedean Lever which moves the world!" "I don't get that," she said frowning. "The great Father of Physics," said I, smiling in a superior way, "once said that, given a place to stand, he could devise a lever which would move the world. Had he beheld this machine, he would undoubtedly have cried 'Eureka' for the second time in his life, for that is what he sought." "Yebbut what does it do?" persisted the tiresome girl. "It disseminates ideas," said I; "it sends the birds of thought — the hawks, the doves, the eagles — winging to the ends of the earth." "You mean it prints your stuff?" said she. "In a single word, Yes," I replied, for I was tiring of the conversation. "Then why didn't you say so?" said she. "I did say so," said I, "but you didn't understand me." "You said something about a lever," said she. I had to buy her an ice-cream cone to shut her up.

Letter To The Editor

REPORTS OF DEATH EXAGGERATED

Sir: How anxious some people are to bury the C.C.F.! (See your reprint of an article from the St. Catharines Standard headed "Welfare Abandoned".) What are the facts about the state of health of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation?

(1) The C.C.F. could well form the next government of B.C. in June. They received more votes than any other party in the last election, and Harold Winch's resignation because of obvious ill-health has not drained their resources of leadership material by any stretch of the imagination.

(2) The Saskatchewan C.C.F. government has done such an excellent job that they've been returned to power three times in a row — last year wtih a large majority. The government has promoted social ownership and social welfare so successfully, in automobile insurance, hydro, telephones, fur and fish marketing, forest, mineral and oil resources control, and planned development, health, etc. that legislators all over America are studying their techniques. Their labor code and farm security legislation are second to none.

(3) The C.C.F. is the official opposition in Manitoba, and has twice had experience as such in our important province of Ontario. Federally, the small group of C.C.F. members of the House of Commons have never been equalled in effectiveness and ability — there are no "backbenchers" among them. Incidentally, it has been the youth and initiative of C.C.F. members and candidates in general which have been responsible for the overhauling of the Liberal and Conservative party rolls.

The whole "welfare abandoned" idea played up in part of the press, came from a completely misinterpreted report of the finest speech I've ever heard Ted Jolliffe make, at the recent C.C.F. convention (attended by 300 delegates from every corner of Ontario). Apart from the fact that the party line is not laid down by the leader — provincial and national conventions decide that after thorough discussion — his address and that of Frank Scott, recently returned from an UNRRA mission to Burma, merely indicated the now world-wide scope of the issues the C.C.F. has been consistently fighting. What else are we faced with today but the need for a world welfare community, with intelligent development and sharing of resources to meet world needs? How can we tolerate so-called food surpluses being destroyed or withheld from the starving half of the human race for want of purchasing power? How long can we countenance the spending of billions on arms and paltry millions on technical assistance to underdeveloped countries?

As was brought out at the convention (though not publicized) responsible labour leadership has at last realized that the C.C.F. is the only party which puts forward labour's own program for meeting industrial and national objectives; and there are many indications that the farmers of eastern Canada are on the way to achieving the realization of their western counterparts that they too must look for direct political representation, which only the C.C.F. provides. Altogether the corpse looks mighty healthy, I'd say! And, by the way, Northern Ontario announced over 1,000 new members secured last winter, (and we've never had a larger dues-paying membership in Durham, either).

SPENCER CHESHIRE,
President, Durham C.C.F.

The Barr Colony

(Saskatoon Star-Phoenix).

Monday marked the 50th anniversary of the arrival of the Barr Colony in Saskatoon. This contingent of 1,500-odd who came from Britain to make their homes in what was then the North West Territories, contributed in no small measure to the development of Saskatoon and its tributary district. Duped and defrauded by their leaders, the settlers overcome heavy odds to make good in the land of their adoption— in farming, in the every-day life to which some of them turned, and others, in later years, in the public life of the province and nation. The story of the argosy has often been told, and is still familiar.

There were two outstanding factors which made for the success of the colonists. One, their own dogged perseverence, the other the loyalty and courage of George Exton Lloyd. It was the young English Clegyman, later Bishop of Saskatchewan, who took the place of the fugitive leader, brought order out of chaos, and took the pioneers along the trail that ended at the border city which bears his name. In that city Lloydminster, the anniversary is to be fittingly celebrated in July. There are still many who will be able to take part in the reunion, and recall the hardships and the triumphs of earlier years.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Afterward Jesus findeth him in the temple, and said unto him, Behold thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee. The man departed, and told the Jews that it was Jesus, which had made him whole.

And therefore did the Jews persecute Jesus, and sought to slay him, because he had done these things on the sabbath day. But Jesus answered them, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work. Therefore the Jews sought the more to kill him, because he had not only broken the sabbath, but said also that God was his Father, making himself equal with God.

Then answered Jesus and said unto them, Verily, verily I say unto you, The Son, can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do: for what things soever he doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise. For the Father loveth the Son, and sheweth him all things that himself doeth: and he will shew him greater works than these, that ye may marvel ....

For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself. (John 5: 14-20, 26.)

World's Last Subway System

(Montreal Gazette)

The acicdent in the London subway, tragic as it was, has served to remind the world how old London's subway really is. It was opened back in the year 1873.

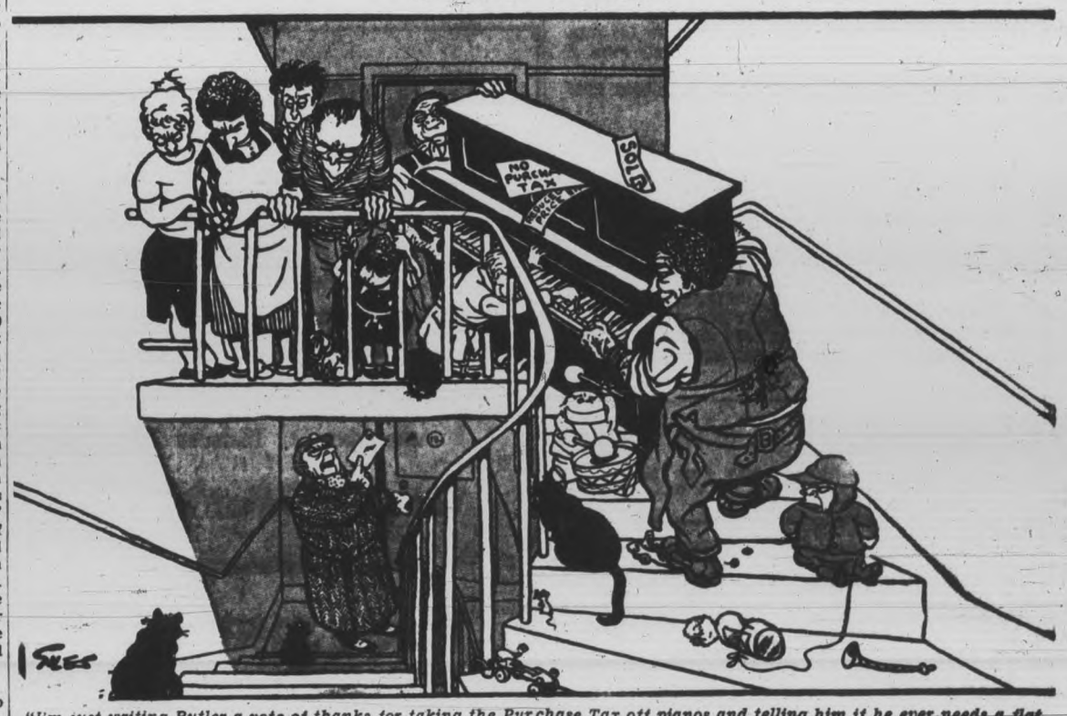
In 1873, the British North America Act was six years old. The original Dominion, consisting of Quebec, Ontario, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, had been enlarged to cover nearly the whole of British North America.

In 1869, in a cash-and-land settlement, the Hudson's Bay Company had given up its rights to the Canadian Northwest and, in the following year, the new province of Manitoba was created. In 1871, British Columbia joined Confederation on provision that a transcontinental railroad link it with the East within 10 years. In 1873, Prince Edward Island became the seventh province.

Total population was estimated at three and a half million.

It was in that year, 1873, that the North-West Mounted Police force was formed to patrol the new western territories.

It was back in that same year that the London Underground became the world's first subway system.



Perhaps Montreal is well on the way to setting a mark of its own by establishing the world's last subway system.

Korean Unification

(Ottawa Citizen)

Mr. Syngman Rhee, president of the South Korean republic, opposes any settlement of the Korean war which will leave the peninsula divided. Unification of Korea is desirable, but if attempts are made to achieve it by armed force, the resulting conflagration might spread into a general war. A settlement should be sought by political and diplomatic means, however much patience this might require, rather than by military methods.

Victorian Stations Along The Line

PHOTOSTORY BY NICK NICKELS

A fleeting visit to any district railway station, including the two in Peterborough and the smaller ones and flagstops between Omemee and Hastings, is a trip into the past. Except in very few cases the pot-bellied heaters and hard benches of the waiting rooms have remained unchanged. The gingerbread smoked-grimed exteriors are the same as the days when the tracks were laid in the last century. A fresh coat of paint is added every few years but that is all.

One might expect to find leather trunks, bundles of buggy whips, shipments of crinolines and corsets and one hundred and one Edwardian shipments in the gloomy express rooms. Instead, there are boxed T-V sets, automobile parts, day-old chicks in perforated cartons and all the necessary miscellany of modern-day living. They seem as out of place as Peterborough's railroading history is out of mind.

C.P.M. & M. RAILWAY

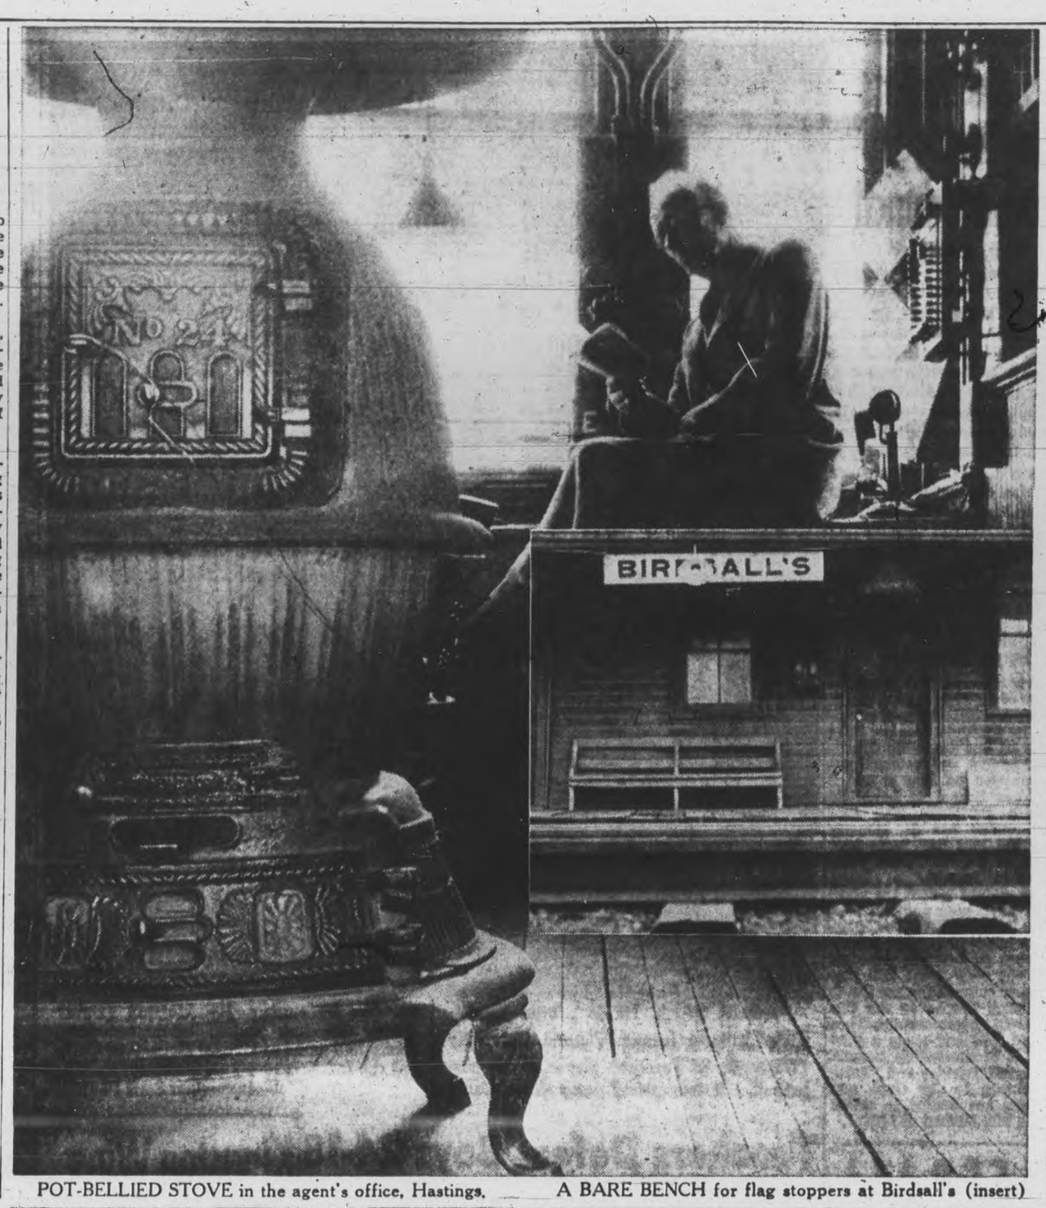
All that remains of the first district railway, the Cobourg, Peterborough, and Marmora Railway and Mining Company, is a crumbling sod-covered embankment running south-east from the city across Otonabee Township to Hiawatha on Rice Lake. Its famous "bridgeway" across the lake, which ruined the enterprise, washed away 92 years ago. The line was the first and opened in 1854. It lasted for six years. At that time an extension line was proposed to Chemong Lake and after much litigation a branch started along the Otonabee River as far as Nassau where it ended. The spur was finally completed to Lakefield many years later by the Grand Trunk (Canadian National).

P.H.L. & B. RAILWAY

Railway builders during the same era saw another lucrative district to be tapped from Port Hope to Lindsay and west to Beaverton. It was in opposition to the Cobourg Railway and intentionally planned to by-pass Peterborough altogether. The original line, built in 1855, was given a branch line to Millbrook, Peterborough and Omemee 25 years later and opened the service with a great fanfare free excursion of 3,000 people. The Port Hope-Millbrook section was abandoned and dismantled in 1951.

G.J. RAILWAY

The Grand Junction Railway from Belleville to Peterborough was opened as a through line in 1880. It is the present-day C.N.R. line over which five to six heavy grain "drags" travel each day, these days from Georgian Bay lakeports to mills and elevators in the East. Although this is a seasonal business rush two locals travel the line six days a week the year 'round.



O.Q. RAILWAY

The Ontario Quebec Railway, now C.P.R., was the last railway line laid to give Peterborough the position of a midway shipping point between Toronto and Ottawa, a place on the main line. While this railway was still in the proposed stage in 1875 competitive companies were organized. The Huron and Quebec Railway offered stiff threats but fell in the entanglement of litigation. Their battle was resumed by yet a third company called the Toronto-Ottawa Railway; it, too, lost the battle to the original Ontario-Quebec company and the line was finally pushed through in 1881; it was subsidized by the C.P.R. from its inception.

THEIR BUSINESS

District pioneer railroading was a lucrative business. The Kawarthas were a white pine country and more than sixty million board feet of sawn lumber constituted the bulk of their profits in the mid-80 heydays. This was followed by farm produce shipments as the land was cleared for the plough. Then came a chapter in their history called the "economic consequence of the automobile."

Your Garden:

Spring Care And Nurture Of The Lawn

BY HENRY PREA (NEA)

Before undertaking any new plantings or changes in the garden, take stock of what you have. Do not take on more garden than you are able to take care of this summer.

Have you gone over your garden tools to see that they are clean and whole? Spades, shovels and trowels have the habit of being dull just when you need one well sharpened. Do not wait until the grass needs cutting before you have your lawn mower sharpened. If you start the season with a dull mower you will have a ragged lawn.

The Old Gardener again stresses the value of a seed and fertilizer spreader. This sturdy, all steel rubber-tired machine is just what you need for economical, accurate seeding and feeding of the lawn, be it old or new.

The rate control and shut-off located on the handle assures you of an even distribution. Hand distribution is never even and nine times out of 10 the gardener overseeds or feeds. The spreader pays for itself the first time it is used.

Look over tools now so they'll be in good condition when you need them this summer.

Another suggested investment is a flexible steel tooth lawn rake, one generally used for raking leaves in autumn. This rake is particularly valuable for use in spring to work fertilizer and seed down into the soil where they belong.

Little or no burning of grass will result if the lawn is raked immediately after fertilizer is spread. Watering after raking is further insurance against such damage. If fertilizer remains overnight on the grass blades, burning is bound to follow. Even a heavy rain will not remove it. However, one need not worry since the burnt grass will be removed at the first mowing of the lawn.

If you are putting in a new lawn, remember that it will be only as good as its foundation. Grass will grow most anywhere—but unless the soil is prepared to a depth of six inches or more, humus of some sort and fertilizer worked in prior to seeding, the results will be disappointing.

Selecting a reliable seed mixture, scratching it in very lightly after sowing and never letting the seed bed dry out, is the advice of the Old Gardener. The type of seed you choose will depend upon how the lawn is to be used and also upon the amount of sun or shade.

Remember that creeping bent is not for a playground. A mixture strong in fescue is best where children are playing.

Daylily is the pretty, common name given to two indispensable perennials — hemerocallis and hosta. The Old Gardener, recommending both, calls particular attention to the hemerocallis because one can now get a May-to-September succession of bloom from these easy-to-grow perennials.

I've always claimed that fishing gear catches more fishermen than fish. I was swinging down the main street one fine morning this week as light-hearted as a schoolboy minus his long-handled winter underwear. It was spring and six days until the opening of the trout season.

The store window of Lure'm and Land'em drew my attention. It was jam-packed with every known requisite for the trout fisherman. There were rods, waders, clothing, creels, landing nets, displays of flies. The works.

Some burly individual lounging near the door shoved me into the shop; he was hired on a piece-work basis to catch customers.

I was confronted by the business partners both giving their hands the dry wash. Lure'm smiled his oily smile and adjusted his radar eye to my tattered pocketbook. Land'em drummed his thick fingers on the counter and I knew then exactly how a very small trout feels on opening day. The partners went to work on me and steered me to the clothing section.

"Hmmmm . . . waders, size nine. Pull on this nylon number for fit."

Then they clapped and over-sized baseball cap with a built-in mosquito net on my head. The cap and wader tops nearly met. They fitted me into a shroud-like canvas fishing coat with 19 pockets and helped me stumble to the tackle counter.

They showed me dry flies, wet flies, folding gadgets with 27 uses, cane rods, glass rods and demonstrated spinning tackle by flicking lures through the warehouse door with a twist of the wrist.

One of the partners kept jotting all the items down on a sales slip and when the demonstrations exhausted them they turned up the mosquito netting and said the complete outfit would amount to $65.42.

There was an awkward moment when I offered to write a cheque and drawn eyebrows when I admitted I couldn't pay for it all, just then. Would one dollar deposit be okay? They peeled off their hardware in a hurry, I can tell you, and spurned my offer.

The stuff made a lot of merchandise for the money and I honestly wanted most of it. The problem worried me all the way home. I would start with the easy approach and asked the family pooch if she realized that the trout season was only SIX days off. No response from the dog or anyone else.

I offered to wash AND wipe the dishes myself to have a look in the cracked teapot on the third shelf but was shooed out of the kitchen.

Rummaging through my modest fishing tackle I found most of it missing. The rod was cracked and the waders worn out. (I finished them digging trenches last fall.) The family had settled down for the evening, going over unpaid bills, doing sums and, in general, paying me no attention.

I racked my brains for a sly opening about the splendid outfit I had been manhandled into but all faces were furrowed with weightier problems. And when one of the kids switched on the radio it warmed up to play.

Don't let the stars get in your eyes!

I knew that I had had it. My gear come opening day this year would amount to stout twine and a cork float. I would join the lowly legion of worm-dunkers.

With the re-organization of the PMBA commencing here, we might recommend a book put out by the Hamco outfit in Hamilton, called "Basic Fundamentals In Baseball." It was compiled by George Kissell, manager of the Omaha Cardinals of the class "A" Western Baseball League, a former manager of the Hamilton Cardinals of the pro Pony Loop. That word "pony" comes from the fact that teams were in from Pennsylvania, Ontario and New York. It's half a slug and can be had by writing Hamco Office, Box 10, Hamilton. After looking through the 24 pages, we believe a lot of good coaching material is contained therein for local managers, coaches and the brighter players. One must study to become a success in any line, including sports.

Brampton Excelsiors and St. Catharines open their OLA senior schedule in St. Kitts on May 9, according to the Saints' scribe, who says it's the earliest start in OLA boxla history. They plan a hefty opening ceremony, complete with band, prizes et al. Top award is an all-expenses-paid summer holiday for the entire family. St. Kitts move indoors this season for their lacrosse in the arena, though the junior Saints continue at Haig Bowl. The writer there also says that Merv McKenzie definitely will play for Orillia West Yorks, and not for the Petes. All we know is that Merv promised the local club he'd play here, if he played at all.

Merv Gets The Post

Somewhat in line with this is an item from the Brantford sheet: "We know a few men who will be glad to hear that L. M. McKenzie has been appointed head of the Ontario Athletic Commission. Many have had dealings with Mac since he took over temporarily after the death of Fred Steele. Since then, 40 applicants have been after the position. Chaps like Howie Meeker, MP, and Lionel Conacher, MP, sought the post. Maybe the reported $6,000 a year chore has more attractions than the salary." That scribe also says Pat Wilson (who used to play ball here) has an OHA senior "A" sponsor lined up and is seeking a place to ice the team, preferably Guelph. Pat formerly coached Stratford seniors.

Having had an assault charge in Hamilton against him dismissed—he slugged a mat fan with a horse shoe—Lou Plummer will be quite chipper when he comes here to wrestle next Wednesday. He and Dick Raines team up in the main bout against Bobo Brazil and Pat Flanagan in what promises to be a rousing tussle. The Texans always tote that "lucky" horse shoe into the ring with 'em, and it comes in handy at times as a weapon. Bobo has a real partner this time, no shirking Hans Hermann in his corner. Semi-final pits Man Mountain Dean against Steve Staniee, while the prelim is between bald Firpo Szybsko and big Bill Stack.

Comes A Suggestion

A chap was suggesting to us the other day that Peterborough should stage a real sports day on July 1, Civic Holiday, Labor Day or Thanksgiving Day. Any one of them. As he said, a great many folks stay in town and there usually is very little doing here on a holiday. He felt that Morrow Park could be used for a ball game, a lacrosse match, some horse races, possibly the five-mile road race, various other events, and have the large drill hall going slambang to a big round and square dance program before a first-rate orchestra at night. "Everyone would find something he liked in the program," the fellow said, "and some of the clubs could make some money so they wouldn't be always pestering the public for financial aid."

* * * * * *

We were down at Morrow Park yester aft talking to some of the owners of pacers and trotters around the racing stable. And we saw a beauty of a colt doing the mile in a 2.45 workout. Railbirds said Stewart Silver had done it in 2.42 in the fourth workout, and was the most promising colt possibly in the province. E. T. (Buster) Johnston owns Stewart Silver, buying the yearling from Hugh Stewart last October. The brown beauty comes of excellent stock and has been entered in the two-year-old Canadian Futurity in London, Ont., next September. Like many fine horses, Stewart Silver was tough to train, but is gentle as a lamb now and a grand pacer. You'll be hearing more of Buster's horse in the next few years.

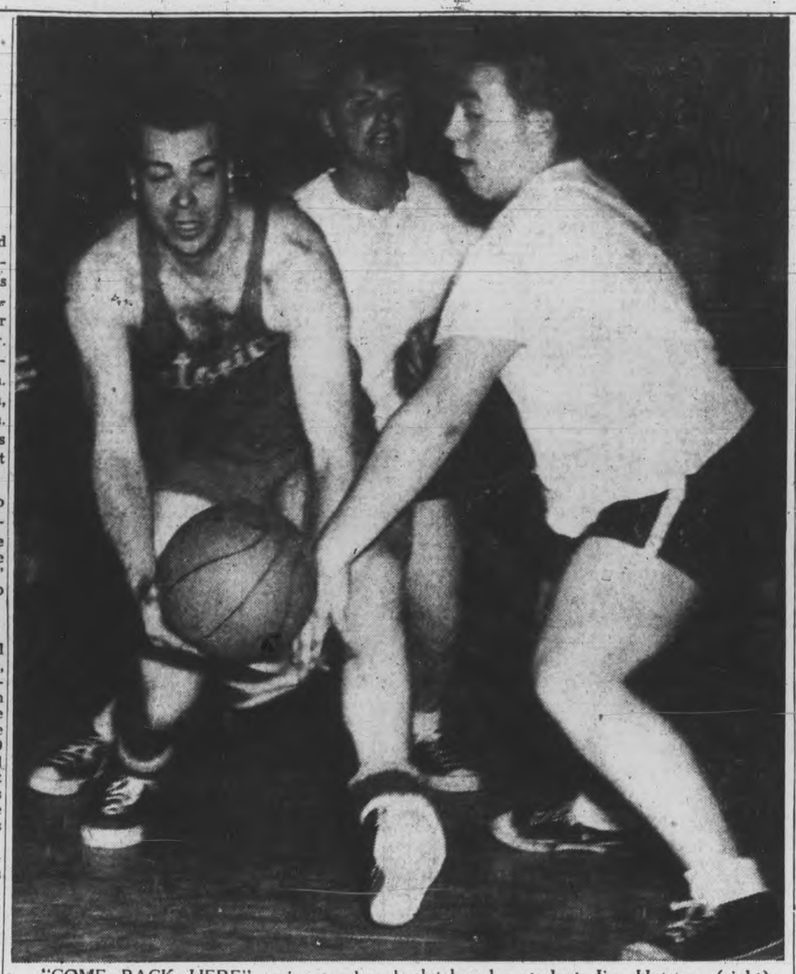
Congratulations to Kingston Goodyears, local group winners, who annexed the Ontario Hockey Association Senior B title last night defeating Woodstock 12-0 . . . The first 14 days of the Dufferin harness meet will be run under the old Peterborough Turf Club charter . . . IOOF puck dinner is next Wednesday eve in Lakefield, local players leaving the "Y" at 6.15 . . . Civic Softball League has a re-organization meeting at 7.30 April 30 in the YM . . . High time the girls' softball loop got down to business again, eh? . . . Some male softball fans have asked us why IUE doesn't enter a team since UEW is in the City League; it might result in hot rivalry, at that . . . Senior OLA opening game here will be May 15 . . . Executive meeting of the grid Orfuns is next Wednesday eve at eight sharp in the "Y", and that doesn't mean 8.17 or so . . . Entries for the local and district high school track and field meet here May 18 must be sent to recreation director Alex Sinclair in the City Hall by May 13 . . . He'll also supply any info to those interested in the meet . . . But enough for now.

P-W Cricketers Enter Two Toronto Council

By C. R. IRESON



Cordon Monkman was returned as president of the Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket Club for this season, with J. Wild vice-president. H. Dibben is secretary for 1953 and A. M. Hamilton treasurer. Captain of the "A" team is E. Cotton, B. Roberts being vice-captain. S. Jennings captains the "B" team, with K. Illingworth vice-captain. R. Harvey is in charge of grounds and equipment, and W. J. Wright looks after the entertainment.

It was decided to operate two teams this year in the Toronto District Council, both playing in the Rawlinson or third division. The "B" team cannot use eligible "A" players from here, according to Council rules.

IN GOOD SHAPE

Reports showed the financial situation of the club in good shape, and there is a full supply of equipment. The schedule does not open till May 16, but the locals will be busy before then and matches have been arranged on May 2 and 9 with Grove School of Lakefield and with Parkdale. The first Council match has St. Simon's playing the loca "A" team here May 16, as the "B" team plays Parkdale in Toronto.

A new feature is that the players will have blue and red caps with the lettering PWCC on them. The club hopes to arrange friendly matches in between schedule games. The P-W team will also again enter competition for the R. C. Matthews Trophy in the Ontario county championships. They won it in 1948 and made a good fight of it in succeeding seasons. Practices are Tuesday and Thursday evenings in the Oval, and newcomers are invited to attend or phone Mr. Dibben at 5351.

Teachers Defeat Boys 24-18 In Basketball At Kenner

After a day of math, English, history, French, the sciences and shops, the Kenner Collegiate teachers Friday spent an extra hour with the students, giving them a lesson in basketball. Huffing and puffing their way through the hour-long game, experience paid off for the teachers as they eked out a 24-18 victory with a last-minute drive in the third quarter and held throughout the fourth.

Running up and down the court trying to pace the boys isn't an every-day occurence for the teachers. In fact just playing basketball isn't a daily pastime. Therefore the teachers weren't exactly in top condition for the game.

To give them breathers, the teachers recruited a few students, some boys and girls, to act as fill-ins while the teachers' lungs caught up with the fast pace. But on the whole the teachers won their own game.

It took the teachers the first half to become acquainted with the sport again; for some had been away from basketball for five, and yes, as much as 20 years.

Taking advantage of this, the Boys' Athletic Association quintet led by Montgomery, Finley, Burns and Hollingsworth, jumped ahead early in the game. But Jack Cullis, a former Victoria University player, brought the teachers on even terms, four-all.

With the same quartet pacing the students, the lads for a second time took the lead and this time held it 10-9 at the half. Dianne Smith, a student recruit for the teachers, helped keep the teachers within striking range.

Montgomery early in the third quarter attempted to defeat the teachers single-handed and he nearly did it. The students went up by five. Then in the dying minutes of the quarter PT teacher, Anne Morrison went on a scoring spree that pushed the teachers ahead.

In the final quarter the teachers still pressed the students, each side exchanged a few playful tricks, to keep the students laughing. But when it came to basketball, the teachers, Cullis, Smith and Corbett hit the hoop for the win.

Students Montgomery and teacher Cullis shared the scoring honors, each with nine, closely followed by teacher - student, Smith, with eight.

Confederation Wins

Confederation beat King George 10-4 yesterday in an intermediate public school softball match. The winners banged in five runs in the third inning, adding two next time up, and three more in the fifth. The losers notched their four all in the third stanza of a neat tussle. The game was played at Confederation. Teams:

King George—Triggs, Bell, Cullen, McConnachie, Barker, Young, Caton, Phillips, Ross, Danby, Worboy, Beavis, Waters, Nickson.

Confederation — Pulkinghorn, Kinneburgh, Outwater, Carl, Ruttan, McArthur, Kimball, Nichols, Parry, Henwood, Montford, Weaver, Kiff, Stevenson.

Umpire, Mr. Hempstead.

SCHRAMKA TO MINORS

CHICAGO (AP)—Paul Schramka, 24-year-old outfielder and former university of San Francisco star, was optioned Friday by Chicago Cubs to their International League farm club at Springfield, Mass. Schramka was sent down on 24-hour recall.

Kingston Wins Senior B Title, Beat Woodstock

KINGSTON (CP) — Kingston Goodyears Friday night won the Ontario Hockey Association Senior B hockey championship with a 12-0 win over Woodstock Athletics. The Goodyears won the best-of-seven series 4-2.

The Kingston victory was a startling reversal from Wednesday night when the Athletics edged them 4-3.

The Goodyears went into action from the start, scoring three goals in less than six minutes of the opening period. From this point on the Athletics appeared completely disorganized.

Kingston rapped home six goals in the first period and in the second outscored the Athletics 2-0 and followed through with four in the third.

Goodyear scorers were Cliff Tinkess with three; Ted Nicholson, Don Murray and Walt Gerow with two each; and one each by Jack White, Ken Partis and Jack McKcown.

Orioles Pace Buffalo To 6-2 Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pitching played a major role in Friday's two scheduled International Baseball League games, both under the lights.

A brilliant four-hit performance by Baltimore's new right-hander, Jack Sandford, coupled with a grand-slam home run by catcher Joe Lonnett, paced the Orioles to a 6-2 victory over Buffalo Bisons—their first in a three-game home-town series which started opening day, Wednesday.

Fine relief pitching by Bob Hogue, a right-hander with New York Yankees and St. Louis Browns last season, contributed largely to Toronto's 7-4 win over Springfield Cubs. This gave the Maple Leafs their first series of the new season, two games to one.

All eight teams are preparing for their first heavy week-end schedule.

Toronto is at Baltimore Saturday, Buffalo is at Springfield, Montreal Royals at Syracuse Chiefs and Ottawa Athletics at Rochester Red Wings. Sunday, the same teams will meet in doubleheaders at the same grounds.

WILD AT FIRST

In winning his first game of the season, Sandford was wild in the first four innings, walking seven men. But from there on he walked no one, and struck out 10. Outfielder Roy Weatherly contributed the Orioles' round-tripper in the initial inning, with one on base.

Buffalo starter Al McNeilance took the loss.

In Springfield, the Cubs outhit Toronto 12-9, nine of the Springfield hits coming while Toronto's Red Fahr was on the mound. He lasted only 2 2-3 innings. Hogue then was assigned.

Luvern Fear, with Springfield and Chicago of the National League last season, was the losing pitcher.

Football Cup Final Will Be Televised

LONDON (CP)—Britain's Football Cup final—the big show of the soccer season—will be shown on television in Canada and Britain, it was reported today.

Published reports here say the entire game will be televised under a deal between the CBC and the BCB. The BBC originally intended to film only the second half of the match, it was reported, but the CBC offered to put up enough money so the entire game could be televised in both countries.

The cup final, climax of a season-long sudden-death tournament, will be played at Wembley Stadium a week from today. The rival teams are Blackpool and Bolton Wanderers.

Babs Marchetti Top Senior Woman Skater

EDMONTON (CP) — Barbara Marchetti of Detroit Friday night won the senior women's 880-yard event at the North American indoor speed skating championships

Miss Marchetti, a strong contender to take the senior women's crown, covered the eight laps in 1:40.8, six seconds off the record, and about a lap in front of her two competitors.

Pat Underhill of Edmonton set the pace over most of the distance but on the fifth lap she and Karen Mattson of St. Paul, Minn U.S. indoor titleholder, fell to the ice and Miss Marchetti went on to win. Miss Underhill and Miss Mattson finished in that order.

Jim Kaufman of St. Paul Minn., won the junior boys' 220-yard event finishing ahead of Mike Lawrence of Red Deer, Alta., and Walter Swanson of Minneapolis, Minn.

CHALKS UP FIRST WIN

Omer DeSchepper, winner of last year's North American indoor senior men's class, chalked up his first win of the 1953 meet when he edged out Lou Dame of Boston in the senior men's three-quarter mile.

DeSchepper covered the 12-lap route in 2:07.3 Bob Olson of Los Angeles finished third.

Fourteen-year-old David Arends of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, holder of six American titles so far this year, set his second North American indoor speed skating record with a time of 0:22.4 in the juvenile boy's 220-yard final.

Ab Hardy, Jr., of Edmonton was second and Ronnie Eikaas of Minneapolis third.

JUVENILE WINNER

Frances Degregoire of Edmonton won the juvenile girls class as she added to Thursday night's win in the 440-yard event by taking the 220-yard ahead of her only competitor, Carol Castella of Red Deer, Alta. Her time for the 220 was :24.4.

Dame chalked up his second record of the meet when he finished at 2:49.5 in the senior men's one-mile final. Bob Olson of Pasadena, Calif., was second.

Arends added his second record of the 1953 meet in the juvenile boys' 220-yard event with a time of :22.4. The old record was :23.6.

DO YOU OWN A CAR?

When the man who developed Bardahl Rad Conditioner brought his car to a garage for repairs, the garage owner phoned to ask him what on earth had he put in his radiator. He said that when they drained his radiator the water was so thick with dirt it would hardly pour. The Bardahl Rad Conditioner had removed rust, scale and dirt untouched by a popular brand chemical cleaner. The garage owner immediately placed an order for their own use. Since then hundreds of thousands of car owners in Canada and the United States have used Bardahl Rad Conditioner. If you own a car you should try it too . . . If your car is new it will keep your radiator in permanently new condition . . . If you have been running your car for a few years you'll be amazed at the dirt, rust and scale it will remove. Bardahl Rad Conditioner keeps radiators clean . . . eliminates rust formation which can insulate a motor, causing harmful overheating . . . and it also lubricates and stops squeaky water pumps. Bardahl Rad Conditioner costs only 89c. Ask for it at your Service Station.

Yanks Find Easy Sledding In Early Stages, Upset Washington 4-1

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

Just how good are the 1953 New York Yankees? Nobody knows yet, but in the first 10 games they appear to be finding the task of winning their fifth straight pennant the easiest of the lot. The Yankees, riding a four-game winning streak, lead the league by two games. They've won eight and lost just two to the same clubs that beat them in five of the first nine a year ago.

This season only Alex Kellner, the Philadelphia lefthander, has found their number.

Kellner, who became the first three-game winner in the majors this season by whipping Boston Friday, shut out New York on opening day and came back five days later to repeat the whitewashing—something that hadn't happened to a Yankee team since 1934.

BALANCE PAYS OFF

Against everybody else the Yankees have made balance pay off—just enough hitting to go with reasonably good pitching to come out on the long end.

Friday's 4-1 victory over Washington was a good example. The Yankees' usual power — Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra and old John Mize—went hitless. So rookie third baseman Loren Babe and Gene Woodling, the hustling outfielder, chipped in with homers and Eddie Lopat added a double, later scoring the tie-breaking run in the fifth. Lopat scattered eight hits in winning for the second time this season.

St. Louis Browns, who had been the Yankees' nearest rivals, dropped back a game by losing 3-0 to Chicago White Sox. Cleveland defeated Detroit 4-1 and Philadelphia downed Boston 7-2. Now the Browns, White Sox, Indians and Athletics all trail New York by two games.

EXTEND LEAD

In the National League Philadelphia Phillies extended their lead to a full game by whipping Pittsburgh 5-3 on the two-hit pitching of veteran Jim Konstanty. Brooklyn smothered New York 12-4. St. Louis at Chicago and Cincinnati at Milwaukee were rained out.

Mike Garcia, one of Cleveland's 22-game winners last season won his first game this year as he weathered a nine-hit Detroit attack.

Gene Bearden, a Brownie castoff, came in for Chicago's Lou Kretlow after St. Louis had loaded the bases in the first inning on walks with only one out and shut out the Browns on three hits Virgil Trucks was the loser.

Boston managed to break Kellner's string of scoreless innings at 21 2-3 when George Kell doubled home Dick Gernert with two out in the fourth, but the southpaw was the master the rest of the way. Eddie Robinson, who came to the Athletics from the White Sox during the winter, broke out with four hits including a home run.

Konstanty, making his first appearance this year, had a no-hitter going for Philadelphia until Danny O'Connell singled with two out in the seventh.

The 12-4 Brooklyn margin over the Giants saw the Dodgers score in bunches—four runs in the fourth and six in the sixth. Roy Campanella's three-run homer was the big blow in the fourth while the sixth the Dodgers got only three hits but were aided by two errors, a wild pitch and four walks.

Thousands Of TV Fans Protest Brutal Ring Fight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Where were the doctors? Why didn't they stop it quicker?"

Robert K. Christenberry, chairman of the New York state athletic commission, voiced the opinion of millions of television viewers Friday night who watched the 10 knockdown slaughter of Boston's Tommy Collins by lightweight champion Jimmy Carter on a country-wide network.

"Everything we've done to make it a clean, competitive sport they've thrown to the wind," Christenberry said after viewing the bout on television in New York.

Referee Tommy Rawson stopped the Boston bout in the fourth round after Collins had been battered mercilessly.

FORCED TO ACT

"It was a championship fight," Rawson explained. "I thought it my duty to have it end in the most possible decisive fashion. But when Collins' second came into the ring I was counting over him.

"The Massachusetts boxing commission's regulations forced me to stop it."

Christenberry said: "Giving Collins every break, maybe they should have let him have say three, or at the most four knockdowns, but beyond that it was shocking."

SWAMPED WITH CALLS

Newspapers and television stations across the country were swamped with telephone calls from irate viewers and listeners.

Abe Greene, commissioner of the National Boxing Association who watched from his home in Paterson, N.J., said: "It seemed the fight went far beyond the time it should have been stopped."

Barney Ross, onetime world welterweight champion, said:

"I never saw such a brutal affair in a ring in all my life."

Ross saw the fight on television in Los Angeles.

Suspend De Spirito

BOSTON (AP)—Jockey Tony DeSpirito Friday drew a 10-day suspension at Suffolk Downs, effective April 27 to May 9—for careless riding aboard Lil's Joy in the fourth race Thursday. This was the second suspension for the 1952 riding champion from Lawrence, Mass. The 18-year-old jockey's other setback came in Florida last December and nearly cost his record.

Handicap 17 For N.Z. Woman Golf Amateur

INVERCARGILL, N.Z. (Reuters)—Mrs. Frank Small's golf handicap was 17 one day last January when she dropped her first hole-in-one. Today, nine "aces" later, it is still 17.

Mrs. Small, slightly built and in her 60s, teed off with her brassie on the 190-yard "Waihopi" hole of the local course here this week and watched her drive fade toward the trap.

Then she lost the ball in the sun, and when she got to the green she couldn't find it.

"Must be in the cup," she wisecracked, having sunk a hole-in-one earlier in the round.

It was.

NO EXPLANATION

Each of the golfing grandmother's aces on the Queen's Park course, a flat 18-holer studded with trees and traps, has been witnessed. The first one came during a match, the others during friendly foursomes.

The smiling New Zealander has no explanation for her fantastic string of shots. "An amazing unaccountable streak of luck," she calls it.

Her favorite hole is the 114-yard one known as "Western Ho," where she has turned the trick four times. She has done it three times at the 190-yard "Waihopi" and once each at the 140-yard "Polygon" and 135-yard "Feldwick'

Carter TKO's Tommy Collins

BOSTON (AP) — Lightweight champion Jimmy Carter knocked down courageous but futile Tommy Collins of Boston 10 times before being awarded a technical knockout decision in 2:28 of the fourth round of their scheduled 15-round championship boxing bout Friday night at the Boston Garden.

Collins weighed 133¾, Carter 134½.

Starting out as the 2-1 favorite, the workman-like champion lost little time convincing the partisan Collins crowd that he was superior to the Boston idol in every respect.

The aggressive Collins went down for the first time under a tremendous left to the jaw early in the third round, after losing the first two sessions. The Bostonian took the compulsory eight-count and fought back in gallant fashion. But Carter dropped him five more times, for nine counts, in the third session before the bell came to Collins' rescue.

While Collins was taking that cruel punishment, referee Tommy Rawson inquired about his condition at every opportunity.

Before Rawson would permit Collins to continue in the horrible third session, he demanded, after every knockdown: "How are you feeling?" But Collins replied "fine" every time he struggled painfully to his feet.

When the game youngster came out for the fourth, Carter dropped him for the seventh time with a right to the jaw.

Lew Worsham Takes Lead In Tournament

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Lew Worsham shot a 71 to take the lead at the halfway mark Friday with 139 in the $35,000 tournament of champions.

The veteran missed a three-foot putt on the 17th and lost a penalty stroke in a lake on the 18th, but he still hung on to a lead of one stroke over the best of 19 rivals in this new golfing show.

Setting things up for a possible tight windup Sunday in the 72-hole event, four players were tied at 140—Dr. Cary Middlecoff, Earl Stewart Jr., Chandler Harper and Al Besselink.

Outlaw League Offers Return Club-Jumpers

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Kent Cooke, president of Toronto baseball Maple Leafs, said Friday a representative of the outlaw Dominican Republic Baseball League is offering arrangements for the return of Wilmet Fields and Frank Barnes, Toronto club-jumpers.

Outfielder Fields and pitcher Barnes left the team without notice early this month while the Leafs were training in Florida. They now are with the San Pedro de Macoris club and its league is scheduled to open today.

Cooke said, however, that no settlement has been reached with the Dominican League for the return of the players. He said any disposition of the case remains uncertain.

Send Apple Juice To Buck Up Team

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—A special shipment of Okanagan apple juice, fuel for British Columbia's Allan Cup contenders, left here Friday by air following what juice-boosters said was an SOS from coach Bill Carse of Penticton V's.

V's carried their own supply of apple juice when they went to Fort William for the Western Canada senior hockey final. They didn't carry quite enough, apparently, for Carse requested a new supply for the Allan Cup finals starting in Kitchener Monday night against Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Young Choirs Present Pleasing Concert

Junior choirs of St. Paul's Church and a young (15 years old) Toronto boy violinist named Ronald Rudan combined to give a pleasing and at times finely accomplished concert in the church Friday evening. Gwen Craw, director of the large girls' choir, and Christopher Gledhill, director of the smaller boys' choir, ornamented the program with piano and organ duos.

The first part of the choral work was religious. After the intermission the girls doffed their white surplices and red bows, appeared in civilian costume and sang secular songs.

The 16 little boys in unison performed with a fresh impromptu effect Humperdinck's well-known "Prayer," Willan's "Song of Canada," Sullivan's "Pirate Song" and—an odd choice for few and slight voices—Beethoven's "Creation Hymn."

The girls, more than 50 of them, showed good training, discipline and steadiness in their songs: two hymns and, after the intermission, the English folk song "Sweet Kitty Clover" (clear and good enunciation, very pleasant voice and balance), "Sweet and Low" (artistically wrought and enthusiastically received by the audience), and Rodgers' lilting, bright "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning." They frequently divided into harmony and descant.

A very good performance.

Both groups joined in opening and closing choruses.

YOUNG VIOLINIST

The young violinist, Ronald Rudan, gave an interesting glimpse of a good talent and developing technique, revealing in his less spectacular numbers (for instance the Massenet Meditation) a fine sensitivity, and in more showy pieces (notably the first movement of the Symphonie Espagnole by Lalo) a remarkable grasp of the instrument and the music. His accompanist was a young Toronto lady of charming capability, Maralyn Perkins.

The piano and organ duos included Handel, Bach, Bizet and a tasty bit of postcard sentiment, the well-known "Old Vienna" by Godowsky. Their encore, an arrangement of what is apparently a Newcastle tune, was delightful.

Everybody merited encores in the second half of the program, and all in all, it was a fetching evening of looking and hearing, and proud parents.—O. E. C.

City Of Jericho Preceded By Earlier City

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—The city of Jericho, whose walls crumbled under Joshua's trumpets, was preceded by an earlier city at least 7,000 years ago.

Anglo - American archeologists have unearthed the remains of two cities, one estimated at 7,000 and the other 3,500 years old, near the present site of Jericho on the River Jordan, between Amman and Jerusalem.

The remains were first located some 50 years ago by a German archeologist, but no excavations were undertaken. The two cities are buried under a small hill.

Experts of the British School of Archeology and the American School for Oriental Research, conducting the digging, said the oldest city dates back to the Neolithic Age, around 5000 BC.

USED STONE UTENSILS

The archeologists say inhabitants of the older city did not know pottery and used stone utensils as bowls. The city was surrounded by a stone wall. Houses were made of baked ricks with lastered smooth floors, some of them colored. No inscriptions or drawings have been unearthed thus far and the language, race and religion of inhabitants remain a mystery.

Diggings at the level of the "new" city have yielded finely-made pottery. Although houses were built with bricks, several stairs carved out of stone have been discovered.

Objects discovered among the ruins of the "new" city include jars still filled with wheat, wooden tables, chairs and other utensils. "New Jericho" appears to have been destroyed by fire. Most of the ruins are blackened.

Archeologists expect their work to continue for at least two years.

NATO DEFENCE—Field Marshal Earl Alexander, left, British Minister of Defence and former Governor-General of Canada, and his United States counterpart, Secretary of Defence Charles E. Wilson, watch Rene Plevin, French Defence Minister, sign $550,000,000 aircraft contracts at the opening of North Atlantic Treaty Organization meetings in Paris Friday. The aircraft will be used to fortify defences of the 14 NATO members.

Queen Mother Likes To Fish

BALMORAL, Scotland (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth, an expert angler, tried her luck on two miles of good trout and salmon fishing in Scotland during her 10-day Easter holiday.

The waters are on the River Dee and are part of Birkhall estate, first Scottish home of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, now a favorite holiday home for the Queen Mother.

Since Queen Victoria bought Balmoral Castle, the "home" waters have been extended six miles on the right bank and seven on the left. Birhall estate is within tramping distance of the castle and Prince Charles spends a lot of time "helping" the Queen and the Queen Mother to land their catches.

The Queen Mother learned to fish at Glamis, her childhood home and since has fished in Canada, New Zealand, Australia and Kenya.

Collegiate Band Concert Offers Winning Variety

BY HARRY THEOBALD

Seven boys of Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School band temporarily stole the show in its sixth annual concert Friday night. It was a pre-arranged prank, of course, but lost nothing in boyish verve and fun by whatever the rehearsing.

Down the first half of the program, Albert Croasdale, director, was waiting for the turning of the pages for the next number when a boy from the audience strode up to the platform with some message indicated by pointing to the wings. When Mr. Croasdale had left his young company by themselves, a piano was trundled in from the opposite side, the drums were hustled up from the rear, and the seven teenagers took over.

It all happened fast as the concert band of 30 was reduced to a dance orchestra of seven. Without any torturing of instruments for bizarre effect, they went Collegiate on "Dixie Downbeat" to the surprised delight of the near-capacity audience, manifestly to the boys themselves and their companions on the stage behind them. They confined this seeming escapade to the one number, but if they had also done "You Made Me Love You," from a subsequent medley, for instance, and gave it the same treatment of smart syncopation . . . emh! ehm!

This septette were: Trumpets: Tommy Krogh and Paul Sparrow; saxophone: Lee Barns; clarinet: Robert Ross; trombone: David Donaldson; piano: Barry Wills; drums: Murray Manders.

These youngsters are clever instrumentalists, sparkling with rhythm and play exceedingly well together. They can go places even now. The band played the familiar "Glow Worm" which is their test piece at the forthcoming Kiwanis Festival. Perhaps that competitive aspect fixed a little sharper attention on its presentation. It was played smoothly and in fine texture of tone, but might possibly be improved by a little more accent here and sense of singing there. The band is ready textually for their engagement before the Kiwanis adjudicator, and something more of the quality of glow could be a benefit. And they have the feeling and expression.

SHOW ABILITY

The ensemble ability of this year's band stood out in the overture to The Marriage of Figaro. It provided a splendid measure of progress since that first concert when Mr. Croasdale and the boys and girls of that year gave promise of what has now been accomplished. One phase of difference and enhancement is in the woodwind section. The present group amply supports and integrates the other sections. From one hearing it impressed a listener as a notable and outstanding improvement in the graces and embellishments to theme. There is proficiency and more uniformity of it in the clarinets, never more acceptable than in this concert. The other instruments of the section merit similar commendation, flutes and saxophones.

Mr. Croasdale has always had dependable brass—some fine young players are remembered. Friday night's band responded all around him and especially in the felicities of Mozart, a fine accomplishment within the months of the school year. The director selected a program that presented groups of instruments, also soloists more prominently than in some of the earlier concerts, probably reflecting his own confirmed confidence in their capabilities.

The band necessarily loses some of its members from year to year, but the Croasdale training now reaches out to Public Schools, already bringing to PCVS some boys and girls who have learned the rudiments of music and their instruments. The finest development this year is in the clean certainties of the reeds and other instruments on that left side of the director.

PLEASING HARMONY

The harmony of the band was most pleasing in such favorite melodies as Romberg's "Song Of Love"; Elgar's "Land Of Hope and Glory"; Alford's march arrangement of "My Hero" and several medleys of more or less familiar songs, some of them popular around the turn of the century.

Gershwin's "Lady Be Good" was no easy assignment, but the teenagers played it with a smart swing. Lights were trimmed to blue for "The Haunted House", with humorous ghostly effects, and there was more amusement in "Comin' Round the Mountain" specializing the component sections of the band. Murray Manders contributed two piano accordion numbers.

The orchestra group were not the only attracting instrumentalists. However, some of them eluded identification in the performance, although not Ron Wilson whose baritone was of euphonium quality, smooth and full tone. French horns, trombones and sousaphones were all in competent hands, and David Donaldson's trombone was bland brass. Robert Ross announced the numbers, and his chair caught attention all through the concert. His control of the reed was notable among the clarinets.

The Collegians of this year are a capable company, and in the receding background the Board of Education that instituted the band in the first place and brought Mr. Croasdale to the school deserve another reference of approval. Mr. Stanley Adamson of the present Board was chairman last night.

Personnel of the band follows:

Flutes: Melville Barns, Raymond Johnson.

Alto Saxophones: Joyce Beals, Mary Tudhope.

Tenor Saxophone: Lee Barns.

Cornets: Tommy Krogh, Paul Sparrow, Gerald Wood, Margaret Bryant, Doug Burnley, Barry Wills.

Baritone: Ron Wilson.

Clarinets: Robert Ross, Harvey McFayden, Martin Thompson, Beverly Richardson, Raymore Turnbull, Janet Hughson, Alex Eastwood, Beverley Bacon, Shirley Luther.

Trombones: David Donaldson, Gar White.

French Horns: Robert Hutchinson, Elizabeth Collins.

Sousaphones: David Bacon, Paul Reader.

Percussion: Murray Manders, Tim Thompson, Robert Hornal.

Church Talks Broken Off

BELGRADE (AP)—The official Yugoslav press reported today that consultations between a special government commission and representatives of the Roman Catholic Church on a new religious law here have been broken off. The press reports said the split came because of interference by the Vatican.

The first meeting was held two days ago to discuss terms of a new law spelling out the privileges and limitations of religious activity in this Communist country. The law was to be submitted to Parliament for approval later this year.

Tanjug, the official news agency, and Borba, voice of the Communist party, said the Church group came to the conference with instructions from the Vatican to oppose in principle the separation of church and state affairs.

Yugoslavia broke off diplomatic relations with the Vatican last December, charging it with interference in the country's internal affairs.

Dr. Jordan Says

Glaucoma Can Cause Blindness Without Warning

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, MD

Glaucoma is one of the serious eye diseases and an important cause of blindness. It has been said that of the 200,000 blind in the United States about 20,000 have lost their vision because of glaucoma.

Glaucoma is rather uncommon before the age of 40 but becomes increasingly frequent with advancing years. When the diagnosis is made early and proper treatment is started promptly, however, complete loss of vision can generally be prevented. The exact cause is not known.

In glaucoma, there is an increase in pressure inside the eyeball. It may start as an acute attack with severe pain in one eye, slight swelling of the eyelids with watering of the eye, and infection of the eyeball which looks like a general inflammation of the eye.

There is, of course, great loss of vision. The increased hardness of the eyeball can usually be felt easily. The pain is extremely severe and often is felt all through the head. The hardness of the eye is caused by blockage of the flow of fluids within the eye so that liquid accumulates in the eyeball.

It should be emphasized that glaucoma of the chronic, simple type may come without warning and without pain. This is the kind which is often picked up by routine eye examination when totally unexpected by the patient. It is one of the arguments for regular examinations of the eyes for those in their middle years or beyond.

There are drugs available which are helpful in most cases of glaucoma. Often, however, those with glaucoma have to continue to use the drugs the rest of their lives.

Sometimes an operation is necessary to preserve sight. The several kinds of operations used for glaucoma all have the aim of making new paths for the drainage of the eye fluids.

It takes courage when one is told an operation is necessary, but a brave attitude helps in the final result.

Because of its great danger to sight, glaucoma is an important disease which must not be neglected and which requires individual attention. Each patient must have the special care which his particular case demands.

Failure to follow advice or to continue conscientiously with the medicines or other treatment recommended may result in blindness. Diagnosis should be made and treatment begun at the earliest possible moment.

Mrs. E. Sargent New President Of Westwood WI

WESTWOOD (ENS)—Annual meeting of the Westwood Branch of the Women's Institute was held Tuesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. T. J. Cardwell, was in the chair.

The financial report showed a balance of $89.60 in the treasury after all expenses had been paid, amounting to $300.60. Reports of standing committee conveners were given.

Mrs. F. E. Birdsall conducted the election and installation of officers, who are: honorary president, Mrs. T. J. Cardwell; president, Mrs. E. W. Sargent; first vice-president, Mrs. Redmond Walsh; second vice-president, Mrs. William Renwick; sunshine secretary, Mrs. Herbert Pacey; district directors, Mrs. Eric Pulfer; board of directors, Mrs. W. Renwick, Mrs. F. E. Birdsall, Mrs. W. Post, Mrs. W. Mood; pianist, Mrs. Birdsall; assistant, Miss Margaret Comstock; auditors, Mrs. Hilliard Neilson, Mrs. Lorne Hutchinson.

Delegates to the district annual to be held at Trent River on June 9 are Mrs. E. Pulfer, Mrs. F. E. Birdsall and Mrs. E. Sargent.

A special gift donated by Mrs. Jane Thompson to the most regular member in the past year was awarded to Mrs. Fred Neilson, who had attended 12 meetings.

District director Mrs. William Renwick brought a report of the recent district executive meeting in Peterborough.

Appointments of standing committee went as follows: citizenship and education, Mrs. E. Pulfer; community activities and public relations, Mrs. W. Post; historical research, Mrs. Jane Thompson; agriculture and Canadian industries, Mrs. W. Mood; home economics and health, Mrs. R. Walsh; resolutions, Mrs. T. J. Cardwell.

Mr. Harry Anderson, Brighton, was a guest Wednesday of her sister, Mrs. Leslie Sherwin.

Mrs. C .W. Varcoe was elected 3rd vice-president of Cobourg Presbytery Women's Association at their April meeting held in Port Hope.

Billy Smith, a pupil of Woodvale School, SS 1 and 25, Alnwick, has returned from a holiday at Fairhaven, Mass., Plymouth and New York, and gave a talk to his schoolmates on his trip.

HARRIS C. HARPER

Moncton, New Brunswick school teacher who disappeared from his home more than three years ago, and still the object of a wide-spread search. Mr. Harper vanished as suddenly and completely as if the earth had opened up and swallowed him when he left his Highfield Street home late on the afternoon of January 21, 1950. Police and private investigators have been unable to uncover a single clue that might lead to an explanation of his whereabouts or his fate.

Mr. Harper is 51 years of age, about five feet six inches tall, and at the time of his disappearance weighed about 150 lbs. At that time, three years ago, his hair was greying, he wore glasses and carried a scar on his left cheek bone. At the time he vanished, and for several years previous to his disappearance, Mr. Harper was principal of the King Edward School. He was an active member of the Knights of Pythias who have made extensive efforts to locate him. It is requested that anyone having information about Mr. Harper, who had not been in the best of health prior to his disappearance, communicate with the Moncton City Police Department.

Moscow's Answer Disappointing–Bonn

BONN (AP)—West German government sources said today that Moscow's answer to President Eisenhower's world peace challenge is disappointing because it "fails to offer any evidence that Russia is willing to ease world tension with concrete deeds."

This means, a government source said, that henceforth Moscow's peace feelers should be regarded even more skeptically by the West.

"One would have thought," a spokesman said, "that the Russians would have made at least a small gesture—for instance on the question of a peace treaty for Austria."

Plane Hop Across Atlantic Not Quite On Schedule

Editor's Note—This is the first of a series of articles to be featured in The Examiner by I. Norman Smith, associate editor of the Ottawa Journal who will be writing about the countries of Europe and the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II. Mr. Smith is a former well-known foreign correspondent with considerable experience in Europe

By I. NORMAN SMITH
(Special To The Examiner)

PARIS—"Be sure you see the sun rise out of the Atlantic as you're flying towards Ireland," said a friend as we boarded TCA in Montreal Thursday evening.

It was probably beautiful, but from my bedroom in Goose Bay, Labrador, I couldn't tell.

Air travel is charming that way. You never quite know where you'll turn up next. We left Montreal at 9:30 p.m., ticketed for Gander, but wound up at Goose Bay as there was only a two-foot ceiling at Gander.

The steward said we'd take about three hours and 47 minutes to go the 900 miles to Goose and we did just that, which was barely enough time to brush up on the little pamphlet the officer handed us which he called "ditching instructions". It's old trans-Atlantic flying custom, providing this gloomy literature.

I doubt I could squirm into one of those jackets even standing still in the middle of a field, let alone in a falling plane.

Goose Bay came and went but didn't really went as it should have. The plane refuels there and passengers, at the unlikely hour of 1:30 a.m. pour on coffee and biscuits in the lounge. "All aboard", in fact standing out on the wings, were two mechanics spraying alcohol from a hose to remove snow from the aircraft. Snow at Goose Bay wasn't too surprising, but it was the binding kind that wouldn't slosh off. After an hour or so of trying, the same voice that earlier had said we were about to take off on a nine-hour flight to Shannon announced sadly that we would spend the night in the hotel at Goose Bay and leave 10 hours later.

Goose Bay is a commercial air station, catering to many world air lines, but it is also an RCAF base and an American Army Air Force base. The whole business—10,000 bodies in Summer and 6,000 in Winter—is under the RCAF station commander.

The Americans have the biggest part of the show, about 2,500 service men as against our 450, and they have a good strength of air defence machines as against our three search-rescue planes.

Americans are there on a 20-year lease and plan great expansion. They mix well with our fellows in sports and theatres and entertainment but the two services are quite apart in job and assignment, they on one side of the field we on the other.

Group Captain Johns recalled the sandy plateau as being all scrub spruce when he first saw it and you get the feeling that the whole thing could be swallowed up in bush again after a year's idleness. Spruce and sand (or snow) all around, the sea to the east, deep unknown Labrador to the west. Some natives huddle seven miles away in a village called "Happy Valley", and still further there's a fishing village and Grenfell Mission. But for the rest—silence.

SET SAIL

It was 3.00 Friday afternoon that we piled into TCA's home-away-from-home again. "We are now leaving for Shannon, flying time nine hours and ten minutes, altitude 17,000 feet," said the steward. It was like seeing a movie around the second time, but this time we were off and Labrador and Newfoundland and Canada and all that fell off somewhere behind the setting sun.

That Goose Bay grounding, of course, was no fault of TCA. Snow is snow and safety is safety. On land and in air TCA did well by us. They sell only "tourist" class now but the space and service are the same and are good. We were 36 passengers, including a nine-year-old girl travelling alone and happy as a lark but quieter.

Our North Star weighed 80,189 pounds, including 2,801 gallons of gasoline. We cruised about 225 miles an hour, rather noisy in the cabin but otherwise in superb comfort. Several good meals and one sleeping tablet later, at 4.25 Irish time, we kissed the sod of Shannon.

During refuelling the Irish showed us the wonders of a free port—whiskey at $2.50 the bottle and cigarettes a song—but it's a hell of an hour to make a bargain even with a soft-voiced colleen with a harp on her green blazer. At five we were off again.

TO LONDON

En route to London, a two-hour run, the sun came up to meet us, also breakfast. By now we had lost all sense of time and just ate as ordered, too stupid to notice even the on-beam landing in the fog at London airport. It was a busy spot, jet Comets whistling about, planes from every corner of the globe jockeying like fearsome whales.

After one hour, we piled again into our same North Star and swam the channel to Paris in 60 minutes, it being by then 10.40 in the morning Paris time and 4.40 a.m. Montreal time.

It was 31 hours en route all told, nearly 12 hours more than schedule. But as the French might say, better to be here than on time. Besides, this is Paris in the springtime and the sun is shining and the chestnut blossoms are out like great double-size ice cream cones.

Says 2,000 Soldiers Died After Capture

TOKYO (AP)—A Hungarian-born American soldier freed by the Communists in Korea said today 2,000 U. S. troops held by the Reds died between November 1950 and June, 1951.

Pte. Tibor Rubin of Long Beach, Calif., said the 2,000 Americans succumbed to wounds, disease, beri-beri and pneumonia in Camp 5 at Pyoktong on the Yalu river.

Rubin was a member of the U. S. 1st cavalry division, when captured Nov. 2, 1950.

Miss Emily Drain

NORWOOD (ENS). — The funeral of Miss Emily Drain was held Thursday at 2.30 p.m. from her late residence, Dummer Road, with the Rev. H. K. Wright of Norwood United Church officiating. Burial was in St. Mark's cemetery, Warsaw.

Miss Drain died Tuesday in Peterborough hospital following a short illness. She was born 64 years ago in Dummer township, the daughter of the late David Drain and Matilda Jane Reid. She spent all her life in Dummer township until six years ago when she came to Norwood.

She was a member of Norwood United Church and previous to coming here, a member of Carmel United Church and has been an active church worker.

She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. William Purdy (Ruby), Mrs. David Tucker (Olive), both of Peterborough and Mrs. Pearl Ivey of Norwood; three brothers, Alwin and Goldie of RR 2, Lakefield, and Milton of Warsaw. A brother, Percy, was killed in the First World War.

Pallbearers were Armar Weir, G. A. Brethen, Harold Eason, Lewis Freeburn, Jack Starke and Maitland Kirk. Flowerbearers Eric Drain, David Drain, Vaughan Tucker, Roderick Tucker, Gerald Ivey, Ernest Ivey, Percy, Ivey and Clifford Ivey.

Wins VON Prize

OTTAWA (CP)—Russ Cochrane of Moncton, N.B., has won the $100 first prize in the Victorian Order of Nurses' 1953 photographic contest, the VON announced Friday.

Second prize of $50 went to Max Moran of Leamington, Ont.

WA Group Caters

WARKWORTH (ENS). — The Willing Workers Group of the WA of St. Paul's United Church catered for a tea, serving over 100 ladies from Warkworth, Morganston, Norham, Codrington and Oak Heights on Wednesday evening in the council chambers.

HEADED FOR B.C.—On a bicycle built for three, a young British family intends to travel across Canada from Quebec to Kelowna, B.C. George Whitford, 32-year-old wartime commando, his wife Margaret, 24, and son Jimmy, 2, sail this month for Canada from England. Practising on an English side-road, with mother and father on the tandem and the youngster in his own specially-built side-car, the Whitfords plan to settle in Kelowna where Mrs. Whitford's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Reed, have a fruit farm.

Westwood WA Stages Concert

WESTWOOD (ENS) — The "Spring Concert" under the auspices of Westwood United Woman's Association was held Wednesday evening in the community hall.

William J. Breckenridge was chairman. Mrs. Ross McIntyre of Keene presented two monologues; Mrs. John Richardson of Hastings played selections on the accordion; Miss Rose Simpson and Bruce Warr sang vocal solos; and a vocal duet was sung by Sharon Cardwell and Carl Breckenridge.

The male quartet from Hastings Trinity Church, Messrs. Humphries, Crate, Burnham and Scriver was accompanied for several selections by Mrs. Scriver.

Junior residents of the community danced a square dance under the supervision of their teacher, Miss Marjorie Huffman, and directions sung by Rose Simpson. Sharon Cardwell, Isobel Wilson and Grayce Lake.

The Elgin boys under the leadership of Albert Thistlewaite and Mrs. Stanley Fife as accompanist supplied a humorous number "It's in the Book."

A short play "The Culture Club" was introduced by Jean Graham. The following took part; Lillian Wood, Marjorie Huffman, Claudine Pulfer and Jean Graham.

Community singing led by Bruce Warr with Mrs. Richardson accompanying on the accordion, followed an intermission, during which candy was sold by Mrs. J. Ford, Mrs. Hugh Neilson, Mrs. A. Patterson and Mrs. A. Wood.

Mr. Breckenridge expressed the appreciation of the WA to all the talent of the evening.

Self-Discipline Topic At Fowler's Corners

FOWLER'S CORNERS (ENS) — The Lakevale Ladies' Aid held their April meeting at the home of Mrs. William Richmond Wednesday evening. The president, Mrs. H. Fowelr, presided.

Guest speaker of the evening was Mrs. Harry Deyell, of Omemee, who was introduced by the president. Mrs. Deyell chose as her topic "Self Discipline," based on the sixteenth chapter of Proverbs, stressing the importance of choosing the correct way of living, though it might not be the popular trend of today. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Deyell by Mrs. Moncrieff. Mrs. Harry Fowler then read a poem.

200 People Trapped In War Bombing

BERLIN (Reuters)—Excavation workers have unearthed the remains of 200 persons trapped and killed in the cellar where they sought to dodge an Allied bombing raid eight years ago, the city disclosed today.

Workmen dug into the horror chamber recently while clearing up debris.

Police said it was impossible to identify any of the remains.

Guild Holds Euchre

MARMORA (ENS)—St. Paul's Ladies' Guild held a euchre party in the parish hall Thursday evening. Prizes went to Mrs. R. E. Booter and Mrs. S Lawrence.

Seek Cheque Forgers

STRATFORD (CP)—Members of a cheque-forging gang are being sought by police in Stratford, Woodstock and London. Police here said most of the cheques were passed last Saturday. The amounts involved were not disclosed by police.

Land Of Hiawatha Shown In Film To Nature Club

The country Longfellow made famous in his poem Hiawatha photographed in northern Michigan by Tom and Arlene Hadley was the setting for the film shown Friday night to the Peterborough Nature Club.

The film was a picture-poem on northern Michigan's Hiawathaland with a message of beauty, inspiration and conservation to the viewers. It took you down the Tahquamenon river in a canoe capturing the beautiful scenes of the outdoors, October campfires, Jack Frost birthday cake, deer foraging for food, beavers and all the natural sounds of wild birds, waterfalls and the vivid sound of the wind make the film breathtakingly realistic.

The picture also showed canoe treks down the northern rivers and lakes with wildlife observations of the four seasons. The songs and life of the wild birds were brought strikingly before your eyes. The varied beauty of the wild flowers, butterflies and damsal fly nymphs were also caught by the camera.

SPRING

The awakening of spring was seen with the songs of the creepers, squirrels and chipmunks frolicking with one another, possum, wild ducks and the famous Canada geese, bluejays, cardinals, ladybirds, spittle bugs and the secrets of nature were unfolded to the audience in the natural beauty of the outdoors.

The movie takes you from northern Michigan through Wisconsin and Minnesota to the shores of Gitchie Gumee, shining big sea water. All of nature's forms filmed were as clear cut as they were in the early aboriginal days.

WA Names Delegate To Diocesan Meeting

MARMORA (ENS)—Mrs. R. G. Winters presided at the monthly meeting of St. Paul's Women's Auxiliary, held at her home on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. H. Price, secretary, read the report of the Diocesan April meeting. A favorable financial statement was presented by the treasurer, Mrs. W. D. Lavender. Mrs. Roy Frost, for the Dorcas department, touched upon things needed to complete the bale.

Mrs. Frost was appointed delegate to attend the Diocesan annual in Kingston May 6 and 7.

No. 61-75 — Simplicity is the keynote of this attractive home designed and built by owner F. S. Leister. Focal point of the exterior is the particularly well proportioned bay window. Outside walls are of cedar shakes—roof cedar shingles. Feature of the living room is the fireplace wall with built-in radio phonograph and bookshelves. Birch was used for flooring in the living room and hall, oak in the bedrooms. Contains about 13,800 cubic feet. For working drawings, write Home Building in Canada, 2842 Bloor St. West, Toronto.

Swift Talks Stay Deadocked

STRATFORD (CP)—Negotiations between striking employees of the Swift Canadian Company and company officials ended Friday in deadlock.

Nine proposals by local 307 of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL) were rejected. A company offer of a 7½-cent-an-hour wage increase was rejected by the union, which called the strike March 6. About 60 workers are involved.

W. J. Henderson, public relations director for the company, said only that the union proposals were "all higher than those of the majority report (of a conciliation board which investigated the wage demands)."

Commonwealth Division Spoiling To Have Go At Chinese Reds

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—A tough outfit in peak form, the 1st Commonwealth division is spoiling to have another go at the Chinese.

Armistice and prisoner-exchange negotiations notwithstanding, two months in reserve and training have so tuned it up that the attitude is, "as long as there's a war here, let's get in and fight it."

After putting the Canadian brigade through an attack exercise, Maj.-Gen. Michael A. R. West, the divisional commander, told a subsequent conference of battalion and company commanders:

"I would not hesitate to take where in the world. I would be this brigade into the attack any-confident of the result."

WELCOME RESPITE

The formation was pulled into reserve at the end of January after 18 months' continuous duty at the front and recently returned to action. Brig. M. P. Bogert, the brigade commander until April 21, made individual training the keynote of the period in reserve. Whatever else the brigade was doing, individual training went on night and day. Soldiers were constantly being brushed up on their knowledge of their weapons.

"We stressed night shooting especially," Bogert told The Canadian Press.

As units progressed in the program, platoons, then companies and finally the battalions and the brigade as a whole were exercised in mobile operations—a change for troops who'd been cooped up in the hills for months.

They were exercised in deployment, in the attack, and in incessant route marches with full kit. They were trained in infantry-tank co-operation with the Lord Strathcona's Horse.

Patrol training was kept up so that they would not lose the "touch" in that type of operation, which has made them famous in the theatre.

Equipment was checked and deficiencies made up. They worked on the theatre's permanent defences.

The engineers were able to do bridging training, for a change, and several signals exercises were held.

Brigade transport was immobilized so that it could be serviced. "Considering its age it is in good shape," said Bogert. "We got a good report on it."

Most of the brigade's vehicles have been with it since it arrived almost two years ago. Some even served the 2nd battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, when they arrived in December, 1950.

A FINE RECORD

Extra sports equipment was sent over by Ottawa "but nobody found time hanging on his hands," said the brigadier. He added that good discipline, with no serious crime, was a "good measure of the record."

"You get full marks for deployment, signals procedure and the passing-on of information—the fundamentals of battle," West told Canadian officers after an exercise.

"I've never seen troops charge shown by the Van Doos (the 1st battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment)," uphill in an attack with the dash

He said the "major points are all excelent—my only criticisms are minor."

"The whole division has benefitted beyond recognition from these months in reserve."

Would Reject Proposal For Arbitration

WASHINGTON (AP)—A lawyer for a Rochester, N.Y., group pressing damage claims against Canada said Friday he will recommend rejection of a Canadian proposal for arbitration of the claims.

Clayton Burwell, the lawyer, represents the Lake Ontario Land Development and Beach Protective Association. Association members claim their lakeshore properties have been damaged by high waters caused by a dam Canada built in the St. Lawrence river in 1904.

Burwell told a reporter the estimates of the damage run as high as $25,000,000. Damage suits against Canada have been filed in behalf of association members in U.S. district court at Utica, N.Y.

The suits are based on what Burwell contends was an agreement by Canada to pay any compensation that might be awarded by a U.S. court.

A Canadian embassy spokesman told a reporter his government does not recognize that U.S. courts have jurisdiction over Canada.

Canada has proposed, instead, that the claims be submitted to a three-member arbitration board that would be composed of one representative of the U.S., one of Canada and one from a neutral country.

Burwell said Canada agreed 50 years ago to accept the findings of U.S. courts on any damage claims resulting from the building of Gut Dam. The dam was removed late last year.

Bawdy House Keeper Jailed Two Months

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP)—Convicted in Aylmer court as keeper of a common bawdy house, Clifford Brant, 27, of Tillsonburg district Friday was sentenced to two months in jail. He appeared before magistrate E. Donald Smith in Elgin county police court here for sentence.

Two women, Mrs. Clifford Brant, 27, and Mrs. Helen Anderson, 30, convicted as inmates, each were fined $50 and costs with the option of one month in jail.

Strike Vote Taken On Coastal Steamships

VANCOUVER (CP)—The AFL Seafarers' International Union wage negotiation committee announced Friday a strike vote will be taken immediately among 1,000 seamen in three British Columbia coast steamship lines.

The committee Thursday rejected the majority report of a federal conciliation board recommending a $30 monthly pay increase. Lines involved are Canadian Pacific Steamships; Canadian National and Union Steamships. The seamen originally asked for a $50 increase for deckhands.

6 Wounded Veterans Being Flown Home

OTTAWA (CP)—Six wounded veterans of the Korean war, all stretcher cases, left Tacoma, Wash., by plane Friday for home depots in various parts of Canada, army headquarters announces.

They include Lieut. G. Brown of Camp Borden, Ont., and Cpl. C. E. Pond, Ottawa, who will leave the plane at Toronto, and Pte. B. W. Sayeau, Iroquois, Ont., who will leave the plane at Montreal.

SPRING BLIZZARD

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP)—A spring blizzard swept over northern North Dakota Friday bringing up to 18 inches of snow. Roads were blocked and telephone isolation was reported in much of the northern area.

Two Units Board Train For Pusan

IN KOREA (CP)—Two units of the Canadian 25th brigade boarded a train for Pusan Friday on their way home to Canada.

They are the 1st battalions of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, who plan a memorial ceremony for their dead comrades at Pusan. They were relieved recently by other battalions of their units.

Gas Poisoning Cause Of Deaths

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A coroner's jury decided Friday the deaths of Gordon Kellow, 50, and his son, Richard, 8, were due to carbon monoxide poisoning but recommended "further investigation in view of the mysterious and suspicious circumstances surrounding the case."

The deaths were discovered shortly before police were called to the bungalow home April 8. Medical officials said the two had been dead about eight hours before police were summoned.

Mrs. Kellow, 38, who with another son, John, 10, slept unharmed in the home, was held two days for questioning and a psychiatric examination and later released.

Post-mortem examinations of the bodies failed to uncover exact cause of the deaths but suggested they were probably due to coal gas poisoning.

Groomed Contingent Won't Be In Parade

OTTAWA (CP)—The man who will groom the RCAF regular force contingent for its 13-mile Coronation route march in London in June won't be in the parade himself—he'll watch it from the curb.

FO. James H. Cooper, MBE, 41-year-old, 190-pound drill and physical training instructor of Ottawa, is six foot one inch tall—an inch over the height limit set for the RCAF Coronation squad.

FO. Cooper will train and condition 88 officers, NCOs, airwomen and airmen for the march.

Judges Name Officers

TORONTO (CP)—Judge Archibald Cochrane of Brampton Friday was elected president of the Ontario County Judges' Association. Other officers are Judge J. G. Harvey of Barrie, vice-president; Judge D. J. Cowan of Brantford, second vice-president, and Judge W. T. Robb of Toronto, secretary-treasurer.

20-Foot Fall Fatal

SARNIA (CP) — A 20-foot fall from a ladder resulted in the death Friday of Fred Thomas, 55. Employed for 33 years as a linesman for the Sarnia hydro-electric commission he was installing a new hydro service in a building when he tumbled from the ladder to the sidewalk. He died in hospital of a fractured skull.

Salute Churchill

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent Friday cabled "warm congratulations" to Prime Minister Churchill on his knighthood. A cable of congratulation also was sent from Windsor, Ont., by George Drew, leader of the Progressive Conservative party.

Smothers In Crib

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP)—A two-month-old boy, Terry Wayne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Zaharchuk, Courtland, was smothered to death in his crib Friday. The death was termed accidental and Dr. R. F. McCallum, Norfolk county coroner, said there will be no inquest.

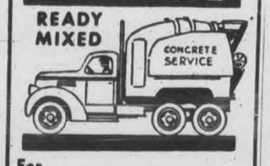
Permanent Patio Of Stone Can Be Easily Constructed

A permanent patio of stone, which can be scrubbed clean with laundry detergent, is easily constructed by the home owner following a few simple directions.

First step, of course, is to measure and excavate or grade the area to be covered with stone. Next, select the stone you wish—you'll find a wide assortment of colors and textures available to provide an almost unlimited variety in flagstone. For easiest installation, stone may be obtained pre-cut to fit any prescribed pattern. Bed must be well drained.

Flagstone for a patio floor should measure from ¾ to 1½ inches thick. The base of the patio should be a well-drained bed of dry sand, spread from one to two inches thick. (One ton of sand will provide for 100 square feet of patio.) Next, one sack of dry cement is spread over the sand for each 75 square feet and gently raked into the sand. The flagstone is then laid firmly on the dry sand-cement base, leaving joints about one to two inches wide.

Now sprinkle the whole flagstone patio gently, so that the water goes through the flagstone and joints and causes the sand-cement base to set. Then mix a rich mortar of three parts mortar-sand and one part cement, with water to about the consistency of a pancake batter and pour this mortar into the joints.



Cement coloring may be added to the mortar, or lampblack. The completed patio should then be kept damp for four days, for the best curing. This is important.

SANDING SUGGESTIONS

Flooring comes from the mill smoothly surfaced, but in laying any floor, slight inequalities, scratches, and scars are bound to occur. Scraping or sanding removes these. A real smooth sanding is the most important part of a good floor finishing job. Scrape and sand with the grain lengthwise using either a cushioned hand sanding block or a power sander of the belt or oscillating type—never a disc type. No. 2 or 2½ sandpaper is suggested for levelling off high spots and joints, and No. 1 for the second cut. The final step—most important of all—is the finishing with No. 0 or 00 paper (or both if necessary). Don't be content with anything less than perfect sanding. The finest finish can never make a poorly sanded floor look like anything but poorly sanded floor.

All hardwood floors require some kind of a finish. Proper finish, correctly applied, beautifies the floor, brings out the handsome grain pattern, makes scrubbing unnecessary and adds greatly to the life of the wood. Perhaps simpler and more durable than the orthodox brushing on of stains, shellac or varnishes is the application of an approved natural penetrating sealer, or a color-seal or combination finish, applied with minimum labor by merely pouring it directly onto the floor then "squeegeeing" it with a rubber applicator, and after a few minutes "burnishing" with fine steel-wool. The result is a finish of deep penetration, extremely great wear resistance, and high polish which is easy to clean and renew by re-burnishing.

A final word of caution—never, never lay hardwood flooring until all plastering and cement work is thoroughly dried and all wood work and trim installed. Laying and finishing of hardwood floors should always be the last operation in building.

SPRING CONTRAST—Shimmering in the sunlight near Tokyo, this C-124 Globemaster cargo plane contrasts sharply with a blossom-laden cherry tree. The businesslike Globemaster, when it isn't resting, joins others of its type in carrying a daily average of 500 tons of supplies and personnel to Korea from Japan.

Libel Penalties May Be Stiffened In House Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—Penalties for defamatory libel under the Criminal Code would be stiffened in code amendments recommended Friday by the Commons criminal law committee.

The maximum prison term would be increased to five years from the present two, and the ceiling would be lifted altogether on fines imposed as alternative to or additional to jail. The present top fine is $400.

During a long discussion the committee at one stage voted for a $25,000 maximum fine with the five-year sentence, but later it rescinded this and decided to leave fines to the discretion of the court.

The maximum penalties apply where defamatory libel—publication of material without justification that injures the reputation of a person—is committed by a person who knows the statements to be false. Where knowledge of falsity is not involved, punishment is lighter.

NOT CIVIL SUITS

The amendments do not involve civil suits on libel.

Following are the major changes in the top penalties for defamatory libel recommended by the committee in its study of a general revision of the Criminal Code:

1. When the libel is known by the publisher to be false: Five years in prison or a fine at the discretion of the court, or both. (The present law: Two years and-or $400.)

2. Publication of defamatory libel regardless of the publisher's knowledge of its truth: Two years and-or a fine at the court's discretion. (The present law: One year and-or $200.)

Spring Is Time To Paint, Repair Fences

If your fences are from two to five years old and have never been repainted, they are doubtless badly in need of a face lifting. Spring is as good a time as any to do the job, for then, throughout at least one summer your fences will set off your home to new advantage.

In another year or two they will need painting again, especially so in grimy industrial areas. The best idea is to repaint your fences when, and as often as, you paint your home.

Creosote-base paint on a wooden fence is a good bet to preserve its appearance. A yearly coat of creosote or some other wood preservative is worthwhile on an unpainted fence.

Before painting wooden fences, wire-brush posts and rails to remove loose flakes of old paint, sand down splintered areas to lessen the splinter danger to children, make sure the nails that have worked loose are replaced or hammered back in place.

Iron or steel fences are liable to be rusty and have considerable loose paint if not repainted for some time. Wire-brush the metal thoroughly before painting with a primer of red lead followed by the finish coating.

If you are considering erecting an we fence, you may want to look into the advantages of new chain-link aluminum fencing, especially if interested in fencing off play areas for children, protecting gardens, etc.

Steel posts may be used with aluminum fencing, because their cost is low and they are easy to paint. Aluminum, of course, doesn't rust and needs no paint. Those are reasons why the initial cost of aluminum fencing, while higher than that of iron, is more than made up over the years.

The steel posts used in conjunction with aluminum fencing should be set in concrete well below the frost line. The same type brackets used for galvanized fencing can be employed for aluminum.

Weighing about one third as much as galvanized or common steel fencing, aluminum is no problem for the home handy man to handle.

Chain-link aluminum fenching has a mesh measuring two inches. The gauge is 6 or 9, and the height can be from 36 to 144 inches.

Setting fence posts in concrete is wise practice, whether the posts be of steel or wood. It safeguards against one of the most common troubles with wooden fences—the tendency of posts to rot at ground level and eventually cause the fences to collapse.

Besides preventing deterioration, of course, the concrete makes the fence much stronger. Concrete serves no very good purpose, however, unless it extends a few inches above ground level around posts, preventing water from standing in pools at the base of each post.

To prevent deterioration of wood or metal fences, keep a good coating of paint on them, set fence posts in concrete.

CONTROL BUSH FIRE

CAMP BORDEN (CP)—A bush fire four miles from this army base was reported under control Friday night. Earlier 1,000 men battled the two-mile long blaze which for a time threatened three homes.

To Stage Play At Westminster

LONDON (CP)—The first play to be staged in Westminster Abbey since the Reformation will be presented for three weeks starting June 10 in aid of the £1,000,000 fund for preservation of the ancient church.

The play will be "Out of the Whirlwind" by Christopher Hassall, noted British dramatist, poet and musician.

The author describes the play as a modern version of the Biblical story of Job. But Job's counterpart in the play is a British woman called Martha, and Hassall presents seven stages of her life, from her wedding in 1914 to her death in the autumn of 1951, against a background of conflicts that beset Britain during that period. References to Westminster Abbey recur throughout the play.

Cuban Sugar Institute To Restrict Its Imports

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said Friday the present position concerning Cuban exports of refined sugar to Canada is that the Cuban sugar institute has undertaken to "restrict" these exports.

The Canadian Press quoted the minister Friday as saying in an interview that Cuba has placed a "ban" on exports of refined sugar to Canada.

Mr. Howe, in a statement, said that any report, in the press or elsewhere, which went beyond a statement contained in a wire he sent April 21 to R. O. Hardie, chairman of the Ontario sugar beet marketing board at Chatham, Ont., was "not in accordance with information received in this office."

ISSUES TEXT

Mr. Howe issued the text of the wire.

It said that the "Cuban sugar institute has undertaken to restrict exports of refined sugar to Canada commencing April 1."

"However," it continued, "approval has been given for shipment of sugar contracted for in March and this sugar now is in transit to Canada."

Bancroft Lions Club Cancels Regatta

BANCROFT (ENS)—The Lions Club will not hold a regatta this year but the annual field day and boat raffle will be held. The club authorized an expenditure of $1,500 on the local ball field.

The blood typing committee announced that lists of possible donors with their blood types were in the hands of the local doctors and there was a list at the Red Cross hospital. It was decided to assist with the crippled children's survey in Hastings county.

The swimming pool committee announced that the swimming pool equipment had been repaired and that the Lions will be asked to paint it. The town council has arranged to erect barricades at the pool and to prohibit parking cars in its vicinity. A swimming instructor will be provided as usual by the Lions Club.

Welcome guests were the following Lions from Lakefield: Jack Ryan, Sam Henderson, Dick Davis, Perc Archer, Art Kingdon and Clayton Hannah.

A discussion was held about various methods of inducing new industries to establish themselves in this district. A committee consisting of Lions Mike Burns, Cecil Wiggins, Jack Hattin and Whitney Martin was appointed to approach the various local merchants with the purpose of forming larger committees to deal with the many problems involved.

Victorian Stations

There is a crushing calmness, even boredom, about small railroad stations these days which come to life once or twice each 24 hours as the "local" trundles to a stop in brave jets of steam.

The agent rolls one or two pieces of outgoing express to the platform on a hand truck and receives five pieces from the baggageman in the car high above him. Two passengers get off and are whisked away in waiting cars. Three bags of mail are tossed out. A lone woman passenger who is going "down the line apiece" clutches her ticket and climbs into the single sparsely-filled coach. The engine pants with impatience and tolls its bell a couple of clangs. The trainman waves his arm to the engineer and shouts "All aboard" and Number Ninety-two creeps into motion and disappears around the bend.

As heavy freights pound through such small stations the agent can be occasionally seen on the platform holding up his train orders in a hooped stick.

What does the message say?

'Train Two Engine Four Eight Six Delayed Keene Journal Hot Box.'

Or, perhaps:

'Tell Bob I'll be down at Birdsall's for trout next Friday morning same spot.'

Spring Care

leaves, grasses, roots and similar plant growth deposited by Mother Nature.

Q— Will a three-foot avocado pear tree, which we grew from a seed, produce fruit in the house?

A—No, because it is necessary to have two or more compatible varieties to secure cross-pollination.

Q—Are coffe grounds and tea leaves good fertilizer for the rose bed?

A—Neither is a fertilizer. However, they do add a little organic matter to the soil, so mix them with the soil about the plants.

Q—Is it harmful to use flower pots over again? Have been told that their usefulness is over after the original occupant has passed on.

A—Many old gardeners prefer old pots to new ones and use them indefinitely without harmful results. However do wash them thoroughly inside and out before reusing.

Difference Of Opinion In Early Church

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

There are many things in the two Epistles that Saint Paul wrote to the Christians at Corinth, the longest in the New Testament. But much in the letters has to do with the dissensions that arose so early in the church there. Particularly noteworthy is Paul's comment and counsel concerning these church quarrels, and especially his commendation of Christian love as the one great means of overcoming them. This eulogy of love arose to its greatest height in the 13th chapter of the First Epistle.

Whether the dissensions at Corinth amounted to actual quarrels or not, we cannot tell. But the difference of opinion and the divisions were evidently very sharp. Throughtout the long history of Christian churches, quarrels have frequently been bitter and sharp, degrading the institution that in its rightful organization ought to embody the spirit of the Lord whom it professes to serve (Ephesians 1:22-23).

It is when honest differences lead to intolerance, and when those who profess to hold the truth do not hold it in love (Ephesians 4:15) or in righteousness (Romans 1:18), that differences become the occasion of quarrels and ill will with the result that both love and truth are no longer present.

The dissensions among the Corinthian Christians were very much like those that have appeared again and again in modern churches. Who has not seen a church divided about the merits, or demerits, of some minister? One knows, also, how often such dissension has been sharp and strong. At Corinth they were divided over the respective merits of Paul, Apollos and Peter. Some even adhered to Christ, not as posses-

Coronation Hymn

(Tune Sandon)

All thanks and praise be unto Thee O Lord,
For all Thy grace,
That through the passing years has safely kept
Our Throne and Race.
We sing to Thee Whose strength our hope has been,
And pray Thy love may ever shield our Queen.

'Tis not our might, our armies, or our means,
But righteousness,
That through this changing order shall suffice
Our Throne to bless.
Thy love, Thy goodness, and Thy truth alone
Can still maintain the honour of our Throne.

Bless them we pray Thee with Thy judgements, Lord,
Our gracious Queen,
And give her grace to serve Thee well—
On Thee to lean.
Keep us as those Thy truth and peace who bless,
And own Thee still 'The Lord Our Righteousness.'

Arthur J. Patstone, St. George's Rectory, Hastings.

ELECTED VICE-PRESIDENT

Art Parnell, 430 O'Connell Dr. was elected vice-president Friday of the printing specialties and paper products section of the Federation of International Pressmen, Assistants and Specialties Unions of Eastern Canada AFL during a regional conference in Montreal.

FENCE POST ON FIRE

Firemen used a handpump Friday to put out a fire that had started burning a fence post on a vacant lot on the old Hatton property, Walkerfield and Gordon Aves. Children are believed to have started the fire. Later in the day they went to the home of Max Flower, 612 Armour Rd., when a defective oil heater began to sputter and caused some concern.

WET MARKET

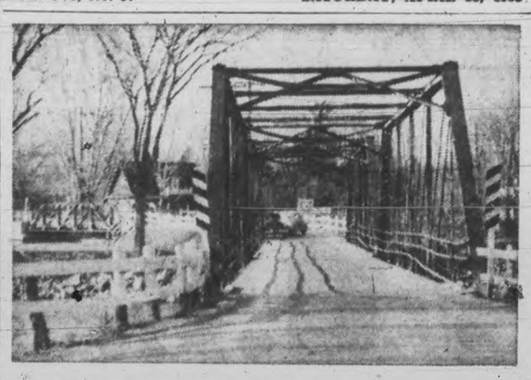
Despite the rain today local farmers and jobbers braved the rain and crowded the market square with their trucks and vetgetables. Most of the men had set up tarpaulins and assembled small shelters in order to keep the rain out, but still most of them looked like drowned rats. Fall apples, eggs, potatoes and raspberry bushes made up a large share of the articles being sold to the few customers that had shown up.

Good Samaritan Robbed Of Watch

Quick work by city police this morning effected the recovery of a $50 camera belonging to a clergyman who played the role of a good Samaritan.

The Rev. Fred C. Kreick of Redbridge in the Nipissing district was driving to Eastern Ontario on a speaking tour and at Orillia stopped to pick up a hitchhiker, Charles Lindsay Robertson, 28, of Montreal. Mr. Kreick stopped at Lindsay to make a few calls and then drove on to Peterborough where he left Robertson off Friday night.

LODGED WITH POLICE



When he went to his car this morning Mr. Kreick discovered that his camera, of German manufacture, was missing. He went to report his loss to the police who recognized Robertson as having lodged at the police station Friday night.

A radio call was immediately sent out to the police cruiser and within five minutes, while Mr. Kreick was still telling his story to the police, Sergeant of Detectives John Stevenson and Detective Douglas Farthing discovered Robertson in the CPR station, where he had sought shelter from the rain. Robertson had the camera in his possession.

Robertson was charged with theft this morning and remanded until Thursday. Bail was set at $500.

Union, Quaker To Seek Agreement At Meeting

Top officials of the Quaker Oats Co. and the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL) will meet here Monday to discuss settlement of strikes of production workers in the company's plants at Peterborough and Saskatoon. The meeting will get under way at 1:30 p.m. in the company's conference room.

Representing the company will be Reginald Faryon, Canadian president of the Quaker Oats Co. who has been in Chicago attending a directors meeting.

Chief negotiator for Local 293 of Peterborough and Local 418 of Saskatoon will be Fred Dowling, Canadian director of the UPWA.

Clarence Lyons, UPWA staff representative in Saskatchewan, will also represent Local 418 and William Beggs, UPWA staff representative for Eastern Ontario, will represent Local 293, along with the local negotiating committee, consisting of president William Triggs, Herbert Hennessey and Robert Prescott.

The Saskatoon local is seeking a 10 per cent wage boost, 40-hour week, union shop and other benefits. Union officials there said the company had agreed only to a 40-hour week as of September 1. Average basic wage is $1.14 an hour.

DISSATISFIED

Reason given by the Peterborough local for striking is dissatisfaction with recommendations for a contract settlement contained in the majority report of a conciliation board.

The local union has declined to accept a recommended 40-hour week which provides for swing shifts and a 7½ per cent increase in wages retroactive to January 1. They are seeking basic wages of $1.39½, the equivalent of those paid at the Maple Leaf and Robin Hood Mills in Port Colborne, a 40-hour week with no swing shift, and certain amendments to the seniority provisions in the present contract.

Prevailing basic wages are $1.18½ an hour and production workers are on a 44-hour week.

Cars Collide 2 Slightly Hurt

Two persons were slightly injured in a collision at Stewart and Wolfe Sts. at 1:40 a.m. today.

Mrs. Eleanor Gerow, 36, 430 Howden Ave., suffered an injured right kneecap and Miss Margaret Moher, 21, 461 Downie St., was treated at Civic Hospital for injuries to the right side of her chest.

Mrs. Gerow was a passenger in a car driven by William H. Gerow, 38, same address, and Miss Moher was a passenger in a car driven by Miss Rita L. Mahoney, 29, 178 Sophia St.

The front of the Gerow vehicle was damaged to the extent of an estimated $300. Approximately $100 damage was done to the right side of the Mahoney vehicle.

PC Willam A. Scott investigated.

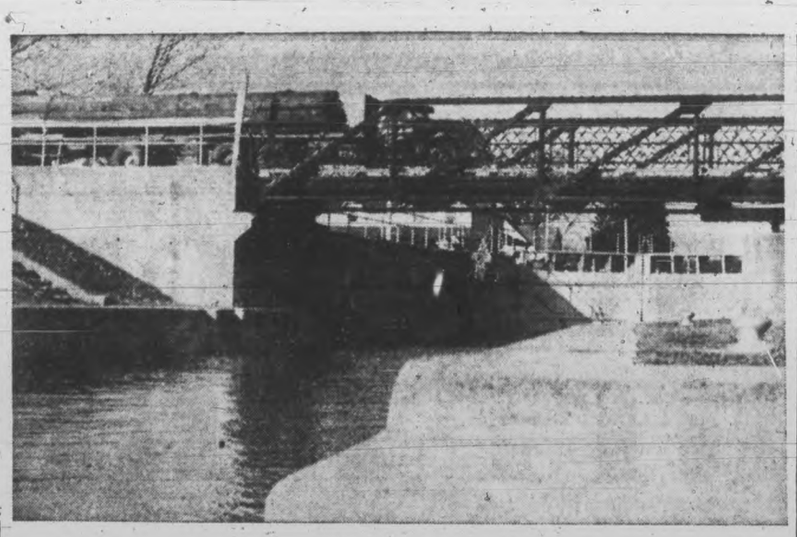
Magistrate Says Almost Happy To Convict Man

COBOURG (ENS) — Magistrate R. B. Baxter Friday sentenced a transport driver to seven days in jail for drunk driving and said that it almost gave him pleasure to do so.

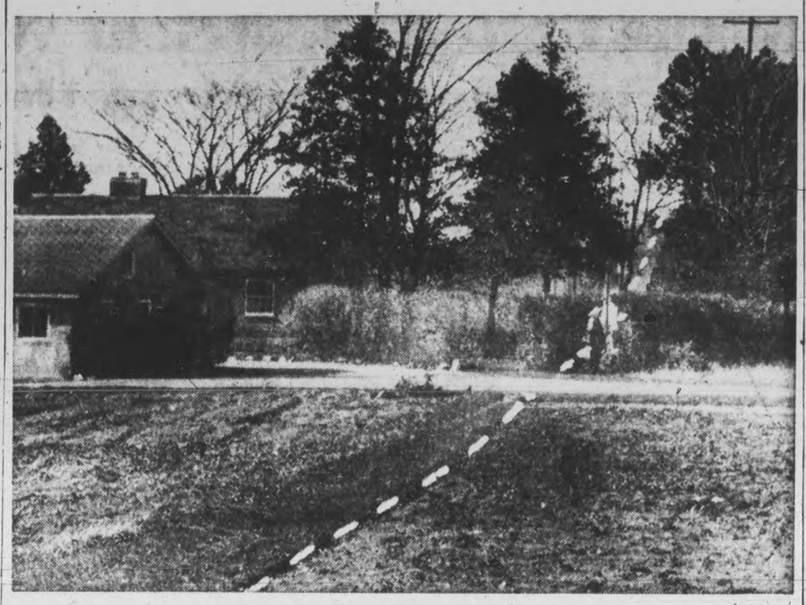
The accused was G. H. Sword of Gananoque, driver of a car transport, which was in collision with two cars at Welcome corner on April 18. Evidence of police officers was that Sword was intoxicated.

"Before he left Gananoque for Oshawa, the night before the accident, he takes a drink and before he leaves Oshawa the morning of the accident, he takes another drink. He said that some of the other drivers had a drink too. I think that the drinking and the fact that he was tired, combined to make him intoxicated. His whole conduct convinces me that he was drunk.

"I feel that chaps who drive these car transports when they make a practice of taking a drink, the sooner they are off the road the better.



"In my 12 years as magistrate I have never felt this way before but it is almost a pleasure for me to convict you. You are a menace on the highway and I sentence you to seven days in jail and you are not to drive a motor vehicle in the Dominion of Canada for two years," said the magistrate.



Andrew Shearer of Lansing said that he followed the car transport from around Newtonville eastward and that four or five times he noticed it go out on the shoulder of the road and also go over the centre line. Once it almost appeared as if it would sideswipe a passing truck which had to go over on the shoulder of the road. At the scene of the accident he thought that the car transport was going to go straight but it suddenly swung right and sideswiped a waiting car at the intersection of the other highway. Then the transport heeled over on its side, said Shearer.

Harold Long of Trenton was waiting in his car at the intersection about 20 feet back. He expected the transport was going to continue east along the highway which ran at right angles to the one on which he was stopped, but it suddenly turned, struck his car on the left side and then upset. The transport driver got out and he noticed that he was staggering. Robert Walton of Newcastle, who was behind Long, saw the transport head around the turn and figuring that he would not be able to make it, drove his car for the ditch. The transport upset and the top car on the transport hit the rear of his car. Walton also said the truck driver was staggering.

Provincial Constable Stan Judson of Cobourg, who investigated the accident, testified that the accused was staggering and smelled of liquor. Vernon Page, a former

SURVEYING HAS STARTED AT YOUNG'S POINT on a new bridge and approaches across the narrows between Clear and Katchewanooka Lakes. The familiar canal bridge, top photo, and the old "Red Bridge" immediately south of it, will be eliminated. The dotted line in the centre photo indicates the proposed new right of way which will take over the Arthur Morris showplace home, left, and other properties across the river; (the photo looks north). The route will start curving west from Hilliard Dunsford's property on Highway 28 south of the hamlet and rejoin it at the top of Bullock's Hill. —Examiner Staff Photos

New Bridge Will Shift Homes

Young's Point residents are happy that a new bridge is going to be built across the narrows, replacing the present two bridges that are a constant hazard to both pedestrians and motor traffic. But some of the residents are not so happy about the choice for the new location of Highway 28 because it will cut across valuable property, cause a number of homes to be shifted, and will certainly mar one of the village's top beauty spots.

Typical of the attitude of affected residents was that of Randolph Nicholson whose general store will have to be moved. He has run it in partnership with Cecil Pelton for 14 years. Both men's homes are also in the way of the highway.

"If it's for the betterment of 'The Point' then I'm all for it," said Mr. Nicholson. "We knew the store had to go but it came as a bit of a shock to find that our homes have to go too.

"It's progress, I guess," he philosophized.

Purpose of the new right-of-way is to eliminate a stretch of Highway 28 that runs in a dog's-leg formation through the village. The two bridges — the "red bridge" to the south and the canal bridge to the north — approach each other at a sharp angle and are a constant hazard to motorists having to manoeuvre from the one to the other. The single bridge, built about 100 yards west of the two present ones, should eliminate this danger and also speed traffic.

DIVERSION DETAILS

The diversion is three-quarters of a mile long. When laid out it will proceed on a straight north-west line from Hillard Dunsford's property facing Highway 28, 850 feet south of the South Beach Road. The bridge will span the narrows between Katchewanooka and Clear Lakes, 1,700 feet to the north-west, and then continue up a side street (sometimes known as Frog Alley) to Bullock's Hill, another 1,700 feet north of the narrows.

The reinforced concrete-and-steel bridge will be of the high level type, making it unnecessary to have a swing-span so boat traffic on the Trent Canal can pass by. It is 22 feet above the water's high-level mark.

This is expected to speed the passage of motor traffic considerably. The combination of narrow bridges and the halting of motor vehicles so boats could pass through the canal combined to make Young's Point the number one traffic-jam centre on Highway 28, particularly during the busy tourist season.

Including the 50-foot, steel-deck approach spans, the bridge is 316 feet long. Two 108-foot steel trusses rest on a reinforced concrete pier out in the narrows and at the other end they rest on waterline concrete abutments.

THREE LANES

The new bridge will be 30 feet wide, permitting three lanes of traffic. The two present bridges permit two cars to pass in a tight squeeze, but most motorists don't take a chance, making them in effect one-lane traffic arteries.

Another safety factor will be a five-foot sidewalk on one side of the bridge so pedestrians can walk across it in safety. Mothers of small children at Young's Point are now always apprehensive about their youngsters crossing the two bridges because there are no sidewalks.

Surveying work has already been completed and construction should begin in June or July. The whole diversion will likely be finished by the fall of 1954.

A score of property owners are affected and some still don't know exactly to what extent. Like Mr. Nicholson they look at the plans with mixed feelings.

The only busines premises that must go is the Nicholson and Pelton Store on the north side of the narrows. But one of the village's show-places will also be marred. It is the spacious property of Arthur Morris, retired Toronto businessman, which runs along the southern edge of the narrows and west of the present highway. The south end of the bridge and the approach will be through his well-cultivated lawn and gardens; his permanent house and his garage will have to be taken down.

LIKE SEVERN RIVER

Mr. Morris is English-born but has been a resident of Canada for 32 years. He has lived in Young's Point for 17 of those years, making his permanent home there.

"I liked this spot," he told the Examiner. "It reminds me of home and the Severn River nearby."

His attractively - decorated house features windows that look out over the quietely - moving water of the narrow. To the west there is the approach to Lake Katchewanooka from where he and Mrs. Morris can see picturesque Kawartha sunsets.

He will retain the western part of his property and he and Mrs. Morris will probably spend the summer in a small cottage, just west of the house. Until it is in-

5-Legged Calf

Two weeks ago, a five-legged calf was born on the farm of Norman Preston, who lives on the 13th concession of Smith township about a mile north of Selwyn. The calf is healthy, and Mr. Preston plans to leave the fifth leg on it, since a veterinary said it would serve no purpose to remove the spare leg, which is shorter than the other four, but otherwise perfectly formed. The calf is a cross between a Durham and a Hereford.

75 Delegates From Wide Area Attend Rally

Spring regional rally of the Christian Business Men's Committee opened today at George St. United Church with an informal morning meeting.

About 75 delegates, from Montreal, Ottawa, Barrie, Orillia, Toronto, and other centres were present, with the majority of the delegates from Peterborough and district. It was the first CBMC rally held in the city.

DETROIT SPEAKER

Speaker at the noon luncheon was James Barnes of Detroit, whose topic was "There Was A Man". Leader of the informal morning discussion was Carl Harvey of Washago.

Scheduled for the afternoon session was a round table discussion on a number of topics.

Feature of the rally will be a giant meeting at the church tonight, with Mr. Barnes as speaker. Sunday will be the concluding day of the two-day rally, when delegates will attend regular church services at which Mr. Barnes will be speaker.

Churches Claim Many Races

Details of the church affiliations of Peterborough people in 1951, during the census, have been published. The figures show that 13,315 city persons claimed adherence to the United Church, 9,174 to the Roman Catholic church, 8,299 to the Church of England, 2,800 to the Presbyterian church and 1,888 to the Baptist church.

Of the 13,315 adherents of the United Church, 12,074 were of British Isles ancestry or birth, 204 of French, 233 of Dutch, 43 of Asiatic origins, 150 of German, 19 of Italian, two of Jewish, 71 of Scandinavian, 16 of Ukrainian origin and 11 of Polish.

Persons claiming adherence to the Roman Catholic church showed a similar diversity of racial origins: 6,868 British Isles, 1,152 French, 589 Italian, 117 Polish, 133 German, 60 Dutch, seven Asiatic, 18 Scandinavian, 13 Ukrainian, and 11 Russian.

Church of England adherents in Peterborough at that time numbered 8,299 according to their own statements. Of these 7,707 were of British Isles origin, 141 French, 74 German, 81 Dutch, 36 Scandinavian, 16 Italian, and 11 of Asiatic origins.

Of the 2,800 adherents of the Presbyterian church in Peterborough, 2,644 were of British Isles origins, 23 French, 24 German, 19 Dutch, 9 Scandinavian and 14 of Asiatic origins.

Of the 1,888 Baptists, 1,689 were of British Isles origins. The next largest group was 49 of Dutch extraction. The Baptist list includes 31 of French origin, 26 of German and four of Italian.

Other denominations represented in the 1951 census figures for the city of Peterborough were: Greek Orthodox (31), Jewish (232), Lutheran (121), Mennonite (5), Ukrainian (Greek) Catholic (12), and "others" 2,395.

Three Injured In 2 Crashes; Sever Phones

Hamilton Pair Snap Telephone Pole At Young's Point

Three people were shaken up and bruised in two accidents on district highways during the last 12 hours.

Two Hamilton men had luck on their side when they crawled out of a wrecked pickup truck at 8.30 a.m. today that had gone off the highway, three miles north of Young's Point, snapped off a telephone pole, and bounced over a farmer's fence landing on its roof.

At noon today the telephone service between Apsley and Peterborough was still out of order. Maintenance crews had not at that time repaired the break.

The driver William McKay, 18, and his passenger, 20-year-old Bill Evoy, crawled out of the upside down truck by themselves. They had just been shaken up and bruised.

PAVEMENT WET

McKay was driving north to Apsley when the pickup truck skidded on the wet pavement. The vehicle travelled along the east shoulder for 50 feet, snapped off the telephone pole, and then bounced into the air, grazed a wire fence and landed upside down in a field.

It came to rest 23 feet east of the paved surface of the highway.

OPP Constable John Cawood investigated.

At 3 a.m. a westbound 1949-model car, driven by William Deen, 19, of RR 1, Indian River, ran off the highway and turned over in the ditch, four miles east of Peterborough.

Deen was coming from Indian River and apparently went to sleep at the wheel. The car ran off the paved surface while travelling along a straight stretch of highway, and rolled over on its roof in a 12-foot ditch. Damage is estimated at $500.

Deen got out of his car unassisted, receiving only a shaking up.

OPP Constable Wallace Mohns investigated.

It's Daylight Saving Time

Annual Wrangle Between Farms, Cities Begins Again

By PHIL CALDER

Two a.m. Sunday is starting time for the annual five months wrangle between rural and city dwellers over daylight time.

It's also the time when Peterborough citizens should put their clocks ahead one hour. Of course, if you're afraid of losing an hour's sleep, you can do it before you go to bed.

The strongest argument used by farmers in opposition to the scheme is that, although they may be able to beat the sun by an hour when they get up in the morning, the cows aren't able to tell an alarm clock from a cream separator.

So what's the use, they say, of sitting around for an hour every morning waiting for the herd to heave to, when they could spend it the night before cashing baby bonus cheques at the city stores. Their contention is that the system works a hardship on the city as well as the farm.

There's a blacksmith north of Killaloe with an inventive turn of mind who claims he has a solution to the whole problem.

"Why don't the dairy farmers equip their cow-barns with clock radios?" he asks. "They claim as soon as old Bossy hears a few bars of Humoresque she just starts itching to give out with an extra pail of 30 per cent butter-fat.

"OK—So you just turn the clock radio back an hour Sunday morning and as soon as the CBC comes on with O Canada the whole herd is on its feet looking around to see if the milking machine is plugged in yet."

Clock radios or no clock radios, the farmers claim daylight time isn't such an advantage to the cities anyway. If it is, why doesn't a big industrial community like Windsor have it? Along with Brandon, Man., Calgary and Edmonton, Windsor retails standard time throughout the summer.

The whole business is confusing enough to provide material for a whole series of Farm Forums from Harvest Home until Achievement Day.

For example, railways and airlines hold to the old system to avoid muddled schedules, they say, while bus lines—including Colonial Coach Lines serving Peterborough—switch to daylight time in most regions.

The history of daylight time has been as tumultuous as the arguments it brings forth this time each year.

William Willet first startled his countrymen with the suggestion that England adopt a "sun-saving" plan in 1907. The system was adopted in Britain and Germany in 1916 and the United States followed suit. During the Second World War, England compounded the farmers' favorite foil by adopting Double Summer Time which meant that Canadians serving in His Majesty's forces in the old country had to go to bed before they got up.

GODERICH FIRST

Strangely enough, Canada's pioneer advocate of daylight time lived in the quiet Huron county town of Goderich where very few people except the lake fishermen care particularly what time they get up in the morning.

When he was Conservative MP for West Huron, the late Judge E. N. Lewis of Goderich introduced his daylight time bill into parliament in 1909. The idea was greeted with gales of laughter from the other members who, while they may not be noted for a sense of humor, can usually be counted on to know the value of time especially when there's an election brewing.

The plan was pigeon-holed and prior to the Second World War, daylight time in Canada was a matter of local regulation. But in 1942 it was made obligatory on all municipalities throughout the year. Three years later, when the war ended, the order was revoked and Canada reverted to standard time, subject to local regulation.

So, Judge Lewis' posthumous victory was partial and short-lived. To cap it all, when his home town of Goderich switched to daylight time on Sunday, April 27, last year, his daughter arrived at church one hour after the service had begun.

She had forgotten to put the hands of her clock ahead.

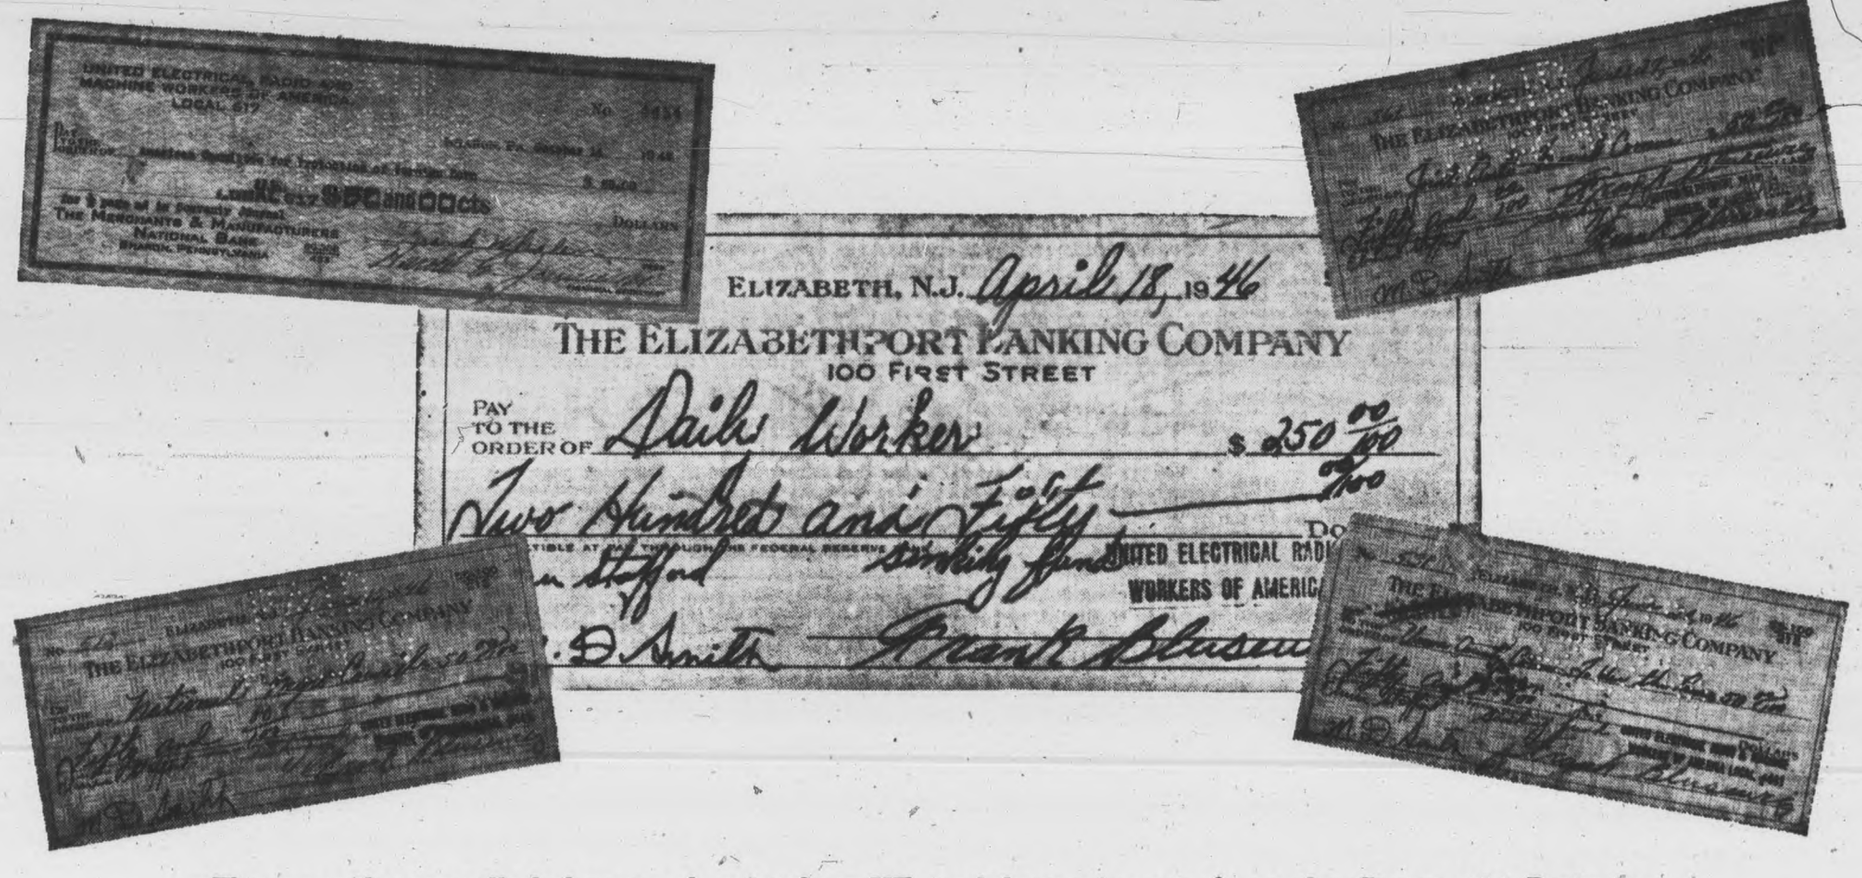
A Message to Peterborough Raybestos Workers---



WHY THE COMMUNIST PARTY LIKES U.E.

The Story of How the United Electrical Workers (UE) Gave An Estimated $750,000 in Dues Money to the Communist Party

It is estimated that during the past ten years the UE has given approximately three-quarters of a million dollars in its members' dues money to the Communist Party and various Communist-front organizations.
Reprinted on this page you see five cheques from different UE locals authorizing payment to Communist-fronts and the Official Communist Party Newspaper, the Daily Worker.

Where did this money come from? In all cases it came directly from the members' dues money! In most cases the Communists who channeled the money set up phony "funds," such as a "sinking fund." However, in many cases UE is known to have given dues money to Communist outfits direct from a local union's "strike" fund, while the members of that local were out on strike.

Check the proof below and you will see just exactly why the Communist Party likes UE.

Those are the cancelled cheques showing how UE used dues money to keep the Communist Party in printing and propaganda money. Organizations listed on the cheques are blacklisted as "subversive organizations" by the U.S. Attorney General, and under the recent ruling of the Subversive Activities Control Board in the U.S.A., are required to register with the Attorney General as "agents of a foreign power."

You at Raybestos had an example of just how the Communists operate to bleed local unions of their dues money just a couple months back when UE solicited a "donation" for the "Champion" – official publication of the Young Communist League in Canada.

These cheques and facts expose the real reason why UE is seeking your vote. It has no interest in you as a worker who needs a wage increase. It has no real interest in improving your standard-of-living (for the Communists thrive only on poverty!). It has no interests in building a strong trade union movement (for it was willing to sacrifice the union movement to meet with the wishes of the Communist Party in 1949).

No. Probably the main reason the Communist UE is interested in retaining bargaining rights at the Raybestos plant is to keep a source of dues money with which it can continue to carry on Communist political and propaganda work.

Because of this preoccupation with Communism, the UE is a weak, ineffective, isolated union that has no support whatsoever in the entire labour movement. Because of that weakness, the old union has not been able to win a decent wage increase for Raybestos workers. In fact, it has won no wage increase at all in the past 18 months!

This weakness reflects itself in a generally lower standard of living for all citizens of Peterborough.

So when you go to the polls in your plant election Wednesday, vote for a strong, capable, democratic trade union. Vote for a union that can go in and negotiate with the company without being held back by a rotten Communist label. Vote for a union that has support and strength in the entire labour movement. Vote for a union that can win --- the IUE-CIO–CCL.

VOTE I.U.E.-C.I.O.

Will Return To Ottawa To Defend Himself Against Cheque Charges

REGINA (CP)—Austin E. Dewar, Liberal member of Parliament for the Saskatchewan riding of Qu'Appelle, plans to return to Ottawa next week to defend himself against a charge that he received cheques totalling $71,800 from a construction company.

The Toronto Telegram, in a copyright story published last Wednesday, said Mr. Dewar received the cheques from the now-defunct Harvey Lunam Construction Company in November, 1950.

Mr. Dewar, a former farmer, hotel owner and now serving his first term in the Commons—he was elected in the 1949 general election—already has defended himself.

He told a Regina newspaper (the Leader-Post) shortly after the Telegram published its story that he and Mr. Lunam had exchanged or traded cheques in November, 1950, totalling about $125,000. He said the exchange was made to help Mr. Lunam when he was in financial difficulty.

ONLY HALF STORY

He added that the Telegram told "only half the story."

Mr. Dewar was not in Ottawa when the story was printed. He had left the Capital to visit his ailing mother at his home in Indian Head, Sask.

Previous to the Telegram story, John Diefenbaker (PC — Lake Centre) broached the subject in the Commons.

The Lunam Company had received a number of federal contracts for buildings in Saskatchewan, but because of financial difficulties was unable to complete them and the company was declared insolvent in 1952.

Mr. Diefenbaker charged that suppliers of building materials had been defrauded of more than $150,000 which the government should make good.

The Telegram story said subcontractors on the government projects claimed their loss was approximately $230,000.

IN POSSESSION OF LAWYER

It added that the cheques mentioned in the story—$71,800 worth—were cancelled after being cashed and now are in the possession of a Regina lawyer who seized the records of the Lunam Company when it was declared bankrupt.

The Dewar-Lunam story goes back to 1944 when, said Mr. Dewar, Mr. Lunam loaned him $7,000 to $8,000 to build and equip a hotel annex.

From that time until 1947, he said, loans from Mr. Lunam would total perhaps $10,000.

He said he felt he should help his friend when on various occasions Mr. Lunam required funds for "purposes of which I was not always aware."

"Consequently aside from the actual cash involved on certain occasions, we exchanged cheques for a period of a few days to the extent sometimes of $40,000 to $50,000," Mr. Dewar said.

Mr. Lunam backed up Mr. Dewar's statement. He said he had loaned Mr. Dewar "a few thousand" and the rest of their dealings was mainly in cheques traded.

He said there was nothing fraudulent and that Mr. Dewar, who is listed in the parliamentary guide as a contractor, was not a subcontractor on any of his federal contracts.

Committee Refuses Appeal From Periodical Distributors

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons criminal law committee Friday refused an appeal from periodical distributors that the printing and distribution of crime comics be eliminated from Criminal Code amendments.

The committee, working on a big revision of the code, approved a section continuing the three-year-old prohibition against crime comics.

It rejected a telegraphed plea from the Periodical Distributors' Association of Canada, which suggested the offence be taken out of the code. The association urged that, if necessary, a board of censors be set up instead to deal with crime comics.

The committee turned down another appeal against one of its proposals, from Attorney-General Dana Porter of Ontario.

In communications to Justice Minister Garson, Mr. Porter had opposed a clause specifying that attorneys-general must consent before prosecutions can be launched against persons accused of giving contradictory evidence in court cases—a new offence.

Mr. Porter objected to the attorney-general's consent provision on the ground that such matters are a "nuisance" from the administrative standpoint.

Mr. Garson told the committee the purpose of the clause is to prevent "frivolous" prosecutions.

The committee gave fortune-tellers a minor break. The present code make fortune-telling an offence. The revision as adopted by the Senate makes it an offence to tell fortunes for money. The committee toned that down further by saying the action would have to be "fraudulent."

The idea was to exempt minor operators such as teacup readers in restaurants.

Struck By Car Three Men Die

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP)—Three men were killed early today when struck by a car on Labelle boulevard, 12 miles from this Laurentian mountain town, 35 miles north of Montreal.

Dead are Paul Dorion, 44, of St. Jerome, Zenon Longpre, 38, of Ste. Therese, and John Hudak, 50, of Pointe-aux-Trembles, a Montreal suburb.

The men were struck as they gathered about the rear of their parked car to fill the tank with gasoline.

Provincial police said Antonio Rene Begin of Tetreaultville, Que., alleged driver of the car which struck the men, was being held as a witness pending an inquest.

Has Premonition

WARWICK, Va. (AP)—A sick feeling gripped fire Capt. J. R. Bateman as his fire vehicle neared a flaming structure Friday. He recalled that seven years ago when he answered an alarm on the particular street, it was his father's house afire. Friday, just as on that cold morning in February, 1946, his father's home was ablaze—and burned to the ground this time.

Canadian PoW Hopes Girl Still Waiting At Home

By BILL BOSS

PANMUNJOM (CP)—A Canadian private who should have been home in Canada a year ago tilted his beret at the Van Doo angle, wiped a speck from his new uniform and prepared to set off for Montreal and the girl he hopes is waiting.

Pte. Arthur J. Baker, second Canadian exchanged by the Communists, was pronounced in good shape Friday by doctors at the 121st medical evacuation hospital near Seoul. Taken prisoner just five months before his term of enlistment ended and held 17 months, he will be sent home as soon as doctors are sure he is ready for the trip.

Baker, who reported his captors gave him good medical treatment for his wounds, saw his first white woman in two years when Annette Labrie of Quebec City, a Red Cross worker, visited him in hospital.

HOPES SHE'S WAITING

The 31-year-old member of the Royal 22nd Regiment told Lieut. J. Y. Gauthier of Quebec City that he was engaged before he left for Korea and hopes his fiancee is waiting for him.

Pleased as punch with a new Canadian uniform, Baker told interviewers that he wrote many letters home during his imprisonment but was given no word as to whether they got through. His family had no word from him until he cabled them Friday.

He said his hospital was well-stocked with English classics such as Dickens and George Elliot but the only newspaper he saw was the Communist London Daily Worker. Chinese and Russian films were shown.

Admits Hoe Deaths

TOULOUSE, France (Reuters)—Louis Brassat, 16, simple-minded son of a local farmer, told police Friday he chopped his father, mother and older brother to death with a hoe and then burned down the farmhouse because they had criticized the way he looked after the cows. Police broke into the Brassats' blazing farmhouse Monday night just before the father died.

Charges Gov't Defies House

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Progressive Conservative leader George Drew said Friday night the government has "brazenly defied Parliament with the Emergency Powers Act which gives full power to suspend Parliament and rule by dictate."

He was addressing a meeting at nearby Essex which named Percy McKee of Sandwich South township as South Essex candidate in the next federal election.

Referring to the Emergency Powers Act, Mr. Drew said that although this act had been used only once it stressed the fact that the assumption of such authority in peacetime is contrary to constitutional legislation.

A main issue in the next election would be tax burdens. The recent budget gave slight reductions in income tax, "but none to the small taxpayer."

Congratulations Pouring In For Sir Winston Churchill

WINDSOR, England (CP)—Bags full of congratulatory telegrams flooded in today for Prime Minister Winston Churchill who Friday night became Sir Winston Churchill, Knight of the Garter, invested at a special ceremony at the royal castle here by the Queen.

Sir Winston and his wife stayed overnight at the castle and had lunch with the Queen today.

Friday night's ceremony came as a surprise to the country. Churchill had refused the same offer of a knighthood eight years ago and Friday's trip to Windsor came without warning.

The Duke of Edinburgh and Princess Margaret watched as the Queen made him a knight of the exclusive order rarely awarded to commoners.

Some time in the future there will be a formal installation at which Churchill will assume his stall in the Chapel of St.George at Windsor.

TO DON MANTLE

Then the Prime Minister will for the first time don the dark blue velvet mantle and crimson surcoat and hood of the order in the presence of his brother Knights.

Wearing knee breeches and silken hose, he will have the garter itself buckled on his left leg just below the knee.

London political quarters said today that the 78-year-old Prime Minister's acceptance of the honor indicated that he certainly had no thought of retiring.

Had he contemplated going into the House of Llords in the foreseeable future—a customary practice for retiring political leaders—he would hardly have accepted this interim honor.

He has already refused the knighthood once—in 1945 after his defeat at the general election. It was then recommended as a political award by the victorious Socialist prime minister, Clement Attlee. But the award has since been removed from politics and now is only bestowed by the monarch.

Newspapers broke out their largest type to report the award. It pushed most other news off the front pages.

"Arise Sir Winston" was the favorite headline. Beneath, most papers carried touched up pictures showing how Sir Winston will look wearing the order's elaborate regalia.

LOSES COMMON TOUCH

Some newspapers regretted that people would now have to cease referring to him as "Mister Churchill"—the simple definition which identified him with the common man.

The Liberal News Chronicle, for example, said: "It is hard for us to change the habits of a lifetime. It is like saying goodbye to a life-long friend."

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express voiced some disapproval at the fact that the Prime Minister had accepted Britain's highest order of chivalry.

"All men had hoped that Winston Churchill would go through to the end of his life without taking a title," The Daily Express said.

"He above all men has no need of a title," it argued. "He was born an aristocrat. His name needs no embellishment. New titles are for lesser men who seek to climb higher in the estee mof the world.

"Nothing is gained and something is lost by adding adornment to a name already and for all time made splendid by deeds."

GREAT COMMONER

The Conservative Daily Telegraph said: "It is right and fully proper that he should now be Sir Winston Churchill, Knight of the Garter, but the world will still know him as Winston Churchill, the greatest of commoners, who spoke for his own nation and for all humanity in days of the gravest peril, and who did not speak in vain."

The liberal Manchester Guardian said that the Prime Minister was a man who needed no title or handle to his name.

"All the same it is a very pleasant thought of the Queen's to precede her Coronation by the giving of this distinction."

Hope For Stock Market Recovering Seen At Close Of Trading Week

By HARRY KINGDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A ray of hope stole into the Toronto stock exchange at the close of trading this week.

For the first time in seven trading days the market turned upward instead of falling. The long decline that started late in March was checked—but few were willing to predict a general recovery. "It depends on New York," was a common comment.

Most observers blamed Communist "peace moves" for the recent losses. They said that an unsettled international situation and the possibility of cuts in defence spending made investors wary of buying.

Toronto brokers said that United States opinion is more pessimistic than Canadian about business prospects. They pointed out that Canadian markets resisted early "peace scare" losses briefly when New York prices dropped sharply.

REFLECT U.S. ATTITUDES

But stocks listed on exchanges on both sides of the border reflect U.S. attitudes.

Brokers said a number of "bargains" now are appearing in dividend — paying stocks as prices continue to decline. But no rush of bargain hunters has started.

Friday's gains were small, ranging around half a point on the exchange indexes. Total decline for the week was about 4¼ index points.

Sharp losses struck Toronto and Montreal markets Monday. A Tuesday morning recovery in both centres petered out and prices continued downward until Friday but at a slower pace. Toronto gained Friday while Montreal continued lower.

SMALL RALLIES

New York weakened for most of the week, but small rallies Monday and Tuesday eased some of the sharpest dips. The decline slowed to a standstill Friday as prices turned mixed.

From Friday to Friday the Toronto exchange indexes showed industrials down 7.08 at 302.67, golds down 1.27 at 78.47, base metals down 3.79 at 154.05 and western oils down 2.93 at 113.91.

In the Montreal averages, banks were down .03 at 32.70, utilities down .7 at 93.0, industrials down 7.3 at 185.4, combined down 5.1 at 154.6, papers down 23.28 at 639.76 and golds down 1.57 at 59.45.

On the New York market, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down $1.60 at $107.40.

Dismiss Libel Suit

HAMMOND, Ind. (AP)—A $4,000,000 libel suit brought by the Tucker Corporation against Esquire, Collier's and Reader's Digest was dismissed in Northern Indiana district federal court Friday. The court ruled it did not have jurisdiction in the case since none of the defendants did business in Indiana. The Tucker firm, which never reached production with plans for a rear-engine passenger auto, accused the three magazines of making libelous statements about the car.

CWL Elects Mrs. F. Guilfoyle

St. Peter's CWL elected Mrs. F. Guilfoyle president at the annual meeting held this week in the social centre. Annual reports showed a successful and active year and the Rev. J. F. Maguire, spiritual director, who was present, voiced an expression of appreciation to the ladies for their good work, especially for the children, aged and needy. Mrs. Guilfoyle will have the following executive to assist her in the coming year: Mrs. D. F. McCarthy Mrs. K. Poole and Mrs. A. Willis, vice presidents; Miss May Grady, recording secretary; Mrs. J. T. Lane, corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. Quinlan, treasurer. Councillors will be Mrs. T. J. Carroll Mrs. F. Hickey, Mrs. J. Vondette, Mrs. Jamieson, Mrs. J. Graham, Mrs. T. Cupoli, Mrs. J. McManus, Mrs. J. McFarlane, Mrs. F. Raymond and Mrs. W. Collins. Mrs. F. J. Lynch, diocesan convener of organization, installed the officers and led in recitation of the act of consecration. Mrs. S. J. Houlihan chairman of the nominating committee. A retreat for ladies, sponsored by the League, being held April 24 to 26. Euchre party will be held in May. Mrs. Guilfoyle and Mrs. Houlihan were delegates to attend the Children's Aid Society annual meeting. Demonstration of a coffee urn and products was given. The Rev. G. J. Sullivan showed the film "Fitnes is a family affair." A tasty lunch was served by the ladies at the close.

Friday Night Club Ladies' Night Spring Party

Gay pink, yellow and green streamers decorated the dining room of the YMCA Friday night for the Friday Night Club's Annual Ladies' Night Spring Party.

A delicious supper was served which was followed by a lively sing song conducted by Mr. Bill McFarlane, boys' work secretary.

The Watt Four, a barbershop quartet of engineers from the CGE, entertained with such favorites as, After Dark, Honey, Coney Island Baby, and, When You Wore a Tulip.

The feature of the evening was an address by Mr. Tony Burns, CGE engineer who spoke on, Women. Speaking strictly in a humorous vein, he kept his audience in continuous laughter. Mr. Burns was introduced by Mr. Stewart Taylor and thanked by Mr. Terry Graham.

Two club members, Mr. Doug Buck and Mr. Ted Dawson, who are moving up to the Y's Men's Club were presented with gifts by the president, Mr. Charles Bain in appreciation for their services to the club.

Dancing followed including several square dances conducted by Mr. James McClenaghan, general secretary of the Y.

RNAO Is Against Nurse Union Salaries Fixed

Unions are fine for many organizations, but not for the nursing profession, it was claimed at the meeting of the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario, in the Royal York Hotel.

"The RNAO does not oppose formation of unions, but it does discourage affiliation of its members with them," a report stated. "The nursing profession is a service profession; its members must be prepared to render service according to need, and sometimes beyond the normal requirements and hours of duty."

The strike ballot is the legal weapon of unions, it was pointed out. "On the other hand it is a universally accepted principle of the nursing profession that there shall be no deliberate interruption of nursing service.

"The CNA went on record in July 1946 as being opposed to any nurse going on strike at any time for any cause, and the RNAO concurs in that stand".

Salary schedule provides that for a registered nurse in industry or an institution current minimum salary for the first level position be $2,460; for a head nurse, $2,700; minimum for an instructor, $2,880, and the current minimum for an administrator or director, $3,400.

Vacations asked are 28 days, with salary, after each year of service, and each nurse should be entitled to one and one-half days sick leave per month.

In private practice, the minimum fee for 8-hour duty is $9; and when the period extends over eight hour, $1.25 per hour up to 12 hours. For shared nursing, 8-hour duty, fee is $6 for each patient. Hourly nursing rates for professionals is $2.50 for the first hour, with $1.25 for each additional hour, the total for an 8-hour period not to exceed the basic fee for 8-hour duty.

Shoe Check Room Novel Feature At Y Sock Hop

A shoe checkroom was the novel feature of the Sock Hop, held by the Featherbrain Club in the receration room of the YWCA Friday night. Approximately 55 guests checked their shoes on the way into the hop and picked them up on the way out.

The recreation room was appropriately decorated with blue jeans, straw hats and socks. During the evening novelty and square dances were conducted with Mr. George Allyson calling off for the square dancing.

Prize winners for the evening were Miss Pat Elliott and Mr. Alistair Cameron, spot dance; Miss Phyllis Hynes and Mr. Ron Brazer, elimination dance; Miss Sally McMullen and Mr. Ron Brazer, Jitterbug demonstration. Other prizes were won by Mr. Bob Finnely, Mr. William Fullbrooke, Miss Gail Ferguson and Mr. Jim Brooks.

Those attending were: Misses Pat Morrow, Dorothy Kingston Nancy Towsend, Myrna Albert Ann Whitehouse, Helen Walker, Vesta Chute, Rosemary Deyell, Pat Collins, Helen Rusk, Lillian Fullbrook, Sally McMullen, Pat Elliot, Sherry Hope, Donna Robins, Gail Furgus, Mary Lou James, Lynne Anderton, Gwen Barnes, Joan Weir, Ann Ryan, Phyllis Hynes, Shirley McIlwaine.

Encourage Your Children To Have Their Own Garden

By NANCY CLEAVER

"A child should own a plant and know
Just what it needs to make it grow.
It may be in a garden plot
Or planted in a flower pot."
H. L. Pardee.

These four lines from a charming illustrated book "A Child's Flowerland" are very true. In the Springtime every little boy or girl should have the fun of gardening with mother or father.

MOST OPTIMISTIC BOOK

Children should be encouraged to have "Green Fingers" at an early age! A seed catalogue is the most optimistic of books. It is a real Wonder Book for a preschool child. Here he finds, not only on the cover, but all through its pages, lovely colored pictures of flowers, vegetables, shrubs. This is an excellent text book for mother to use in teaching Junior the colors and the different shades of one color. He can also learn the names of the common flowers.

Mother can adapt various familiar games such as: "I am thinking of a flower which is yellow." The second player must name a daffodil or some other yellow flower not mentioned previously, before the first player counts to ten. Instead of "I packed my trunk" mother can substitute, "I planted in my garden peonies", then Junior says "I planted in my garden peonies and tulips" and so on until one of them cannot remember the list.

INTEREST A CHILD

If a parent usually plans his garden on a page his garden blueprint, this too, will interest a child. It is useful for him to watch an adult using pencil and paper to record his thoughts. At first, a little child will be content to "be a helper". But just as soon as he has his own tiny garden, he too, should make a drawing of what he is going to grow in it.

If the family live in a home with plenty of ground for both vegetable and flower beds, then a little space can be set apart as the child's own garden corner. But even in crowded housing areas, growing things on a small scale can be managed. One mother living in an apartment was keen that her daughter should have the joy of growing flowers. So she bought large flower pots, collected pebbles for drainage and purchased earth and fertilizer. They grew frilly petunias very successfully from a box of tiny seedlings purchased at the florists.

MAKING WINDOW BOXES

A father, whose hobby was woodwork, was persuaded to make three fine window boxes, one for Mummy, one for Daddy and one for Peter. They each prepared the soil and planted geraniums they had chosen themselves, in the boxes. But there was no job Peter loved more than watering all the boxes once a week with his tiny watering can.

A small boy or girl is apt to be such an enthusiastic "waterer" that seeds or tiny plants may be washed away from the place where they belong. For that reason, allowing a youngster to use the hose, without a lot of supervision, is not a good idea. It is much better to substitute watering with a child's watering can which he can fill himself from a pail full of water or an outside tap.

Many of the sets of children's gardening tools are too fragile to be very satisfactory. A child of four or more can be shown how to use the ordinary rake or hoe or trowel carefully. He can learn from experience, the importance of having a handy place for tools and putting them back where they belong after they have been used.

NEVER SEEM TO SPROUT

Children are naturally impatient. To them the seeds seem to take a terribly long time before the first little sprouts appear. For that reason, many parents buy at least one box of some sturdy flower plants such as pansies with buds or blooms on them. These are great favorites with little folk who love their pretty faces.

A child will enjoy planting seeds such as nasturtium seeds which are large enough for his tiny fingers to handle. Mother may find him digging one of them up just to make sure the roots are growing—but nasturtiums like children, can stand quite a bit.

There are few bouquets for the house which a mother appreciates more than the first bunch of flowers from his own garden which a child produces. He is so proud of these blooms. It more than repays her for the time and trouble and expense of letting her son garden. She knows too that if he gets a satisfying taste for gardening when he is young he has the beginning of one of the healthiest and best of hobbies which he can enjoy all through his life.

No Dowdy Hats Necessary, Say U.K. Milliners

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP) — No woman needs to wear a dowdy hat this Coronation spring and summer, British milliners say.

Hats with saucy chic, built to flatter every profile and shade of complexion, are as easily procurable at less than 1 as in the most select hat salons around London's Bond street.

The situation is the new phase of a campaign British milliners started soon after the Second World War, in an attempt to break the sales resistance of the hatless, scarf-round-the-head brigade that had grown up during the war.

They only partially succeeded, despite such steps as a country-wide poster program showing that the behatted girl always gets the man. Now they are hoping that a desire to dress for Coronation festivities will be the biggest boost in hat-buying favor since the days when no lady ventured outside the house with uncovered head.

Manufacturers have produced an even wider range of shapes and shades than in previous years—at prices acceptable even to 'teenage pockets.

Take, for instance, an iridescent straw hat in a delicious shade of Tudor pink and silver, its shell-shaped beret lines sweeping forward to cover the hairline, and a white, pleated silk hat fashioned like a small, brimless sun helmet. Both are priced at less than £1.

Perfect for tailored suits and dresses is the pale primrose Panama straw with a slight dash of French Apache beret styling, costing about 30 shillings. And a gay hat in red and white candy stripes, shaped like an inverted flower pot, would give a lovely touch of contrast to a linen suit in one of the latest shades of pale lilac.

Many similar hats come in the blues and reds of heraldic colors, the emerald green of an Irish cockade and the glowing yellow of Scotland's flag.

Fuss and feathers are confined to hats at prices that cover the cost of elaborate trimmings. Even so, trimmings are not overpowering. Take the simplicity of a cocktail hat by Aage Thaarup, the Queen's milliner, in deep cerise Petersham with a brush of matching osprey sweeping to the shoulders from above the right ear.

Shaded along the lines of an old army "forage" cap, it dips over one ear and curves back well off the hairline, in a more daring slant than any thought up by a wartime rookie.

DOROTHY DIX:

Girl Unable To Believe Frenchman Not In Love

DEAR MISS DIX: A few months ago I met a French air cadet at a dinner held for him and his fellow-cadets. I was quickly attracted to him and, together with my girl friend, Anne and another cadet, we went on several double dates. He was most attentive to me, and in between dates we corresponded, his letters being very friendly. Then for a long while I received no mail from him, though I continued writing. Finally, I did get a letter saying he thought our correspondence should cease, as he didn't want to fall in love with me. He explained that he couldn't marry in this country and, since we had never spoken of love or marriage, this was quite a surprise.

Then last week Anne and I went to an air show where we met him again. He was very nice and as pleasant as he had ever been. I asked him home for dinner, but he refused, without giving a reason. I try to believe that he loves me, and just doesn't want to encourage me because of his hazardous life. I'm sure if he considered me just a friend he'd want to go out with me occasionally. Now I have such an empty feeling because I fear I'll never see him again.

BETSY B.

HE ONLY WANTED A FRIEND

ANSWER: You filled many pages of paper with details of your on-again-off-again friendship but withheld all cogent facts that might lead to an explanation of the boy's conduct. So I'll have to surmise quite a bit, though I'm sure my assumptions are correct. First of all, somewhere along the line I think you let him know that you were much more than casually interested in him. His decision to break off the friendship was a gallant gesture to keep your heart from becoming more involved. Consider his position! Here he is a stranger in a strange land, graciously grateful for the hospitality extended him by Canadians eager to learn something of the country in which he is being trained, pleased at the prospect of a feminine companionship. If he had any idea of falling in love, the object of his plans would probably be a French girl. He believed he had found a perfect companion in you, only to be disillusioned when you—knowing or unwittingly—let drop a hint that you were falling in love with him. In order to avod the possibility of hurting you later, he took the sensible, and gentlemanly, means of ending the friendship.

Girls often have a tendency, which they seldom admit, of building up a friendship into a romantic dream, then being very indignant when the poor boy, who only wanted companionship, finds himself as the second party to a romance in which he has no interest. This is particularly true of very young girls. Learning to accept friendship—as such will save many a heartbreak.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My girl insists that I visit her every night of the week, and I think it's too much. If I try to beg off for an evening, she gets angry and accuses me of seeing other girls.

WONDERING.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The young lady is too demanding, besides being suspicous. Unless you want to spend the rest of your life with a halter around your neck, make a break.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 17 and my problem is a boy a year older. Before I met him he was going steady with another girl. Lately, he and I have been seeing each other quite regularly and I like him very much. The other night he said it would be better if he stopped coming around, since he still cares for the other girl, who is now engaged to someone else. I told him I was perfectly willing to ocntinue seeing him as long as I know where I stand, and he said that, under those circumstances, he would like to continue dating me. Was I right in my decision, or am I just playing "second fiddle"? J.J.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since you like the boy so much, it is probably worth the gamble that you can make him forget the other girl—whom he's bound to forget in time—and woo you on the rebound. Don't ever scorn the fact that you catch a man as he recovers from a former heart interest—sound, happy marriages are the result of many bouncing loves.

Readers' Saturday Column by Mary Moore

QUESTION: ...thank goodness I have you to turn to or I might be a complete flopperoo as a cook. My Mom helps me all she can but even this question has her stymied . . . I have a favorite recipe for a burnt sugar cake, for which I receive many requests to bake for birthday cakes. It makes three layers but I nearly always use the third layer batter for cup cakes, which we keep for ourselves . . this cake seems terribly dry. My husband jokingly remarks that he has to drink a quart of milk for every cup cake he eats. But he keeps on eating them anyway. The recipe omits baking soda and I'm wondering if maybe theh addition of a teaspoon or so would make any difference in the moisture content . . the ingredients call for caramelizing of ½ cup sugar 2 eggs, 2-3 cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup milk, 3 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla. It's a delicious cake, but I'd like to perfect it just a little bit.

You know you sometimes seem a little psychic to me. One meatless day I was looking for a good recipe for creamed salmon and that night your column contained one. On another occasion I was looking for a misplaced recipe for a wacky cake and that night you printed a repeat for someone. But the topoff came last week when you printed theh recipe for hot cross buns. I had such a hunger for them . . and when I picked up the paper there it was . . although I do not seem to be able to make the nice soft buns the baker does . . Mary C.

ANSWER: You are kind, and sound so optimistic and happy. Let's see about this burnt sugar cake first. Is the flour sifted? Even if it is there is not enough liquid in the cake. Since you and I know the research work that goes into perfecting cake recipes it is not advisable to arbitrarily change a recipe by off-hand additions. Would you be willing to try my Burnt Sugar Cake? If you don't like it then you can try reducing the flour by 2 tablespoons in your recipe and increasing the milk by 2 tablespoons. Let me know if that works.

BURNT SUGAR CAKE

One cup sugar, ½ cup boiling water, cold water, ½ cup butter or best quality dehydrated shortening, 1½ cups sugar, 3 eggs, 2½ cups sifted cake flour, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt. Carmelize the first 1 cup sugar in heavy frying pan until it is liquid and golden brown. Remove from heat and slowly add, stirring constantly, the ½ cup boiling water. This will spatter so be careful. Stir until lumps dissolve. Pour ¼ cup of this carmel mixture into measuring cup and fill to top with cold water to make it up to 1 cup liquid. Cream the butter or shortening and 1½ cups sugar until light and fluffy, then beat into them the 3 eggs. Sift together the sifted cake flour, baking powder and salt, and stir this flour mixture into first mixture alternately with the 1 cup caramel liquid. Pour into 2 9-inch layer cake tins which have been buttered and floured or 1 pan 13 x 9 inches. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. Layers require 30 to 35 minutes; large pan about 35 minutes.

Frost with CARAMEL FROSTING:

Mix together the remaining caramel mixture and enough cream to bring it up to ½ cup with 6 tablespoons butter and warm through until butter is melted. Remove from heat and add 3 cups sifted icing sugar, ½ teaspoon salt. Beat until smooth. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Practice in handling the yeast dough in making Hot Cross Buns will give you experience in kneading. The hardness you do not like is usually due to too much flour incorporated while cutting buns out. Keep your dough soft by using a minimum of flour.

NEVER FAIL CHOCOLATE CAKE

(Contributed by G. F.)

In one bowl sift together 1 cup brown sugar 1½ cups Velvet flour, 2 tablespoons cocoa, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon baking soda. In second bowl put ½ cup butter and ½ cup hot water. Then add ½ cup thick sour cream or milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 unbeaten egg. Combine the two mixtures. Beat 5 minutes by hand. Bake in greased square pan ½ hour at 350.

ANSWER: Thank you, G. F. The other two recipes you gave me will appear later.

Mrs. H. J. Taylor WA Tea Hostess

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — Mrs. H. J. Taylor opened her home on Thursday for a spring tea held by the WA of St. John's received by Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. United Church. The guests were George Vice, president of the WA.

As the object of the tea was that all the church ladies might become better acquainted, many lingered longer than is usual on such occasions to enjoy the gracious hospitality and friendly social atmosphere.

The tea table, lovely with a handmade lace cloth and spring flowers, was presided over by Mrs. C. K. Stephen, Mrs. A. D. Bennett, Mrs. Paliser and Mrs. H. O. Richardson.

Those serving in the dining room were Mrs. A. G. Watson, Mrs. W. Scott, Mrs. V. Spencer, Mrs. Sills, Mrs. A. McConnell, Mrs. E. Loucks, and Mrs. L. Brown. Helping in other capacities were Mrs. R. Fox, Mrs. W. A. Kingston, Mrs. M. Petherick and Mrs. F. M. Rutherford.

A number of other such events are being planned for fall with the idea of welcoming and incorporating new members into the life and work of the church.

Mount Pleasant W.A. Plans Variety Show

MOUNT PLEASANT—The WA met at the home of Mrs. E. Lawson. In the absence of Mrs. G. McLean, president, the vice-president, Mrs. J. Fee, presided.

Mrs. L. Handley read the scripture. Mrs. A. Bland gave a paper on "Choosing Between Right and Wrong." The roll call was answered with a Biblical motto.

Mrs. D. Lawson reported that the varsity program, consisting of a one-act play, minstrel show and other items, would be presented May 8 in the WI hall.

Mrs. E. Lawson was appointed to represent the WA at the Presbytery convention at St. James' Church, Peterborough. Remembrances were presented to Mrs. A. Bland for Miss Christina and Miss Ruth Baind in appreciation of their help in preparing the programs.

It was planned to have a pot-luck dinner for the next meeting at the home of Mrs. Norman Fee. Contributing to the program were Mrs. Lawson, Mrs. L. Handley and Mrs. T. Graham.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. D. Lawson, Mrs. S. Tully, Mrs. T. Graham and Mrs. L. Handley, served lunch.

6—In Memoriam

HUGHEY—In loving memory of Mrs. George Hughey, who passed away April 26, 1953.
We seem to see in the soft dim light,
The face we loved the best.
We think of her when the sun's last rays,
Go down in the far-off west.
We miss her no less as the time passes on,
For absence can never close our hearts
And the lamp of our love is still glowing.
Her heart, the truest in all the wide world,
Her love the best to recall,
For no one on earth can take her place,
She is still the dearest of all.
—Ever remembered by husband and family.

MILLS—In loving memory of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mills.
One by one they go before us,
They are fading like the dew,
But we know they're watching o'er us,
They the good, the fair, the true,
Their are waiting for us only,
Where no pain can ever mar,
Dear ones who left us lonely,
Watch us through the gates ajar;
There a father, there a mother,
Gone within those gates ajar.
—Ever lovingly remembered by their daughters.

ROGOW—In loving memory of Sgt.-Pilot Sam Rogow who passed away eleven years ago today.
Our thoughts wander as daylight fades
To the land of long ago,
To many paints the scenes of old
In shades of the twilight glow.
I turn to see in the soft, dim light
The we loved the best,
And think of him when the sun's last ray
Goes down in the far-off west.
—Always remembered by mother, dad, brothers and sisters

SIMMONS — In loving memory of James H. Simmons who passed away five years ago April 25, 1948.
You're not forgotten, father dear
Nor ever shall you be
As long as life and memory last
We shall remember thee.
—Lovingly remembered by wife and family.

7—Card of Thanks

FINE BUSINESS. — After being given a choice of a $2,950 fine or 118 days in jail for traffic violations, Mrs. Leo Maggio, of New York, is free on $1,000 bail for 10 days. Here she leaves court with traffic official Saul Allen, who holds the 59 parking tickets Mrs. Maggio ignored. It was the largest fine ever imposed on an individual traffic violator in New York.

Canadian Gladiolus Grower Seeking All-American Title

SARNIA, Ont. (CP)—Jack Harris, whose 26 years of work created a world-famous gladiolus named the Florence Nightingale, is seeking new honors.

He will compete for the title of producer of the All-American Gladiolus by shipping bulbs—the result of many years of cross-breeding—to headquarters of the North American Gladiolus Council which is sponsoring the contest.

Mr. Harris, now 66, began work with gladioluses as a hobby shortly after the First World War when he bought a small farm on the outskirts of Sarnia. Now retired from his job as a pipe-fitter with Imperial Oil Company, he devotes all his time to plant breeding.

FASCINATING HOBBY

The idea of breeding new varieties fascinated him. Although his time was limited by his work, he tried breeding and originated a number of varieties now sold commercially. But in the process he discarded thousands of plants that fell just short of perfection.

"I strive for beauty, form, texture and toughness," he says. "But most of all I strive for health. Regardless of beauty, if a gladiolus does not have rugged health it soon deteriorates and passes into oblivion."

Some of the varieties he has produced are Gaylore, Yangtze, Scarlet O'Hara, Arctic Snow, Moonray and the white Florence Nightingale. The last-named was produced in 1947 and is considered his finest.

Mr. Harris was born in England and came to Canada as a boy. He served in France during the First World War. Soon after his return to Canada he left to work for an oil company in Iran. After three years there he came back to a job with Imperial Oil in Sarnia.

ADVICE TO AMATEURS

To amateur gardeners who think they have unusually good seedlings, Mr. Harris gives this advice:

"If your baby plant looks good to you, even in comparison with the finest existing seedlings, you may have something. If the comparison is in the seedling's favor, bulbs should be sent to recognized trial grounds and to a few experienced growers.

"If, after testing it, they agree it is worth while, it should be named. Next the name and description of the seedling should be sent to an accredited gladiolus registry. Then and only then should it be introduced to the public."

In determining the All-American Gladiolus, bulbs entered will be shipped to growers in many parts of the United States and Canada. Reports on the progress of growth will be taken and turned in to the North American Gladiolus Council.

Death Sentence Now Commuted

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—The death sentence on Edgar Veley of nearby Murillo was commuted today to life imprisonment, the sheriff's office announced. Veley was scheduled to be hanged Tuesday for the slaying of farmer Wilfred Miller Jan. 1.

Sheriff H. Thompson said he received word of the change in Veley's sentence in a telegram from Justice Minister Garson. Some 700 residents of Oliver and Paipoonge townships had signed petitions asking clemency for Veley.

Veley, a worker on the Miller farm, was convicted of shooting his employer to death New Year's night. He will be sent to Stony Mountain penitentiary in Manitoba to serve his sentence.

No word has been received, Sheriff Thompson said, concerning George Hladiy, convicted of murdering Josef Panok in Fort William last summer and scheduled to go to the gallows Tuesday.

Ailing Offender

RICHMOND, England (CP)—Caught escaping from the post office of this Surrey town with a huge amount of cash, stamps and money orders, William Cripp, 42, disgustedly asked detectives to get a doctor for him. "A chance of a fortune and I can't even run," he complained.

Israel Drought

TEL AVIV, Israel (CP) — More than 75,000 acres of cereal crops were ruined by drought in the Negev area of southern Israel, according to rec

Restrict Sugar Shipments For 30 Days

HAVANA (CP)—Sugar circles said today Cuba is restricting shipments of refined sugar to Canada for 30 days starting April 2 in order to avoid depressing prices while Canadian sugar-beet growers are contracting to sell their crop.

The restriction applies to the Maritime provinces and Newfoundland but excepts shipments of sugar in transit at the time the Cuban Sugar Institute adopted the co-operative measure.

Trade Minister C. D. Howe discussed the problem during the visit of the Canadian trade mission here and Cubans assured him some measure would be worked out.

The restriction is transitory pending a permanent solution now under study. Cubans are interested in avoiding controversy because Canada's contract to buy annually 75,000 tons of raw sugar expires at the end of 1953.

Canadian beet sugar interests had complained loudly that imports of Cuban refined sugar was damaging the market of their product.

Urges Irish To Ban Film

DUBLIN (AP)—Sinn Fein, militant Irish nationalist group, today called on Irish cinema workers to ban the film of Queen Elizabeth's Coronation from Irish movie theatres.

"In normal circumstances, the Coronation of foreign monarchs is of no more than passing interest to Irishmen," said the group, which is pledged to fight against the partition of Ireland, in a letter to the Movie Workers' Union.

"But because of the powerful British propaganda machine," it added, "our people are being subtly coerced into the acceptance of an English Queen as Queen of part of Ireland."

The announcement a few weeks ago that the Queen would continue to call herself Queen of Great Britain and Northern Ireland drew strong protests from some Irish nationalists who oppose British rule in Northern Ireland.

100 Delegates Attend Press Club Parley

HAMILTON (CP)—More than 100 delegates are attending the annual three-day Ontario-Quebec regional conference of the Canadian Women's Press Club.

Delegates were welcomed last night by Mrs. Mary A. Moore, president of the Hamilton branch.

Three panel discussions, under moderator Kay Marston, Ontario vice-president, highlighted today's program. W. H. Brodie of Toronto, CBC language supervisor, introduced discussion on the philosophy of words. He was assisted by Mrs. Marjorie Freeman Campbell, Mrs. Ruth Viner Ellenzweig and Teddy Forman, all of Hamilton.

Announce Officials For Cup Playoffs

KEMPTVILLE (CP)—W. B. George, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, today announced officials for the forthcoming Memorial and Allan Cup playoffs.

Lorne Linden and Vic Lindquist, both of Winnipeg, will handle the Allan Cup series between Kitchener Dutchmen and Penticton, B. C. V's opening at Kitchener April 28.

Louis LeCompte and Ching Mcdonald, both of Ottawa, will officiate at the Memorial Cup series opening Monday at Winnipeg between Barrie Flyers and St. Boniface, Man.

Race Horse Owner James Hughes Dies

TORONTO (CP) — James E. Hughes, 63, former amateur wrestler and race horse owner, died in hospital here Friday.

A native of Kilworthy, Ont., he won several amateur mat titles and retired in 1922 as undefeated Canadian amateur lightweight champion. He owned and rode horses until 1926.

He is survived by his widow, six daughters and three sons.

LISTED PRISONER—Pte. T. J. P. Allan, of Montreal, was named by L. Cpl. Paul Dugal, of Quebec City, as being a prisoner of the Communist forces in Korea. Pte. Allan, a member of the Royal Canadian Regiment, previously was listed as missing in action. His next-of-kin is his mother, Mrs. Jean Allan, of Ville Emard, Montreal. He was the 16th Canadian listed by Cpl. Dugal, first Canadian released by the Communists in the exchange of sick and wounded prisoners.

New Bridge

sulated they will be able to live there for only eight months of the year.

Though he regrets leaving Mr. Morris takes it philosophically, too.

"We are a young country and we must grow," he said. "I feel badly about leaving, yes, but it's progress.

"We must have good roads and bridges—we all want them." It didn't come as a surprise; the survey was made a number of years ago and I knew the highway would go through here.

Another premanent resident who will have to leave Mrs. H. B. Jackson, a former Peterborough schoolteacher, who owns several cottages.

Mrs. Jackson remarked that she knew it was a good thing to eliminate the old bridges but she wished another location for the highway had been decided on.

"I'm sorry about it but there's nothing I can do," she said. Like Mr. Nicholson and Mr. Morris she labelled the move "progress" and said it couldn't be held up.

INEVITABLE

A stronger opinion was voiced by Harold Cassan, Peterborough plumber who has a cottage on the south side of the narrows. It will have to be removed to make way for the southern edge of the right-of-way.

"I know they need a bridge but I don't think they need to put it in that particular spot."

Mr. Cassan doesn't think there's anything he can do about it, and as nobody else seems to want to fight the coming of the highway he feels there's nothing else to do about it but accept the inevitable.

Residents who aren't personally affected by the diversion of Highway 28 are almost unanimously delighted. Almost everybody has an accident or near-accident story in connection with the antiquated bridges.

Everybody—pro or con—admits that the new bridge and highway diversion is a progressive step. And Young's Point will be a safer village for motorists and residents when the work is done.

Hold Hamilton Woman On Abortion Charge

HAMILTON (CP)—A Hamilton woman will appear in magistrate's court on Monday to face a charge of procuring an abortion.

A Hamilton morality officer said the offence took place in Hamilton on April 18. The body of a baby was discovered on Monday in a Galt park. Two Galt residents have been charged with concealment of birth, said Hamilton police.

The baby's body was wrapped in a newspaper not published in Galt when it was found. Detective Sandy Slidders, of the Galt police department, checked newspaper subscription centres in the park area until he located the suspects.

Charged in Hamilton is Mrs. Myrtle Laskey, 58. Charged in Galt are: Agnes Kletzel, 38, and Walter Goseit, 41.

Fair Board And Inspector Re-open Horse Stable Following Double Padlock

The large horse stable in Morrow Park, formerly the Exhibition Grounds, will be re-opened next week to harness horse owners who pay the $10 a stall charge by the Fair Board. The stable was closed by the board about a month ago just when spring training for the pacers and trotters was due to start. This was done because some of the owners of horses in the past had not been paying the $10 fee. Then, Sanitary Inspector Ron MacPherson clamped another lock on the door until some necessary sanitation and maintenance work was done. The cleaning up has progressed and the owners have promised to complete the rebuilding improvements this year, so they have been given the green light by Mr. MacPherson.

JUST FIVE OUT

Five horses worked out yesterday, instead of two dozen or so as is usually the case at this time of year. And the five were trucked in and later taken away again, even drinking water being brought by the owners. Some of the latter pointed out that the trotters and pacers begin working out for the summer circuit of racing meets and fall fairs around April 10, but with the stable here locked, many could not have their horses carted in and out daily. Only a few have their own stables in this city.

Stan Blewett and Graydon Sheldon own or train about 10 horses. Hugh Stewart has a large number, also, many of them being raced as far away as the States. Dr. Art Johnston has six, Merton Storey five, Charlie Fife three, while others here with one or two are Orville Fallis, E. T. Johnston, Ambrose Lee, Milt Post and Harry Lemwire. Most of them are taxpayers and claim that Morrow Park should be as free to them for their sport as it is to other sports held there.

NEEDS REPAIRS

The harness horse racing stable in Morrow Park needs considerable repairs. The owners also maintain that the Peterborough track is the only one in the province which charges for training. They further point out that the local Fair Board could not get a grant of $1,000 from Fred Orpen who made such grants to many provincial exhibitions for horse racing because the local fair was not showing sufficient profit. Lindsay received this grant.

They, in short, seem to feel that the board is not sympathetic to harness racing, despite interest in this sport by the public. It has been intimated that night racing might be banned at this year's exhibition here, only matinee races being permitted, and the horsemen ask: "Who wants to go night after night to see the same vaudeville show?"

However, they have hopes that things may improve locally for the owners of horses and those who like to see them run.

Sergeant Tells Of Many Deaths

TOKYO (AP)—"Twelve of us went to bed one night in a little room like this," the thin, blonde soldier recalled. "The next morning I was the only man alive."

Sgt. Albert L. Howard of Nashville, Tenn., said other Allied prisoners at Camp 5 dug shallow graves and said simple burial services for those who died.

The Tokyo army hospital room in which Howard was interviewed was about 12 by 12 feet. The death room was in a mud hut at a prison camp near the Yalu river, where he was taken after he was captured Nov. 4, 1950.

Many men died at the camp of malnutrition, Howard said.

"One day I remember exactly 37 died. I helped to bury them."

He said every prisoner was a member of a burial detail.

"A man would help bury someone else one day, and the next day he would be buried," Howard said. "The graves were only a foot deep. We said what services we could for them."

He said the deaths were almost all prior to June, 1951, when the Korean armistice talks began. After that, he said, the Chinese Communists gave them more food.

Will Appeal For Rebate Of 1952 Taxes

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—London and Port Stanley Railway will appeal to the Ontario municipal board for a rebate of 1952 taxes paid Westminster township and will seek an exemption of the $5,000 assessment on their right-of-way.

This action followed a court adjournment today by Judge Ian MacRae who was prepared to hear the city-owned railway's appeal on both counts.

Last year a court of revision dismissed the LPS appeal for a tax rebate of some $182. The railway sought to claim a refund on the grounds that an amendment to the assessment act provided an exemption on railway property, effective Jan. 1, 1952. The court, however, ruled at that time the appeal was launched too late.

LOSE JURISDICTION

P. V. V. Betts, solicitor for the LPS said recent legislation has taken away the jurisdiction of the courts in this matter and turned it over to the Ontario municipal board.

"It appears now that some provision should be made for the matter to be heard by the municipal board," he said.

W. A. Thomson, township solicitor, was doubtful if either the county court or the municipal board has the necessary jurisdiction to hear and decide the appeals. He believed decision should rest in the hands of the Supreme Court.

Judge MaCrea adjourned the hearing sine die. His move would enable the court to hear the appeal again if such is deemed necessary by the municipal board.

50 Churchmen Under Arrest

BERLIN (Reuters) — Protestant Church officials here today reported the arrest in Communist East Germany of more than 50 pastors and laymen in the last few weeks.

They said the arrested church officials included deacons, government officials, pastors and district church board members. Most were accused of anti-state activities, warmongering, terrorism, or economic crimes.

"Anti-state activities can mean anything including tearing down a Communist poster from a church wall," one official said.

"War - mongering may mean preaching that "Thou shalt have no other God but me."

"Terrorism is sometimes used to refer to religious preaching when it sharply contradicts Communist philosophy.

"Economic crimes can mean buying West German religious books and 'importing' them to East Germany."

Four Protestant pastors and two Roman Catholic priests were given sentences ranging from four to 12 years. Other Protestant Church officials are awaiting trial.

OBITUARIES

JAMES DOWN

A life-long resident of the Roseneath Community, James Down died on Friday after a week's illness at the home of his daughter Mrs. John George, Alnwick township.

He was born about three miles south of Roseneath, eighty-nine years ago, a son of the late John Down and his wife, the former Emma Jewell. His entire life was spent in the neighborhood where he was born.

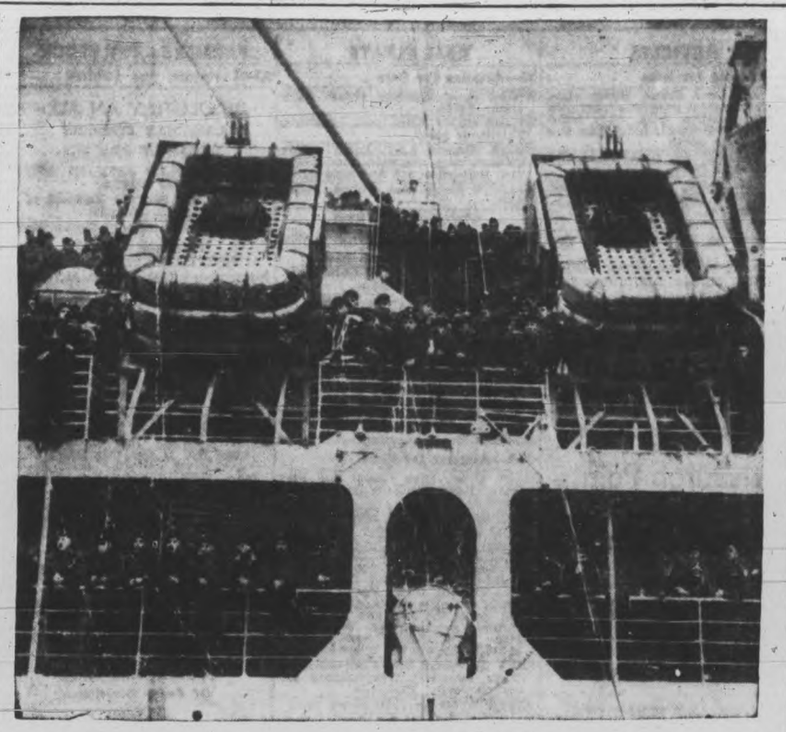
Fifty-nine years ago he married the former Annie Brown who died in 1942.

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. John George (Edna), Mrs. Rae Brown (Elsie), Roseneath; Mrs. Earl Skinkle (Ethel) Norham; two sons Roy and Edgar Down with whom he resided on Concession 1 in Alnwick township; also nine grandchildren and thirteen great grandchildren and one brother, Joseph Down of Roseneath.

The funeral service will be held on Monday at 2.30 p.m. at the home of his daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. John George and will be conducted by his pastor the Rev. J. R. Wheeler. Burial will be in Bethany (Macklin's) cemetery.

HENRY GUERIN

A lifelong resident of Peterborough, Henry Guerin, 82, died today in a Peterborough hospital. He had been ill for three weeks.



Mr. Guerin was the son of the late Clement Guerin and the former Mary Garnier. He was born and educated here and worked as a laborer.

He leaves no immediate relatives in Peterborough. His two sons, Leon and Joseph both live in Campbellford; and his daughter, Adeline, lives in Hamilton.

His wife, the former Camilla Gadeau, predeceased him.

Mr. Guerin was a member of Sacred Heart Church.

The funeral will be Monday from the Duffus funeral home to Sacred Heart Church for requiem mass at 9 a.m. Burial will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

HUNDREDS OF HAPPY CANADIAN SOLDIERS, most of them from the Royal Canadian Regiment's First Battalion, line the rails of the U.S. Navy transport "Marine Lynx" on arrival at Seattle, Washington, from Korea Thursday. The ship carried 1,063 Canadian and 1,410 U.S. veterans from the Korean war. The war-weary fighting men will complete the journey to their homes in Canada by train. Several local soldiers were among the group.

Magistrate Says

traffic expert of the Toronto police force, happend on the scene and told Constable Judson that he had a witness and Page was cursed by the transport driver.

Sword said the accident occurred at six in the morning, while actually it happened around 10 a.m. He was in a condition that convinced him he was drunk, testified Constable Judson. Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine of Cobourg, who brought Sword to the Cobourg lock-up, said that he staggered, smelled of alcohol and was belligerent in his attitude.

Sword testified that his run was Gananoque to Oshawa and return. He left Gananoque on Friday night, April 18, at 9:45 and had a drink of liquor some time before. He arrived in Oshawa at 2:20 a.m., had a drink of rye with some drivers in the wash room of a hotel and pulled out at 5:50 a.m. He said that he was not under the influence of liquor as otherwise the despatcher would not have allowed him to leave.

He pulled off at Bowmanville for a couple of hours of sleep. It was his intention to continue past Welcome corner as he never turned north to take the other route, but he noticed a car at the corner to his right and as he thought it was coming out on the highway he intended to swing behind and pass. However the car remained there and he thought he would be able to make the right turn without any trouble. However he didn't make it and hit the first car before he upset. Sword said that if he staggered it was because he was shaken up by the accident.

Morganston WA Picks Bake Sale Committee

WARKWORTH (ENS). — April meeting of the Morganston Women's Association was held Thursday at the home of Mrs. R. Robson.

The president, Mrs. Harrison George, presided.

Mrs. E. Huycke, devotional convener, presided over that period. Mrs. D. Massey gave the scripture reading, Mrs. Huycke gave the lesson thoughts. Mrs. Gerald Philp gave a reading.

A committee composed of Mrs. C. Bray, Mrs. H. Fitchett, Mrs. D. Massey, Miss B. Bird, Mrs. J. Carr, Mrs B Carr and Mrs E. Campbell was appointed to convene for the baking sale May 9.

Mrs. Glenn Clarke and Mrs. Oscar Carr presented the following program: readings by Mrs. Herrington and Mrs. Burton Fitchett, a piano solo by Mrs. G. Clarke, readings by Mrs. J. Carr and Mrs. G. Philp.

Preston Downs Arsenal In 2-0 Victory

LONDON (Reuters) — Preston North End downed favored Arsenal 2-0 today in a last-minute challenge to the London team's bid for the championship of the English league Division I.

Both teams now have 52 points each at the top of the table but Arsenal has a superior goal average. Final victory depends on their remaining game next week. Preston plays puny Derby County and Arsenal meets Burnley, seventh in the division.

Derby County, fighting hard to avoid relegation to the second division, defeated Stoke City 2-1 but still languishes at the bottom of the table with 32 points. Only one point better off is Chelsea, which lost 2-1 to Liverpool.

GAIN SINGLE POINT

Huddersfield made certain of joining Sheffield United in promotion to the first division by gaining a single point from a 0-0 tie with Rotherham. Sheffield United has 60 points in the second division, followed by Huddersfield with 56.

Southampton, in a mighty effort to shake off relegation to the third division, beat Blackburn Rovers 6-1. It still is in the relegation zone with 31 points. Barnsley, defeated 3-1 by West Ham, is at the bottom with 17 points.

Bristol Rovers, 3-1 victors over Newport, are virtually certain of promotion from the southern section of Division III with 63 points. The Rovers would have to lose their last two games to give the championship to Northampton, in second place with 61 points.

LOSES CHANCE

Oldham lost its chance to make certain of promotion today by playing to a 1-1 tie with Stockport. Port Vale, 2-1 victor over Barrow, with 56 points, is only two behind Oldham.

Aberdeen and Glasgow rangers fought to a 1-1 tie before 14,000 fans at Glasgow's Hampden Park in the final for the Scottish Football Association Cup. The game will be replayed next Wednesday.

In the limited league program, Hibernian went to the head of Division A with 41 points after its overwhelming 7-1 win over Third Lanark. But Glasgow Rangers have 40 points and a game in hand.

Stirling, 3-0 victor over Albion Rovers, reached 44 points to win the leadership of Division B, which finished the season today. Hamilton is in second place with 43 points.

Cautious Hopes Roused By Russ Move

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Russia's offer to negotiate a cold-war settlement with the West aroused cautious hopes today.

The Soviet reply to President Eisenhower's April 16 peace challenge contained no specific concessions and restated the Soviet line on most East-West problems.

But the reply was less belligerent in tone than many past Soviet pronouncements and left the door open to possible give-and-take around the diplomatic table.

In Washington, the White House said Russia's statement may be "a first step toward something concrete in settling cold-war problems."

Delegates to the North Atlantic Treaty council session in Paris said the mildness of the statements raised hopes that the Russians might give further evidence of their professed desire for a settlement of world problems.

MODERATE TONE

In London, diplomatic observers said the Communist reply was "hopeful"—but more for its moderate tone than its contents. The British foreign office declined to comment while the reply was still under study.

The fact that Pravda and Izvestia published the full text of Eisenhower's speech was noted as possibly significant. It is the first time in almost two years that a Russian newspaper has published in full a statement by a Western statesman. A statement by Herbert Morrison, then British foreign secretary, was carried in full Aug. 1, 1951, after Morrison challenged the Russians to print it.

"West German government sources said the statement is disappointing and "fails to offer any evidence that Russia is willing to ease world tension with concrete deeds."

SOME ENCOURAGEMENT

But other Western observers found some encouragement in the assertion that Soviet leaders will welcome a "serious, business-like discussion of problems both by direct negotiations, and when necessary, within the framework of the United Nations."

They expressed belief the Soviet offer to discuss a "friendly settlement" with the West far outweighs the assertion that the West started the cold war, that Eisenhower has threatened Russia with atomic war and that State Secretary John Foster Dulles of the U.S. has adopted a "belligerent pose."

London newspapers bannered the news in headlines.

The problem of figuring out exactly what Russia meant bothered newspapers in Norway.

Oslo's two main newspapers carried these banner headlines:

Aftenposten: "Moscow Rejects Eisenhower's Peace Plan."

Verdens Gang: "Soviet Gives Positive Reply."

U.S. Prisoners Retain Memory Of Death March

By ROBERT EUNSON

FREEDOM VILLAGE, Korea (AP)—Some Americans captured early in the Korean war came back today, bringing bitter memories of a valley where 260 of 300 UN prisoners died. . .of a long march which claimed 400 lives. . . and of more than two years of misery.

Most of the Americans freed Thursday by the Reds had been recently wounded. But many of the 40 who came back today were the "old boys" swept up in the fall of 1950.

Time hadn't dimmed their memory of death marches over frozen North Korean highways, of hunger, brutality and poor medical treatment. And one returning prisoner told of tiny cages where men were punished "For just saying things out of the way at Communist lectures."

The men were pale and some were emaciated. They limped or were carried from Communist ambulances.

BIGGEST GROUP

Today's group of 40 Americans was the biggest returned by the Reds since the exchange began Monday. It boosted to 119 the number liberated.

Some said they were treated all right. But Pte. Wayne Hubener of Franklin, N. H., found his captors brutal. He related:

"I have actually seen only one man killed. One of our fellows was carrying him and sort of went out of his head. The man fell off this guy's back and we tried to help him up again. He couldn't get up. A Chinese guard hit him in the back with the butt of his rifle and pushed him off the mountain side."

Hubener was captured April 25, 1951.

Another soldier told of a death march in which 400 captives of the Communists died. Pte. Paul E. Clements, 24, from Indianapolis, said the death march took place in the bitter cold between Dec. 3-26, 1950.

"About 1200 started out," he said, "and close to 400 died."

Clements said the men died from the bitter cold and wounds.

Clements said he thought the Americans on the march died mostly because of their physical condition rather than from the cruelty of the Red guards.

LOW FLYING—Flt. Lt. Steve Pus of Vermilion, Alta., (left) and FO. Al Charters, Grand Prairie, Alta., two members of the RCAF's Thunderbird squadron flying on the Korea airlift, enjoy sightseeing in Tokyo in a form of transportation new to them, a bicycle rickshaw. The RCAF has made its eight-a-month flights from Dorval airport, Montreal, to Tokyo, mere routine.

RCAF's Flights To Tokyo Have Become Mere Routine

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TOKYO (CP)—Teamwork has reduced the RCAF's eight-a-month flights from Dorval to Tokyo to mere routine. The teamwork is among crew members, each of whom thinks his job is the most important in the aircraft.

I flew from Canada to Tokyo in a North Star piloted by FO. John Middleton, 23, of Burlington, Ont.

Eight thousand feet up, with a Korea-bound load of freight and mail behind him in the cabin, FO. Mort Lightstone, 20, of Ottawa, the navigator, watched a 1,000-foot plume fan out from erupting Ileanna volcano, a few miles west of Anchorage.

PROFESSIONAL PRIDE

"We navigators have the most interesting job," he said. "We're always in touch with the plane's progress. If we don't know what's going on, nobody does. The pilots have the dullest job—they just sit up there and drive."

(Working with Lightstone this trip was Flt. Lt. A. J. Timmins of Montreal, a former radio officer making his first trip as a navigator.)

But FO. Middleton and FO. Doug Clifton of London, England, his co-pilot, looked at it differently.

"As far as we're concerned, this is the only job in the world," Middleton said.

He conceded, however, that FO. D'Arcy Reddyhoff of Qualicum Beach, B.C., the wireless operator, was the plane's real "lifeline." Reddyhoff just then was checking the North Star past King Salmon island, a tiny cluster of lights far below.

And every hour on the hour, Flight Engineer Sgt. Henri (Pierre) LeBlanc of Shediac, N.B., logged the instrument readings to make sure things were tickety-boo. The instrument panel on this north Star had been worn through the paint to the aluminum by pilots who had flown the lift.

LAC. Frank Reid of Ottawa, the air traffic assistant, besides being responsible for checking the proper loading of the aircraft and filling out the load manifests, looks after the crew and any passengers aboard.

Besides the seven crew members, three others were technically listed as crew for the flight: LACs. Sydney Jamieson of Montreal and Gaston Boucher of Riviere du Loup, Que., aircraft technicians en route to Tokyo for three months' duty; and this reporter.

SOLID ACCOMPLISHMENTS

During more than 2½ years on this assignment the Thunderbirds have amassed figures that dramatize their part in the UN Korea effort.

Since their first airlift flight July 27, 1950, they have flown more than 5,000,000 statute miles over the Pacific; carried more than 5,500,000 pounds of freight and mail and more than 11,000 passengers, including many Korea wounded; and logged more than 27,000 flying hours.

They have insisted from the beginning that the ssignment was "routine." In several messages Defence Minister Claxton has complimented officers and men on their work, saying "that is the most notable part of the contribution—you have actually reduced a gruelling and extremely demanding task to the status of a purely routine operation."

First Remove Atmosphere Of Mutual Distrust

By HOMER BIGART
New York Herald Tribune News Service

KARACHI—Pakistan is willing to consider a pact with India for mutual defense of this sub-continent once the atmosphere of mutual distrust between the two countries is removed, Mohammed Ali, the new Prime Minister of Pakistan and until recently ambassador at Washington, said in an interview.

Mohammed Ali said he is ready and willing to meet Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India for a settlement of all the issues which have embittered relations. He said: "As soon as Mr. Nehru sets the date I shall be glad to see him wherever he would like me to come."

At both Karachi and New Delhi, the Indian capital, the climate for Indo-Pakistani discussions has improved suddenly since the new government of Pakistan was formed, last Friday.

Mohammed Ali, who is 43, was confined to bed today by a slight fever but he received visitors. He said he felt rather like Premier Mohammed Mossadegh of neighboring Iran except that "I'm not crying yet."

WATERS OF INDUS

Of top priority in the field of relations with India, he said, is a settlement of the heated dispute over the water of the Indus River basis. It is an explosive issue, he said, because it is tied up with a threat of famine."

He proposed creation of a "TVA" for the Indus basin, an international authority for development and joint use of the water from it. The International Bank for reconstruction and development (the World Bank) at Washington is now studying how the supply of water for Pakistan and India might be increased by engineering works to be financed jointly, with World Bank aid.

Pakistan has charged that India is shutting off irrigation water and threatening to make a desert again of thousands of acres of food-producing rich land in the west Punjab and Bahawalpur provinces. Pakistan has said such diversion of water was the cause of a wheat deficit of 1,500,000 tons in this country.

Mohammed Ali said today he believes India has reduced unjustifiably the amount of water coming from the canals, but that the dominating factor in the general shortage of water was the failure of Monsoon rains in two successive years.

SOLVE STALEMATE

Mohammed Ali hopes, at talks with Mr. Nehru, to find some formula for resolving the stalemate between Pakistan and India over the future of the state of Kashmir. Both countries have agreed that the people of Kashmir should be allowed to decide for themselves whether they shall join India or Pakistan.

The hitch is India's insistence on the right to station Indian troops during a plebiscite in the two-thirds of Kashmir which India now occupies. Mohammed Ali conceded today that India may keep a reasonable number of troops in Kashmir but not a number which would give an impression of coercion of the people.

"The whole point," he said, "is to see to it that the plebiscite is checked by foreign observers."

Mohammed Ali said he was pleased by the recent public addresses by President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles indicating that American foreign policy will place greater emphasis on Asia. But these declarations of interest, he said, do not jibe with the fact that the American embassy at Karachi has been without an ambassador since last November.

"You should have an ambassador here," he said, "and we hope he is a good man who carries weight at Washington."

Of Pakistani internal affairs, he said he is anxious to get the food problem settled as soon as possible, so that Pakistan will be able to proceed with its industrialization program.

"We want to be self-sufficient in textiles," he said, "and we want to develop a leather industry. We definitely welcome private capital investments from abroad and will do everything possible to make such investments attractive."

He predicted that the forthcoming visit to Pakistan and India by Secretary Dulles will "boost the morale of the sub-continent." He pointed out that it will be the first visit to South Asia by an American Secretary of State while in office.

Spry Becomes Director Of Scout Bureau

OTTAWA (CP)—Maj.-Gen. D. C. Spry, CBE, DSO, 40, is leaving the post of chief executive commissioner of the Canadian Boy Scouts Association which he has held for the last seven years to become director of the International Scout Bureau in London.

This was made known Friday at the quarterly meeting of the association's executive council, attended by Governor-General Vincent Massey in his capacity as Chief Scout for Canada.

Maj.-Gen. Spry, who served with Canadian forces in the Sicilian campaign during the Second World War, has for some time been deputy director of the international bureau. He will take over as director about Nov. 1 this year.

A committee was set up to find a successor for the Canadian post.

NAMED PRESIDENT

Rhys M. Sale of Windsor, Ont., president of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, was named president of the Canadian general council of the association by Mr. Massey. He succeeds Hon. Ray Lawson, former lieutenant governor of Ontario and now Canadian consul-general in New York.

Earlier, in a luncheon address, Mr. Massey called on Canadian Boy Scouts and Cubs to mark the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth on June 2 by taking part in the lighting of a chain of beacon fires across Canada.

Mr. Massey said that in addition to council fires which will be held according to traditional custom, a chain of thousands of beacon fires will stretch across the country. To be built and tended by Scouts and Cubs, the beacon fires will be lit in each time zone at the same moment.

Government Charged Lax On Immigration

OTTAWA (CP)—Julian Ferguson (PC—Simcoe North) in a House of Commons speech Friday night lumped together this Liberal and past Conservative governments as "lax" in immigration matters.

In an immigration debate, he accused the government of "the same laxness as in Conservative governments of the past."

Mr. Ferguson said not enough immigrants are being taken into Canada.

"Bring in," he said, "two, three or four million people of the right kind of stock to help us develop this country."

Difference Of

sing all that the others might have, but as the leader of a party (I Corinthians 1:11-13).

Against all this Paul proclaimed the all-inclusiveness of Christ as "the power of God and the wisdom of God" (verse 24). I believe that it might be said that sharp as differences of opinion may be, there can be no quarrel where the Christlike spirit prevails.

Other dissension among the Corinthian disciples concerned matters of conduct and the problems that arose in following the Christian way of life in a pagan community. Here again Paul proclaimed the tolerance born of love, the freedom of the individual conscience modified by an expedient regard for the conscientious scruples of others. (Romans 14:13-17; I Corinthians 6:12).

But over it all is I Corinthians 13, of which more will follow.

Business Educationists Meeting In London

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—More than 80 business educationists from many parts of Ontario gathered in London Friday night for their 18th annual convention.

The meeting brings together teachers of commercial courses in high school and business colleges. They are all members of the Business Educators' Association, a Dominion-wide organization.

Need Less Secrecy Directors Told

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—"The time has come when funeral directors ought to be less secretive and let the public know of services rendered in order to overcome criticism regarding the so-called high cost of dying," Rev. R. H. Parr of Glebe Road United Church, Toronto, told members of the Western Ontario District Funeral Directors Association Friday night at their annual meeting.

"One of the great dangers of the profession is, that as clientele grows services become impersonal," he said. "You should not lose sight of the fact that there is such a thing as sentiment in the world."

Officers elected for the coming year are: President, M. D. Smith, Woodstock; vice-president, Donald F. McKenzie, Sarnia; secretary-treasurer, Ewart Ostrander, Tillsonburg, and directors, Stewart Kennedy, Essex and Lyle Sifton, St. Thomas.

ARRIVAL OF A HERO—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery arrived in Montreal yesterday prior to his departure back to Europe aboard the Empress of Scotland tomorrow. He's greeted at Dorval airport by Group Capt. Z. L. Leigh, chief of staff at Lachine's RCAF Transport Command.

Movie Column

Produce Film To Show Committee

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The picture of the week, as far as Hollywood is concerned, was a big studio production made for an exclusive audience of 25 people.

The film might be titled "The Admission Tax Blues." It was a 22-minute subject detailing the effect of 20 per cent theatre ticket tax on the movie industry. Members of the House of Representatives ways and means committee saw the film in Washington this week.

The industry pitch was assembled by MGM boss Dore Schary and his assistant, Herman Hoffman. The whole project was carried out in a hush-hush atmosphere, and the public will not see the finished product.

FOR 25 ONLY

"The picture was made to be shown to 25 people only," a spokesman reported. "The industry is making its pitch for repeal of the tax on a business basis. There will be no attempt to have people write their congressmen or apply any other public pressure."

Apparently the picture had the desired effect. Solid support in Congress for the industry's stand are still some formidable hurdles ahead for the tax-cut measure.

The film industry really sang the blues at the House hearing, revealing some hard facts for the first time. Among these was the report that 5,038 movie houses have closed since 1946.

THREE CLOSE DAILY

The rate of closings has been three a day, the industry reports, although the pace slacked to three a week after news of the tax cut possibility.

There is no doubting that the movie business is in bad shape, but the picture is not all black. The motion picture almanac estimates that 590 new film houses were built from 1948 to 1954.

But the big jump came in the drive-ins. In 1948 there were 820 outdoor film theatres. The figure jumped to 3,483 in 1952. So although the hard-top theatre business has been ailing ,the drive-ins have flourished.

Children's Institutions Ask Grant Be $1

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government will be asked to increase grants to children's institutions to $1 a day for each child. The grant now is five cents a child a day.

The Ontario Association of Institutions for Children and youth, which represents 80 per cent of the children's institutions in the province, decided Friday to ask for the increase. It would apply to institutions operating under the Charitable Institutions Act.

Association president Isabel Allen of Toronto said the government grant has not been reviewed since 1920, when it was raised from two cents to five cents a child a day.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—James Talarico, 75, died in hospital Friday of injuries suffered when he tripped and struck his head while working at a Stamford township plant. A fellow employee found him lying unconscious.

Charges British Jet Secrets Turning Up In Russ Planes

Eight Children Die As Flames Sweep Sault House

SAULT STE MARIE—(CP)—Eight children were asphyxiated at daybreak Sunday in a flaming home in suburban Tarentorus township. Five of the dead were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Derry—Dorothy, 7; Reginald, 5; Clifford, 4; Eleanor, 3; and John, 1½. The others were Derry's nieces—Wilma, 14; Marion, 10; and Diane, 9—daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Trudel of suburban East Korah township, who have three older children.

The fire left the Derrys childless and homeless.

Mr. and Mrs. Derry smashed their way to safety through their bedroom window, then tried to break in to rescue the children in another bedroom and the living room of the unfinished four-room frame dwelling. Flames and smoke turned them back.

INFANT SON DIES TOO

In their desperation, they left in their own bedroom their infant son, who had been sleeping with them. He died with the others.

The death toll was the highest in many years in a fire in Northern Ontario.

City firemen fought the blaze, half a mile from the city limits. Neighbors in a bucket brigade carried 500 gallons of water to keep the fire trucks supplied, as no fire hydrants were available.

The children gathered at the Derry home Saturday afternoon for a party celebrating the ninth birthday of Diane Trudel. It was also a celebration for Dorothy Derry, who would have been seven today.

Wilma Trudel agreed to look after the other seven children Saturday night while the Derrys went out to shop. After shopping, the Derrys visited the Trudel home.

STAY OVERNIGHT

When the Derrys returned home about 4 a. m., the three Trudel girls coaxed to be allowed to stay overnight. Their parents and the Derrys finally consented.

Derry, a naval veteran, awoke at 6 a. m. Sunday and found the house cold. He lit a fire in the stove, watched it burn for a few minutes, then went back to bed about 6:20.

Twenty minutes later, smoke and the crackling of flames awakened Derry and his 27-year-old wife, Winnifred. Smoke and fire barred their way into the adjoining living room where the Trudel girls slept. The other children were in a bedroom off the kitchen.

The Derrys were burned and cut as they climbed out the window intending to go around to help the children through other exists.

COULDN'T MAKE IT

"I tried to get into the bedroom and the living room by breaking the windows, but the flames were so fierce and the smoke so black and dense that I just couldn't make it," Derry said later from a hospital bed. He and his wife were admitted to hospital for treatment for burns, cuts and shock.

Charles Derry, grandfather of all eight victims, said the front door of the house was nailed shut. It would have opened off the living

Watch Volcano 6 Children Die In Eruption

TOKYO (AP). — Aso volcano erupted thunderously today, killing at last six of 400 school children peering into its depths. Some unofficial death estimates ran as high as 10. One hundred were reported injured in Aso's first eruption in 20 years.

The youngsters were on an excursion inside the 15-mile-wide great crater of 5,267-foot Mt. Aso on Kyushu, Japan's southernmost island. They were looking into one of five volcanic peaks inside the gaping crater when it awakened with a smoking roar, blasting rocks into the air. Some were the size of a man's head.

The children fled in terror.

The full crater contains 11 farm villages with nearly 60,000 people, but they were not considered in danger.

The newspaper Nishi Nippon said the blast came from 4,339-foot Naka Dake crater, one of the five peaks.

SOAR 1,000 FEET

Rocks shot through grey smoke to almost 1,000 feet and then rained back to ground for 600 yards around.

The great crater is 24,500 acres in area, and contains two railroads and nine stations.

Full eruption of the entire crater apparently took place in prehistoric days. Only minor eruptions in some of the five peaks are recorded in Japanese annals.

The last big eruption of Mt. Aso took place in 1933. It showered rocks and ashes practically on all of the 16,000-square mile island of Kyushu.

At that time, the observatory issued an alarm and the eruption caused no casualties.

Britain, Egypt Discuss Suez

CAIRO, Egypt (CP)—Britain and Egypt today held their first meeting to negotiate the withdrawal of British troops from the Suez canal zone and agreed to meet again today.

An Egyptian spokesman said the 80-minute meeting between Premier Mohamed Naguib and British Ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson and their staffs took place in an "excellent" atmosphere. Each of the principals made statements outlining their country's general position.

Stevenson was accompanied to the meeting at Naguib's office by Sir Brian Robertson, commander of British Middle East land forces. The Egyptian delegation included Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi and Lt.-Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, a close adviser to Naguib.

The Egyptian stand was spotlighted by Nasser Sunday. He asserted Britain must vacate the canal, leaving its defence to Arab states supported by Western military equipment. He rejected as "another form of occupation" a Western proposal to replace British control with a broad Middle East defence organization. This would include Egypt, the United States, Britain, France and Turkey.

Paris Meeting Had Some Value—Dulles

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary John Foster Dulles returned from a NATO meeting today to report to President Eisenhower and congress that "we accomplished some good, hard, practical results" in the interests of U. S security.

Dulles, together with Treasury Secretary George Humphrey and foreign aid chief Harold Stassen, arrived from Paris in a military air transport plane. He said he expected to see Eisenhower today and go before the Senate foreign relations committee Tuesday.

Ministers of the North Atlantic Council countries in Paris were so busy with their own work, he told reporters, that "we didn't have time" to give very much study to Saturday's Moscow press statement generally rejecting Eisenhower's recent peace plan but stating a readiness to engage in talks with the Western powers. Dulles offered no other comment on the Moscow reaction.

Of the Paris session he said: "We had, I think, a very successful meeting. We were very realistic. We accomplished some good hard practical results which I think on the one hand fully protected the interests of the United States and on the other hand built up the strength of NATO in which we were all interested."

$100,000 Reward For Russ-Made Jet

TOKYO (AP)—The United Nations command today offered a $100,000 reward to the first Communist flier to bring a MiG-15 jet or other Russian-made jet over to the Allied lines.

The offer was broadcast over the Allied radio. The air force showered North Korea with leaflets announcing the offer.

The flier also was offered "political asylum and resettlement in a non-Communist country."

While the first flier would get $100,000, all other fliers following suit would receive $50,000.

The command conceded that the offer, unprecedented in the Far East command, was part of psychological warfare campaign but said the "resultant technical knowledge would be invaluable."

Train Explosion Kills Passenger, Four Injured

CALGARY (CP)—An explosion in a refrigerator car rocked a passenger train as it arrived in the station here Sunday night and killed one of the scores of passengers aboard. Three Canadian Pacific Railway employees and a passenger were hurt.

The blast destroyed the refrigerator car of the Edmonton-to-Calgary train, overturned platform trucks and smashed hundreds of windows in the area.

It was believed the explosion was caused when a railway worker thrust a gas lamp into the refrigerator car, loaded with bread and other foods, igniting leaking gas.

The blast caught some of the passengers as they alighted from the train. Mrs. Charles J. Blake was tossed 14 feet by the explosion and killed. Railway workers said it was a miracle other passengers escaped unhurt.

BLEW LIKE BOMB

Most of the passengers were lined up, waiting to get off the train when the refrigerator car blew up "like a big bomb." They would have been in the direct path of the blast if they had got off a few seconds earlier.

Mrs. Blake was the first passenger to step onto the platform. Her husband, walking behind her, was tossed 12 feet and was taken to hospital with critical injuries.

The injured CPR employees are: Stanley Eby, face and head burns. Ernest Edwards, face, chest and arm burns, and James McKenna, face, hand and neck burns. None is in serious condition.

Report Forest Fire

TORONTO (CP)—A forest fire is burning in the Tweed district north of Belleville, the department of lands and forests reported today. Rangers were said to have it under control. The forest fire hazard in the province was termed normal.

Reds Lose In Rural Areas

French Voters Have Handed De Gaulle Big Setback

PARIS (AP) — French voters turned their backs on Gen. Charles de Gaulle's right-wing followers in municipal elections Sunday. The Communists just about held their own in the working-class districts of the big cities, but lost control in rural areas.

The biggest gainers from the rebuff to de Gaulle's Rassemblement du Peuple Francais were Independents who rallied around former premier Antoine Pinay. During his term of office, Pinay made a determined and well-publicized effort to hold down prices.

Returns still were being tabulated today.

Unofficial figures for Paris indicated the Communists held all their 26 seats on the municipal council. The RPF, however, dropped from 26 to 11. A grouping of Independents captured 25. This list was not represented in 1947.

The voting Sunday was to elect some 466,800 municipal councillors who in turn will name the mayors for France's 37,893 communes — everything from 500-population hamlets to the city of Paris. Run-off elections will be held next Sunday, May 3, in races where no candidate receives a majority.

The Communists were getting 25.8 per cent of the vote in the capital and 41 per cent in its suburbs—where much of the capital's workers live—but Interior Minister Charles Brune said early today the Reds seemed to be losing ground slightly over the country.

The election turnout was heavy, about 72 per cent of the country's 25,000,000 registered voters.

De Gaulle's RPF scored its first major victory in the last municipal elections in 1947. Since then it has run neck and neck with the Communists, each getting about 27 per cent of succeeding ballots to make them France's two biggest single parties.

Weather Bogs Down Men, Machines On Pierce Survey

The 80-mile territorial boundary line survey between Thunder Bay and Cochrane electoral districts has been completed, surveyor John G. Pierce, O.L.S., reported today. He is back at work after a stiff seven-week grind in Algoma, and glad of it.

An expert at boundary surveys, like his father, the late John W. Pierce, he found this a comparatively small job one of frustrations. Nothing co-operated very well, the weather being the worst factor. It was a freak winter this year in a country normally noted for long stretches of cold, clear weather. Instead, there was a great deal of snow, little sharp cold and days of cloudy skies that made astral observations impossible.

The purpose of the new line is to provide a "shooting base line" for aerial mapping this summer. It stretches now from Crony Lake to an intersection of the Albany River in the vicinity of Martin's Falls.

Unlike former cutting operations of this nature where the crew moved from camp to camp by dog teams, various mechanical devices were tried out to replace the older and slower method. But the winter conditions this year were too tough for them.

MECHANICAL TOBOGGANS

Two mechinical toboggans with carrying capacities of 500 pounds each required trail breaking in deep snow that bogged down the surveyors two and one-half feet in the deep bush. They did not stand up. Neither did the two pack tractors that chewed their way into the snow rather than along it.

Heavy snow on the small landing lakes created slush and the Department of Lands and Forests Beaver aircraft flown by Jimmy Kirk of Sault Ste. Marie could only move the crew 30 miles over a three-week period. When the country flattened out and ran out of lakes a helicopter piloted by Jerry Turner of Oshawa did the servicing. At the rate of 500-pound payloads it took two and one-half flying hours to move 14 men five miles. Cold morning starting was another bugbear for the machine.

A base radio transmitter blew out near the start of operations, 11 axemen of the original crew of 18 were replaced and cook Joe de Foy quit. But the line went through.

Lead 20 To Safety

BUFFALO, N.Y. — (AP)— About 20 persons were led to safety early today from a fire in the upper floors of a small downtown hotel. Two alarms were sounded when the blaze began in the Avon Hotel. First reports indicated the damage to the brick building was not extensive.

Semi-Conscious Pilot Lands

SEOUL —The U.S. Air Force Saturday told the story of a Thunderjet that flew virtually uncontrolled through North Korean skies for nearly an hour before its semi-conscious pilot was talked to safety by a ground controller.

Lieut. Richard L. Spaulding of Ionia, Mich., was on a bombing mission over North Korea, March 26, when his oxygen equipment wet haywire.

He slipped into semi-consciousness and for an hour his speedy jet plans, virtually flying itself, swooped, dipped, twisted and turned crazily.

At a mountain top ground control station, Capt. Clarence Bell picked up the erratic action on his radar scope. Suspecting a pilot blackout, Bell took over.

In a cool, calm voice he repeated instructions to Spaudling over and over again. First he directed Spaulding to a target area in North Korea and instructed him to drop his bombs. Those bombs had to be jettisoned before the plane could be landed safely. Then he started talking Spaulding home.

After minutes of patient instructions—"it seemed like hours," Bell said afterward—he got Spaulding lined up for a landing at an Allied air base, only to have the semi-conscious pilot suddenly refuse because "the runway isn't long enough."

Eventually Bell talked Spaulding to a second airfield and there completed the tricky let down and landing procedures.

2 English Brothers Join Canadian Army

LONDON (CP)—Two English brothers today joined the Canadian Army here, first of about 10 seasoned former British soldiers given special permission to sign on in this country.

The brothers are Desmond, 27, and Kevin Gammon, 20. Trained parachutists, they were urged to join the Canadian Army by a British friend now serving with Canadian troops in Korea.

A spokesman at London's joint Canadian staff said that ordinarily none of the Canadian services allows recruiting in Britain. Dispensation had been granted by the army for a small number, however, because of their high qualifications.

The Gammon brothers have a sister, Mrs. Auriel Bazinet, married to a Canadian in Timmins, Ont. The younger brother has just been discharged from the British Army after service in the Middle East. The older Gammon dropped with British parachutists on D-day.

Troops, War Supplies Pour Into Laos

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — French transport planes poured a steady stream of troops and war material into the Laotian royal seat of Luangprabang today as Communist-led Vietminh forces drove toward the city. The invaders are four or five days away.

French and Laotian troops dug trenches and constructed barbed-wire entanglements and other fortifications. The 6,000 residents remained calm and Laos' aging king, Sisavang Vong, and his son, Crown Prince Savang, announced they would stay in their capital.

French fighter bombers Sunday flew 85 sorties, heavily attacking enemy troops northeast of Luangprabang and around the Plaine des Jarres, the strongly defended French-Laotian position in the heart of Laos.

New Developments Known To Reds Within One Month

LONDON—(AP)—A Labor member charged today that Britain's secret jet developments leak to Russia with a month and quickly turn up in MiG fighters. A government spokesman promptly denied it. George Wigg told the House of Commons the British secrets were built into MiG fighters attacking United Nations forces in Korea. Supply Minister Duncan Sandys denied the charge. He declared "under the present administration we take good care to see that our secrets are not passed over to the Soviet government."

Sandys countered by charging that the former Labor government's sale of "Nene" jets to Russia after the war's end "hands on a plate to the Soviet government two years' worth of development."

Sandys told the House the sale of Nene power plants to Russia "in my opinion undoubtedly had the effect of reducing by about two years the technical lead which we then had over the Russians in the development of--"

SHOUTS OF ANGER

The minister's last words were drowned by a roar of approval on the Conservative side of the House and shouts of anger from the Labor benches. Wigg termed Sandys' reply "cowardly."

According to the authoritative Jane's directory, "All the World's Aircraft," Britain exported 30 Rolls-Royce Derwent jets and 25 Rolls-Royce Nenes to the Soviet Union in 1947 and 1948. The move was made, according to Jane's, by Labor board of trade president Sir Stafford Cripps, "who overruled the objections of the air ministry and Rolls-Royce."

Jane's claimed Nenes powered the prototype of an early MiG fighter, the MiG-15, in 1947 and added that "the MiG-15 airframe, which had not been designed for this engine, was specially modified to suit the eminently suitable power plant which had unexpectedly and fortuitously arrived from the West."

Fear 31 Dead In Mexican Mine Explosions

AGANGUEO, Mexico (AP)—Rescue teams have recovered 11 bodies from the smoking mouth of the burned-out American Smelting Company silver mine near here. They are digging for 14 others listed as dead in a fierce fire and explosion Saturday.

Six other miners were unaccounted for.

Company officials estimated it would take several days to dig out all the victims of the disaster, the worst in any Mexican mine in recent years. There was no possibility that any of the 14 known to be below ground could be alive, rescue chief Antonio Madrazo said.

BLAZING FURNACE

The 68-year-old mine, in mountains near this tiny village 80 miles west of Mexico City, was turned into a blazing furnace 500 feet below the surface when a series of electrical shorts set fire to electric cables and shafts and then touched off dust and gas explosions.

About 300 men were in the mine at the time. Some 200 in the upper levels escaped. Another 70, choking with smoke, were led to safety during rescue operations in the darkness Saturday night Those who died were smothered by smoke, not burned, officials said.

Four Mexican government mine officials started an investigation of the disaster.

The mine yielded zinc, gold and iron, as well as silver.

Abandons Bold Plan

BONN, Germany (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today abandoned his bold plan to get the European army treaty signed without the approval of both houses of Parliament.

This abrupt reversal followed his earlier cancellation of plans to avert a political battle over the treaty by winning over the Socialist opposition.

Changes Name To Qualify For $250,000

OTTAWA (CP)—In a brief ceremony in county court here today, Lt.-Col. Edward M. D. McNaughton qualified for a late aunt's legacy of $250,000 by having his name changed to Lt.-Col. Edward M. D. Leslie.

Col. McNaughton, officer commanding the 1st Royal Canadian Horse Artillery which has been in action in Korea and now is on its way back to Canada, was represented in court by Lee Kelley, QC, and John J. Urie.

The whole ceremony took less than two minutes. The affidavits were presented to Judge Gordon McDougall and he promptly signed the approval, making the name switch effective immediately.

In changing his name, Col. Leslie fulfilled the stipulations of his aunt, the late Mrs. James Norman Stuart Leslie of Kingston, who willed her entire fortune to him, including a family home at Kingston, in exchange for perpetuating the Leslie name.

Col. Leslie is the son of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former commander of the Canadian forces overseas in the Second World War, and now chairman of the Canadian section of the international joint commission. Gen. McNaughton did not oppose the change and has consistently declined comment on it.

Mrs. Leslie, who died last August, had been predeceased by her husband, Col. Leslie, by about a year.

NOT MUCH WORK

An army spokesman said the change will not involve any extensive "paper work" in the service. An order would simply go out in routine army orders with instructions that all documents pertaining to the former Col. McNaughton be identified as "Lt.-Col. Edward M. D. Leslie."

Col. Leslie is single and no dependents are involved in the name change.

When the legacy was first announced, Col. McNaughton at first indicated he was comfortably off financially and might be reluctant to change his name.

Women Dowdy Guild Head Says

LONDON (AP)—Pretty woman? She's a myth. Under her cosmetics she's a dowdy creature, said a courageous male expert today.

He is W. T. McGill, master of the Incorporated Guild of Hairdressers, Wigmakers and Perfumers. At its annual meeting the guild studied new artifices in man's never-ending struggle to make woman presentable.

"Woman was made beautiful mainly by man," said McGill in his presidential address. "She is an illusion he created. He made her clothes, created her hat fashions, made her jewelry and cosmetics, and the hairdresser finished what had been started with a hair style to suit her.

"In the animal kingdom the male struts around with the fine feathers, and the female animal is the dowdy partner. The human female is just about as dowdy as her animal counterpart."

Some of the guildsmen speculated informally on whether they ought to get a bodyguard for their master.

SUBWAY COSTS MORE

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto's new subway, a 4½-mile underground railway running up the city's main street, now will cost at least $50,500,000. That's $21,650,000 more than the original estimate.

Railway Strike Threat Removed

OTTAWA (CP)—A possible rail strike threat was removed Saturday in an arbitrator's decision favorable to the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in a dispute with the railways.

Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada gave a BRT's contention n retroactive application of a 12-per-cent wage increase obtained by the union in February under the threat of a general strike.

The decision came as several brotherhood locals across the country were pressing the union leadership to order a strike to emphasize dissatisfaction at the way the companies proposed to put the settlement into effect.

After reading the arbitrator's verdict, binding on the disputants, A. J. Kelly, Canadian chief of the 22,000-member BRT, said he expects that this "relieves the entire situation."

New Communist Problem

Drunkenness Slows Down Iron Curtain Production

VIENNA (AP)—Drunkenness and rowdyism are on the increase behind the Iron Curtain.

The Communists are worried because alcoohlism is upsetting the speed-up in their industrial production. Communist newspapers from Eastern Europe indicate workers are drinking more—not for relaxation—but to forget one overworked day and dull the thought of the next.

Roving gangs of young drunken hoodlums brawl and fight in the early hours, apparently letting off steam against the police pressures and state controls. In the Polish city of Lublin, for instance, a newspaper recently wrote:

"Gangs of drunken boys roam the streets or stay in restaurants and cafes until late at night. On their way home, they stage brawls."

In villages near Lublin, said the paper, "not a single (Communist) party performance or festival can take place without interference of gangs of youths."

A Czechoslovak newspaper complained that miners in the Moravska Ostrava coalfields recently have been drinking so much wine and schnapps that hundreds of shifts are being missed and mine accidents are on the increase. At weekends, drunken streetcar drivers also are causing trouble.

There is a running campaign against tippling, not only in Czechoslovakia, but in Poland, Romania and Bulgaria. It is called "immoral" or "bourgeois" and good Communists are pledged to fight excessive drinking.

Thieves Make Off With 8 Cases Of Scotch

LARDER LAKE (CP)—Thieves failed to open the vault at the local liquor store here Saturday night but they made off with eight cases of scotch valued at $500.

Police said the thieves forced their way into a neighboring garage where they stole an acetylene torch, drills, punches and other tools. After gaining entrance to the liquor store, they used the welding tip instead of the cutting tip and were unable to get into the vault.

Larder Lake is 10 miles east of Kirkland Lake.

PoW Plan Rejected By UN Team

Armistice Talks Deadlocked Again; Delegates Stand Pat

PANMUNJOM, Korea—(AP)—The new Korean armistice talks deadlocked again today as the UN command rejected a Red prisoner exchange proposal which it said offers only return to Communist rule or "endless captivity" for Reds who refuse to go home.

In their second meeting since Oct. 8, both Allied and Communist delegates stood pat on their own plans for settling the exchange problem and bringing a truce in Korea.

Another session was scheduled for Tuesday morning.

The truce talks were broken off Oct. 8 by the UN command when it refused to force any prisoner to go home against his will.

Although the Allies threatened to call off the talks again unless the Reds show willingness to negotiate constructively, Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison, senior Allied delegate, said it's "far too early" to think about such a move.

Meanwhile, the Panmunjom gate to freedom for sick and wounded Allied prisoners stood closed by the Reds.

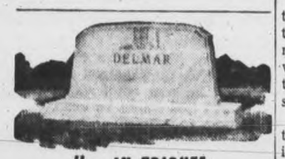
END DELIVERY

The Communists said Sunday's shipment of 84 disabled Allied prisoners ended their delivery. In seven days they turned back 684—149 Americans, 470 South Korean men and one woman, and 64 disabled prisoners from other countries. They had promised 605. Among the disabled were two Canadians.

However, a UN spokesman said "considerably more" sick and wounded Reds would be returned than the 5,800 originally pledged, but he did not give any figure. The transfer of Communists continued at its 500-a-day rate.

At today's 52-minute armistice meeting, each side suggested that the other take another careful look at its proposal.

Harrison told correspondents: "In this short time we have no real basis for assuming the Communists will not negotiate in good faith."



UNREASONABLE PLAN

Harrison opened the meeting by telling North Korean Gen. Nam Il that a six-point proposal by Nam Sunday was "unreasonable and obstructive." He later said bluntly that the proposal was "unacceptable."

Nam devoted his remarks to a restatement of the Communist proposal.

It calls for:

1. Within two months after an armistice, repatriating those prisoners who want to go home.
2. Within another month, sending to a neutral state, to be chosen by the negotiators, all who refuse to go home.
3. Six months for making "explanations" to the refusing prisoners by representatives of their homelands.
4. Sending home those who change their minds.
5. If there are still some left who refuse repatriation, leaving their fate up to a high-level post-armistice political conference.
6. All expenses of prisoners held in a neutral state to be paid by their homelands.

Barter Agreement Planned With Russia

NEW DELHI (AP)—India is prepared to enter a long-term barter agreement with Russia for the purchase of Russian wheat at the rate of 1,000,000 tons annually for the next five years, Food Minister Rafi Ahmad Kidwai told Parliament today.

Kidwai said the barter offer was made in Moscow through "some common friends" but for the last month nothing more was heard of the idea.

India obtained 100,000 tons of Russian wheat in 1952 for cash.

Infantry Division Smashes Red Attack

SEOUL (AP)—U. S 45th division infantry smashed an attack of 150 North Koreans today near the main Allied line on the eastern front.

The U. S. troops counted 26 Reds killed or wounded in the 35-minute attack near the Punchbowl on the eastern front.

Four smaller probes also were stopped along the 155-miles battle front.

In the air, 5th air force planes dive-bombed Communist troops and supply concentrations across central north Korea. Screening Sabre jets damaged one Red MiG, the 5th air force reported.

Thirteen Superforts dropped 130 tons of bombs on a 75-acre Communist supply area Sunday night near Sariwon, on North Korea's west coast.

"And none too soon, either," Mr. Pierce said. "Break-up was right on our heels."

SECONDARY PROJECT

A secondary project that was originally planned could not be carried out. In 1908 surveyor Alexander Niven had cut a line to within ten miles of the finish-post at the Albany River; he ran out of grub and winter.

Mr. Pierce was to have completed the ten-mile stretch but only managed to fly to the spot, land and examine the end river post and come out. He was surprised that the post showed little or no decay and that Niven's line had not "grown in." He attributed this to the slow tree growth in Algoma.

Casting up the results of a tough winter job Mr. Pierce said that he would not condemn the mechanical ground vehicles for winter operation and could see their use on the wind-packed snow of the Barrenlands.

"They definitely will not function in deep, soft snow," he finalized. "But perhaps they would put on a better show in a normal northern winter, even here. This one was not it."

Gave Liquor Sentenced To Three Months

Francis O'Keefe, 34, RR 2, Lakefield, was sentenced to four months definite and one month indefinite in the Ontario Reformatory today when he was convicted of giving liquor to Wilfred Bolton in a place other than his own residence.

The offence was Bolton's third under the Liquor Control Act.

Detective Dennis Traynor gave evidence that on Friday he saw the accussed talking with Bolton on the corner of Brock and George Sts. He saw O'Keefe go to the liquor store and return with two bottles of wine. He met Bolton again and the two walked about 150 feet west on Brock St. where O'Keefe handed Bolton a parcel containing two bottles.

PARCEL IN CARRIER

The detective said he followed Bolton and discovered the parcel in his bicyle carrier. He offered as evidence three order ships which the accused had signed at the liquor store.

O'Keefe asked Detective Traynor why Bolton wasn't in court and said he didn't even know him.

"There couldn't be any more direct evidence than this," Magistrate W. R. Philp commented.

Lunam Case Aired Again

OTTAWA (CP)—The Lunam case cropped up today again in the Commons.

Works Minister Fournier assured the House there has been no exchange of correspondence, letters or telegrams between his department and federal officials in Saskatchewan dealing with efforts to locate Harvey Lunam, head of the Lunam Construction Co.

He was replying to John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) who asked for the production of all the correspondence dealing with this matter since Feb. 1, 1952.

A Toronto paper has stated in a news story that the Harvey Lunam Construction Co. gave Austin E. Dewar (L—Qu'Appelle) cheques totalling $71,800 in 1950. The company had a number of federal contracts some of which have not been completed.

In interviews at Regina Mr. Lunam and Mr. Dewar said the money involved an exchange of cheques.

"Philip's home was not completed and the front door was not in operation," the grandfather said. "The only way the kids could get out was through the back door that leads out of the kitchen.

"The knob wasn't even on the front door. I remember Winnifred telling Phil they should get the front door fixed in case of fire, but Phil didn't have time to get it fixed."

NO NEGLIGENCE

Dr. J. E. Gimby, coroner, who said there will be no inquest, said there was no negligence on the part of the father.

"He lit a fire in the stove in the same way he has been doing all winter."

Jack Cottenden, assistant fire chief, said he believes the fire started from overheated stove pipes. Cottenden, in charge of the firefighting crews, said the pipes set fire to a supporting trestle, then collapsed.

The Trudels' older children, in their own home at the time of the fire, are Betty, 18, Rose, 16, and Patricia, 12.

Six years ago, Wilma Trudel rescued her sister, Dane, then 2, from a fire that destroyed the Trudel home.

Yugoslavia Presents Jumble Of Contrasts

By FRED SPARKS
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

BELGRADE (NEA)—Noted in Tito's upside-down capital, where the official Communist paper "Politika" praises "realistic foreign policy" editorials in the "Wall Street Journal":

With bathtubs as scarce as a free election, folks scoop up water and soap themselves sanitary on the banks of the Danube; behind them are the skyscrapers of modern Belgrade . . . A tired woman carefully brushes dust off a red carpet rolled out at a railroad platform awaiting Tito's arrival . . .

Tractors from six different countries puff down the central boulevard heading for a plowing contest . . . Winner gets a government order . . . A young peasant lad strips to the waist, sunbathes atop his wagon in the heart of town during lunch hour . . .

BREAKFAST BRANDY

Many hotels automatically serve a finger of brandy with your breakfast coffee-and-rolls. (Shakes sleep faster than a cold needling shower.) Crowds line up before U.S. Information Service for the daily overseas news bulletin . . .

Dictators vs. Jazz: When Belgrade was merely a plug on the Kremlin's switchboard, U.S. jazz was formally frowned on. But young Dushan Vidak learned swing, be-hop and newest jazz by ear from our Army's Frankfurt (Germany) radio.

Anything American was still Number One on Tito's Hate Parade when Dushan quietly gathered musical chums to toot what he cribbed from the airways on ancient, patched-up instruments, including a 20-year-old trumpet.

After the Tito-Moscow divorce, Dushan started the Jazz Organization of Yugoslavia and knocked on endless bureaucratic doors pleading permission to play publicly.

Recently same was granted and the other night I visited the Jazz Club in Belgrade's gloomy Grand Hotel. The band, with practically no sheet music, is strictly in the groove.

Overheard: "The world is going crazy. Our Communist Leader Tito is going to visit Turkey—a country which automatically sentences any known Communist to death."

"His family has a fine three floor house in Belgrade. Of course, the government won't let him live in it."

"Oh, yes, life is much easier. But as a student I can never qualify for the exchange program to go to America. That's only for CP members."

Motoring through Tito-land: Although you could get tanned in Belgrade, the other day our car bogged down on a snow-soaked dirt mountain road in Bosnia province. A farm boy's team of horses jerked us loose. Our clever driver had packed a tow-rope, which—with extra gasoline tins—is a motoring must.

NERVOUS OF CARS

You ride hours without seeing anything but horse or mule-borne traffic. And crawl past the horses. Many nervous Dobbins still reject machine competition.

With roads designed for four feet—not four wheels—a day's trip jiggles your insides like a mouse caught in a malted milk shaker. The junkets showed me the problems facing generals who'd like to make Tito's army more than a mountain-fighting, foot-slogging outfit.

Belgrade dictionary: "Stomach Communist." A guy who doesn't know Karl Marx from Groucho, joined the party just to fill his dinner pail.

"An Uncle in Milwaukee." The way to describe a local who's doing very well indeed—because some U.S. relatives monthly mail money.

"Red Passport." Belgradese for party card—without it you don't get far in Yugoslavia.

Love and politics. You can easily check Government approved countries by noting the nationality of chaps who date a certain lusty lady in this town.

Before World War II she nightspotted with a cousin of the then ruling Royal Family. During the occupation she cuddled close to a Wehrmacht Colonel. After liberation a Russian General bought her vodka.

During Tito's isolation she was neutral, playing strictly Swiss and Swedes. Now she gets her cigarettes from the American PX.

Poor Planning On Munitions

WASHINGTON (AP)—Roger M. Kyes, deputy secretary of defence, said today the Eisenhower administration will review the whole munitions picture and weed out high-cost arms plants to keep the U. S. strong in peace and war.

"Fantastic," Kyes called some of the planning done by the former Truman administration. A speech he prepared for the U. S. Chamber of Commerce convention here contained the sharpest criticism to come so far from the new administration of the Truman regime's rearmament program.

Kyes used sharp words in talking of the rearmament program started with the beginning of the Korean war in 1950—"fantastic paper targets," "exaggerated figures," "poor planning and inefficient execution."

He cited as examples: "One mobilization plan resulted in requirements over and above assets on hand which would cost $530,000,000 for hard goods alone." And: "Most of us would question the combat capabilities of a year's surplus of calculating machines."

OBITUARIES

HENRY GUERIN

The funeral service for one of Peterborough's oldest citizens, Henry Guerin, 81, who died Saturday in hospital, was held today from the Duffus funeral home to the Sacred Heart Church for requiem mass.

Mr. Guerin was born and raised in Peterborough, son of the late Clement Guerin and the former Mary Garnier. His wife, the former Camilla Godois, predeceased him 45 years ago. He was a member of the Sacred Heart Church and the Holy Name Society and for 50 years was a member of the Catholic Order of Foresters.

He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Charles Christie (Adeline) of Hamilton and two sons, Leon and Joseph Guerin, both of Campbellford.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. G. F. Sullivan and the priests in the sanctuary were the Rt. Rev. Monsignor P. P. Butler and the Rev. C. Moloney of Campbellford.

The pallbearers were Cal, Neilan and Donald Guerin, Joseph Clarke and Villa Rivard. Burial was in St. Peter's cemetery, and Father Sullivan assisted by Father Moloney said the graveside prayers.

Two Injured As Car Crashes

BRIGHTON—Two persons were critically injured when the car in which they were riding overturned on Highway 30, three miles north of Brighton early Sunday night.

Injured were Mrs. (Isobel) Curry of Havelock, on her way to see her husband, Arthur Curry, recovering from an operation in a Belleville hospital and Mrs. Charles Curry.

Mrs. Arthur Curry received a broken jaw, bad cuts and bruises and Mrs. Charles Curry received several cuts and bruises. The other three occupants of the car escaped with being shaken up.

Andrew Curry, his wife and Charles Curry who were all in the car spent the night at the home of Charles Curry in Trenton. Andrew and Charles are sons of Arthur Curry.

Arthur Curry who is expected to leave hospital today is going to stay with another son, Marvin in Campbellford until his wife is released from hospital.

Prices Improving On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO (CP) — Prices improved in early afternoon stock market trading today after a mixed morning. Trading picked up.

Golds, base metals and western oils made small gains on the exchange indexes. Industrials were mixed.

Bonville was the heaviest trader, moving more than 785,000 shares to gain 20 cents. Most other uraniums also rose. Mylamaque moved about 575,000 shares to add pennies. New Brunswick base metals were firm as New Larder U gained and Brunswick added $1.

Senior golds gained after noon and juniors rose on strength in East Malartic and Madsen. Holding companies slipped.

Higher-price base metals rose although Noranda continued weak.

Western oils showed a majority of gains led by Sweet Grass, North Canadian, Pacific and Cons. Allenbee.

Army Officers Blamed For Chief's Death

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Iran's government today blamed a group of retired army officers and government opponents for the murder of National Police Chief Brig.-Gen. Mahmood Afshartus, found strangled in a roadside grave Sunday.

A communique issued by Col. Hosseingholi Ashrafi, military governor of Tehran, said the names of the alleged slayers and those who plotted the crime will be disclosed later.

The communique said investigation and confessions of those responsible led to the discovery of Afshartus' body six days after his mysterious disappearance in the heart of Tehran.

The body was found several miles northeast of the capital in a shallow grave. A rope was around his neck, his hands and feet were bound and his mouth was stuffed with a handkerchief.

DIED 4 DAYS EARLIER

Medical examiners said he had died at least four days earlier, probably by strangulation April 20.

Afshartus, a relative of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, was said to have made a number of enemies because of his part in recent political arrests and as secretary of a commission which named army officers for retirement in a recent shakeup. A police communique said he "died a martyr's death in the performance of his duties."

The military governor named only one of those allegedly responsible for Afshartus' murder. He was Hossein Khatibi, to whose home, it was charged, Afshartus was invited just before he dropped from sight.

The invitation was accepted, the communique indicated, because Afshartus thought he was mediating between the Mossadegh regime and a Parliament member recently at odds with the premier.

Jebb Says U.N. Way To Peace

WINTER PARK, Fla. (AP)—Sir Gladwyn Jebb, Britain's permanent UN representative, says arming the Western world to the teeth and then enforcing its political solutions cannot improve the world situation.

He told a special convocation at Rollins College Sunday night that "another world war, though it may be necessary to repel aggression, can only make our problems worse."

"No doubt we should ultimately defeat the other side," he said, "but only at the expense of destroying our own way of life and our own civilization."

Striking at those who criticize the United Nations, he said: "Ask them what their solution is for the problem of organizing international peace, and don't allow them to ride off with the suggestion the UN must make decisions and enforce them."

Biblical Play, Magda Given At St. Paul's

Magda, a Biblical play, written by Ethel Geshner Rockwell, was produced on Sunday night by the Young People's Association of St. Paul's Presbyterian church. It was directed by Roger Davis and incidental music was produced by the organist and senior choir.

The play was in seven scenes, the first six taking place during Passion Week and the seventh some days later. Its location was a garden in Jerusalem and the stage was set before the centre aisle in the front of the church.

Miss Jean Leach played the part of Magda, a young Greek woman living in Jerusalem and betrothed to Thomas the doubting disciple, who was played by Roger Davis. Others taking part were Hannah, a Hebrew serving woman to Magda, Ruth Curtis; Simonides, father to Magda, Edgar Kee; Peter, one of Christ's disciples, Jim Davidson; John, the beloved disciple, Ray McFadyen; Philip and Thades, Greeks from Athens and cousins to Magda, Robert Oliver and C. Bulmer, and a Roman soldier, John Amos.

During the service the Junior Choral Group and the Boys' Choir were heard in one number each.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP)—The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 1⅛ per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Friday's noon rate was 98½ cents. Pound sterling $2.77 9-16, unchanged.

Found Guilty Of Possessing Bottles Of Wine

Dudley Shilling of the Curve Lake Indian Reserve was fined $20 and $4.50 costs today when he pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession of 10 quarts of wine.

Evidence of the RCMP was that there had been numerous complaints that Shilling had been bootlegging on the reserve.

"There's a difference between being found with one bottle of beer and 10 quarts of wine," Magistrate W. R. Philp told Shilling.

Wilfred James Hawkins, 28, 592 Park St. S., was sentenced to seven days in jail and his car was impounded for three months when he pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk driving.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, said that no accident was involved but that the accused had been weaving all over the street in his car and there had been several near accidents.

DRIVING IMPAIRED

Francis M. Towns, 41, Bowmanville, was fined $75 and $2.50 costs when he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while impaired by alcohol. The Crown Attorney said there had been an accident involving minor damage.

William R. Campbell, 20, Lakeview, was fined $10 and $2.50 costs when he pleaded guilty to a drunk charge.

James Boudreau, 42, Kirkland Lake, was fined $50 and $2.50 or one month in jail when he pleaded guilty to a second offence drunk charge.

Cobourg Dye Works Closes Leaving 48 Unemployed

COBOURG— (ENS) — Described by one employee of long service as "a bolt from the blue," the Bradford Dyeing Association, has announced that it will close its Cobourg plant and transfer its Cobourg business to the Montreal plant.

This act dumps about 48 employees, some of them with more than 35 years service into the ranks of the unemployed.

Mayor Jack Burnet described it as a serious economic blow to the town. John Ewart, president of the Chamber of Commerce declared that the sooner the building is either re-opened or made available to some other industry the better.

Following is the announcement from the company as given to The Examiner by Hugh Cameron, manager of the plant on Saturday afternoon.

"It is with regret that we have to announce our intention to close our Cobourg plant immediately. The fact that it is one of the oldest established dyeing and finishing plants in Canada, well-equipped and turning out work of the highest quality, makes this step all the more regrettable.

HEAVY COMPETITION

"Owing to the serious reduction in volume of domestic production of wool goods available for commission dyeing in the face of heavy competition from imported wool and rayon goods, we are not justified in keeping open both our Cobourg and Montreal plants.

"The Cobourg business will therefore be handled in future by our Montreal plant, where we are in a position to give our customers the same finishes and services they have received in the past from Cobourg.

"It is our hope that market conditions will quickly improve to the extent of enabling us to renew our activities at Cobourg."

The dye works started here in the early part of the First World War and were operated as the Cobourg Dye Works by the late David Dick. Later the plant was purchased by Consolidated Piece Dyers and more recently by Bradford Dyeing Association.

Some of the employees have spent most of their working life there. For instance Miss Irene Cavannaugh has been employed there for about 38 years. Wilfred Campbell has worked there 34 years. Others have been employed for over 25 years at the same plant.

SERIOUS BLOW

Commenting that the dye works had been in operation here for about 40 years, Mayor Jack Burnet declared that it was a serious blow for Cobourg.

"Many of the employees have worked at the dye works for many years. I earnestly hope that the plant either starts operating again under the present owners or that it is made available for some other industry," said Mayor Burnet.

"This is quite a loss in wages to Cobourg," said John Ewart, president of the Cobourg Chamber of Commerce. "The whole matter hinges on how long it is to remain closed. If the company does not re-open the plant here within a reasonable time, I would like to see it put up for sale so that some other firm can open up and run it. It would be very regretable if it is to stay idle a long time."

The Examiner was informed that only two employees, the manager and the superintendent, will have the opportunity to go to Montreal. The remainder, about 40 men and eight women, are out of jobs. For some who have been doing the same kind of work for many years, it will be quite a wrench to switch to a different type of employment. Even if jobs were available in dye works in other centres, it would mean breaking home ties of many years' standing.

Wins Literary Prize

VENICE, Italy (Reuters)—A Norwegian novelist, Tarjei Vessaas, today was named the winner of the Venice International Literary Prize—considered next in rank after the Nobel Prize—for the best European harrative work of 1952, his novel "The Twenty." The prize is worth $8,000.

2 Million Starving

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Nationalist China's defence ministry said today at least 2,000,000 Chinese are starving in the Red China mainland provinces of Yunnan, Sikang, Szechwan, Kweichow and Kwangtung. It said tremendous shipments of food to the Soviet Union has caused a famine.

Canadian Jets Ready For U.K.

BONN (AP)—Nearly 100 Canadian-made F-86 Sabre jets are ready for delivery to Britain, RCAF officials said here today.

Canada is giving between 300 to 400 of the fighters to the RAF.

Nearly 100 of them now are poised at Goose Bay, Labrador, ready for delivery across the Atlantic, the RCAF said here.

The Sabres are the only Allied planes in service today which can fight on equal terms with the Russian MiG 15s. The Allied squadrons in Western Europe have been at a disadvantage in relation to the Soviet air forces in East Germany and the satellite countries for lack of faster jets.

Thirty per cent of the cost of the Sabres including components and engines is borne by the United States as mutual aid to Britain, and the remaining 70 per cent by Canada.

The RAF in Germany, forming part of the second Allied tactical air force, is already training pilots and preparing equipment to put the Sabres into operational service.

Finland in 1952 had about 20,000 tractors, or one for every five farms.

Surgeon Thinks Smoking Increasing Lung Cancer

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A surgeon to-day gave this advice about stomach ulcers and cigaret smoking to men of about 40 or over:

Be suspicious of stomach cancer if you suddenly lose taste for foods and lose a lot of weight, and if "ulcer" treatments don't help in a few weeks. The suspected ulcer may be cancer; you may well save your life by having most of the stomach removed.

If you have chest discomfort and are a heavy cigaret smoker, get a chest X-ray every three months. He thinks cigaret smoking is a main cause of rapidly increasing lung cancer. The X-rays can be insurance to find lung cancer early, when it can be cured.

These advices came from Dr. Alton Ochsner, professor of surgery at Tulane University medical school, describing cancer experiences to science writers on an American Cancer Society tour.

Only about five to 10 per cent of stomach cancers are being cured now by removing most or all of the stomach, he said. By the time such cancers appear in X-rays, they're usually too big to be cured.

Dr. Ochsner thinks the answer is to treat any possibility of stomach cancer as though it really were cancer—and take out most of the stomach. Enough can be left to permit normal eating and living.

Compromise To Obtain Peace

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Saying another farewell to the United Nations he served for seven years as secretary-general, Trygve Lie argued Sunday that negotiated compromises could bring world peace.

There can be no settlement in the Far East, he said, unless Communist China "is a party to it." Nor can "unconditional surrender" bring real peace in Korea.

Lie spoke in a recorded message broadcast over the world in honor of the eighth anniversary of the United Nations' founding in San Francisco.

A Korean armistice, he said, would be a great victory for collective security under the UN but "real peace and freedom for Korea . . .may be a long time in coming."

"It is not possible to foresee a Korean settlement except in relation to other Far East issues and there can be no settlement unless the People's Republic of China is a party to it."

Treatment For Queen

ROME (AP) — Iran's young Queen Soraya arrived in Rome today to receive medical treatment. Her husband, the Shah, remained in Iran. Later the 21-year-old Queen may visit Spain. A court spokesman in the Iranian capital said Sunday she would stay in Europe more than two months. The nature of her ailment was not disclosed.

Envoy To London

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — The pro-Nationalist China News said today Red China is planning to send its first ambassador to London. The English-language daily newspaper said the ambassador would be Chang Han-fu, a Communist vice-minister for foreign affairs. Britain recognized the Red regime in January, 1950, and sent a charge d'affaires to Peiping.

Charge Hotel Porter With Stocking Slaying

LONDON (AP) — Authorities charged a hotel porter today with murder in the "nylon stocking" strangling of a blonde in a Bayswater apartment.

The porter, 39-year-old John Kaskayne, appeared before a magistrate and was ordered held for another hearing May 4.

The scantily-clad body of Mrs. Grace (Babs) Darrington, 50, wife of a travelling salesman, was found last week in her apartment. She had been strangled with one of her own stockings.

Mrs. Darrington's murder attracted particular attention because her apartment was just around the corner from London's Notting Hill "house of horror"—the sleazy tenement in which six women were found strangled several weeks before. A tenant in the house, trucking clerk John Christie, has been charged with four of the Notting Hill murders.

11,300 Lbs. Of Oleo Seize In Quebec

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — RCMP seized 11,300 pounds of margarine and a truck during the week-end, arresting the driver, Wilfrid Roy, 36, Waterville, Que., on a charge of smuggling.

Roy appeared in court Saturday and his case was postponed to April 30. He was freed on bail.

The arrest and seizure took place at Burroughs Falls, 23 miles from here.

Two People Killed In Highway Crash

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que (CP) —Two persons were killed Sunday night and four others injured in a highway accident at nearby St. Fulgence.

Benoit Constand and Mariette Arsenault, both of Victoriaville, Que., died in hospital several hours after the accident.

Injured and in hospital were Guy Chartier, Paul Mercier, Jacques Lascelles and Louis Robichaud, all of Drummondville.

Cardinal Has Relapse

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Valerio Cardinal Valeri, 70, ill with pneumonia, continued to worsen today and there was fear here for his life. The Italian prelate—one of the 24 new cardinals created last January by the Pope—had a high fever today following a relapse.

Officers 'Guinea Pigs'

MUNICH (Reuters)—Fifty United States army officers rushed to a radio Sunday when its commentator excitedly said, "World War III has begun." The officers found they were being used as guinea pigs for a psychological warfare test. The radio was connected to a tape recorder.

Champion Pianist Collapses In Marathon

LE HAVRE, France (AP)—Heinz Arntz, German piano marathon champion, collapsed at his piano today after tapping out 225 hours of melodies and such while his French rival went on and on and on.

They started their competition in a local cabaret here several million notes ago, with the Frenchman, Robert Sergil, determined to beat the German's record of 244 hours.

Arnatz was allowed his brief 50 minutes rest this morning shortly after dawn but when he returned to the piano he slid from his stool to the floor and was hauled off to his hotel unconscious.

Servil kept right on. He must keep going until Tuesday noon, plus or minus a few melodies, to set a new record.

Arthur Godfrey Plans To Have Operation

NEW YORK (AP)—Arthur Godfrey today starts the final week of his multiple radio and television performances before leaving the air to undergo surgery.

He is scheduled to enter a Boston hospital Monday, May 4, for an operation to correct a hip injury suffered 20 years ago in an automobile accident. Although it is expected to be four months before Godfrey can resume his normal activities, a spokesman said the operation is not regarded as dangerous.

Need Supreme Board

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—A "supreme board of inquiry" to replace Congressional committees in investigations of Communism has been proposed by a leading Washington newspaperman. Roscoe Drummond, chief of the Christian Science Monitor's Washington bureau, said Sunday night the board should comprise members of the legislative, executive and judicial branches of government. Investigations, Drummond said, need to be taken out of the hands of "headline seekers."

Suspend Minister

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) —The foreign office announced Sunday night it has suspended Uruguay's minister to Belgium, Eduardo de Arteaga, pending an investigation of a charge by British customs agents at Dover that Arteaga was smuggling diamonds.

English Language Players In Quebec Have Troubles

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—An English-language little theatre group in French Quebec is something out of the ordinary, but no one seems to be excited about it.

"We wish it were otherwise," says Mrs. L. E. Pennington, president and stage director of the Quebec Art Theatre, now putting a cast of 17 players through rehearsals of "Our hearts Were Young and Gay" for a three-night run starting April 30.

"Getting audiences is our biggest problem," the grey-haired veteran of the stage said. "Audiences—and new players."

She estimated there are about 10,000 English-speaking Quebecers in a city of 165,000. "Take away the aged, the children and those who never go to the theatre. What have you left? Yet, most of those who come once will come back for the next production."

FAITHFUL SUPPORTERS

The largest audience in the QAT's seven-year history was 750 "for all three performances of a play." About a half-dozen French-speaking Quebecers—"personal friends"—who are bilingual see every QAT effort.

It costs the QAT $300 to put on a play after cutting corners and strict economy measures, but box office returns are usually so low that Mrs. Pennington and others of the group are often out of pocket.

The group, unsponsored and unsubsidized, pays amusement taxes on the dollar admission and rent to St. Michael's Memorial Hall, in suburban Sillery, where it stages its plays, stores costumes and props, and holds rehearsals. The QAT puts on three productions a year, in September, in mid-winter and in the spring.

Mrs. Pennington, who toured Canada in a professional company before she started directing groups here 23 years ago, is the wife of the secretary-treasurer of the Anglican diocese of Quebec.

"My husband has no interest at all in the theatre, but he's very understanding about my activities."

Mrs. Pennington's big casting problem is to find enough male players. "I have to get on the telephone and ask them to try out.

"The men won't come unless they are asked."

She needed a French-sounding player for the part of a Parisian actor in the comedy by Cornelia Otis Skinner and Emily Kimbrough. She could have called on Peter Chateauvert, a bilingual Quebecer whose mother is English and father French, "but he looks and sounds too much like an Englishman—when he speaks the language, that is."

Finally, Pierre Boucher, director of Les Comediens de Quebec, a French group here, recommended Claude Regent, a radio actor. Regent got the part, and Chateauvert was cast as Otis Skinner, Cornelia's actor-father.

With girls, it's different. They always come in numbers, hoping for even a bit part. Jane Martin and Mary Austen play the roles of Cornelia and Emily, two coeds on a holiday trip to Europe in 1923.

Temperament?

"I wouldn't say men are more temperamental than girls, or vice versa. I've met difficult characters in both sexes."

Wants Deadline On Citizenship

CORNWALL (CP)—T. M. Hulse, Ontario commander of the Canadian Legion said Sunday that immigrants should become Canadian citizens within five years or "go back where they came from."

Speaking at a legion rally at nearby Vankleek Hill, he expressed concern with the way in which immigrants were being absorbed into the Canadian way of life. He said many immigrants slated for agricultural areas ended up in urban centres and made the housing situation worse.

Immigration and citizenship laws stipulate that immigrants must reside in Canada for five years before they become citizens. However, they may file a declaration of intention as soon as they arrive, although government officials favor waiting at least a year.

Geyser In Borneo Wrecks Oil Plant

SINGAPORE (AP) — Geysers spouting gas and mud 70 feet high have swallowed up a concrete building at the British Malayan Petroleum Company's oilfields at Seria, North Borneo. Three hundred persons have been moved from the area.

The first geyser erupted Saturday, weakening the ground so that a $65,000 concrete mass production plant sank into it. Smaller store buildings were pounded to pieces.

Bank Of Canada Shifts Department

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bank of Canada today reshuffled its securities department, naming Hugh A. Benham, 41, of Winnipeg as chief.

Mr. Benham, former manager of Royal Securities Corporation's Winnipeg office, succeeds H. Graham Gammell, 51, of Montreal, who goes to Toronto as the bank's special securities representative.

Mr. Gammell succeeds James W. Grant of Almonte, Ont., now retiring.

Another Ontario University

Carleton College of Ottawa has been incorporated as a university. On Tuesday last, Assumption College of Windsor celebrated its entry into the ranks of chartered universities. We do not view this development with the enthusiasm of the Windsor Star. Does Canada need a multiplicity of universities? This province alone now has seven full-fledged universities, not including the universities collected under the University of Toronto.

* * *

The Windsor Star remarks that Windsor will now have a city university and its students will be able to obtain university degrees without the expense of attending a university in another city. "This will result in a substantial saving". Yes, but will it result in a substantial education? We do not wish to imply by this question that Assumption College cannot and does not provide a sound education. We question that a city university, a home-town university, can do as well by its students as an out-of-town institution. University life is at a disadvantage when nearly all the students live at home. The life at a university as well as the classes have a great deal to do with the liberality and quality of the education secured.

* * *

There is a widespread notion throughout the North American continent that college doors should be open to almost everyone. This results in a demand for more universities and colleges close to the homes of the prospective students. It also causes larger enrolments in existing institutions. It may properly be asked if the pressure for larger and more universities should not be resisted? Or could it be relieved by supplying more junior colleges and technical schools and encouraging their social acceptance? Universities should be selective, for a relatively small part of the population is fitted by interest or capacity for higher learning of the kind universities should give. Professor Arthur Lower, writing in Saturday Night, calls attention to the low calibre of the average university student now, as indicated by elementary matters such as spelling and writing simple English. "It is still more in evidence when it comes to information, a critical sense and general mental alertness." Will more and bigger universities not result in a lowering of standards, rather than a raising of them?

* * *

President Conant of Harvard (now American High Commissioner to Germany) has suggested in a recent book Education and Liberty, a survey of the role of schools in a modern democracy, that the U.S. in the future must endeavour to combine the British concern for training 'the natural aristocracy of talents' with the American insistence on a general education for all future citizens. To do this he recommends not larger and more universities, but more selective and exacting standards at universities. To take care of the bulk of prospective students he recommends two years of general education to follow the regular high school program. This could be given in special schools and junior colleges. He suggests that in order to make them socially acceptable and also to channel more students to them and fewer to the universities, that these junior colleges award degrees. The expense would be less, every large centre could have its own degree-giving institution. The universities would be less cluttered.

* * *

Would such a plan be acceptable in Canada? It is worth considering. A dozen years from now the pressure on our university rolls will be very great, as the present swollen population of the elementary schools reaches high school leaving age. Quebec now has colleges, in the French classical pattern, which act as senior high schools and junior colleges. As in France students of these colleges are admitted to the bachelor degree about two years earlier than in Ontario and other Canadian universities. Junior colleges, which are not preparatory to the last two years of university but offer complete courses in themselves, may possibly provide advanced education and technical training which universities are now called on to give. There may be a need for a new university to serve northern and north-western Ontario. But here in southern Ontario, could the future expanded requirements of the majority of prospective students be met by special junior colleges, while the existing institutions provide for those with a special interest in and capacity for learning which is really higher?

Mr. Howe Abjures Sweetness

The only Canadian cabinet minister who strikes out at his political opponents with the autocratic roar of Churchill is the Right Hon. C. D. Howe. Mr. Churchill put on a verbal show in the British Parliament this week, charging the Labour opposition with "false and filthy" conduct. On the same day in Ottawa Mr. Howe had a resounding clash with a beet sugar grower who is Conservative M.P. for Lambton West.

Mr. Howe accused the sugar man of being a "stooge" for the president of the Dominion Sugar Company—with whom Mr. Howe has already clashed. He later withdrew the word, when the chairman ruled it unparliamentary. He also accused the Lambton member of repeating "slanderous hearsay". He said "My honourable friend is the only person low enough to make that kind of statement, not knowing anything about it". The Lambton member asked Mr. Howe to withdraw this remark. Mr. Howe: "I will not". The chairman intervened, saying he was not sure that he could rule the word "low" as unparliamentary, but, he said, he was sure the Minister would not wish to offend the Lambton member. "I would be delighted to," said Mr. Howe.

It was a lively interchange, yet despite Mr. Howe's stated willingness to offend the sugar-beet member, Mr. Howe has given way to the sugar beet interests. An embargo has been placed on importing Cuban sugar, just what the Ontario sugar people wanted. There is some suggestion that the embargo was imposed by Cuba—thus seemingly relieving the Government of responsibility for it. But the real responsibility lies with Ottawa; it is inconceivable that the Cuban government would volunteer to cut off its own market in Canada.

The result of the embargo is that the Canadian sugar refineries will have a virtual monopoly, and sugar beet growers in south-western Ontario will have an assured market for their crops.

The Secretary of the Canadian Sugar Beet Producers' Association said Mr. Howe had told him that the growers could expect a marked improvement in sugar prices this autumn as a result of the embargo. We do not view this with pleasure. "A marked improvement in sugar prices" can only be achieved at the cost of the consumer, who pays for it either in higher prices for the sugar, or through taxation if Government subsidies are used to stabilize the retail price.

Some Fine Work In The Theatre

In 1952 the adjudicators of the Dominion Drama Festival did a fine job in encouraging theatre groups all over the country to put on better plays. Pierre Lefevre, who is remembered by Peterborough audiences, preached this gospel in the ten provinces; Michel St. Denis backed him up when he was judge of the final festival at St. John, N.B. The result is to be seen in the program for the final festival of this year, which will be held in Victoria, B.C. during the first week in May.

Of the eight plays to be presented, three are acknowledged classics. Shakespeare's Othello will be performed by an Edmonton group; Ben Jonson's Volpone, by the University of British Columbia. Moliere's Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme (seen in Peterborough recently as The Prodigious Snob, played by the P.C.V.S. group) goes to Victoria from the Maritimes. Two of the plays are from the finest in the modern repertoire—The Madwoman of Chaillot by Giraudoux, and Family Reunion by T. S. Eliot. An unusual American play of fine quality, Dark of the Moon is the contribution of the London Little Theatre. An original Canadian play in French, of uncommon interest, is Zone, by Marcel Dube, which is performed by a Montreal group. These are the winners from more than eighty plays seen across the continent, and Mr. Lefevre, who is to adjudicate the Victoria festival, will be able to see the practical result of his work in 1952. It is a striking evidence of the readiness of the people engaged in Little Theatre work in Canada to accept criticism and suggestion, and to raise their standards.

Royal Yachts

President Eisenhower has ordered the presidential yacht to be stored. Some persons take this as a gesture of economy; the yacht costs about $75,000 a year to operate and the President has called it "a symbol of luxury". There may be other reasons for giving up the yacht. President Eisenhower is a landsman, and the yacht is notoriously a wallower, making nauseating way in even a ripple on Chesapeake Bay. At the same time that the Presidential yacht is taken out of commission, a new Royal yacht is launched by the Queen at Clydebank. The ship is a symbol of luxury, but more than that, a symbol of the Island Kingdom and her searfaring monarchs. There would be a genuine regret in British people of all walks of life if the Queen were to give up her yacht. To do so would be to wrench history and tradition. A special article on this page today shows how long and colourful that tradition is.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

IT is a fairly common saying that music and mathematics have a good deal in common, that musicians are usually good mathematicians and conversely that mathematicians are usually good musicians. It is certainly true that there is a very intimate connection between the science of numbers and the art of combining sounds. Every musical sound is the result of vibrations (alternate expansions and contractions of the air) that emanate from the string or column of air in much the same fashion as the ripples on the surface of a pond when a stone is dropped. The vibrations differ in frequency—the rapid ones are the high notes and the slow ones the low notes. The human ear picks up these vibrations in the atmosphere and transmits them to the brain, which recognizes them as "sounds." Some vibrations are too rapid for the human ear to pick up: this principle has been utilized in the construction of whistles that can be heard by dogs but not by the human ear for police purposes. There are also vibrations that are too slow for us to hear as musical sounds; if I wave my arm backwards and forwards I cannot hear a musical tone, but if a fly waves its wings I hear a more or less high-pitched buzz.

Modern science has made it possible to measure the frequency of these vibrations, ranging approximately between 16 and 30,000 vibrations per second. The compass of the piano, which includes the notes of pretty well every other musical instrument stretches from 26 to 4,138 vibrations per second.

✧ ✧ ✧

OUR SCALES and chords are built on mathematical relationships. The octave, the most concordant of all intervals is a mathematical ratio of 2 to 1. For instance, if the tuning note of the orchestra, which is A in the treble clef, is 435 vibrations per second, then the octave above it is 870. Here are the ratios of some of the other intervals: perfect fifth 3 to 2, perfect fourth 4 to 3, major third 5 to 4, minor third 6 to 5, major second 9 to 8, and so on. It will be noticed that the "perfect concords" of the text-book have simpler ratios than the imperfect concords, while a discord such as a major second has a comparatively complicated ratio. It therefore appears that our system of designating chords and discords, though necessarily somewhat arbitrary, can be shown to have some basis in the physical nature of things.

✧ ✧ ✧

RHYTHM, too, is largely a matter of mathematics, as any student frantically mugging up enough information on key signatures for an examination knows. A key signature has something of the function, as well as the appearance, of a fraction. Actually most of the rhythmic progression of music of the period 1700-1900 is of a simple and straightforward character. It was a delusion of the Victorian era, steeped in the simple four-bar phrases of Mendelssohn's Songs Without Words, that Elizabethan music was unrhythmical. Far from it, the polyrhythmic schemes of the Elizabethans were beyond the ken of the nineteenth century. The present century, with its "neo-primitivism", has taken more interest in unusual rhythmical combinations. It is well-known that many of the so-called primitive peoples have a highly-developed rhythmical sense. The rhythm of the rumba, for example, which hails from some primitive origin, has a rhythmical pattern of 3+3+2. Though this can be expressed in the key signature of common time it differs from it inasmuch as the eighth notes in common time are grouped regularly as 2+2+2+2. The answer in both cases adds up to eight eighth notes, but instead of having four equally spaced stresses the rumba has three irregularly spaced stresses, giving the effect of slow waltz "out of focus".

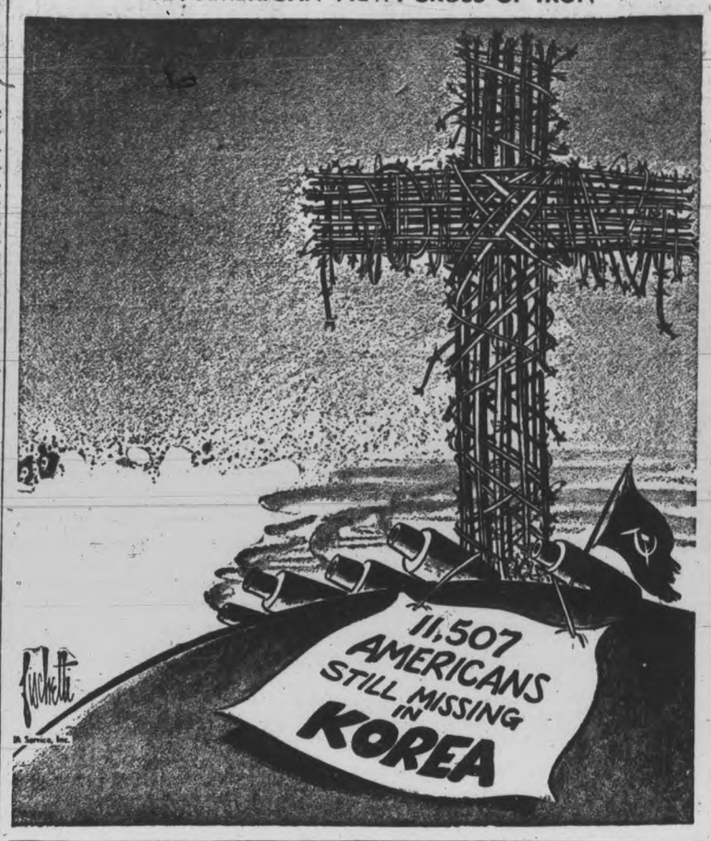
✧ ✧ ✧

THE MAIN difference between music and mathematics lies less in the subject matter, which as I have shown overlaps to a certain extent, but in the approach to the two subjects. Mathematics is a science. Its aim is to measure and calculate. It is not primarily interested in questions of beauty. A mathematician may with justice exclaim that the solution of such-and-such a problem is beautiful, but this is a by-product, the important thing being whether the solution fits the facts as we know them or points out the necessity to modify our theories. Music, on the other hand, is an art, and art is not concerned first and foremost with facts. Art is the creation of that indefinable thing beauty.

Naturally a good deal of science goes into all but the most rudimentary forms of art, but the artist who relies entirely on his knowledge of perspective or strict counterpoint can produce only a frigid counterfeit of the real thing; his knowledge must be suffused with a feeling for beauty of form and texture that calculation and learning alone cannot give; in other words he must be a creator, and as such he can be said to be godlike.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT IS fairly generally supposed that the saxophone was a child of the Terrible Twenties; actually it was invented over a hundred years ago by Adolphe Sax, a Belgian instrument maker who learned his trade in his father's workship. He moved to Paris in 1842, shortly after his epoch-making discovery, in search of fame and fortune. He was successful in the former, but his lack of business acumen caused him to go bankrupt in 1852.



Nothing daunted he started up again, but after some initial success the business declined and he was obliged to sell out. In addition to the saxophone he invented the saxhorn and the saxo-tromba. These instruments were taken up by French military bands, ousting the horns, oboes and bassoons. The saxophone was used in the orchestra by Meyerbeer, Thomas, Saint-Saens, Vincent d'Indy, and more recently by Ravel (in his Bolero).

Outside France it has been neglected by composers, though Richard Strauss used a quartet of them in different pitches for his Domestic Symphony. Doubtless Sax himself, were he alive today, would be hurt at its neglect by "serious" composers and flabbergasted at some of the uses to which it has been put by Tin Pan Alley!

✧ ✧ ✧

LAST WEDNESDAY night the CBC gave us Stravinsky's new opera, the Rake's Progress, which had been broadcast from the Met a few weeks before. Owing to a previous engagement I heard only the closing scenes. Admittedly Stravinsky's way of writing for the voice seems terribly angular and against the grain, but there is a robust quality to it that evokes in some strange way the smelly, bawdy and vital London of Hogarth's day. The epilogue was obviously modelled on Don Giovanni, where all the characters come alive again to point the moral. Concerning the work as a whole I would rather suspend judgment until I have actually seen it staged, but to me it hardly seems to deserve the severe strictures heaped upon it by so many of the critics.

AN AMERICAN VIEW: CROSS OF IRON

Royal Sea-Faring

By CYRIL DUNN

WHEN the new Royal yacht was launched by the Queen at Clydebank on April 16, it joined a line of small Royal ships which reaches back to 1660.

The total is surprisingly big. Some of the authorities list more than seventy Royal yachts and the number remains high even if one allows for a somewhat generous interpretation of the earlier naval records. The ship in which the King's cooks accompanied Charles II on his yachting trips, for example, appears in Paymaster Commander Gavin's entertaining book as the Royal yacht "Kitchen."

The fact is, of course, that Sovereigns of the past have usually had more than one yacht, some of them many more. Charles II is said to have had twenty-six altogether, and George I had fifteen. Standards changed with the times and Reformers in William IV's Parliament thought five Royal yachts was extravagant.

It has also to be remembered that the yachts have never been used exclusively for the Royal pleasure; designing the new one for easy conversion into a hospital ship is in keeping with an old tradition. Built for speed, the Royal yachts were also used as despatch boats in State affairs and as fleet auxiliaries; one or two were lost in sea battles.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN ANY EVENT and Radicals apart, most British people are likely to feel that the Sovereign of a maritime nation needs a personal ship. What will strike them as remarkable in the records of the Royal yachts is not so much their number as the lateness of the date with which the list begins.

It is generally supposed that the British have never been more maritime than they were in the first Elizabethan age. It was then that British sea-dogs made their notable voyages and overthrew the great sea-borne power of Spain. Yet Elizabeth I had no yacht of her own and never made a sea voyage.

There are some who argue that Royal yachting began before 1660. Sixty years earlier, a shipwright called Phineas Pett built "a little vessel" for the eldest son of James I, in which he could "disport himself above London Bridge." This ship, called "Disdain," was a 25 ft. model of the warship "Ark Royal." But it was not a sea-going vessel and is, in fact, memorable chiefly as a courtly device used by Pett to get the job of Master Shipwright (builder of ships for the Royal Navy), to which he was not entitled and which launched him into a career of embezzlement remarkable even by 17th Century standards.

But it was from the Dutch that Britain got the idea of a special ship for Royal use. Charles II began his return voyage to England at the Restoration in a yacht the Dutch loaned him and was so enthusiastic in his thanks that shortly afterwards they sent him a yacht of his own.

Now generally recognised as the first Royal yacht, this vessel was called "Mary" after the King's sister who was with him on his return from exile and probably did not share his delight, since she was sea-sick.

One may wonder if Charles II, not usually regarded as an open-air man, was as genuinely interested in ocean-sailing as some writers now suggest. The gay, elaborate decoration of his little ships, in which 17th Century marine artists took so much pleasure, and his habit of naming some of them after his mistresses, suggests rather that even the Royal yachting was consistent with the sophisticated frivolity of his Court. "Fubbs", the King's pet-name for the Duchess of Portsmouth, remained for about 100 years in the dignified environment of the Navy List.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE MORE SERIOUS employment of Royal yachts developed naturally in the reigns of William and Mary, and of the Hanoverian Kings. Each of these monarchs had duties on the Continent as well as in England and needed a private fleet for crossing the Channel. But they used the yachts for pleasure, too, as when George III took his family for the holidays to Weymouth on the South Coast. They also began the practice, later so highly developed by Queen Victoria, of going by sea to visit the sea-ports and remoter parts of their kingdom. George IV went to Scotland in the "Royal George"; the novelist Sir Walter Scott, who really organized the visit, met the King on board, slipped into his pocket the glass from which His Majesty took wine, and in the subsequent excitement sat down on it.

But one may doubt if any Sovereign has ever enjoyed having a yacht more than Queen Victoria did. She began with the old sailing ship "Royal George", but found being towed about by steamers tedious and old-fashioned. The first of the series of steam yachts called "Victoria and Albert" was built for her in 1843 and in this she began a sea-borne life the placidity of which was not really disturbed by incidents which enlivened her first cruise. At Ryde the mate fell over-board; further along the South Coast his example was followed by the Mayor, in his robes and carrying the mace.

The Queen's favourite yacht was undoubtedly the second "Victoria and Albert". It was decorated inside with exceptional taste by the Prince Consort and it is clear that Her Majesty's attitude towards the ship was essentially domestic. It was her floating home for fifty years and in it she was content never to go very far from the coasts of her kingdom. When a third "Victoria and Albert" had to be built, she evidently hated the idea, insisted that it should largely follow the design of the old, and even so never went aboard it.

At her death, one of the smaller Royal yachts, the "Alberta", carried her body from her "marine establishment" on the Isle of Wight, and the "Victoria and Albert" followed her through the Fleet, with minute guns firing—one of the most moving naval spectacles ever seen.

Later Sovereigns have cruised further into foreign waters in their yachts. Edward VII, or more particularly, his Queen, paid regular family visits to the Mediterranean and to Norwegian harbours. On one unforgettable occasion, the "Victoria and Albert" had a cavalry escort—when Edward VII visited Germany and sailed through the Kiel Canal.

The new Royal Yacht, serving a Queen known to be interested in sailing and with a husband who belongs to the sea, may be expected to sustain the long and splendid tradition of Royal sea-faring.—(Copyright).

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Many, O Lord my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to us-ward: they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee: if I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered. Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire; mine ears hast thou opened: burnt offering and sin offering hast thou not required. Then said I, Lo, I come: in the volume of the book it is written of me, I delight to do thy will, O my God: yea, thy law is within my heart. (Ps. 40:5-8.)

✧ ✧ ✧

The elders which are among you I exhort, who am also an elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed: feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind; neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock. And when the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.

Likewise, ye younger, submit yourselves unto the elder. Yea, all of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility: for God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble. Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time. (I Pet. 5:1-6.)

Peace Fears

(L'Action Catholique)

Can the human mind ever liberate itself from fear? After living for several years past under the menace of war, the world is now disturbed over the "dangers" of peace! It has been sufficient for the Communists to make several gestures of conciliation, the sincerity of which remains to be proven, to provoke a drop in values on the United States and Canadian stock exchanges. Thought is being given to the formidable industrial apparatus that has been set up on the North American continent to meet at one the military exigence and the needs of civil consumption, and it is feared that the advent of an agreement susceptible of peaceful settling the different international problems may put the industrial machine out of order, rendering it partially inactive, and so causing economic depression and unemployment.

But, in sane logic, how can it be believed that war alone is compatible with prosperity, that peace is an adventure bristling with perils and that it is more advantageous to fabricate guns and munitions than to build homes and produce foodstuffs? If so, there is surely something wrong with our economy.

New Bureaucracy Cause Of Much Worry To Danes

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — Among the proposed changes in the constitution which Danes will be asked to approve in a country-wide referendum later this year, probably in June, is one which would appoint a civil commissioner to investigate complaints about bureaucrats who behave like autocrats.

Danes are worried over the increasing powers of civil servants under modern legislation which often gives them extensive executive power.

It is proposed to appoint an ombudsman, or sort of watchdog, to see that the bureaucrats behave themselves. The ombudsman, although appointed by Parliament, would be independent of the legislature and free to carry out his investigations.

All civil servants would come under his jurisdiction.

All Danish citizens will be able to write to the ombudsman who will be required to keep secret the identity of those submitting complaints.

The ombudsman will be a highly qualified lawyer and will be paid the same salary as a high court judge of the highest rank. Once a year he will be required to make a report to Parliament.

He will have to see that all servants of the state, from minister to messenger, do their jobs properly, according to the law.

If he finds that laws have been broken he can demand that the public prosecutor take action.

Since the proposal is necessarily somewhat experimental, Parliament is required to reconsider the measure not later than during the Parliamentary year 1955-56.

South Korean PoW Forced To Fight

FREEDOM VILLAGE, Korea (AP)—A South Korean soldier freed by the Communists Saturday said he was drafted into the Red army and "sent into battle with North Korean soldiers" against his own countrymen.

Of the 400 South Korean prisoners returned so far, Pte. Kim Hung Noh is the first to tell of being forced to fight his comrades.

The UN command has accused the Communists of pressing into military service perhaps as many as 30,000 South Koreans the Reds have said were released at the front.

Kim said he was "in action for two months" with the North Koreans following his capture in 1951. After the truce talks started, he said he was sent to a prison camp near the Yalu river.

Writer Paid $70,000 In Royalties

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Some 40 years ago a young Yale student named Alonzo Elliott wrote a march for his fraternity convention.

If the music world ever noticed it, it was quickly forgotten. A copy submitted to an English publisher gathered dust.

Then came the First World War and the English publisher, strolling along the Thames, ran into a group of Canadian soldiers quick-stepping along and singing: "There's A Long, Long Trail A-Winding . . ."

The publisher hurried back to his office to start off the song officially on the long, long way which has brought author Elliott $70,000 in royalties over the years. It still brings Elliott an average of about $1,000 a year.

STILL WRITING MUSIC

At 61, Elliott still is writing music—as a student in the music department of the University of New Mexico. If it seems strange for a successful song writer to be sharing a classroom with youngsters, Elliott has an explanation:

"Early success can be detrimental, as it was in my case," he admits.

There's no doubt about the success of his "Long, Long Trail." Canadian soldiers picked it up from Elliott's fraternity brothers. As a marching song, it spread quickly to other British troops.

When the U.S. entered the war, "Long, Long Trail" was slowed from march to a ballad and sung as a nostalgic reminder of home.

WRITTEN AS MARCH

Elliott considers the slower American version sentimental. It was written as a march and Elliott has decided marches are what he does best.

With the money from "Long, Long Trail," Elliott went to Europe in 1929. He travelled the continent trying to write light, popular songs, "like Irving Berlin."

After repeated failures, he settled down and wrote the militant opera "Top Sergeant" following 20 years of work.

Another of his better known works is the "British Eighth" march, accepted as their march by Montgomery's troops while they were chasing Rommel's Afrika Corps.

He took his bachelor's degree in music from the University of Arizona in 1948 and now is working on a master's degree. Elliott is composing a southwestern opera in the grand style based on the life of Billy the Kid.

Gains of More than 100% in Speculative Issues

The record of the last few months has proved that Canadian markets are capable of providing unusual profit opportunities. For instance, in the first quarter of 1953, shares of Gunnar Gold Mines advanced from $2.25 to a high of $13.50, for a gain of 500%.

Shares of Chimo Mines, in the same short period, advanced from 72c to a high of $4.40; New Larder from 13c to $2.85; Fargo Oils from $1.28 to $2.99; Cons. Golden Arrow from 40c to $1.35; Eastern Metals from 45c to 2.34; Inspiration Mining from 35c to $5.10. Such movements could occur again. They appear to have no relationship to what is happening at New York or in any other market, because they are based on Canada's expanding metal and oil development. Our MARKET DESPATCH is intended to supply news on Canadian market opportunities as they develop.

Charges Liquor Advertising Just Cloak For Premier

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario was accused Saturday of "hiding behind a cloak" in his policy on liquor advertising.

John Duncan, president of the Ontario Federation of Printing Trades Unions, said: "The government is exploiting publishers by forcing them to ship publications to Quebec for mailing back to Ontario so they can carry liquor ads." He said: "Mr. Frost is hiding behind a cloak in permitting the present situation of liquor advertising."

He was speaking on a resolution passed at the annual meeting of representatives of the 7,000-members of the federation, held here during the weekend.

The resolution said the publishing business in Ontario was faced with unfair competition from Quebec and United States publishers because of the additional cost of shipping their publications to Quebec.

David Lewis, national vice-chairman of the CCF party, said that the premises on which Ontario labor laws were based were wrong.

He said these premises are that working people are chattels over whom the employer can exercise control at will, and that the employer is concerned only with showing a profit to his shareholders and need have no regard for his workers.

Profits must take second place to the welfare and happiness of all working people, he said.

OTHER RESOLUTIONS

The conference passed other resolutions attacking labor legislation in Ontario.

One claimed that judges and other members of conciliation boards accept too many cases at one time, and because of this are not able to dispose of them within the 14-day period prescribed by the act.

Another protested the long delay in conciliation proceedings before a strike can be called.

Cheque Forgers Trick Merchants

GODERICH (CP) — A team of cheque forgers visited Goderich Saturday and left about $200 richer after victimizing three local merchants.

The men and woman made small purchases at the Major store, Fashion Shop and Gerrard's Clothing. In payment they offered cheques for $72.48, stamped "the Tillson Company Limited" and signed by the "company treasurer."

Provincial police said descriptions of the pair indicated they were the same forgers that had been passing them in Kitchener, Stratford, St. Thomas, St. Marys, London and Woodstock.

Tillsonburg police are seeking the team for questioning as the Tillson Company office in Tillsonburg was broken into some months ago. Among the articles stolen were some rubber stamps marked "the Tillson Company Limited" which it is presumed are being used by the cheque artists.

The business now is carried on under the official name of "the E. D. Tillson Estate Ltd."

Two Toronto Students Awarded Scholarships

TORONTO (CP)—Two University of Toronto students, Joan Presant of Toronto and Charles Hanly of Clinton, have been awarded National Woodrow Wilson fellowships.

The fellowships are one-year awards for young scholars showing "marked promise for the teaching profession." they are sponsored by the Association of Graduate Schools in the Association of American Universities.

Hanly will continue his work in philosophy, politics and economics at Oxford.

Battalion Colors Deposited In Church

HAMILTON (CP)—The colors of the 4th Canadian Infantry Battalion Veterans Association were deposited Saturday in St. Thomas Anglican Church. They were brought here from Brantford.

Members of the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry and veterans of the 4th battalion took part in the ceremony. Also present was the senior surviving officer, Col. William Rae of Surrey, England, who came here for the occasion.

The colors were made by a group of Brantford women in 1917.

Sees No Justification For Further Inquiry

WINDSOR (CP) — Crown attorney Bruce J. S. Macdonald said during the week-end he can see no justification for further investigation into the deaths April 8 of factory worker Gordon Kellow, 50, and his eight-year-old son, Richard.

A coroner's jury decided Friday the deaths were due to carbon monoxide poisoning but recommended "further investigation" in view of the "peculiar and mysterious circumstances."

The two apparently died in their sleep while Mrs. Kellow, 38, and another son, John 10, slept unharmed.

Husky Soldier Cinderella Movie Actor

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The Cinderella story of the year stars husky 23-year-old Robert Francis, formerly of Pasadena City College and the United States army.

Francis has been named to play Willie Keith, the piano - playing green ensign and hero of "The Cain Mutiny." He will be surrounded by a cast that will include Jose Ferrer and possibly Humphrey Bogart and Richard Widmark.

How does he feel?

"Like a limp rag," he said. "It has all happened so fast that it's a little hard to believe."

Francis never has appeared in a picture or a play.

LUCKY UNKNOWN

Francis got out of the service Feb. 9 and dropped in at Columbia. It was happy timing: the studio was looking for an unknown to play Willie Keith.

Francis read scenes from "The Cain Mutiny" script for producer Stanley Kramer and director Edward Dmytryk, a native of Grand Forks, B.C. They nodded approval and set him for a screen test with Donna Reed.

Now he has a term contract with Columbia and the hero's part in "Mutiny," which ranks second only to the Bible as the best seller of recent times.

Francis is a strapping six-foot-three and 194 pounds. He is ruggedly good looking, with the crew cut you would expect of Willie Keith.

Canada Consigns RCAF Unit To NATO In Ceremony

By ARCH MacKENZIE

ZWEIBRUECKEN, Germany (CP) — Canada unsigned the RCAF's No. 3 fighter wing, crack air unit of Canadian-built and manned Sabre jet fighters, to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Sunday.

The wing, one of the several NATO groups equipped with the fighters capable of handling Russia's MiG 15, was dedicated to NATO at a multi-nation ceremony in brilliant sunshine on the outskirts of this Saar town surrounded by the ruins of Hitler's Siegfried line.

Shortly before Defence Minister Brooke Claxton gave Canada's official blessing, the wing's fighting force and planes from the RCAF No. 2 wing, Gros Tenquin, had flown overhead in a flypast, followed by French-flown F-84 jets.

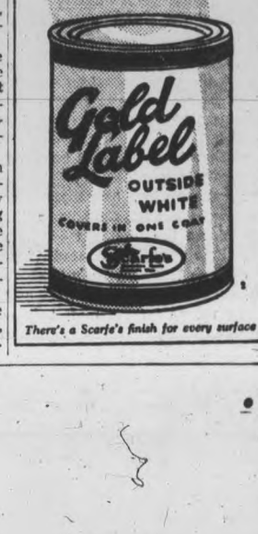
The Canadian Zweibrucken air base was built by German labor following French design.

STEP IN COMMITMENTS

For Canada, the official occupation of one of the most modern and well-equipped fighter bases in Europe marked a step in her NATO air commitments. Nos. 1 and 2 fighter wings have been established at North Luffenham, England, and Gros Tenquin, France, along with No. 1 air division headquarters at Metz.

Claxton in a speech quoted the NATO motto—"Vigilance is the price of liberty"—and said that Canada's contribution to the organization was based on a conviction "burned in by the bitter experience of two world wars."

Speaking first in French and then in English, Claxton said the western world must welcome "every effort to establish understanding and peace," but warned: "Anyone who changes his actions because of an apparent change in the attitude of a Communist is not reading the record right."



Three squadrons based here are the 413th from Bagotville, Que., commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. W. I. (Rocky) Gordon of Vancouver; the 427th from Saint Hubert, Que., under Sqdn. Ldr. C. L. V. Gervais of Waubaushene, Ont., and the 434th from Uplands, Ont., under Flt. Lt. H. S. Tetlock of Mazenod, Sask.

Worthy Effort

HALIFAX (CP)—A jumbo-size "good deed" will be performed by hundreds of Boy Scouts from the Halifax area May 2, when they carry out their annual tree-planting expedition in the city's watershed area. They will plant nearly 4,000 young trees.

GRANT'S SPORT CORNER

By DON GRANT

Boston's red-headed Irishman and Ashburnham's pride and joy, George (Red) Sullivan, is back in Peterborough after another season of hockey spent mostly with the Boston Bruins.

Red, although he didn't see much of the Stanley Cup series with the Montreal Canadiens, had quite a successful year in the big time. It was a thrill just being up for the 37 games and during those games he proved he's ready to stay up.

Offered a job in a Boston clothing store to help tide him over until next season, Red chose to return to Canada, Peterborough and dear old Ashburnham.

Stretched out in a cozy lounging chair, Red said, "Boy, it really feels good to be back with Marion and Danny. I want to line up a job in town as soon as possible, preferably outside to help keep me in shape for next season."

Red was also thinking of Marion's home-cooked meals. While with the Bruins in Beantown the red-head was bunked with Jerry Toppazzini, Bob Armstrong and Warren Godfrey (big Johnny's nephew). The lads weren't exactly comparable to chefs from the Royal York or King Eddy.

During the road trips and around Boston, Red chummed with goalie Sugar Jim Henry. They often recall, laughingly, the night Red scored two goals against Sugar Jim during an exhibition game between Peterborough and Kansas City. Red was only a junior A player then, but proved a match for Henry who was fighting his way back to the big time.

Red admires the Bruins' netminder for his stamina. Henry guarded Ranger nets for a time, alternating with Chuck Rayner; then an accident in which Henry was badly burned at their (Rayner's and Henry's) Hockey Haven nearly ruined Henry's career. Through the semi-pro ranks for a couple of years, Henry has again climbed the ladder.

Looking back over the season's play, especially the Cup series, Red gives the credit for the Canadiens 4-1 win in the finals to the Montreal defence which "played exceptionally well". He believes the Bruins blew their chances in Boston after tying the series one-game each.

The Detroit series didn't help the Bruins any. Red believes that series during which the Bruins played their season's best was too much for the Bruins. The lapse after that series and possibly over-confidence helped the Canadiens.

Of course the highlight of the year for Red was the Bruins-Ranger game when he gathered six points, a goal and five assists. He came close to breaking Billy Taylor's record for the most points in any game. But what's more important to Red is that he tied Bill Cowley's record for the most points scored by a Bruin in a game and broke Cowley's club record for assists. To tie or beat Cowley's record is something! ! !

Red and Family, Marion and Danny

Credit for the night Red gives all to wingers Jake McIntyre and Jerry Toppazzini, saying, "They were really flying."

Red's goal that night is one which he will remember for some time to come. Taking a Godfrey pass at the blueline, he swept in, split the defence, pulled Gump Worsley out, and scored. He has a dandy photo showing him in that bit of action.

But Red's big hockey thrill goes back to his first goal in the N.H.L. That one was against Harry Lumley when he was with Chicago. While circling the Chicago net he took a pass from Bill Quackenbush, flipping the puck in neatly. His dance after that goal has been a playful joke ever since among his teammates.

Did you ever regret leaving Hershey? That was a silly question to ask the red-head who has been fighting for the National Hockey League since a boy.

But Red replied, "Sure I was glad to go into the N.H.L., but in some ways I hated to leave Hershey. I was set in Hershey, going well, and had the family there, but everyone wants to climb into the N.H.L."

Leading the American League scoring early in the season, Red feels that he could have won the scoring crown there this year or "could have come awfully close."

Looking back further, Red thanks Jim Ellis for his grounding away back in the city midget league.

"Jim taught me a lot of hockey, the little things that really helped out on the pro ice lanes." His scouts, Dit Clapper and Baldy Cotton also received a back slap, of course.

What's in sports for Red this summer? Just a little softball with the East City (excuse me, Ashburnham) team and a little golf.

Trojans Tie Series With Win

Trojans tied the final floor hockey series of the YMCA with the Aces Saturday by winning the second game of the best-of-three series 9-7. The Aces won the first game Wednesday night.

The final game of the series will be played tonight at the YMCA and Tuesday night the four teams that form the league will hold a windup banquet at 6:30 p.m.

Jim Heffernan, Bob Payne and Mick Magee scored in the first period as the Trojans jumped ahead 3-1, L. Mongraw scoring the lone goal for the Aces. Then in the secand the teams battled on even terms, Johnny Longo and Stew Brooks each scored twice for the Aces but these were matched by Heffernan, Payne, Magee and Jake Rowley for the Trojans.

Again in the third the Trojans held the lead despite the attack of the Aces. Longo and Brooks again scored for the Aces, but Heffernan and Rowley kept the Trojans out in front.

Charges TV Takes Over Boxing Sport

PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — National boxing commissioner Abe Greene charged today that television, through its control of major boxing clubs and boxing attractions, has virtually taken over the sport without making a commensurate contribution.

Greene, contending that the storm of protest over the officiating in the Jimmy Carter-Tommy Collins fight Friday night brought into sharp focus television's responsibility to millions of fans around the country, said:

"This short-sighted dog-and-bone attitude has squeezed the life-blood out of boxing and put it under a strictly commercial basis. If boxing is so important to television. . . then it should do something to meet the obligation to the sport and to the people who are being inveigled into viewing it by the millions."

The refereee refused to stop the Friday fight, although Collins had been knocked down 10 times, until his seconds jumped into the ring. The action set off a storm of protest all over the country by persons who saw the fight on television.

Greene said that boxing, through the medium of television, lives in a virtual "goldfish bowl." He added that although television has created many new fans, it also could be the influence which could lead to boxing's abolition in the United States.

Greene suggested that television officials assist the NBA in setting up boxing clinics for scoring methods, in indoctrinating officials for TV performances and in preserving the small clubs.

Offer $50,000 To Defend Title

BOSTON (AP)—Promoter Sam Silverman has offered lightweight boxing champion Jimmy Carter of New York $50,000 to defend his crown against Georgie Araujo of Providence, R. I., in Fenway Park or Boston Garden the first week in June.

Silverman, who promoted last Friday night's controversial title match between Carter and Boston's Tommy Collins, said Sunday night he telegraphed the offer of a flat $50,000 guarantee or choice of 37½ per cent of the gate.

"They should fight in Boston," the promoter added, "and it will be hard for Willie Ketchum (Carter's manager) to turn down such a bout here."

St. Peter's Lasses Win, Lose In Exhibition Basketball

Kingston Cathedral High and Notre Dame school girls' basketball teams eked out two wins in three games against Mary Scanlin's St. Peter's High quintettes Saturday afternoon. The Saints junior firsts rolled to an easy 25-14 over Cathedral in the first game, but Cathedral's junior second edged the Saints seconds 16-14 in the second and then Notre Dame intermediates third against the Saints combined juniors and seniors 26-24.

The exhibition games were arranged by Miss Scanlin with Mary Murphy, of Cathedral, and Anne Fallon, of Notre Dame. The girls will play the return games this weekend in Kingston when they will spend the weekend there.

Joanne Kearns, Ruth Hickey and Mickie McNaughton paced the Saints juniors in the first game. They went ahead 12-11 in the first quarter, stayed ahead at the half by a lengthy margin, were still ahead 20-13 at three-quarters and coasted to the win in the fourth. Kearns and Hickey each scored five for the Saints while Susan Ottenhof was best for Cathdral with four.

For St. Peter's seconds in the second game it was their first basketball game and they played well, losing to the more-experienced Cathedral High seconds 16-14. In fact the Saints lasses led 6-5 at the quarter and kept that margin at the half. But Cathedral took a three-point lead at three-quarters and held it throughout the fourth despite pressure by the Saints.

Anne McGlynn and Mary Kearns led the Cathedral scoring with six and four points, respectively. The best for St. Peter's were Mary Crilly, Rosemary DeCarlo and Anne Sullivan.

St. Peter's third team, composed mostly of juniors and seniors, came too close to winning for Notre Dame's comfort. Notre Dame took an early lead, 8-2, in the first quarter. From there the Saints kept climbing up slowly until the third quarter when they went ahead 16-14. But in the fourth Notre Dame, led by Joan Goodfriend, took the lead again to win.

Goodfriend led the Notre Dame scoring with 17. Ruth Hickey, Joanne Kearns and Dorothy Duignan were playing best for St. Peter's.

Top Sprinter Suspended In UK

LONDON (AP)—E. McDonald Bailey, one of the world's top sprinters, was suspended today by the southern sub-committee of the British Amateur Athletic Association for using his name for advertising.

Bailey, co-holder of the world record for 100 metres of 10.2 seconds, appeared before the committee last week concerning an advertisement in an Oxford-Cambridge sports program which referred to a starting block "made to requirements of E. McDonald Bailey, Limited."

Bailey said he intended to appeal the decision and added: "I am the managing director of this company and my name must be used to make a success of it."

Bailey, a native of Trinidad, placed third in the 100-metre final in the 1952 Olympics and fourth in the 200-metre final.

Two Killed In Italy Race

BRESCIA, Italy (AP)—A French driver and a boy were killed and seven others were injured in accidents Sunday in the running of Italy's mille miglia—thousand mile—auto race, won by Italy's Giannino Marzotto in a Ferrari.

Marzotto roared over the finish line in 10 hours, 37 minutes and 19 seconds, at the record-breaking average speed of 142.347 kilometres an hour.

French driver Pierre Gilbert Ugnon was fatally injured when his English Jaguar left the highway near Ferrara, 141 miles from the starting point of the hazardous race. A boy was killed by a Fiat car near Ancona, some 295 miles from the start, as he was crossing the road.

Roberto Rossellini, the movie director husband of actress Ingrid Bergman, quit after reaching Rome in seven hours, 28 minutes and 26 seconds.

Apple Juice May Be Key To Win For Penticton Team

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Apple juice—the British Columbia variety—may be the key to the success of Penticton Vs in their fight for the Allan Cup.

Penticton coach Bill Carse swears by it. He put the team on an apple juice diet prior to the Western Canada finals and the Vs downed Fort William Beavers to meet Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in the Canadian senior hockey championship. Should the Vs win the cup it will be the first time a B.C. team has won it since Trail Smoke Eaters' victory in 1938.

Bobby Rafferty, the Dutchmen's coach, hasn't said anything about pre-final diets or training, but more than once during the eastern playoffs he had his boys sniffing oxygen between turns on the ice. There has been no indication that he has had the oxygen tanks refilled for the final series which open in Kitchener Arena tomorrow night.

After a two-day layoff, while they rested after their series with Falls Rideaus, the Dutchmen took to the ice Sunday and planned a light workout today. All the Kitchener regulars except left-winger Maurice Leveque, who has damaged shoulder muscles, are in perfect condition.

Mayor Bruce Weber of Kitchener headed a welcoming party for the Vs who arrived from Fort William Saturday. About 40 fans from the Okanagan valley centre are expected to arrive in time for the opener.

Carse put his club through a stiff workout Sunday and then announced that his club is ready for action. Jack McIntyre former pro with New Westminster Royals and Victoria Cougars of the Western Hockey League, had a date with a London, Ont., dentist to repair an abscessed tooth but he was expected to be on the line-up tomorrow night.

Kitchener fans are eager for the first Allan Cup finals to be played here. The Kitchener arena has a capacity of 7,200. All reserved seats for the first game were sold in advance and 1,200 rush seats and more than 1,000 standing room tickets go on sale an hour before game time each night.

The second and third games of the best-of-seven series are scheduled for Thursday and Saturday nights.

Dame Claims Third Record For Skating

By DON HANRIGHT

EDMONTON (CP)—Edgar Dame of Revere, Mass., claimed his third record time Saturday night at the 1953 North American indoor speed skating championships to win the senior men's title.

Nineteen records were shattered in the three-day meet.

The senior women's champion was Barbara Marchetti of Berkley, Mich., also joint claimant to the North American outdoor crown with Edmonton's Doreen McLeod, who did not enter the indoor competition.

All top honors except in three minor classes went to American skaters, who outnumbered Canadian entrants almost 3-1.

BREAKS RECORD

Dame, who won four of the six races in his class, needed only to place third Saturday night in the 440-yard final to win the title. He placed third in that race but went on to break the record in the five-mile event.

The 25-year-old speedster breezed around the 16 laps in 15:41.2, eclipsing by one second the 1930 mark set by Winnipeg's Frank Stack, an absentee this year.

Dame's cumulative standing was 70 points higher than that of Bob Olson of Pasadena, Calif., who was second with 80 points. Johnny Walsh of Saint John, N.B., finished in a third-place tie with 1952 champion Omer DeSchepper of Detroit. Both had 50 points.

LITTLE OPPOSITION

Miss Marchetti set a senior women's record of :42.0 in the 440-yard final. However, already assured of her crown through other wins, she provided little opposition to Edmonton's Pat Underhill in the one-mile event.

Miss Underhill carved the largest slice from any previous record. She was timed at 3:07.2 in the one mile, 13 seconds faster than the old mark. The Edmonton miss was second in cumulative standings, followed by Karne Mattson of St. Paul, Minn.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting: Jim Busby, Washington Senators, drove in all five runs on a pair of homers as the Senators beat the Yankees 5-4. He also collected a double and a single.

Pitching: Joe Dobson, Chicago White Sox, hurled a four-hit shutout against St. Louis Browns as Chicago won the second game of a doubleheader 3-0.

UEW Defeats Kingston 2-0 Merchants Tie Trenton 2-2 In Opening Soccer Games

The nine-team Eastern Ontario Football League opened its 1953 season Saturday and from all indications the competition will be stiff, particularly between the two Peterborough teams, the UEW and the Merchants. The UEW team opened on the right foot with a 2-0 victory over Kingston United at Morrow Park while the Merchants, new this year, held Trenton Merchants to a two-all tie in Trenton.

Most of the competition for the UEW entry was provided by the wind and rain. After a day-long rain the Morrow Park field was soggy and whenever the ball hit the dirt, it just refused to travel. Throughout the game the opening day spirits were dampened by the rain which poured down, drenching everyone.

The UE lads carried the play to the Uniteds, particularly in the first half. During that time they scored enough to take the win as Brian Hoyle with a hard drive from 30-yards out, and Bob Strong with a similar play, sank both goals.

Playing conditions were much the same for the Peterborough Merchants Sunday in their game with Trenton Merchants in Trenton. After Saturday's rain the field was still muddy and damp, but they didn't have to contend with the rain; it started just after the game started.

Holding a slim edge on the play, the Merchants should have pulled out a win. Trenton scored on a penalty shot while Peterborough missed on a valuable sward shot. Harold Payne was the Merchants' hero, coming through neatly with both goals.

The Peterborough team matched the Trenton lads throughout the first half which ended one-all. They played to a one-all deadlock again in the second half for the final two-all draw. Instead of the usual 45-minutes halfs, the game was cut down to 35-minutes a half by mutual consent.

Next Saturday both Peterborough teams will play, the UEW meeting Kingston Concordia Football Club and the Merchants meeting Belleville Northern Electric.

Native Dancer Winner For 11 Straight Times

NEW YORK (AP)—The great grey Native Dancer ran his unbeaten string to 11 races in a row Saturday when he uncoiled a powerful stretch drive to capture the $123,750 Wood Memorial at Jamaica.

His brilliant performance solidified his chances for a victory in the Kentucky Derby next Saturday at Louisville. This was the Dancer's richest race and he easily grabbed the $87,000 first prize.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt's speedy colt was given a superb ride by jockey Eric Guerin. He overhauled the pace-setting Tahitian King near the top of the stretch in the 29th running of this famous Derby test and drew away with ease.

Then, the crowd of 40,352 which had backed the Dancer and his stable mate, Social Outcast, down to 1 to 10 favoritism, gave a mighty cheer when the Vanderbilt express really began to move.

He shot ahead of Tahitian King, owned by Dallas oilman Ben Whitaker, to win by 4½ lengths

Tahitian King managed to save second money of $20,000 by a head over the Saxon Stable's Invigorator. The latter was the second choice at 6 to 1. Invigorator was three lengths ahead of Social Outcast in the field of seven three-year-olds.

The time for the 1⅛ miles was 1:50 3-5.

Ross Places Second At Swim Meet

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Aquatic Club took top honors Saturday over several other Ontario swim clubs in its spring water carnival. More than 250 swimmers took part.

Club point standings: Hamilton Aquatic 89; London Y, 35; Toronto Granite Club, 25; Toronto Dolphinets, 19; Etobicoke, 12; Woodstock, 11; Fergus, 10; Hamilton Y, 3; Peterborough Y, 3; Brantford, 3; Toronto YMHA 3; Toronto West End Y, 1.

Allan Guthrie of Woodstock Y won the 50-yard backstroke for boys under 12. Woodstock was first in the 150-yard medley relay for boys under 12.

David Ross of Peterborough placed second to Steven Otto of Toronto Granite Club in the 100-yard backstroke for boys under 14, with Larry Ross of Woodstock Y third.

Joan Campbell of Fergus won the 100-yard freestyle for girls under 17 and Doreen Howett of Fergus captured the 100-yard freestyle for senior women.

Collins Defends Referee's Action

BOSTON (AP)—Tommy Collins, who stoutly got up off the floor 10 times Friday night in his losing try for the world lightweight championship, just as stoutly defended referee Tommy Rawson Saturday.

Rawson, a boxer himself for 14 years and a ring official for 13, was roundly criticized for not stopping the televised title match in which Collins absorbed a fearsome lacing from champion Jimmy Carter.

The scheduled 15-round fight was stopped in the fourth round with Collins helpless.

After a formal meeting the Massachusetts boxing commissioners issued a statement absolving Rawson and other fight officials of negligence. They also ordered a complete examination of Collins by medical specialists.

Collins was his usual heerful self Saturday. He told newspaper men: "I feel fine, haven't got an ache in my body."

New Diet Said Key To Phillie Wins

By JACK HAND, Associated Press Sports Writer

The Robin Roberts three-day diet is doing wonders for Philadelphia Phillies. No more tired, rundown feeling. No more blue Mondays. There's a new sparkle in every eye and a spring in every step since Robin went on the three-day plan. With eight straight wins, a solid grip on first place and a long home stand, the Phils are riding high. They can afford to relax on a nice, peaceful off day. Today is an open date for all the clubs. Roberts pitched victories last Monday and Thursday. He stopped Pittsburgh Sunday in the first game of a doubleheader, 7-5, to maintain his every-third-day pace.

Karl Drews teamed with Roberts to sweep the pair from Pittsburgh, throwing a seven-hitter in the second game for an 8-1 decision with the help of Willie Jones' two-run homer.

DOWN GIANTS

George Shuba and Carl Furillo each drove in three runs in Brooklyn's 8-4 victory over New York Giants in the rubber game of their three-game series. Billy Loes spaced 11 hits to top the Giants for the second time.

Bill Serena's two-run homer featured a four-run rally by Chicago Cubs in the seventh inning for a 7-5 edge over St. Louis Cards. A Cincinnati-at - Milwaukee doubleheader was rained out.

Bob Feller and Bob Lemon pitched Cleveland into first place in the American League by a margin of 28 percentage points over New York Yankees. Although the Yanks are a half-game ahead in the won and lost figures, the percentages, which are the determining factor, give the lead to the Indians. The difference in games played accounts for the confusion.

Washington's Jim Busby drove in all the runs with two homers off Allie Reynolds for a 5-4 win, snapping a five-game Yank winning string.

NIP DETROIT

Feller pitched a five-hitter to nip Detroit 2-1 in the other and Lemon rode home on a nine-run eighth inning for a 12-2 romp, his third win. The Tribe now has won five in a row.

St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox split two, the Browns taking the first 7-2 as Bob Elliott batted in four runs with a triple and homer. Joe Dobson shut out the Browns 3-0, on four hits to beat rookie Mike Blyzka in the second game.

The Philadelphia Athletics and Boston Red Sox were washed out of two games at Fenway Park.

Connie Ryan had another big day with the Phillies. Early in the season he had a six-hit afternoon against Pittsburgh. Sunday he had a perfect five for five in the opener, including a homer and four singles.

GANG UP ON HEARN

The Dodgers ganged up on the Giants' Jim Hearn in the fourth to score four runs. Shuba's double with the bases loaded accounted for three. Furillo knocked in the fourth with a single and added two more with a double off Frank Hiller in the fifth.

Allie Reynolds simply didn't have it at Yankee Stadium, giving up all five runs before he left for a pinch hitter in the fourth.

Guersant Snaps Winning Streak

SANDOWN PARK, England (AP) —The French racehorse Guersant snapped the 12-race winning streak of Wilwyn Saturday, capturing the 1¼-mile Coronation Stake by one length over the British champion.

Wilwyn, who won the $50 000 international race at Laurel track in Maryland last fall, tried mightily for his 13th successive victory, but Guersant held him off in a battle down the stretch.

Zucchero finished third.

Cooke Trying To Buy Browns Franchise

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Kent Cooke, president of the Toronto Maple Leafs baseball club of the International League, revealed Sunday night he has been trying for three months to buy the franchise of the American League St. Louis Browns.

"If we had a 30,000 seating capacity at Maple Leaf Stadium here, we'd be able to swing the deal," said Cooke, who also owns a radio station and has magazine publishing interests. "We'd have to form a syndicate to finance purchase of the franchise.

The stadium now has a capacity of about 20,000, including some standing room.

Cooke, in an interview, gave no details of the negotiations beyond saying he has been talking with Bill DeWitt, vice-president of the St. Louis club. It is reported such a franchise, including all players owned by the selling club, would be worth more than $1,000,000.

The Browns tried to switch their franchise to Baltimore this season but the American League owners voted against it.

Golfers Appointed To Play In Canada

CHICAGO (AP)—Jim Turnesa and Julius Boros, current PGA and United States open champions, respectively, and five other top money winners were named Saturday to represent the U.S. in the international golf matches against Canada June 4 at Montreal.

Turnesa and Boros qualify automatically as PGA and open titlists. Other members — Cary Middlecoff, Jackie Burke, Sam Snead, Ted Kroll and alternate Doug Ford—were listed by the PGA on the basis of priority in accumulated tournament money winnings from Jan. 1, 1952, through April 19, 1953.

Roman Catholic Church Considers Using Modern Language More

By PATRICK CROSSE

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Roman Catholic church is considering allowing the use of the modern languages of every-day speech at ceremonies which for at least 16 centuries have been conducted in Latin or other languages now dead.

After 30 months' study by a special commission of experts, the sacred congregation of rites has already, as an experiment, allowed Italian priests to administer the sacrament of baptism in Italian.

If the experiment shows good results in Italy, it may be extended to other countries.

The commission was established toward the end of the 1950 Holy Year following a request by the Pope for a comprehensive study of the whole problem of the languages used in the ceremonies of the Catholic church.

11 NOT INCLUDED

For the vast majority of the world's 400,000,000 Catholics, the language used at most ceremonies and particularly for the sacraments is Latin. But 11 other languages are used among small Catholic communities which do not belong to the Latin rite.

They are: Church Slavonic, used by the Ruthenians, Russians, Serbs and Bulgarians of the Byzantine rite; Rumanian; Syriac, used by the Syrians, Maronites, Chaldeans and Malabarese; Arabic, used by the Melkites of the Near East Magyar, used by Hungarians; Armenian; Greek; Coptic, used by the Egyptians; Ge'ez, used by the Abyssians; Malayalam, used by the Malankarese of Southern India; and Georgian.

Even among Catholics of the Latin rite, there are small groups in Yugoslavia, Calabria and Sicily who do not use Latin in their liturgies.

The dominion of the Roman Empire over most of Western civilization and Saint Jerome's translation of the Bible into the Vulgate, begun in 382, led to the adoption of the Latin then currently spoken as the language of the church in the West.

RETAINED LANGUAGES

In the East, however, the various communities worshipped in their own languages and most of them retain those languages.

In the last four centuries Popes have generally required strict adherence by each of the churches to its original language and particularly of the Western church to Latin.

Now, however, if the experiment with baptism is successful, the new practice may next be extended to other sacraments and particularly to confirmation.

Some Vatican quarters already foresee the time when many of the ceremonies of the church will be recited in modern languages and Latin will be reserved for official dealings within the Roman curia, correspondence between the Vatican and its nunciatures abroad and solemn pronouncements of the Popes.

One argument expected to be advanced against the change is that the use of Latin inspires among Catholics a sense of universality since they can hear the familiar rites recited in the same language in any part of the world.

Belmont WI Elect Mrs. Wm. Harris

HAVELOCK (ENS)—Mrs. Harry Pollock, president of the Havelock Women's Institute installed the officers of the Belmont Women's Institute at their April meeting.

The officers are: President, Mrs. William Harris; first vice-president, Mrs. Arnold Dafoe; second vice-president, Mrs. Horace King; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Harry Scott; pianist, Mrs. William Anderson; press reporter, Mrs. William Ketchen; district director, Mrs. George Hartin; alternate, Mrs. Gardner Gawley; branch directors, Mrs. Randal Vansickle, Mrs. Charles Ellis, Mrs. G. Wright; auditors, Mrs. G. Gawley, Mrs. C. King.

The financial report presented by Mrs. Clarence King showed the Institute had had a successful year, the receipts amounting to $518.31. The main sources of revenue were: Seth Parker nights, quiltings, bingos, social evenings and card parties. The expenditures amounted to $473.96.

The president, Mrs. W. Harris, who was re-elected to that office also reviewed the activities of the year. It was decided to continue the weekly card parties on Wednesday nights at the township hall.

Mrs. G. Smith gave a paper on historical research. Mrs. G. Hartin gave a report of the district executive meeting and announced that the district annual meeting would be held at Trent River on June 9.

Tea hour hostesses were: Mesdames W. Harris, C. King, H. King, R. Vansickle, A. Dafoe.

Boy 8, Dies From Burns

CALGARY (CP)—Eight-year-old Danny Blanchfield died in hospital Saturday from third-degree burns after setting his clothes afire while alone at home.

Neighbors found the boys Friday about an hour after the accident, still unconscious and lying in a filled bathtub with "every stitch of clothing" burned off.

One neighbor, a nurse, said 80 per cent of the boy's body was burned.

"We found nothing but his shoes on him," she said. "He apparently had wandered into every room in the house while he was burning, for I found burnt clothing in all the rooms."

The nurse said the boy told her he was trying to "burn mommy's garbage" when he caught fire.

Obituary

MRS. E. G. MILHAM

NORWOOD (ENS).—Word has been received here of the death on April 20 of Mrs. E. G. Milham of Waterport, N.Y. Mrs. Milham was formerly Sadie MacMillan, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James MacMillan.

Mrs. Milham was born and brought up in the ninth line community, Dummer township. As a young woman she went to U.S.A., where she remained until her death.

Mrs. Milham was predeceased by her husband several years ago. Surviving are one sister, Mrs. William Grattan and one brother, George D. MacMillan, both of Norwood and several nieces and nephews.

Youthful Planters

OSLO, Norway (cp)—A group of school children at Voss were awarded the silver medal of the Norwegian "Build Your Country" Society for each planting more than 2,500 nursey trees during 1942. Altogether 170 children at Voss set out about 160,000 young pine trees last year.

Doctor Turned Sheriff Has 90th Birthday

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Horace Bascom, a doctor turned sheriff, was 90 Sunday. He can't see any reason to "give up a good living."

Dr. Bascom—sheriff Bascom to residents of Ontario county since 1927—says he'll stay on the job "as long as I'm able, and I feel there are many years of useful service ahead of me."

The secret of his longevity? "It just requires a careful choice of grandparents," he says.

The sheriff's grandparents had 17 children and many lived for more than 80 years.

In Good Shape

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)—New Zealand's Olympic gold medallist, Yvette Williams, is keeping in practice for next year's Empire Games at Vancouver. On a visit to Fiji she beat the local records in five events—broad jump, shotput, discus throw, 50- and 100-yard dashes.

DECLARE DIVIDEND

A cash dividend of forty cents per share on the common stock of the Outboard Marine and Mfg. Company was announced Saturday by the board of directors and will be payable May 25 to stockholders of record May 5, 1953.

NEGOTIATIONS START

Fred Dowling, Canadian director of the United Packinghouse Workers of America, said he was hoping for a settlement of strikes at the Peterborough and Saskatoon plants of the Quaker Oats Co. as he began negotiations at 1.30 p.m. today with Reginald Faryon, Canadian president of the company. "I haven't the slightest idea what will come out of the meeting," he told The Examiner, "but we're demanding the same settlement that has been reached in the rest of the milling industry."

Firemen Make 3 Short Visits

City firemen were called out three times Sunday with the most serious call to a chimney fire.

Overheated pipes caused a chimney fire at the home of G. Dwyer, 303 King St. at 9.20 Sunday morning. Firemen put out the flames with two hand pumps.

Later in the day a call came in from Mrs. R. Burns, 589 Aylmer St., when a damp chimney resulted in smoke backing up into the house from her furnace.

The third call was another scare. An oil burner in the home of G. H. Porter, 743 Orpington Rd., flooded and burnt itself out.

Child Knocked Down By Car, Slightly Hurt

Four-year-old Douglas Martin was treated for shock and bruises at the Peterborough clinic shortly after noon Saturday when he was struck by a car driven by James Thexton, 29, 201 Stewart St.

The accident occurred on Charlotte St., opposite the McGillis Hotel.

Thexton was travelling west on Charlotte St. when the child ran out from the south side of the road directly into the path of the car. Thexton applied his brakes immediately and was able to stop within half a car length but the child was knocked down by the right front bumper. He was not seriously injured.

HONORING the memory of Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, who for 50 years was teacher and principal of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, ex-students presented a portrait of Dr. Kenner and a scholarship fund to the Board of Education on Saturday night. The presentations were made at the new Kenner Collegiate. The portrait is by the celebrated Canadian artist Kenneth Forbes. Shown above (left to right) are S. R. Adamson, chairman of the Board who received the portrait; W. Howard Macdonald, chairman of the Kenner Memorial committee; Robert M. Fowler of Montreal who expressed the thanks of the ex-students and Maxwell J. Swanston who presented the portrait.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Residents Protest Against Freezer For Horsemeat

A deputation of residents of Lansdowne St. East was reported today as having arranged to attend the meeting of council in committee tonight to oppose an application from Nick Peconi involving operation of a horse meat freezer at the rear of his property.

"What I have done," Mr. Peconi said today, "is to put a comparatively small freezer in my garage. I have permission from the council of Otonabee to build on abattoir about three miles east of the city off the highway. It is an out of the way location, and there is no house near it that could object. I'll have a large freezer there as part of the plant."

ON LANSDOWNE ST.

Mr. Peconi's city property is on the north side of Lansdowne St. on the former Boyler place and in the vicinity of the Charles V. Wood lumber mill, which is on the south side of Lansdowne and in Otonabee township.

"I have no local deliveries," he said. "The bulk of the meat goes to Toronto for dog food, and I sell some for mink. The garage is about 175 or 200 feet from the highway and at the rear of my house. I have put in sawdust walls to contain the small freezer, and I intended to make small deliveries from there. When I asked the council about building a lean-to garage for my car, that application was held up. That is all I know, but from the fuss that's going on you'd think I was putting up some kind of a big plant."

In the meantime residents of that east end of Lansdowne St. who are city property owners have been carrying their protests to members of the council. They were advised in several instances to present their objections to the council.

Their contention is that the Peconi meat business would be anything but an asset to their property values, and that his entire business should be operated from his abattoir which is to be located in the township and far from the Lansdowne St. community.

Portrait Of H. R. H. Kenner Presented By Ex-Students

A beautiful oil painting of the late Dr. H. R. H. Kenner was presented to the Board of Education on Saturday night by former students of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational School. The presentation was made at a gathering of the old boys and girls of Dr. Kenner's time at the PCI and later the PCVS. Along with the portrait went a cheque for $1,200 to go toward the establishment of a scholarship in memory of Dr. Kenner.

The gathering was held in the new Kenner Collegiate on Monaghan Road South and it was sponsored by a committee named more than a year ago which organized the fund to purchase the portrait and establish the scholarship.

The fund committee was composed of Howard Macdonald, chairman; Miss Genevieve Fowler, Mrs. G. Wilson Craw, T. J. Allen, L. W. Copp, Maxwell J. Swanston and Arthur Pitchford. It was also ably assisted by C. S. Browne, principal of the PCVS who succeeded Dr. Kenner in 1943 and a small group of ex-students.

Mr. Macdonald presided over the program which was held in the gymnasium and the chief speaker was Mr. Copp. It was a most informal gathering and was followed by refreshments served in the library.

ARTIST PRESENT

The fund committee had commisioned Canadian artist Kenneth Forbes, RCA of Toronto, to do the posthumous portrait and he and Mrs. Forbes were present. The portrait which was unveiled by Mrs. Craw and Miss Fowler is a remarkable likeness of Dr. Kenner and has a rich and elegant quality, for which this outstanding artist alone is noted. Dr. Kenner is clothed in the magneta colored robes of a Doctor of Laws.

Mr. Macdonald told of the work the committee had accomplished and the difficulty in securing the addresses of the several thousand students who are now living in other parts and of former girl students who are now married. He intimated that the scholarship fund of $1,200 was not as large as the committee had expected and announced it would remain open for further contributions in the hope that it would at least be $1,500.

Mr. Allen introduced Mr. Copp a member of the second class which entered PCI after Dr. Kenner became principal. Mr. Copp told of Dr. Kenner and his half century of service in the field of education in Peterborough How Dr. Kenner was recognized in all parts of Ontario as an outstanding educationist. How in his earlier days he was prominently connected with sport especially baseball, hockey, lacrosse and curling and in later years his connection with fraternal circles and of leadership which he gave to masonry in Peterborough.

The presentation of the portrait to the Board of Education was made by Mr. Swanston and it was accepted by S. R. Adamson, chairman who promised that it would be hung in a distinguished place in the school and would ever be revered as a memorial to a great teacher and principal.

Mr. Pitchford, the treasurer of the fund, introduced the artist Mr. Forbes and Mrs. Craw presented the scholarship cheque to G. Wilson Craw, the chairman of the finance committee of the board.

The thanks of the ex-students to the committee were expressed by Robert M. Fowler of Montreal and Dr. E. P. Ray, the principal of Kenner Collegiate, expressed the thanks of the students and staff.

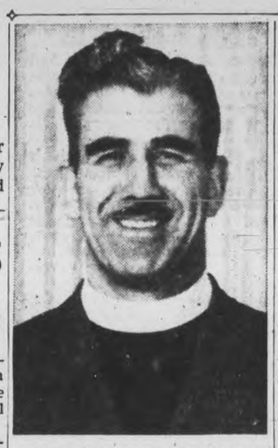
Prior to the program the band of the PCVS directed by Albert Croasdale played several numbers in the rotunda of the school and during the program two duets were sung by Mary Blair and Doreen Hutchinson accompanied by Marlene Dyer, students of the school.

It had been hoped that Mrs. Kenner would have been able to attend the ceremony but illness kept her away and committee had the program recorded so that she might be able to hear it. Flowers were also sent to Mrs. Kenner.

S. McLaren Heads New Vets Group

Stewart McLaren of Peterborough was elected chairman as an organizational meeting of the Provincial Council for Industrial War Veterans, Sunday.

The meeting held in New Toronto was attended by representatives of Lever Bros., Goodyear, General Steel Wares, Toronto Hydro, Western Clock, CGE, and Westinghouse.



The aim of the meeting was to make a start in forming a province-wide organization of war veterans to accept certain responsibilities on their own behalf, to protect their standing as a recognized group in society, to keep alive the significance of their sacrifices, and to found upon their common interest a body with a voice to be heard and listened to in the course of future events.

Member clubs in communities will act as service clubs accepting responsibilities for the welfare of disabled veterans.

Politically the association will be interested in the preserving of peace and failing that the preparedness for war.

THE REV. B. S. MORWOOD minister of Mark St. United Church since 1949 has accepted a call to Trinity United Church in Kirkland Lake. Mr. Morwood with his family will leave Peterborough to assume his new duties July 1.

Font Honors Col. Agnes Neill

A memorial baptismal font in tribute to the life and service of the late Colonel Agnes C. Neill, O.B.E., Matron-in-Chief R.C.A.M.C., 1941-46, a daughter of Peterborough, was dedicated in the chapel of Sunnybrook Hospital, Toronto, Sunday evening.

This memorial font was the gift of the London Unit of the Nursing Sisters' Association of Canada, and was formally accepted by the Superintendent of Sunybrook, Dr. K. E. Hollis. Its dedication to the glory of God and in memory of Colonel Agnes Neill was pronounced by the Rev. T. H. Stewart, M.C., chaplain of the hospital.

A previous memento of Col. Neill was the lectern presented three years ago in her memory by the Nursing Sisters of Toronto. The address of the evening Anglican service was given by the Rev. W. W. Burnett, of the hospital chaplaincy staff. Present at the ceremony were the two sisters of Col. Neill, who was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Neill of this city. They were Mrs. V. M. Eastwood (Margaret) of Peterborough, and Mrs. Hugh J. McLaughlin (Jean), QC, Toronto. They were accompanied by their husbands.

Resume Hearing After Two Years

An arbitration hearing to set a price on the property expropriated by the city to build Kenner Collegiate resumed today after almost a two-year interval. Judge John deN. Kennedy is acting as arbitrator.

The property originally belonged to Thomas Hughes, and the city set $24,000 as the price it would pay. The late Judge S. L. Smoke increased this figure at a subsequent hearing to $28,600.

Since then, Mr. Hughes applied for a fresh arbitration hearing to re-set the price. This opened in 1951 with Judge Smoke as arbitrator, and the judge's death halted the hearing.

This morning's discussion centred around whether the hearing should be started afresh, or whether it should be continued from the point it was left at by the death of Judge Smoke.

It was finally decided that the hearing resume. The hearing continued this afternoon.

Weather Stalls Work On Farms

Farm work in the district last week was confined by adverse weather largely to that one sunny day—Friday. Down through Otonabee cultivating and seeding operations extended from farm to farm in all directions. It was an eager rally to the age-old call of the land. And, apparently farmers still own and find use for more horses than is commonly estimated.

A mistiness hung above the hardwoods on the hills. It seemed to be an emanation from the stirring buds, a delicate amethyst infused with a light suggestion of pale green. Spring was stirring languidly in the tops of the maples and beeches until late in the afternoon when the outriders of rain appeared from the west.

Wet, chilly weather returned on Saturday and continued through Sunday from mere drizzles to a thunder storm. However, one one day's work was hung up in the record chart, but from all accounts there is no uneasiness about the season in the rural community. Some of the farmers at Harold Inman's mill this morning were saying that more concern was expressed about the previously sown spring grain ten days ago, caught up in cloudy weather and damp cold soil, than about the job remaining to be done.

Friday was a full day, and many farmers were ready to take advantage of its sunshine and the higher lands dried by last week's wind.

Artists Chosen For Concerts In New Series

The new stature of Canadian musicians in the international concert world was recognized by the directors of the Peterborough Community Concerts who elected next season's artists Saturday afternoon following the close of the membership campaign. Three of the four attractions will be Canadian.

The directors had a host of American and European artists from whom to chose. Yet without discriminating against them in favour of Canadian performers because of any national sentiment, three-fourths of next season's series will be Canadian: Anna Russell, famed comedienne; Lois Marshall, soprano; the Spivak string quartet, with pianist Boris Rubakine. The fourth concert will be given by Samson Francois, brilliant and powerful young French pianist.

FAMED ARTISTS

Anna Russell, of Toronto, last year gave four sold-out programs of song, miming and comic turns at New York Town Hall. Lois Marshall has won sudden fame in New York and was selected by Toscanini for pre-Easter performances with his orchestra. Both are now internationally acclaimed artists of special distinction.

The Spivak string quartet is a newly-formed group with a three year contract with Columbia Artists. Their program this spring in Toronto was hailed with critical enthusiasm. Eli Spivak was concert master of the Toronto Symphony for 16 years; the other three musicians in the quartet are members of that orchestra. Boris Roubakine, who will appear in Peterborough with the quartet, is a distinguished Toronto pianist.

The order and dates of the concerts has not been determined as yet. It is likely that Anna Russell will appear about the third week of November. The remarkable French pianist, making only his second tour of this continent, but whose fame is already established in Europe, will probably open the concert series in October.

WAITING LIST

Membership in the Peterborough Community Concerts for this season was oversubscribed by the third day of last week's campaign, and thus a waiting list had to be established.

Saturday afternoon's directors' meeting was held in the Board room of the YMCA, with Miss Musa Cox presiding and Benita Shields, New York representative in attendance. The general meeting of the Association will be held next month.

Agreement Made To Finance Bridge, Causeway At Gannon's Narrows

County's Share To Be $15,127; Harvey Township To Contribute $5,672 To Replace Ancient Floating Bridge

The agreement for financing the $206,000 Gannon's Narrows' bridge and causeway was made to today at a special session of the Peterborough County Council. Details had already been worked out so the passing of two bylaws to make it legal was little more than a formality. The rock-fill causeway and high-level, fixed bridge will do away with the present floating bridge at Gannon's Narrows. The old wooden bridge has fallen into disrepair and is a danger to traffic. It spans the 1,500-foot-wide narrows between Pigeon and Buckhorn lakes.

Bylaws were:

1. A bylaw to authorize a three-way agreement among the Department of Highways, the Township of Harvey, and the County of Peterborough regarding the division of costs in building the causeway.

(The Department of Transport have already given their cheque for $99,000 covering the cost of construction of the overhead bridge, one abutment of which will be anchored to the Ennismore shoreline. The remaining $104,000 is divided this way: 80 per cent paid by the Department of Highways, and the remaining 20 per cent shared 8/11ths and 3/11ths by the county and township, respectively. Another $3,000 is estimated for legal costs, interest on bank loans, committee fees and other incidentals but it is not included because it is not subsidizeable. Total cost $206,000.)

2. A bylaw asking the Department of Highways to approve a supplementary appropriation bylaw for $203,000.

BALANCE $104,000

The $99,000 paid by the Department is already deposited in the bank, leaving the balance of $104,000 to be raised under the terms of the supplementary appropriation bylaw.

This is broken down as follows: rock fill $89,600, clay fill and top dressing $2,500, guard rail $4,950, extra openings $6,000, and contingencies $950. Total $104,000.

At the present estimate the county share of the 20 per cent is $15,127.27, and the township's share is $5,672.73. If the final cost is higher the proportion of 8/11ths to 3/11ths will be maintained.

RCRs Given Wild Welcome By Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—The Royal Canadian Regiment's 1st battalion, fresh from a distinguished tour of duty in Korea, came home today to a tumultuous welcome.

Several Peterborough and district soldiers are members of the unit.

Huge crowds thronged the Union station as some 500 members of the battalion—those living east of Winnipeg—formed up for an official welcome. Cheer after cheer greeted the soldiers as they appeared in the station concourse.

The battalion is the first to receive a formal welcome as a unit. Previously the army has brought back soldiers from Korea in smaller groups.

Hon. Milton Gregg, VC, labor minister and honorary colonel of the regiment, welcomed the men back on behalf of the government. Dressed in silk hat and formal clothes, he greeted the officer commanding the unit, Lt.-Col. Peter Bingham of Ottawa and Petawawa.

When he addressed the battalion, his words were drowned out by the cheers from the boisterous crowd.

Mayor Charlotte Whitton also addressed the RCRs briefly and granted them the freedom of the city. In response, the RCRs gave the Ottawa mayor three rousing cheers and a "tiger."

Bedlam then broke out as the soldiers were given a half-hour break-off to greet relatives and friends.

The RCRs lived up to their tradition as one of the smartest units of the Canadian Army. They wore maroon berets and yellow-and-black neckerchiefs. Their webbing shone and their boots sparkled.

Every Citizen Of Britain Pays Into Culture Subsidy

By ROBERT F. S. JONES

LONDON (AP)—You may prefer boogie to Bach or swing to Stravinsky, but if you live in Britain you have to pay for both Bach and Stravinsky whether you like them or not.

It works out at about three cents a year—the price of a cup of tea or a cigaret — for every man, woman and child.

For that you can call yourself a patron of culture. Your three cents appears in the budget as a culture subsidy.

Even so the danger signals are flying for the arts in Britain costs keep skyrocketing while box office figures stay static.

Since London's historic opera house, Covent Garden, was rescued from its wartime fate as a dance hall and reconstituted in 1946, its opera company has staged Strauss' "Salome," with decor by Salvador Dali, and Alban Berg's "Wozzeck." Its resident ballet company — Sadler's Wells—is regarded as about the finest outside Russia.

But even if the house "full" notices are up—which is often—Covent Garden loses £500 a night.

Or take symphony orchestras. There are about 10 of them in London and the larger provincial towns. Ever since the war Britons have flocked to hear them. But a permanent symphony orchestra can count itself lucky if it gets through the year without losing at least £25,000.

The small repertory theatres struggling in the small provincial towns can just about break even on takings of around £500 a week and that only by paring slaries to the bone.

The business of acting as fairy godmother to the arts has been taken over by a body known as the arts council, established in 1946.

Its unpaid members are chosen by the Chancellor of the Exchequer on a rotation basis. They work closely with some of the larger permanent cultural organizations and get a good picture of future plans.

In light of these plans, the council sends the Chancellor of the Exchequer a budget every year. It disburses the grant it receives to the cultural bodies—always keeping a bit in hand to help some of the smaller associations who may send in a last minute S O S.

For the last two years the council's annual grant has been £575,000 but judging by rising costs everywhere this year it will have to ask for more.

The council has nearly 1,000 cultural bodies on its books for help.

By far the largest slice of last year's grant went to Covent Garden, which received £150,000—and probably will need at least £90,000 more than that this year to keep its doors open.

Symphony orchestras got £40,000 and the famous Old Vic repertory theatre—almost on its last legs in 1951—collected £25,000.

But the council also spends thousands in many smaller grants.

Buzz Bomb Idea Operates Engine Heater

UEBERLINGEN, Germany (Reuters)—The "buzz bombs" that Germany launched during the Second World War are going to "war" again—this time against germs, bugs and cold.

Three peacetime products, developed on the "buzz bomb principle," are ready for distribution in Canada, the United States and other western hemisphere countries.

Under the over-all trade name "swingfire" three devices—"swingheater," "swingfog," and "swingburner"—have been designed to utilize the "buzz-bomb" idea to give quick warm-up shots to engines on cold mornings, provide easily-installed emergency heating units for buildings and construction sites, and develop a heavy insecticide "fog."

STUDY COLD PROBLEM

Research on the devices was begun just after the German rout at Stalingrad when the Russians' "general cold" stalled German mobile equipment. After the Stalingrad defeat, German scientists were assigned the task of finding a way to enable vehicles to operate in intense cold.

They hit upon the idea of using the idea behind the "buzz bomb" in which a mixture of fuel and air was ignited to provide the oscillating pulse jet to supply the thrust for the bombs.

Before the scientists completed their work, the war ended. Their research was taken over by private interests here. A British firm acquired interests in the products and recently a licensing agreement for their sale in North America was concluded with a U.S. firm.

The "swingheater" device is attached to the cooling system of a car, truck, plane or almost any other liquid-cooled internal combustion engine. A small spark from the vehicle's battery is enough to set the "swingheater" in operation and quickly bring the engine temperature up to normal operating heat.

The company claims that 40 per cent of engine wear is caused by cold starting. The device may also be adapted to supply heat for the passenger section of the vehicle.

In the battle against insects and germs, "swingfog" atomizes solutions of standard insecticides to create a heavy, blanketing fog and its makers claim it can do the same job quicker and more effectively than standard "dusting" or "spraying" methods with a fraction of the insecticide.

Security Cordon Around Britain Will Protect Coronation Guests

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

LONDON (AP)—Scotland Yard is forging a security cordon around Britain to intercept the crooks, cranks and political agitators who might disrupt the celebration of the Coronation.

The Yard's special branch is being heavily reinforced to screen the thousands of foreigners flooding into London for the ceremony. Police of every country outside the iron curtain have been asked to alert the Yard to the movement of any "undesirables" toward Britain.

At seaports and airfields visitors will be checked against black lists supplied by British embassies and Interpol, the international police information centre in Paris. There will be no unpleasant grilling. The polished and tactful gentlemen of the Yard are more discreet than that. But all suspects will be trailed and watched.

This screening is only one of the Yard's precautions to safeguard the Queen and the thousands of tourists coming here for the Coronation.

SOME DETAILS KNOWN

Scotland Yard is reluctant to discuss its security plans, but some details are known about the elaborate security wall which will go up around Westerminster Abbey when the Queen is crowned.

Overall police supervision of the Coronation will be directed from an "information room" in New Scotland Yard, a five-minute walk from the Abbey. Top yard officials there will be kept abreast of every development by radio.

When the Queen rides from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey, the "information room" will map her movement. The shifting crowds along the way will get hawk-eye attention. Mobile police will be rushed to meet any emergency.

Regular traffic will be barred from the processional route at midnight Coronation eve. A still larger Coronation area will be off-limits to all cars without special passes after 2 a.m. Coronation day.

CHECK ALL SEAT HOLDERS

The Yard will check every one of the thousands of persons occupying a seat in the stands along the route or at a window overlooking it. Every person granted such a place must register with the police in advance.

Between 12,000 and 15,000 police, 900 troops and 2,000 other service personnel including Canadians will line the processional route to control the crowds. Nine-foot-high wooden barriers across main streets will help dam the crowds.

Women police will mother the thousands of school children who will pack special stands on Victoria Embankment.

Stringent security measures again will be in force when the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh make their Coronation visits to Northern Ireland and Scotland shortly after the London ceremony.

Coronation visitors also will get special protection and they will need it. Any large tourist gathering attracts droves of swindlers, jewel and fur thieves, pickpockets and other shady types.

London Having Face Lifted For Coronation

By DONOVAN BESS

LONDON (Reuters)—It's only 36 days until the Coronation, and sombre old London is having her face lifted.

People who have been out of the city for a month are amazed on their return to see miles of grandstands flanking the route from Buckingham Palace along the Thames river to Westminster Abbey.

Their cars are caught in endless traffic jams caused by street-mending being done to present the capital at Sunday-best for an expected 800,000 Coronation-Year tourists.

Already brightly-painted heavy wooden gates have been put up to seal off streets and sidewalks leading from the critical "C-day" area.

LIKE STADIUM

Parliament Square, under Big Ben, already looks like a baseball stadium. There are so many bleachers that you can't see the traditional centre greensward.

Grandstands almost completely line the route to be taken by the Queen on June 2. Roofs now are being hammered onto most of them where more than 100,000 spectators will sit.

Government took a step Saturday ot prevent any plane from crashing into the Coronation crowds. No civilian plane will be allowed to fly lower than 11,000 feet over the Buckingham Palace area, and instrument flight rules must be strictly observed over all the Greater London area.

36 Mounties Sail On Scythia For U.K.

QUEBEC (CP)—Thirty-six red-coated Mounties and 18 officers and men of the Canadian Army Coronation contingent sailed Saturday from Quebec City aboard the liner Scythia for England, where they will take part in the Coronation procession June 2.

The RCMP detachment is under the command of assistant-commissioner D. L. McGibbon of Ottawa.

The Army contingent is an advance party headed by Capt. C.E. Kent of Ottawa.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng. (AP)—Wearing a Stetson, red coat, blue breeches, boots and a holster with revolver, Sgt. Tom H. Horn of the RCMP arrived by ship here Sunday—first of a detachment of Mounties to arrive for the Coronation.

Sgt. Horn, a 41-year-old six-footer with 17 years' service, is attached to the Calgary sub-division. It's his first visit to Britain.

In addition to guard duties during the June 2 Coronation, the Mounties will perform their musical ride at the Royal Tournament and participate in a three-day show at Edinburgh after the Coronation.

The manager of the Posada and his wife who have only been in Patzcuaro a month, are anxious to explore this region so they were kind enough to take a visiting artist, Tom Vincent, and myself in their station wagon, on a trip.

* * * *

Although it is only a two-hour drive from Patzcuaro, the change in the country is amazing. It is sitll mountainous, but you descend about 2,000 feet into the tropics. There are miles and miles of coffee, bananas and avacado trees. Despite the fact that this is the dry season, everything was lush and green.

* * * *

USE MATERIALS AT HAND

About half way from Patzcuaro the stone fences changed to wooden ones and the houses from abode to a type of shingle. The people use the resources they have at hand. Here you see the old methods of plowing. Oxen draw a clumsy wooden plow across the fields.

* * * *

Not many tourists go to Tacambaro, but it is a lovely old town. There is an ancient church across from a beautiful plaza. The market and the portales are nearby and it was pleasant sipping a cool drink oposite the Zocalo.

* * * *

Our artist companion was making the rounds trying to buy a huacamaya, a species of the parrot family, beautifully colored. Earlier that morning he had stopped at a Patzcuaro home and tried to persuade the owner to part with his bird. The owner assured him it was an ugly creature and pointing to a tree trunk about 5 feet high he said:

* * * *

"That used to be a lovely tall cherry tree. But see what the bird did to it. And look at that ladder (the top chewed off). You don't want him."

* * * *

NOT DISCOURAGED

But Tom wasn't discouraged. The bird's coloring intrigued him and he was determined to buy it. He was finally persuaded to wait and see if he could get a better natured one in Tacambaro, but he had no luck. The following day he and his huacamaya started off in a second class bus for his home in California. All his Mexican friends predicted dire things and the odds were against him getting it on the plane.

* * * *

By driving up a neaby mountain we had a wonderful view of the valley and the mountains. Part way down the slope was a lovely little emerald lake, something like Mirror Lake near Lake Louise in Alberta. It was a charming setting and a grand place for a picnic.

* * * *

One of the fascinating things about this country is that in a two or three hour drive you can go from cool, mountainous country into the tropics, from arrid spots to beautiful beaches and resorts. It is perpetual contrast and scenery a la carte.

How these helping hands do get around!

(Can you guess whose they are?)

Someone you know may have helped set up a new shopping centre like this in your community. That someone might be anyone who owns life insurance—probably you. For part of every premium paid by policyholders is invested in ways that result in new stores, homes, highways, apartments, power plants and similar developments.

Again, in this medical research laboratory, you'll find the life insurance policyholder's helping hands at work. You and your family may live longer, healthier lives because some of this money aids science's study of polio, heart diseases, processes of ageing and child health.

The policyholder plays a part in creating jobs too. This is a by-product of other investments of his life insurance dollars which help develop many different business enterprises. Result: jobs for thousands of workers—including, perhaps, himself.

Even the financial security which the life insurance owner provides for his family is also a service to his fellow citizens. For, if anything happens to him, his family is less likely to be a financial burden to others.

In all these ways, the people who own life insurance—probably including you—are helping to make Canada a better land to live in!

AT YOUR SERVICE!

A trained life underwriter—representing one of the more than 50 Canadian, British and United States life insurance companies in Canada — will gladly help you plan for your family's security and your own needs in later years. Rely on him!

600 Attend Rally Of Business Men

Climax of the spring regional rally of the Christian Business Men's Committee was a public rally in George St. United Church attended by more than 600 people.

The speaker was James Barnes, assistant sales manager of Timken Detroit Axle Co., who chose as his text: "Whatsoever a man soweth that will he also reap".

"You'll reap a dividend on every investment you've made in this life whether it's good or bad," Mr. Barnes said. "We all think we're smart when it comes to making investments. What are we going to get in return for our investment?

"Everything you do in life has a guaranteed return. That's the law of nature and the laws of nature are inexorable. Not even God can change them. Tonight you are making an investment that will bring rewards in eternity.

"When we are born we are adjusted to an earthly environment and when we are born again we are adjusted to a heavenly environment. It's the most scientifically accurate proposition on the face of the earth. Jesus Christ came to lift us up to a higher kingdom."

Chairman was Don McKechnie of Ottawa, international secretary-treasurer of the Christian Business Men's Committee.

BAND CONCERT

A concert by the Peterborough Salvation Army Temple band preceded the rally which included vocal solos by Homer James of Ottawa and violin selections by Dr. and Mrs. George Doxsee of Toronto. Bill McCaul of Toronto led the singing, accompanied on the organ by Charles Allan and on the piano by Eric Hartshorn.

Those present were welcomed by Al Stevens, president of the local committee. Other speakers included Ed Clem of Toronto, chairman of the Eastern Regional Conference, and Dave Whitney, chairman of the Orillia committee.

The rally brought to a close a full day of activity attended by about 75 delegates from Montreal, Ottawa, Barrie, Orillia, Toronto and other centres, with the majority from Peterborough and district. It was the first CBMC rally held in this city.

The day's program included addresses by a number of speakers from outside centres, including those at the noon luncheon and at dinner, in addition to discussion groups for men and women.

Sunday was the concluding day of the rally when delegates attended regular church services. Chairman of the committee for Saturday's program was Briggs Crichton.

FREED PRISONERS INTERVIEWED—Shortly after their release by the Communists in prisoner of war exchange, Pfc. Everett W. Ritenour, Woodstock, Va.; Pte. Peter S. LeClaire, Fulton, N.Y., and Pfc. Robert H. Hickox, Syracuse, N.Y. (left to right) talk to newsmen at Freedom Village, Korea. Ritenour said he did not understand why he was repatriated as he had no sickness or wounds. He also reported that a captured American doctor treated ailing Allied prisoners during a march to prison.

23 Fatalities Reported Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eight young children died Sunday in a dawn fire that swept a navy veteran's unfinished home just outside the city limits of Sault Ste. Marie.

A Canadian Press survey showed one other fire death in Eastern Canada during the weekend. An unidentified man died in a Montreal rooming-house fire. There were seven deaths in automobile accidents, two drownings, two deaths from carbon monoxide poisoning, one in a shooting mishap, one in a plane crash and one in a fall.

All told, Ontario had 11 fatalities, Quebec eight, and Nova Scotia and New Brunswick two each.

ONTARIO DEATHS

Ontario deaths, in addition to those in the fire at the Sault, were: John Ward Lynn, 36, of Lockhaven, Pa., when his single-engined plane crashed in fog near Mount Hope airport; Calyton Thompson, 38, of Owen Sound, found shot at his home, a shotgun beside him; Fred W. Harris, 57, of Sudbury, when his car was hit by a passenger train near Renfrew.

Situation Has Improved

Easing Stern Measures In Malaya

By WILLIAM PARROTT

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — Britain's tough high commissioner for Malaya, Gen. Sir Gerald Templer, confident his stringent measures have at last broken the power of the Communist terrorists, is turning his attention toward the problems of peace.

First step in Templer's new program was the removal of an important emergency regulation granting powers of mass detention and deportation, "the need for which no longer exists," he said.

He announced his new program in a recent 10,000-word policy speech in which he devoted less than 10 per cent of the text to the campaign against the terrorists.

The general said he wants to apply to the whole administration the principle underlying "operation service," a highly successful police experiment aimed at establishing friendly relations and a spirit of confidence between the police and the public.

HIGH PRIORITY

As a high priority, his plans included the inauguration and guidance of elected local, town and municipal councils.

Employment exchanges are to be inaugurated and new labor legislation aimed in part at "encouraging the growth of responsible trade unions" is to be introduced.

The high commissioner's plans include improvement in the amenities of Malay villages, increasing the country's rice harvest, better marketing and credit facilities for the rice grower, and general rural development.

He made a special point of present and future plans for training local men and women in all branches of the public service so as to reduce progressively dependence on expatriate officers.

WARMLY WELCOMED

His speech, and particularly its shift of emphasis from the emergency to the political situation were warmly welcomed in Malaya where it gave encouragement and hope to a strife-ridden country whose morale was at its lowest less than 18 months ago following the murder of the then high commissioner, Sir Henry Gurney.

The widely read "Straits Times" commented editorially: "There could be no better sign of the times than the emphasis which the high commissioner put on the social, political and economic progress planned for Malaya."

Behind his move to turn toward the restoration of peacetime conditions and social progress was a story of steadily waning terrorist strength.

In the 16 weeks ended March 16, 52 key Communist officials gave themselves up. These Gen. Templer described as "part of the hard-core of the Communist party."

Freighter Towed Back To Safety

SUPERIOR, Wis. (AP) — The freighter J. J. H. Brown was towed to safety Sunday after riding out a storm since Friday night with a gaping hole in her bow.

The Brown rammed the Superior breakwater at 10 p.m. Friday as she left the harbor bound for Oswego, N.Y., with 207,000 bushels of corn and 70,000 bushels of wheat.

Capt. A. H. Dennis said failure of the ship's steering mechanism caused the accident.

Dennis ordered the fore and aft anchors dropped after the crash. The big vessel held steady from then on as 55-mile-an-hour winds buffeted her.

The storm subsided Sunday. Tugs got lines aboard and pulled the Brown to elevators in Superior where she was to be partially unloaded.

The 36 members of the crew survived without injury.

Telegraph Operator Dies

TORONTO (CP)—Harry J Lillie, 85, former chief Canadian Pacific Telegraph operator here, died Sunday. He retired 20 years ago after 46 years' service. Harry Lillie of Hamilton is a son.

Country Place To Celebrate Coronation

By FEM RICH

LONDON (Reuters)—If you want to get that old Coronation feeling June 2, like it was when Queen Victoria was crowned in 1838, go to the country.

In the villages merrie England will live again. There'll be ox-roasting in market squares, dancing on the green, bonfires pageants and barbecues.

Taverns will be jampacked with celebrating farmers, drinking a powerful brew specially concocted in honor of the Queen.

Coronation eve every hill and hillock will have a bonfire, lit, of course, by a Boy Scout. The Scouts have formed a country-wide chain to build and light the fires.

SOME HARD THOUGHT

The ox-roasting privileges came only after some hard thought by food ministry officials who, in this land of rationed meat, jealously guard all edible four-footed beings.

It seems that the Coronation planning committee of one village, authorized to slaughter one pig, painted it red, white and blue so folks would recognize it and fatten it up with extra rations. The food ministry people did not consider this to be sporting.

The villages will revive many of the centuries-old traditions of Coronation day. Their homely pageants will be just as genuine historically as the rites performed in Westminster Abbey.

Villagers of Somerset already are busy polishing up the rickety, horse-drawn coach which rumbled regularly from Bath to London at the close of the 18th century. In the coach villagers will carry messages to the Queen promising that the people of Somerset will stand by the Monarch through thick and thin.

GLAMOROUS PAGEANTS

Pageants will be more glamorous in the seaside and riverside towns, where mediaeval tales will be re-enacted on floats. Most of them will be on themes from the robust age of Queen Elizabeth I.

Brighton, garish channel resort, will live up to its reputation for making fun.

In Dundee, Scotland, the borough's Coronation committee was told the traditional 21-gun salute would cost them $70 for ammunition. They decided the noise would be worth it. (Scotsmen have insisted that the Queen should be called Elizabeth I, not Elizabeth II, since the first Elizabeth did not rule over Scotland.)

Only one thing has not been organized—the weather.

Bus Drivers Vote For Strike

KITCHENER (CP)—Some 60 public utility commission bus drivers and maintenance workers voted Sunday on strike action.

Results of the balloting will not be known for several days but Elroy Robson, national vice-president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and other transport workers (CIO-CCL) said he is certain the men voted to strike.

"There is no question in my mind," he said, "that the bus drivers and maintenance men of the PUC have overwhelmingly voted in favor of strike action."

The Kitchener PUC refuses to recognize the brotherhood as the employees' bargaining agent.

Simpson Ready To Drop Controversial Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Representative Richard M. Simpson (Rep. Pa.) said today he is willing to drop a controversial provision in his reciprocal trade bill which would bar any lowering of tariffs to levels found to imperil United States industry.

Simpson's new stand seemed likely to go a long way toward averting a sharp, open clash between President Eisenhower and key Republicans in the House of Representatives on the touchy issues of tariffs and foreign trade.

Simpson disclosed his position as the House ways and means committee prepared to open hearings today on his bill to extend the Reciprocal Trade Act for one year beyond June 12.

This week's witnesses are from groups which support high protective tariffs.

The issue is especially important this year. Many U. S. allies and some administration leaders have been urging a relaxing of tariffs and trade barriers to permit foreign countries to sell more goods in the United States—on the theory of "trade—not aid."

Simpson is an influential member of the tariff-handling ways and means committee.

Under the present law, the president has power to negotiate new tariffs below levels determined by the tariff commission to constitute a danger to U.S. industry.

Further, the president can set aside tariff commission recommendations that current import taxes be increased to provide adequate protection for U. S. industry against cheaper competition from foreign goods.

Simpson's bill, as originally introduced, would have taken away both these presidential powers and would have made tariff commission "peril point" findings binding and final.

Senator Duff Dies In Sleep At Lunenburg

LUNENBURG, N. S. (CP)—Canadian politics lost one of its most colorful and enduring figures Saturday.

Senator William Duff, who in 35 years on Parliament Hill established himself as a hard-hitting speech maker and a stout defender of Maritime rights, died in his sleep here at the age of 80.

Born in Newfoundland, he settled in Bridgewater, N. S., in 1895 and 22 years later was elected Liberal member for Lunenburg.

He was re-elected in 1921 and 1925, and was deputy speaker of the Commons for a brief period in 1926. Defeated in his home constituency in the general election of that year, he hopped over to Antigonish-Colchester in 1927 and won a by-election.

He was in the Commons from then until 1936, when he was appointed to the Senate. His first day as a member of the upper chamber, he unwittingly accomplished something no other senator has ever done.

ORDERED TO LEAVE

Unaware of his appointment, Senator Duff settled his huge six-foot frame into his Commons seat as usual, in violation of the strictest parliamentary rules. Ordered to leave by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, he rose, bowed to he Speaker and glided massively out.

A few years ago he was so eager to shake hands with some of his fellow senators at the opening of a new session of Parliament that he held up the vice-regal procession led by Governor-General Viscount Alexander.

At Ottawa his fisherman's background earned him the nickname "Admiral." He championed the cause of the fishermen, the Atlantic provinces and free trade, and was an early exponent of Newfoundland confederation.

He welcomed a fight with an opponent or a heckler in a political audience. He often spoke out against policies of his own party, would label cabinet ministers with whom he disagreed, "young fellow," or "poor fellow" or "boy."

ARDENT PRESBYTERIAN

An ardent Presbyterian, he never let a divorce bill through the Senate without calling for a division.

SENATOR WM. DUFF

The "Admiral" was born at Carbonear, Nfld., son of a onetime member of the Newfoundland legislature. After coming to Nova Scotia he worked in a dry goods store at Bridgewater, married the boss's daughter and came here to manage her father's weekly newspaper and printing business.

In 1905 he established his own fish business, and remained in it until his retirement in 1944.

His death leaves a Senate standing of 71 Liberals and eight Progressive Conservatives, with a record 23 seats vacant.

The funeral will be held Tuesday from his home and the Presbyterian church.

He is survived by his three daughters, all of Lunenburg. His wife, the former Jennie Oxner, died seven weeks ago.

Name Of Horse

KREMLIN, Okla. (AP)—Tourists pass daily through this city and smirk at its name. But residents here refuse to get red-faced. They explain Kremlin is a breed of saddle horse, as well as a place in Russia. They add not only was the town named after a horse, but it was named by the daughter of a railroad executive who admired that particular kind of horse back in 1894.

TRULY REGAL is Queen Elizabeth in these latest pictures taken with her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh. The photos are royal command pictures taken in the Green Room of Buckingham Palace. The Queen is wearing a pale pink gown of needlework lace over tulle. Decorating it are the Blue Ribbon and the Star of the Garter. On her head is an ancient diamond diadem which was reset for Queen Victoria. The Duke of Edinburgh wears his uniform of Admiral of the Fleet.

Sees Freedom Threatened From Within

WASHINGTON (CP)—The president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, referring to Communist spy cases, suggested today that U. S.-Canadian unity as been strengthened by a discovery that freedom can be threatened "in as dire a way by so-called fellow citizens from within as it ever can be from armies from without."

Alfred W. Simms of Saint John, N. B., in a speech prepared for delivery at the opening of the annual meeting of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said this Red threat "is lining up the citizens on both sides of the border in parallel armies that have much more in common with each other than they have with the respective citizens of both our countries who have become so sadly distorted in their loyalties."

NO PARALLEL

Simms said "there is no parallel in history" whereby two business groups with the economic destiny of their respective countries in their hands "can fraternize on the basis of such closely common aims, ideals and responsibilities."

"There is no entity in either of our countries which is so well qualified to lead our two countries to greater unity than our two chambers," he said.

In another address, Laurence F. Lee, president of the U. S. chamber, said "a sweeping decentralization of the federal government is in tha making."

"Many millions of tax dollars can be released for creative and productive purposes by reducing the scope of federal authority, for waste is inherent in all highly centralized governments. So is corruption."

Red Motives

HONG KONG (AP)—Admiral Arthur W. Radford, United States Pacific fleet commander, arrived today and said the Communist invasion of Laos in Indo-China may have been made possible by slackening of the Korean war. He said the Laos invasion had greatly enlarged the Indo-China war and unmasked the Reds' aggressive motives.

Queen To Accept Glove From 'Stand In'

LONDON (Reuters) — The Queen's decision to accept a symbolic embroidered glove from a "stand-in" has saved a centuries-old Coronation tradition from extinction.

The 400-year-old custom of bestowing the glove on the Monarch appeared doomed when officials ruled last year that an incorporated company could not take over the role from the lord of an ancient manor.

Ever since the time of Henry VIII the Coronation ceremony has included the bestowal of the glove by the current lord of the manor of Workshop in Central England. Henry claimed the glove in return for granting the manor lands to the first lord.

But the present incumbent, the Duke of Newcastle, joined the ancient manor with other lands and turned them into a corporation. The duke himself has moved to Southern Rhodesia.

Officials of the Court of Claims ruled that the corporation could not perform the function in the duke's place.

Solution of the problem came when Lord Woolton, chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, was named April 22 to make the presentation. Lord Woolton's duties as chancellor are largely honorary, but his job makes him available for special duties that cannot be properly assigned to other notables.

Dulles Seeks More Money For Slowed-Down Defence

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary John Foster Dulles returns from Paris today to seek vital financial support from Congress for a slowed-down European defence program.

This may prove to be a formidable task—not only because of the cost-cutting temper of Congress but also because of indications the defence buildup may henceforth go even slower than Dulles himself has advocated.

The secretary was due to report to President Eisenhower on he North Atlantic Treaty Organization council meeting which ended Saturday in the French capital.

The council set military targets for the Atlantic allies for this year at an increase of six divisions in Western Europe for a predicted total of about 56. Two years ago the aim by that time was close to 100 divisions.

FAVORED SLOWDOWN

The Eisenhower administration has favored a slowdown or stretch out of the program for a long cold war struggle with the Russians. Dulles thus abandoned the urgency with which representatives of the previous Truman administration had pressed the armament buildup.

Evidence that the whole project might go even slower than he wanted, however, was found in the fact that the German Senate last week refused to ratify a European Defence Community treaty under which West Germany would be rearmed. Also, there has been speculation that the Soviet peace offensive would have a relaxing effect on defence preparations in Europe far more than in the U. S.

Dulles, in sessions with congressional committees, will have to convince legislators that the U. S. is getting its money's worth out of current military and economic aid to Europe and will continue to do so.

Dulles cautioned European leaders they would have to make a better showing on the European army plan by June 30 if Congress is to be impressed.

Experts Study Arctic On Baffin Island

MONTREAL (CP)—Col. P. D. (Pat) Baird, one of Canada's top explorers, plans to resume his study of the Arctic this summer on lonely Baffin Island.

He will head a 13-man group of Canadian, British and Swiss experts and university undergraduates to the Arctic outpost. The group will make its headquarters at Pangnirtung and branch out from there in search of scientific data on conditions in the Arctic.

The expedition sponsored by the Arctic Institute of North America and the Swiss Foundation for Alpine Research leaves Dorval airport May 15. Col. Baird will act as physicist.

From the Swiss foundation will be J. Marmet, physiologist; H. Rotherlisberber, geophysicist; F. Schwarzenbach, botanist, and J.R. Weber, geophysicist.

W. H. Ward of the United Kingdom department of scientific and industrial research will join the expedition as a glaciologist. Also on the party will be Sven Orvig of the Arctic institute, as meteorologist, photographer and A. Watson, geocicologist; B. H. Bonnlander, general assistant; H. R. Thompson, gemorphologist; J. A. Thomson, leader and glaciologist. Five others from McGill University on the expedition are W. R. B. Battle, glaand D. J. Kidd of Toronto as geologist.

A total of 12 tons of supplies were sent to Pangnirtung last fall and stored there. Still to go is a ton of scientific equipment. The party will fly by RCAF to Frobisher Bay and then to Pangnirtung.

Five of six field camps will be established inland. The glaciology studies will be carried out in the Penny Highland icecap. The camps will be serviced by a Norseman aircraft.

The 13 scientists will return by sea at the end of summer.

Four Generations Present On Golden Wedding Day

COLDSPRINGS (ENS) — Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. McBride, Coldsprings, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Saturday afternoon, the commemoration taking the form of an afternoon tea for about 100 friends, neighbors and relatives.

Four generations were present, Thomas McBride, his son Roy McBride, Windsor, his daughter and son, Mrs. Vernes (Josephine) and Ross McBride, and their two children; Richard Vernes; and Ross McBride, Jr., as members of the fourth generation.

Pouring tea were Mrs. J. Davidson, Centenary, and Mrs. Fred Ford, friends of the bride and groom. Receiving the guests was Mrs. Arthur McIntosh, Cobourg, a friend of the family. Included among the guests seated with the bride and bridegroom of 50 years were their bridesmaid and groomsman, Mrs. V. Willmot (nee Etta Crossen), Toronto, and Fred McBride, Exeter.

Mr. and Mrs. McBride were born in Hamilton township. The bride was the former Edith May Crossen, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Crossen, and the groom a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard McBride.

They were married at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. James Fisher, and Mr. Fisher, east of Coldsprings, on April 22, 1903, by the late Rev. Alex McCormack, pastor of the Congregational church.

STARTED FARMING

After marriage they took up residence on the groom's home in Coldsprings. Mr. McBride also operated the village blacksmith shop. Members of the McBride family had serviced this vicinity with machinery, blacksmithing and general repairs since 1854. Mr. McBride continued to work for the present owner till about a year ago, when he retired.

The couple have four daughters and two sons who were all present for this special day. They are Mrs. Wm. Brothwell (Mildred), Garden Hill; Mrs. Roy Grainger (Olive), Windsor; Mrs. Glenn Hogg (Floris), Harwood; Mrs. Walter Graham (Lenore), Windsor; Roy, of Windsor, and Lloyd of Oshawa.

There are 12 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. McBride are in good health, and are members of St. Paul's United Church. Mrs. McBride is a member of the Coldsprings Women's Missionary Society, the Women's Association, and the Women's Institute.

FAMILY DINNER

On Saturday evening a family dinner was enjoyed, after which the family group presented Mr. and Mrs. McBride with a sum of money.

Neighbors presented the couple with a gold-color woollen blanket, and corsage of mauve sweet peas; the Coldsprings Women's Institute, a basket of yellow roses.

Including the attendants there were five present at the 50th wedding anniversary that were present at the wedding, namely: Mrs. Herb Bell, Mrs. Chas. Davidson, Mrs. Fred Ford, Mrs. V. Willmot, and Mr. Fred McBride.

Did You Ever See a Sheep with Messed-up Hair?

Nature was kinder to the sheep than to humans. She gave sheep hair that stays handsomely groomed naturally. The sheep is the only animal that grows hair—not fur—like humans. Yet it never uses sticky pomades, stiff lacquers or greasy dressings—not even a comb—to keep its hair neat. But the sheep is luckier than humans. Nature gave it LANOLIN to keep its hair radiant, soft and always in place.

Sheep Aren't the Only Ones with Naturally Groomed Hair

LANOLIN is the natural oil that most resembles the oil in your own hair, which most of us have washed away or dried-up by too many artificial treatments. Clear, greaseless NIL-O-NAL is the closest you can get to pure LANOLIN. NIL-O-NAL helps replace this vital oil, and leaves your hair naturally, neatly, smartly groomed without that plastered look. Give it a try today! Only $1.79 for 2 oz. jar . . . $3 for 4 oz. jar.

Exhibit Of Paintings Best Yet By Local People

No greater crowd of people has ever attended a local art show, and no better local exhibition of paintings has ever been held than the night annual showing of the Peterborough Group of Painters, which opened Saturday evening at the Public Library Gallery. It is an impressive and good exhibition, and a marked improvement on earlier work which this group has exhibited, as Yvonne McKague Housser, Toronto artist, said in commenting on it at the opening.

There are 75 canvases and 15 exhibitors including a guest exhibitor, Judge J. de N. Kennedy, whose artistic competence as shown in his two large water-colors in the show confirms the tone of the exhibition.

Following the alphabetically-arranged catalogue about the two rooms (the show is well hung and selective, by the way), one Bonnie Carlisle's careful, colorful pot of 'mums, then Gertrude Cox's versatile, able and cheerful work; her fresh and free Autumn Roadside, the charming, effective Stony Lake (technically interesting, too), her happy comment on a Quebec city street. Miss Cox's work is a joy to see.

Madeline Hambly's work on view includes a clear, precise Willows in Winter, Jack Hamer's artistic certitude and ma... prominent in the show; among his notable pieces are the evocative birches at Gel's Lake, the large and powerful "Rural Gas Station," and his moving October, Eel's Lake. His work excels.

Winnifred Lampman's brush this year has a different dramatic unity from some earlier years; one is struck by the dark but pleasant atmospheric Slough at Courtenay, B.C., and her strong "Deserted Farm" and "Wind and Storm." Her work is distinctive.

Mary Lees' colour-cushioned Bend of the River has interest. John Londerville shows an effective, impromptu-like Burned-over Sandbanks and a technically interesting impression of a street corner. Peg Londerville has a clear simplicity in her Boats (rather good fun) and the black and white heads. John McKerchar gives some precise, unpretentious images of common daily scenes.

There is quiet pleasure in Helena Munro's Road to Rice Lake and her pastel McConnell's Farm, Emily. Her charcoal portrait is also agreeable and competent. Maralin Munro has a wide technical and topical variety in the seven canvases she is showing, revealing an artistic sensitivity and skill which the group will miss next year. (She is removing from Peterborough this summer.) Her "Fish" is a bright and striking design; her "Nuns" in oil has charm and confidence; her portraits are good.

Ruth Martin Thompson, exhibiting for the first time with this group, has an acutely perceptive portrait, a fascinating (in design as well as color composition) red barn in midwinter, and an oil wash of the mill at Omemee subtly but boldly colored.

The blues in Betty Weir's Gulls and Rocks make it an interesting oil; her Bay at Catchacoma is pleasing; her work shows a developing competence. Florence Wilson's "Yesteryear" — old log buildings in the bush country, and her four other canvases indicate careful work.

On the whole, a good, interesting show, well worth seeing. It remains on view all this week. The group is to be complimented on it.—T. J. A.

Workers Halt Wildcat Walkout

KITCHENER (CP)—More than 200 workers at the local plant of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company returned to work today following a two-day wildcat walkout.

The members of Local 73, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Pastic Workers of America (CIO-CCL) held a meeting Sunday to discuss causes of the strike, said to lie in a cut in rest periods in certain sections of the plant.

The company would make no comment on the situation today other than to deny that rest periods had been shortened. Officials said they expect to hold a meeting with the union executive later this week.

NAVAL ACADEMY

OSLO (CP)—Norway will build a new naval academy at Barum, near Oslo, at a cost of about $900,000. The institution will accommodate 160 cadets taking a training course of 4½ years.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Twelve graduates of the University of Western Ontario have received scholarships, studentships and fellowships totalling $12,100 from the National Research Council.

In addition three students, graduates of other Canadian universities, have received awards to do post-graduate work at Western.

Five of the Western students will continue their studies elsewhere.

The awards are among 226 made in the fields of science and engineering by NRC this year. The total value of 1953 awards is $224,000.

List of recipients includes:

E. J. Middleton, Deep River, $600 bursary, University of Western Ontario; F. R. Hunt, Port Hope, $1,200 fellowship, Western; R. H. Adlington, St. Thomas $900 studentship, Western; R. L. Wilson, St. Thomas, $900 studentship, McGill.

H. G. Downie, Guelph, received a $1,200 special scholarship to do post-graduate work at Western. He is a graduate of Toronto and Cornell universities.

Rousing Reception For Two Leaders

LONDON (CP)—The House of Commons today gave rousing receptions to the leaders of the two parties—Prime Minister Churchill and Clement Attlee.

Shouts of "hear hear" from both sides greeted the prime minister as he walked to his seat for the first time since becoming Sir Winston Churchill. He was made a Knight of the Garter by the Queen at Windsor Castle Friday.

Earlier a demonstration greeted Attlee, Labor party leader, who took his seat after being absent several weeks because of an appendix operation.

UK Labor Leader Takes Moscow 'Cure'

LONDON (Reuters)—A British Communist labor leader, Arthur Horner, left London airport for Moscow today for a six-week rest cure.

The executive of the 600,000 Coal Miners Union, fourth largest in Britain, has given him leave of absence and will pay all his expenses. He is general secretary.

Horner has been a member of the Communist party since its inception in Britain in 1919. He last visited Russia in 1937.

Fellow PoWs Sided With Reds

TOKYO (AP)A repatriated U. S. corporal who once escaped from a Red prison camp for four days said today some fellow captives "squealed" to the Chinese about American escape plots.

A sergeant said a Chinese officer reported searching 11 days for a wrist watch and wedding band confiscated when he was taken prisoner last month. He said the officer finally gave him a different watch worth twice as much and a different wedding band.

Both soldiers and others told their stories of life in North Korean prison camps to newspaper men at Tokyo army hospital. They are recuperating after being released in the sick-and-wounded exchange at Panmunjom last week.

The corporal, Harry E. Purvis of York, S. C., said some captives tipped off the Chinese about Americans plotting escapes. But he gave no details.

He said there were about 15 "progressives" in the camp who "hung around with the Chinese."

Have Tri-Service Color Party In Parade

OTTAWA (CP)—A tri-service color party will head the Canadian contingent when Commonwealth troops parade in London for the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth, army headquarters announced today.

Color officer will be Lieut. M. J. Waymouth, 28, of Halifax, RCN, and the two escorts to the colors will be army S.Sgt. A. M. Foisy, 31, and air force Flt.-Sgt. G. L. Hayter, 36, both of Eastview, Ont.

The three will lead the Canadian contingent in the parade, marching directly behind the rear rank of the Australian contingent and in front of a detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Murder Suspect Arrives From B.C.

TORONTO (CP)—Murder suspect Henri Seguin of Maxville and accused bank robber Harry Guguid of Toronto arrived here early today from Vancouver under police escort.

Duguid was transferred to Don jail while Seguin was sent to Kingston.

Duguid was listed as Canada's No. 8 criminal before his arrest March 24 in Vancouver. Wanted for a long list of bank robberies in the Toronto area, he sawed his way out of a jail in Welland in 1947.

Cars Damaged In 2 Accidents

An estimated total $265 damages was caused in two accidents in the city Saturday.

An unidentified car backed out of a driveway opposite 422 Brioux St. and caused $40 damage to the left rear fender of a parked ½-ton truck belonging to George M. Rutherford, 37, 573 Cameron St., at 10.30 p.m.

A collision occurred at Donegal and London Sts. shortly before 6 p.m., between a car driven by Donald Simpkin, 20, Buckhorn, and one driven by Grant H. Kirn, 33, 129 Huron St.

Damage to the left front of Simpkin's car was estimated at $150 and to the front of Howard's car at $75. PC Harold Andrew investigated both accidents.

Old Lanark Resident Dies In 104th Year

PERTH (CP)—One of Lanark county's oldest residents, Mrs. Harry Closs died Sunday. She was 103.

The former Margaret Hudson, she was born in Innisville, and first farmed with her husband in the Ottawa valley. He died in 1929 at the age of 85.

Mrs. Closs is survived by two sons, Harry of Toronto, and William J. of London, Ont.

Car Rolls 3 Times 4 People Injured

POINTE-AU-CHENE, Que. (CP)—Gerard Peladeau, 21, of Eastview, Ont., was critically injured here Sunday night in an automobile accident in which another man was less seriously injured and two women were shaken up.

Treated in hospital at Hawkesbury, Ont., for head injuries, Peladeau today was moved to the Montreal Neurological Institute.

Police said the automobile turned over three times on the highway and that Peladeau was thrown out of the car a distance of 50 feet.

William Charron, 22, also of Eastview, received shock and face bruises but was in "good" condition. Two women passengers in the car, Judity Sarazin of Ottawa and Isabelle Thompson of Hull, escaped with a shaking-up.

Biggest Item

MARRIED 50 YEARS AGO Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Cavanagh of 604 Stewart St., celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Saturday. At one time living in Ennismore township, Mr. Cavanagh was once assessor and a councillor of the township. (Parks Studio Photo)

Mr., Mrs. W. F. Cavanagh Golden Anniversary

Members of the family and close friends attended a special dinner Saturday noon at the Kawartha Club to honor Mr. and Mrs. William F. Cavanagh of 604 Stewart St. who are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary. Fifty were present at the dinner.

To be strictly accurate the 50th anniversary will not be till Tuesday but Saturday was a more convenient day for members of the family to attend, so that was the day chosen.

The principals were William F. Cavanagh, 73, a former Ennismore township assessor and councillor and now an employee of Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Ltd., and Mrs. Cavanagh, 72, the former Nora Hickson, daughter of the late James Hickson and Julia Handley of Ennismore.

Mr. and Mrs. Cavanagh were married on the 28th of April, 1903, in the Ennismore parish church by the Rev. Michael Fitzpatrick, Sr., the parish priest.

The bridesmaid at that time was Elizabeth Killen, now Mrs. Leo Crough of Moose Jaw; and the groomsman was the late Michael D. Sullivan who lived in Emily township.

Mr. and Mrs. Cavanagh had 10 children—four girls and six boys—nine of them now living. And they now have 23 grandchildren.

Present at Saturday's celebration were their six sons—William, Thomas, Emmett, Malcolm, Elmer and Clair—all of Peterborough; and their three daughters—Mrs. Joseph Dion (Hazel) of Tweed, Mrs. William Snow (Loretta) of Sherbrooke St. and Mrs. Joseph Boland (Lillian) of Payne Ave. Their fourth daughter, the late Mrs. Leo Garvey (Olive) died six years ago.

Mr. Cavanagh was the son of the late James Cavanagh and Mary Ann Flood of Ennismore. He farmed on the 100-acre farm after marrying Mrs. Cavanagh, also from Ennismore and raised his family there. Twenty years ago he moved into the city where he is still a resident.

After half a century of marriage the couple remain in good health and Mr. Cavanagh continues to work at Dominion Woollens.

Saturday they were at home to friends between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. and again between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Women In Industry Hardest To Sell Sensible Footwear

TORONTO (CP)—There's trouble afoot for women in industry, and attempts are being made to clear it up with a dash of glamor.

A special session on foot protection was held in connection with the annual industrial accident prevention convention in Toronto recently.

Delegates were told that women in industry are the hardest of all to sell on sensible footwear, regardless of the fact that unsuitable heels skid and ankles will turn on wet, oily floors.

Open-toed shoes expose toes to falling objects, and fatigue often is the result of "the wrong shoe for the job."

This year safety features have been combined with smart styling in saddle shoes, tie Oxfords and loafers. Such things as steel toe caps tested to withstand a 2,200-pound weight being dropped on them are incorporated into these shoes.

Figures for one of the largest automobile plants in the country showed that a few years ago they had 268 toe injuries in one year referred to the workmen's compensation board and 99 lost-time cases.

Sensible shoes helped reduce this to 132 toe injuries and 35-lost time [illegible] have programs under way to have all employees "safety shod."

10,000 Nurses Registered Largest Group In Canada

TORONTO.—A membership of nearly 10,000, the largest group of professional nurses in Canada, was reported by general secretary Florence H. Walker at the annual meeting of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario in Toronto.

Additional office space was taken last year at the Jarvis St. headquarters to keep pace with the increasing work of the RNAO since its assumption of new responsibilities under the Nurses Registration Act, said Miss Walker. Full-time professional and clerical staff now numbers 25, with two part-time workers. Further increases are imminent.

An urgently needed revision of curriculum and information for schools of nursing in Ontario was completed through the education committee. The institutional nursing committee was responsible for preparation of a brief to the Health Minister asking for a supervisory nursing service for provincial hospitals.

The committee on industrial nursing prepared a Guide to Management and Nursing Personnel which is being widely circulated to industrial managers and the profession.

An increased tendency for individual nurses and nursing groups to consult the association when difficulties arose in connection with the practice of the profession was noted. Advantage has been taken frequently of the free legal advice given to members.

Registration examinations were held in April and October for 2,022 candidates, and in May and November for 1,689 others. Registration by waiver was granted to 33 nurses whose graduation dates ranged from 1904 to 1923, and this involved a great deal of checking and research.

Registration in Ontario was granted to 335 nurses from provinces of Canada other than Ontario, nine U.S. states and other countries, including China, Czechoslovakia, Finland, The Netherlands, Latvia, Lithuania, Norway, Hungary and Sweden. The department also handled applications of 340 Ontario registered nurses seeking registration in other provinces.

The association is in a healthy condition financially, said Rahno M. Beamish. Total assets of $21,000 were reported for the permanent education fund, for use of RNAO members who wish to take postgraduate study.

Since 1937, a total of $28,250 has been used to assist 89 nurses with postgraduate work. Loans last year totalled $1,300, all of which were repaid. Loans outstanding at present total $5,860.

A provincial Department of Health grant of $5,000 to the association last year was reported.

A recommendation was made that the board of directors consider offering at least one bursary yearly to a student entering a degree course in nursing in an Ontario university.

It was reported that since 1946 when the title of "certified nursing assistant" came into being, 1,160 persons have been certified. The demand for nursing assistants is growing and can be expected to increase, the report said.

YW Gym Revue To Be Pageant Of 12 Nations

Attention will be turned to at least 12 of the United Nations countries when the YWCA gym demonstration is viewed this Friday evening, May 1, at Brock Ballroom. Miss Beatris Pelsis, who is Latvian, has arranged the program which she titled "Fun Around the World."

There will be 140 children — ranging from three years up — and 34 adults taking part. For the first time the YW is also featuring guest performers. They will be boys and men from the YMCA who will demonstrate fencing, tumbling and parallel bar work.

The program is of a different type than the YW revues of past years and does not include precision drills and marches. Miss Pelsis has the children for one class of 45 minutes per week and she endeavours to give each the same training, allowing some opportunity for self-expression.

She has designed costumes typical of each country represented by the dances. Three to 5-year-olds are cast as South African monkeys, 5 to 8-year gymnasts as an Indian family, and the 5 to 8 dancing class does a French minuet. Nine to 10-year-old girls will be featured in a graceful Vienna Waltz, and the girls of 11 and 12 are doing a lovely number representative of England.

"What happens to gym routines down south" is a novelty by the business girls, and some seniors will demonstrate the Scvandinavian style of club swinging. A folk dance of the Baltic States is another grown-ups' number and 12 girls of the advanced gym class are to do an ancient Greek dance, wearing costumes they have designed themselves. Germany is represented by a singing dance and America by tumblers.

Sees Discontent Greatest Menace

HAMILTON (CP) — Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, director of the United Nations technical assistance program, said Saturday the most serious problem today is not communism but the rising tide of discontent sweeping through two-thirds of the world.

Addressing an Ontario-Quebec regional conference of the Canadian Women's Press Club, he said most of the people in the world are hungry most of the time and lack a basis for a decent life. They were not impressed with democracy, Christianity or the western way of life.

He said knowledge and technical assistance must be used rapidly if the endeavor to change things in other countries is serious.

Institute Dance At Coldsprings

COLDSPRINGS — (ENS)—A large crowd attended the dance on Friday night, sponsored by the Coldsprings' Women's Institute. The spot dance prize was won by Mr. and Mrs. Roy MacLean. Lucky chair prize to Lewis King, Warkworth, and novelty dance prize to Barbara Wheatly, Grafton, and Donald Jacobson.

Coldsprings Pair Honored On 40th Wedding Day

COLDSPRINGS (ENS). — Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Eagleson were pleasantly surprised on Saturday evening when approximately 175 of their friends, neighbors and relatives gathered at the Coldsprings hall to honor them on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary.

An enjoyable time was spent playing progressive euchre.

An address was read by their granddaughter, Royetta MacLean, and a beautiful silver tea service was presented them by their grandchildren, Heather and David Eagleson. Mr. Eagleson replied appropriately.

Mr. and Mrs. Eagleton were born in Hamilton township, the groom a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Eagleson, and the bride a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Minifie. They were married at the bride's home, two miles east of Coldsprings on April 23, 1913, by the Rev. A. F. Pollock. Their attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Norman Minifie (nee Maud Johns), of Cobourg, who were also able to be present for this occasion.

Following their marriage they lived on the groom's farm east of Coldsprings until a few years ago, when they moved to an adjacent small farm, and their son took over the homestead. They have one daughter and one son: Mrs. Ed. Labow, Toronto, and Amos, on the farm. There are four grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Eagleson are members of St. Paul's United Church.

Prize winners in the euchre were Mrs. W. J. Dines, Leslie McIntosh, Mrs. F. Eagleson, Dave Mancuso, Toronto, and Ted Sedgwick, Cobourg. After cards, some dancing was enjoyed to music supplied by Mrs. D. Kent, Harold Minifie and Gordon Buttars.

Guests were present from Oshawa, Peterborough, Toronto, Cobourg, Port Hope, New Toronto, Baltimore and Bailieboro.

DOROTHY DIX:

Golden Rule Could Solve In-Law Troubles

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm to be married this summer and have a problem regarding living accommodations. My mother has offered us the second floor of her home, as an apartment, and at a reasonable price. I have told my plans to several of my friends and each has advised me against it. My mother is not one to interfere and has said that we would be treated as regular tenants. I don't want to take any chances and would certainly appreciate your opinion of a newly married couple living in the home of a parent.

MARIE D.

CIRCUMSTANCES ALTER CASES

ANSWER: Few rules of human conduct are so infallible that they can be blindly followed at all times; among the most flexible are those dealing with in-law relationships. In fact, if I may digress from the immediate problem for a moment, I think there would be no in-law problem at all if all rules were thrown out the window except the Golden one. If all mothers-in-law treated their sons' wives as they themselves would have wanted to be treated as a daughter-in-law, and all brides gave their mothers-in-law the consideration that they, in turn, hope to get in the future when their own sons marry, we could shelve forever this particular difficulty between generations.

Since this Utopia has not yet been achieved — and probably never will be — troubles will continue to arise. Marie's household, however, will probably be free from in-law strife since all parties concerned have the mutual consideration that is needed for any harmonious marital adjustment. I would most certainly agree that hers is a case where living in the same house with parents is recommended. The reason why the arrangement is usually vetoed is because it's almost impossible for most parents to keep out of their children's affairs, and because most young marrieds would have too great an inclination to continue leaning on their elders. Marie and her mother have threshed the problem out quite thoroughly and have come to mutual agreement on its delicate issues.

The advice of friends is seldom completely disinterested, and should never be accepted as the sole or final decision in an important matter. Very often they turn around and do the very things against which they have warned others.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Several years ago my husband died, leaving me with a daughter. I had a good job, and soon we owned our own home and I had money in the bank. Then I met Roy and married him two years ago. He makes a good salary, but spends every weekend drinking, so I never see any of his money. Even when he's sober, he's disagreeable, calling my daughter—who is now 18 and a fine girl — all sorts of names, breaking furniture and hitting me. He won't do a thing around the house, not even shovelling snow or cutting grass. Now he thinks I should take his mother and father in.

MRS. H. P.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Why not tell the good-for-nothing to clear out? He certainly got himself a soft berth when he married you — a comfortable home, free and clear, your savings account to draw on and no responsibilities. Having discovered that you are, at least to all appearances, perfectly willing to keep open house for all comers, he intends to foist his parents on you. Well, if you don't begin to draw the line somewhere, you'll probably wind up by being put out of the house yourself to make room for other relations. You are being taken over, but good, my lady. Stiffen your backbone and voice a little opposition.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married only nine months, and my husband and I are constantly arguing over television. He is television-crazy, and will sit up and watch it until 2 a.m. Since the set is in the bedroom, I am kept up until that hour, then must get up at 6 a.m. to go to business.

B. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You certainly can't continue getting along on four hours' sleep, so why not give your husband a choice of television or your pay cheque? Isn't it at all possible to have the set in another room of the house? Unless you live in a one-room set-up, removal of the set from your sleeping quarters would surely help the problem.

ARTHRITIC PAIN
Almost Unbearable

"My husband is a carpenter on the railway," writes Mrs. Jack Taylor, St. Catharines, Ont. "One morning he went to work and found he could not climb the ladder to do his work. A dull pain in his shoulder and leg was almost unbearable. The druggist recommended T-R-C's. My husband took 2 capsules and before the day was over he was back at work again. Now, if he has any pain at all, he carries T-R-C's in his lunch pail."

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Good Dessert When Reducers Feel Sorry

Do you woefully watch your son and daughter and husband stow away a stack of toast or a pile of mashed potatoes swimming in butter, longing for just one bite? . . . but knowing if you took it it would not be right?

If so, I have news for you.

If you thought a luscious looking dessert was still to come, could you bear up better under your reducing regime?

The dessert I am dishing up today is designed for conscientious reducers, but will be, oh so welcome to the diabetic patients in this audience too. And it is seasonal, for part of it calls for fresh pineapple.

Before I go on to the main business of the day I will repeat the features to look for when buying a fine pineapple. A "mother" pineapple is the best, and it can be told by its little row of tiny pines circling the big main pine at the top. Another feature of a good pineapple is wide shoulders. Of course the old test of easily pulled out pine spikes is still good for that means it is ripe.

A REDUCER'S JOY DESSERT

Custard Part: Heat 4 cups skim milk in top of double boiler, then add 8 sucaryl tablets to it to dissolve. Beat 4 eggs until well mixed and add to them ¼ teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Add milk slowly to the beaten eggs, stirring. Pour into butered baking dish. Sprinkle top with freshly grated nutmeg. Stand in larger pan containing hot water. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. from 35 to 50 minutes, or until set. Baking time depends on depth of custard in baking dish. Cool.

Pineapple Part: Wash a pineapple. Cut off thin slice from top and bottom. Stand pineapple on board and with strong sharp knife, starting at the top, cut off the skin in wide strips. Cut out eyes with small sharp pointed knife. Stand peeled and eyed pineapple in shallow bowl and shred it—I used an old cold meat fork. When you get close to the core you will have to use a knife to cut off the stubborn shreds.

For one medium-large pineapple you will need ½ cup hot water to which add 4 sucaryl tablets. When they are dissolved pour this over the shredded pineapple. Cover dish and store in refrigerator at least 1 hour to ripen.

To serve this dessert spoon a generous serving of cold custard on tea plate and beside it put generous serving of shredded pineapple. Since this is sugarless and is made with skim milk, it is virtually a protein and fresh fruit dessert. The flavor combination is delicate and lovely and the total effect is most satisfying to weight watchers.

LETTER: I have been a devoted reader of your column ever since you began writing it. Good Friday I made your Hot Cros Buns the children weer playing up in the sand-pit with just undervests and panties on, and at 12 noon I took sandwiches and hot cross buns to them. They all ran down to meet me singing "Hot Cross Buns, Hot Cross Buns, one a penny, two a penny, Hot Cross Buns". We did enjoy them.

I noticed a reader asking for English Meat Pies. I have here the recipe for Pork Pie as I brought it from England . .

PORK PIE OR MELTON MOWBRAY
(with canned sausage meat)

Filling: One can sausage meat, diced, jelly from can, thick slice bread. Pastry: ½ lb. flour, 3½ oz. lard, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ gill (½ cup) boiling water. (N.B. It is easier to make 2 small pies than one large.) 1. Prepare filling. 2. Mix flour and salt. Boil water and lard together. 3. Pour into flour and mix with wooden spoon. 4. Turn onto floured board and knead. 5. Work into shape for pie. I use my round Xmas cake pans for this. Keep small piece of pastry for top. 6. Fill with meat and broken bread. Cover with pastry. 7. Flute the edges and make hole in centre of lid. 8. Bake in hot oven about ¾ hour. Pour in jelly after pie is cooked. In can of meat there will be plently of lard with which to make the pastry . . .

MARGARET L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Thank you so much Margaret for this authentic Melton Mowbray recipe . . also for the kind comments in your letter. Let me help you sometime.

6—In Memoriam

YARDLEY—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. Charles Yardley, who passeed away, April 27th, 1943.
Death only comes to let us know,
We move more deeply than we show,
But love in life should let us see.
What love in life should always be,
We cannot Lord, Your purpose see
But all is well, that's done by thee.
—Ever remembered by husband, daughter, Maisie and Family.

7—Card of Thanks

I wish to thank the doctors, nurses and staff of Civic Hospital, Rev. B. Morwood of Mark St. Church, and friends and relatives who sent cards and flowers and visited me during my stay in hospital. Mrs. Clara McQuaig.

May we take this opportunity of thanking neighbours and friends for their kindness and sympathy, the many floral tributes and Mr. Mathews, Mr. Rowland, attending doctor, Civic Hospital, ambulance service, Mr. Max Kaye and his associates and all who helped in any way during our recent sad bereavement. Mrs. H. W. Bedford and family.

Export Market Worries Will Continue

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Good Canadian business but worries in export markets were forecast today by Rhys M. Sale, president of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., in his address to the company's annual meeting.

"Since the introduction of our 1953 models in early December," said Mr. Sale, "dealers' sales of new and used cars have month by month exceeded those of any similar period in our history.

"Unless we encounter some wholly unforeseen circumstances, we should wind up 1953 with another production and sales record...

"Unfortunately, we can see no prospect of any substantial improvements in the overseas markets for some time to come. We still are fenced in by import controls imposed by all our traditional customer countries.

OPTIMISTIC NOTE

"About the only optimistic note in recent months was that struck by the recent budget speech in Britain, which showed some slight indication of an improvement in conditions within the sterling bloc.

"These are anxious times for any company doing business on a world scale. The pattern of international events is such that we must be alert to the possible effects of every trend and situation upon our affairs both at home and abroad.

"In our own case, we are particularly apprehensive of developments in southeast Asia which might bear unfavorably upon the operations of our subsidiary companies in India and Malaya.

"Our investment in these companies is relatively modest, as we do not own land or buildings in either country."

Indians Getting Revenge

TORONTO (CP)—The Indian is getting some of his own back from the white man, as far as land deals are concerned, according to testimony today before the legislature's select committee on Indian affairs.

The committee held its first meeting at Queen's park and heard reports from experts of the Indian affairs branch of the citizenship and immigration department.

Citing the case of oil companies in Sarnia purchasing Indian reserve land, L. L. Brown, superintendent of reserves and trusts, said the companies "pay through the nose." They have to pay twice, first to the Indian who holds the land and then to the band of which he is a member. In the Sarnia case, involving land of 10 Indian families, one family received $35,000.

STUDY ACT

The select committee, set up at the recent session of the legislature, began by studying the federal Indian Act of 1951. That act broadened the franchise within the bands to allow women 21 years and over to vote in band elections and to hold office.

As a result, Major D. M. MacKay, director of Indian affairs, said there are now two women chiefs and 19 or 20 on band councils.

John James Grady

The funeral service for John James Grady, of Toronto, who died Thursday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Mary Rose, of 65 Lansdowne St., was held Saturday from the Duffus funeral home to the Sacred Heart Church for requiem mass.

The Rev. Dr. F. M. Grant conducted the services and the priests in the Sanctuary were: Rt. Rev. Monsignor P. P. Butler, Rt. Rev. V. J. McAuley, the Very Rev. V. J. Corkery and the Rev. W. C. McCarney.

The pallbearers were: William Prindible, Gerald Grady of Peterborough, Frank Borden, Harry Riley, Donald Abrahansom, and P. J. Brittain, all of Toronto. Burial was in St. Peter's cemetery and Dr. Grant said the graveside prayers.

Last Survivor

TWICKENHAM, England (CP)—Commander C. H. Light-Oller, who was second officer of the Titanic when she sank in 1912 with a loss of 1,500 lives, has left an estate of £20,000. Light-Oller, who died at age 78, was a veteran of five shipwrecks and the Dunkerque evacuation, and the last surviving ship's officer of the Titanic.

Chinese Nationalist Army Requires Younger Recruits

By WARREN WHITE

TAIPEH, Formosa (Reuters)—The ageing Nationalist Army of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, in refuge on lush Formosa, is seeking new blood to fill its thinning ranks, but Formosans are not eager to join.

Many Chinese, a section of American military advisers, and the Formosans themselves doubt whether the Nationalist Army can recruit strongly from local sources—and there are no other.

The Formosan, Chinese by race, largely Japanese in upbringing, and individually a cross between the two, considers that he would have little to gain by becoming a Nationalist soldier.

After more than 300 years of virtual isolation from the Chinese mainland and 40 years of Japanese rule, the Formosan has had little time either to understand or love Chiang or China.

Formosans say that they would demand the right to defend their island against any Communist attack and their record as infantrymen in the Japanese Army in the Second World War shows they are fearless and soldierly.

But participation in a Chinese Nationalist Army holds neither a love nor money incentive for them.

Nationalist soldiers now are well fed and comparatively well paid.

But Formosans say that it would take a greater incentive than Chinese army food and pay to entice them to leave peaceful, prosperous Formosa.

AGED, UNFIT RETIRED

The Chinese Nationalist Army in the three years has been reduced by about 150,000, on official figures.

Under American military supervision the aged and unfit have been retired. With them went thousands unfitted for army life but qualifying for the Nationalist payroll by virtue of kinship or loyalty to a superior officer.

The average age of Nationalist soldiers is generally accepted here as about 28—far above that in most other armies.

The soldier today actually gets his 50 cents a month and can make sure that his $1.54 a month extra food allowance is spent to his advantage.

Already there are about 10,000 Army. As recognition of superior education, the Formosans are put into technical units such as the artillery.

The average Formosan youth, literate in both Chinese and Japanese, considers himself better than the "mainlander."

260 CGE Men Visit Cobourg

Two-hundred and sixty members of the CGE Quarter Century Club attended their annual get-together dinner Saturday in Cobourg and were shown through the Cobourg Plastic Works.

The buses left the main office building at 2 o'clock and took the Lakefield route around Rice Lake and arrived in Cobourg at 3 p.m. The Cobourg Works Manager, Harry Gadd met the group and escorted them through the plant showing them the different phases and processes in the manufacturing of plastic.

Following their tour through the plant in the afternoon they went to the Baltimore Hotel, were they received a turkey dinner.

The Peterborough Works manager, Roy Bogle introduced the new members to the president H. M. Turner; who addressed the group on the different trends in business today.

Legion Asks Patients Sent To Toronto

A resolution that DVA patients from the Peterborough district be treated in Toronto rather than in Kingston was proposed Sunday at the semi-annual zone meeting of the Canadian Legion held in Norwood.

Similar resolutions have been received from Legion branches in Victroia, Haliburton, and Durham Counties. It is contended that it takes too long to get to Kingston. Patients can travel to Sunnybrook hospital and back in a day but the transportation connections with Kingston are not so good.

This same resolution also requested that Frank Hurley, local DVA officer be permitted to remain in Peterborough as a service to local veterans.

Another resolution was sent from Peterborough, this one from Branch 452. It proposed that the Dominion Command of the Candian Legion draw up a brief urging the Federal Government to curtail the sale of salacious literture, particularly as it affects children and adolescents.

Both these resolutions will be passed along to the district meeting which will be next Sunday in Tweed.

Attending from Branch 52 in Peterborough were president Lou Durkin, Hurrell Dodds, Roy Garrett, Ned Heffernan, Eric Hogg, Jim Dunslow, Leo Herr, P. J. Burke, Harry Gabbutt, Harry Kelsey and Mr. Hurley of the DVA.

Three attended from Branch 52: Miss Barbara Waters, president; and Mrs. C. B. Merrett, and Miss Nan Duncan.

Three Men Made Life Members

Three long-time members of the Red Patch Club on Saturday night were presented with life membership pins and cards at the annual Ypres dinner.

The dinner is the biggest event of the year for the Red Patch Club and is held to mark the stand of the Canadians at the First Battle of Ypres that began April 22, 1915. In that battle for the Channel Ports the Germans used poison gas in their unsuccessful bid for a break-through.

All three of the new life members have been officers in the Red Patch Club. Two of them—Mel Morrow, chairman of entertainment, and Alan Wade —were former presidents. The third life member, Albert Nelson, is a former secretary-treasurer. Mr. Nelson is now sick and his life membership pin and card were presented in his absence.

A total of 165 Red Patchers, their wives and friends, sat down to a turkey dinner in the Legion Hall. Two minutes silence, with a bugler sounding Last Post and Reveille, were observed in honor of the Ypres dead.

The Hon. Harold R. Scott, minister without portfolio, spoke briefly on the value to the country of conservation.

A social evening with dancing followed.

Barrie Flyers 8-5 Favorites For Cup

By AL VICKERY

WINNIPEG (CP)—Barrie Flyers will be about 8-to-5 favorites to capture their second Memorial Cup in three years when they face St. Boniface Canadiens tonight in the first game of their best-of-seven Dominion junior hockey final. The Easterners arrived in Winnipeg this morning.

Western teams, however, are used to being quoted as underdogs. The Westerners seldom have been favorite in the 34 East-West finals since Memorial Cup play started in 1919, but they've managed to win on 16 occasions. And teams from the Manitoba Junior League have won 10 of those 16 titles.

Eastern clubs have won the Canadian final in the last four years, Port Arthur Bruins of 1948 being the last western club to take the title.

Under their same coach—Hap Emms—the Flyers captured the Dominion championship in four straight games over Winnipeg Monarchs in 1951.

LEANER YEARS

The years have been leaner for St. Boniface. The only other time a St. Boniface team reached the national final was in 1938, when their Seals went all the way, defeating Oshawa Generals 3-2 in a five-game playoff.

The 1953 Flyers don't boast such a powerful line as the Real Chevrefils-Leo Labine-Jack White trio of 1951, but they are reported to have three well-balanced lines, a solid defence and a steady goaltender in Marve Edwards, who replaced injured netminder Bill Harrington during the Ontario Hockey Association playoffs. Edwards was with St. Catharines during the regular schedule.

Since starting on the playoff trail, the Flyers have won 14 games and lost six, scoring 93 goals against 61.

In an equal number of playoff games, Canadiens won 16, lost three and tied one. They scored 108 goals against 71.

While Barrie has been described as "the best team money can buy" the Habs probably are the biggest team in the junior ranks. Their 14 starters will average 180 pounds, with right-winger Garry Blaine the heaviest at 195 and hard-working left-winger Lou Marius the lightest at 165.

Freshman coach Bryan Hextall, a former New York Ranger star, also boasts three good lines, four good-checking rearguards and a better-than-average goalie in Hal Dalkie.

One of his most consistent front lines has been the "Kid Line" of centre Cece Hoekstra and wingers Leo Konyk and Ab McDonald, who came up as a unit from the Weston juveniles. The unit is recognized as one of the best passing lines for several years in Manitoba junior hockey.

Hextall, who has switched lines in each series, probably will stick with the line-up that blasted Lethbridge Native Sons 12-1 in the final game of the Western Canada playoffs.

He kept his Kid Line intact, but used young Al Johnson at centre between Barry Thorndycraft and Marius as a back-checking trio against Lethbridge's power line. This left Len Thornson at centre for Blaine and Gabby Pankhurst. They fitted together perfectly, accounting for a total of 12 points in the one-sided victory.

Captain Syd White will be at defence with Frank Holliday, Bill Short and Bob Jasson.

Canadian Bishop Describes His Captivity

HONG KONG (AP)—It simply drove the Communists wild.

The Canadian bishop wrote years ago in a letter to another priest in China:

"N. D. bit the dust. Purdue took them after five years."

For that, Bishop Cuthbert O'Gara of Ottawa spent a week of round-the-clock questioning in a red China "house for reformation."

Freed, the ailing bishop today told in a hospital how that terse thought sent his captors into a frenzy.

The priest, a member of the Passionate Fathers, was arrested in his Yuan Ling diocese in central Hunan province in June, 1951. The Communists confronted him with the letter:

"Who is this bandit, N. D?"

"Who is this man, Purdue?

"Don't hold anything back!"

The bishop ill from a bladder infection and months of imprisonment, protested feebly—N. D. was only a niversity called Notre Dame which was defeated in a game called football by another university called Purdue.

WEEK OF QUESTIONING

"That's a lie," said the angry questioner.

"All you tell is lies. You had better tell the truth.

"Now—who is this bandit, N. D"

For a week they haggled to a stalemate—the Communist never was convinced.

Bishop O'Gara was expelled from Red China with fathers Paul Ubinger, 59, of Pittsburgh and William Westhover, 57, of Liberty Center, O.

All said they had been in prison since June, 1951; had been forced to write numerous "confessions" and each lost 30 or more pounds.

FLEAS TERRIBLE

Father Westhover said his solitary confinement cell was so infested with fleas he almost went insane.

He said he finally discovered the fleas would cluster on a black cloth in a corner and he could drown them by dousing the cloth in water.

Father Ubinger said he was forced to write a total of 238 single-spaced pages on various subjects of communism and of "confessions."

Church Holds Industrial Sunday

LONDON (Reuters)—The communion wine at a London church was carried Sunday in a glass beer tankard.

Round the pulpit—for dedication—were a washing machine, television set, pressure cooker, coils of rope, plumbing and electrical appliances, all made locally.

The dedication service—to mark Industrial Sunday—was conducted by Vicar Edward Chad Varah at St. Paul's Anglican church, Battersea.

Mr. Varah, who claims there is too rigid a distinction between religious and secular life, explained: "It gives industrial workers an opportunity of dedicating their work to God."

He started the annual service seven years ago. Since then it has spread to other churches.

Maple Leafs Split Twin Bill Chiefs Edge Montreal 4-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto and Baltimore were the only International Baseball League teams to complete their first weekend schedule this season as rain forced five postponements elsewhere.

The Maple Leafs emerged on top two games to one when their Baltimore series concluded. They beat the Orioles 7-4 Saturday, lost the first of a Sunday doubleheader 12-11 and won the abbreviated nightcap 4-1.

The Sunday double-heater between Buffalo and Springfield was called off. Saturday the Bisons edged the Cubs 4-3.

Rochester and Ottawa also faced two postponements—the Saturday encounter and the second of the scheduled twin bill Sunday. The Red Wings scored a 6-3 victory over the Athletics in the top half of the double-header.

The first extra-inning game of the season featured the Montreal-Syracuse series. The Chiefs edged the Royals 4-3 in the 12-inning first game Sunday. The nightcap was called. The Royals won Saturday, 6-5.

A five-run rally in the eighth inning gave Baltimore its lone victory over Toronto. The Orioles pounded pitcher Don Haugstad and two reliefers for 18 hits, including four homers—two by new infielder Jack Graham. The Leafs got nine hits off five Baltimore hurlers.

Round-trippers by Billy Demars and rookie outfielder Carl Rosburg were the decisive blows in the second game in which Carl Post, another newcomer, held the Orioles to three hits. Toronto got 12 hits off two Baltimore pitchers.

Pitcher Vic Lombardi was credited with the Saturday victory.

Buffalo's win in Springfield was enough to put the Bisons on top of the league standing. They out-hit the Cubs 10-5 and Al Yaylian, relieved in the ninth, was credited with the win. The Bisons got to three Springfield pitchers.

Infielder Hank Workman's single in the 12th inning gave the Chiefs their Sunday win over Montreal. Duke Markell went all the way for his second victory in as many starts, striking out 12, but being touched for 11 hits.

The Royals outhit the Chiefs 9-8 in taking the Saturday contest. Veteran Tom LaSorda did Montreal's mound chores.

In posting its first win of the season, Rochester was out-hit 11-9. Right-hander George Condrick was the victor, but needed help from lefty Dennis Reeder in the eighth.

Only two games are scheduled today, a double-header under the lights between Buffalo and Springfield. All teams take a rest Tuesday.

U.K. Papers Urge Talk Peace With Soviet

LONDON (AP)—Leading British newspapers today urged the Western world to seize upon the latest Russian peace talk offer without delay.

Most editorials caution that a full settlement of all the tense outstanding issues between the East and West is too much to hope for now. But the independent Times sums up the over-all attitude of the British press in these words:

"Even if a single area of friction could be regulated, the effort would be worthwhile."

Referring to Pravda's article Saturday replying to the peace program laid down by President Eisenhower in his speech of April 16, the Conservative Daily Mail declares:

"Snags may be hidden in the milder messages from behind the Iron Curtain. These may be intended to lull us into a false security, to divide Britain from America, or to end the war in Korea because the Reds want to concentrate on Indo-China. . . .

"Yet there still remains something we have not had since 1946—the spirit of reasonableness which has been completely absent from the Communist side.

SOME IMPROVEMENT

"Compared with what we are accustomed to get from the Kremlin, the Russian response to the president is a gentle zephyr or the cooing of doves. It certainly takes one more step forward on the road to reconciliation."

The independent, imperialist Daily Express says "no possible harm can come to the West from talking to the Russians. Every possible harm can come from a refusal to talk.

"For such a refusal would enable the Russians to say that while they want peace the West does not."

The pro-Labor Daily Herald urges the Conservative government to "speak out now."

"Our own government in the last few weeks has left the initiative too much to Russia and the United States," the Herald says. "The opportunity is great and Britain should grasp it with both hands."

The Liberal News Chronicle likens the president's speech and the Russian reply to "the age-old technique of the market place whereby both parties state their extreme prices as a preliminary to coming to terms."

MUST HELP CAUSE

"It is the duty of British statesmen to help this cause along . . . the present moment calls for pathfinders."

The Times says the chief significance in the Pravda article is the "new and more rational approach" by the Russians.

"No less significant," it adds, "is their insistence on the danger of war and of an unregulated armaments race.

"Their offer of 'serious, business-like discussions,' either directly among the powers or in the United Nations, can be accepted as substantial; and even now the Western powers should be consulting how best the offer may be answered so that little time may be lost once a Korean armistice has been reached."

NO EASY SETTLEMENT

The Conservative Telegraph warns that "only the most credulous could possibly look for an easy and general settlement of all the grave issues which threaten the peace of the world." Its editorial expresses special interest, however, in the Russian hints that a truce in Korea and a treaty to end the occupation of Austria might reasonably be expected.

"And end of fighting in Korea and an end of acute tension in Vienna are solid gains, not to be despised," says The Telegraph.

The party line for British Communists is laid down by the London Daily Worker in a front-page editorial headed "Negotiate Now."

"It is the Soviet Union which has shown all the willingness, demonstrated by deeds, to date and it is about time the Western powers demonstrated some sign of their professed willingness for peace."

The Liberal Manchester Guardian says "this is or should be the signal for diplomacy to take over. . . . The task of securing a partial relaxtion (of the cold war) is as worthwhile as it is difficult."

U.S. President To Fight Unemployment

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Saturday assailed "the stupidity of mass unemployment" and pledged "every useful measure private and public," to avoid it in the future.

In a letter to CIO President Walter Reuther, the President said he "firmly" subscribes to the Employment Act of 1946, which established the council of economic advisers and made it public policy to "promote" full employment.

The letter, made public by the CIO, was hailed in the CIO News as "a clear outline for a liberal economic philosophy for America —the sort of economic philosophy which has proven so beneficial to the country and its people during the past 20 years."

Eisenhower's letter was in answer to one Reuther sent him April 6. Reuther asked the President to summon a "broadly representative conference at the earliest possible date to draft a worksheet for full production and full employment."

Eisenhower said:

"The Employment Act of 1946 reflects a determination on the part of the American people to see to it that the stupidity of mass unemployment never again visits this land."

Trains Hit Empty Car

TORONTO (CP)—An empty car, which had stalled at a level-crossing in suburban Etobicoke, was smashed by two trains Saturday night in a freak accident. George Neill, 44, told police his 1952-model car became stuck on the tracks. He went for help, but when he and a resident returned they saw a train carry the car 150 feet along the westbound track and then throw it on to the other track. An eastbound train struck the car and hurled it into a ditch.

KOREA AIRLIFT ROUTE — During more than 2½ years on the Korea airlift the RCAF's Thunderbird squadron, with its cargoes of passengers, mail and freight, has amassed figures that dramatizes its part in the United Nations' Korea effort. Since the first airlift flight July 27, 1950, the squadron has flown more than 5,000,000 statute miles over the Pacific; carried more than 5,500,000 pounds of freight and mail, and more than 11,000 passengers, including many Korea wounded, and logged more than 27,000 flying hours. Hardest part of the Dorval-to-Tokyo run is the 5,000 miles across the Pacific where Russian radio stations often try to jam the network of radio and navigation aids.

All-Canadian Show Packs Troops In Korean Theatres

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA (CP)—A couple of theatres hereabouts are "packing 'em in" these days with the most ambitious all-Canadian show to hit Korea.

It's the John Wayne-Frank Shuster show, streamlined and adapted for soldiers at war. With men perched on the rafters, theatres built for 300 are holding 650 these days.

Wayne and Shuster, together with seven other entertainers and a staff of technicians, arrived as the 25th Canadian infantry brigade returned to the front after more than two months in reserve.

That's how it happens that the show is playing in the two theatres instead of touring the units as the visitors would have liked. Units send men down from the hills and up from the rear areas in daily quotas to attend.

Says John Wayne:

"We give 'em a 1½-hour show. We could give 'em 2½ hours but it's long enough as it is. Those aren't theatre seats the boys are sitting on—they're ammo boxes."

The show glitters with witticisms based on the local atmosphere.

"Get those cameras," says Wayne, noting that almost every soldier over here acquires a fine camera inexpensively either in Japan or through army shopping facilities.

"You can't hear the mortars for the shutters clicking."

PLAY AT "DRURY LANE"

They live at rear headquarters of the division, a dusty 30-minute jeep drive from "Drury Lane," a pre-fab theatre on the "sharp side" of the Imjin river. They give matinees there every afternoon. Evening shows are in the theatre at rear division.

"We're just as clean when we get to Drury Lane as the boys in the audience are," quips Shuster.

Volunteers Wayne: "Before you talk to anybody here you've got to blow on him to know who he is."

The girls—singer Terry Dale and dancer Zina Cheevers—live in caravans at the headquarters. Luckiest man in the brigade these days is Pte. Ernest (Tec) Fargo of Regina, who "bats" for them, helps look after the men, and in spare time entertains the troupe with Western songs of his own composition.

Other soldiers attached to the show are Ptes. George Hilton of Montreal and Ernest Shepperdon of Oshawa. Its conducting officer while here is Capt. Deb Greene of Shilo, Man.

The men sleep like other soldiers at the headquarters, on army cots, Canadian sleeping bags and under a squad tent. Most are veterans of navy, army and air force service.

BOREDOM BIG ENEMY

"But what we didn't expect to find in this war," says Wayne, "is that the biggest enemy of the men here—apart from Communist shells —is boredom, the lack of things to do.

"All the fellows tell us that. They get a kick out of just talking with new Canadian faces. So we've had lots of plain old bull sessions.

"So have the girls. The mail corporal told us once he wouldn't give us our mail unless we sent the two girls along. We did."

With them are Jack Wray, their producer, announcer Herb May and sound technician Don Bacon.

Orchestra leader is Lew Lewis, former saxophonist with Harry James. Trumpeter Jim Reynolds used to play with Tommy Dorsey and accordionist Vic Centro has toured the Pacific theatre with USO shows.

Ted Roderman is trombonist and on the drums is Harry Nicholson, who became known to servicemen when with the navy show during the war.

When Aids Most Needed Russians Jam Airways

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TOKYO (CP)—Russian radio stations periodically try to jam the network of radio and radar navigation aids on the Pacific airlift route.

RCAF fliers said during my flight here from McChord Field, Wash., that the jamming usually occurs during bad weather when the aids are most needed.

Only one radio station used for navigation on my trip was drolned out by a Russian propaganda station. Its signals came through the Russian program only when other aids had guided the aircraft into its immediate range.

RECALL BAD FLIGHTS

FO. Mort Lightstone of Ottawa, the navigator, and others of this crew captained by FO. John Middleton of Burlington, Ont., told of other flights when the weather was poor and the Russians were correspondingly more active.

Lightstone said that once last December his then flight captain filed a 10-hour flight plan from Shemya in the Aleutians, to Tokyo. They had 13 hours' fuel aboard.

"The weather was bad and we couldn't take astro shots to fix our position. The Russians jammed our Icran and radio. Twelve hours passed before we could see two stars and took a sextant bearing. The third engine conked out. We found we were 100 miles off course, flying over the centre of a prohibited area.

"The only thing was to carry on through the area and back on course. We reached Tokyo 12 hours 10 minutes after leaving Shemya—with only 40 minutes' fuel left."

OTHER LEGS SAFE

Along the other two legs of this flight—McChord field to Elmendorf field at Anchorage, Alaska, and Elmendorf to Shemya—that would be impossible. The Russians can't interfere with the set-up.

But they can on that final leg, when aircraft must pass close to Russian territory.

Navigation-aid stations dot the route, throwing out radio and radar beams, and aircraft check in by radio as they pass. Additionally, the planes send regular position reports to their last airport or the one ahead.

The whole procedure is so controlled that Middleton could say:

"They don't leave anything to chance.

"It's a lot safer flying today than driving down St. Catharine street in Montreal. We know what the weather ahead is like, what it's like at the other end, who is using the route with us and where he is; and we know exactly when we're going to reach our destination."

CAREFUL TIMING

The navigators work out an estimated time of arrival after the pilot decides his route. They work out the distance, the plane's speed, make allowance for winds—and usually are accurate to within five minutes. Between the Russians and stiff headwinds, however, variations of up to two hours are not unknown on the Shemya-Tokyo leg.

The international dateline, I was delighted to note, crosses up airmen who deal with it frequently, just as it does the rest of us. The gaining and losing of days still throws men who go through the process several times a year.

Mort Lightstone said he and Middleton three months ago crossed the Pacific braced for two Christmas days—one in Tokyo and the other en route back at Shemya.

It worked out they missed Christmas altogether. They reached Tokyo Christmas Eve and hit Shemya Boxing Day.

Canadians Start Long Trip Home

PUSAN, Korea (CP)—The 1st battalions of the Royal 22nd Regiment and the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery embarked Sunday for Japan on the first lap of their journey home.

They will spend a few days in Japan undergoing final documentation and medical examinations before sailing for Canada aboard the USS General Hauser.

Before leaving the Van Doos and the RCHA held a joint memorial service at the United Nations cemetery in Pusan for their fallen comrades. Buglers of the RCHA under Sgt. E. Wells of Montreal sounded the Last Post after a mass for Roman Catholics and a memorial service for Protestants. The Van Doos supplied a firing party.

Power Failure

GUELPH (CP)—Electricity here and at Rockwood, Elora, Acton and Fergus was cut off late Saturday when electrical equipment at the provincial power station here failed. Guelph reduced its load by two-thirds to provide power for hospitals and industry and many residential areas were without power for more than six hours. Repairs were completed early Sunday.

Expert On TB Dies

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Dr. H. A. Farris, 71, a pioneer in the modern treatment of tuberculosis, died in hospital Saturday night after a brief illness. Son of a former New Brunswick agriculture minister, Dr. Farris directed New Brunswick's tuberculosis hospital at Saint John for 15 years and later became a heart specialist.

Court Mourning Ends

WINDSOR, England (AP)—Royal mourning for Queen Mary ended Saturday. The 85-year-old queen died a month ago. Queen Elizabeth, now in residence at Windsor Castle, resumes today a glittering round of social events leading up to the Coronation on June 2.

Agree To Form Gov't.

COPENHAGEN (Reuters)—The Social Democrats, who gained two more seats than the previous government coalition in last Tuesday's elections, Saturday agreed to form a government. Earlier Socialist leader Hans Hedtoft had been reluctant to head a minority government which would depend on the support of 13 radicals.
